Students Announce Centennial Events

John Gounaris, chairman of the Student Centennial Committee, has announced the following programs of student-sponsored activities for the Centennial year. Although specific details have not yet been worked out, the events have been planned by the Committee.

A parade, scheduled for May, will highlight the closing of the Centennial activities. A main theme will unify chronological groups of classes and organizations, and the participation of high school bands and private corporations is also being considered.

Outstanding Professor Will Receive Award

A symbolic award will be presented to an outstanding professor in recognition of extra service to students. This year's presentation will be the first of an annual event traditionally handled by the senior class.

University traditions are expected to be initiated, not renewed. Suggestions for new traditions have been: changing the UMass Alma Mater song to "When Twilight Shadows Deepen" and presenting Metawampe, the symbol of UMass spirit, at all feasible social functions.

Greeks Emphasized in Publication

An I.F.C.-Pan-Hellenic book is in the planning stages. Each Greek organization will have an equal number of pages in which to include history, traditions and other pertinent information. The purpose of this publication is to "project the Greek image into the Centennial commemoration."

Programs to instill school spirit into the freshman class will be initiated by carrying on the school traditions and insuring that the freshmen will continue them in later years. Campaigning candidates for freshman elections will be written onto the mailing list of Centennial events.

All Events to Have Centennial Theme

Regularly held UMass events will be named with a Centennial theme, each activity having a different aspect highlighted.

The Centennial emblem is to be used wherever possible, and UMass publications have worked the Centennial theme into their various operations.

Ed. Note: This Centennial issue of the Collegian has been published to familiarize the entire student body with the events taking place throughout the Centennial year. It is especially designed to acquaint the freshman class with the active participation of the administration, the faculty, and the student body in the celebration of our 100th anniversary.

McCloy To Deliver Address At Centennial Convocation

The Honorable John J. McCloy, chairman of the United States General Advisory Committee on Disarmament, will deliver the major address at UMass' Opening Centennial Year Convocation on October 4.

JOHN J. McCLOY

The internationally distinguished attorney and leader in higher education, finance, and diplomacy will stress the impact of the American land-grant college idea.

Chairman of the board of trustees of Amherst College and retired chairman of the Chase Manhattan Bank, McCloy began his extensive career in public service as a captain in the American Expeditionary Forces in France in 1917.

He has served as Assistant Secretary of War and as United States High Commissioner to Germany.

UMass President John W. Lederle will officiate at the formal afternoon exercises. Sharing the speaker's platform will be Smith College President Thomas C. Mendenhall, Amherst College President Calvin H. Plimpton, Richard Glenn Gettell, President of Mount Holyoke College, and the wives of the four college presidents. Exact time and place of the convocation will be announced at a later date.

UMass' Centennial Class will lead the student body at the convocation.

The meeting will also be highlighted by the presentation of the "Teacher of the Year" Award to an outstanding professor.

The convocation marks the official opening of a year-long commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the founding of UMass, which was chartered by the Massachusetts legislature under the provisions of the "Land-Grant College Act", written by Justin S. Morrill, Congressman from Vermont, and signed by President Abraham Lincoln in July, 1862. The signature of Massachusetts Governor John A. Andrew appears on the original school charter.

Rising College Admissions Is Major Conference Theme

In the past 100 years, the number of college age Americans making applications for college admissions has jumped from less than one in fifty to more than one in four.

Almost every college in the nation has felt the pressure of rapidly expanding demand for higher education on limited or slowly expanding facilities.

The critical problems presented by this situation provide one of the major themes of the Massachusetts regional meeting of the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools to be held at the SU on October 11.

Dr. Dana M. Cotton, of Harvard University, Association Secretary-Treasurer, has announced a program of conference events, discussion topics, and guest speakers, which promises a stimulating interchange of ideas.

Dr. Arthur S. Adams, former President of the American Council on Higher Education and Director of the Salzburg seminar for American Studies in Salzburg, Austria, will deliver the major address.

Panel discussion groups will then examine "The Limitations on the Qualitative Measurements of Students for College Admission", "Non-academic Factors in Successful Transition to College" and "The Problem of Accommodating the increasing Number of Applicants for Post-secondary School Institutions".

Association president Bertram H. Holland will preside over the conference luncheon, at which UMass President John W. Lederle and Board of Trustees Chairman Frank C. Boyden are slated as guest speakers.

Boyden is a former President of the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Guest speakers for the morning and afternoon panel sessions include Richard G. King, member of Harvard College Admissions Staff, Curtis Prout, M.D., Chief of Medical Services, Harvard University, Martin Lichterman, Executive Secretary of the New England Board of Higher Education, and Asa S. Knowles, President of Northeastern University, Boston.

THE PROVOST'S HOUR

Provost Gilbert L. Woodside has announced that he will be available in the Colonial Lounge of the SU every Monday afternoon to discuss any topics with any student. Lack of communication among the administration, the faculty, and the students is a commonly heard complaint at UMass. The Provost's Hour will give every student an opportunity to communicate directly with a member of the administration.

Exposition Will Display UM Exhibits

Thousands of visitors will have an opportunity to gain first-hand knowledge of UMass' Centennial commemoration at one or both of the UMass exhibits soon to be on display at the Eastern States Exposition in West Springfield.

Colofully garbed UMass students, with members of the Centennial staff, will answer questions and distribute literature upon request at the main UMass display which will stand at the entrance to the "Massachusetts" building on the Exposition grounds.

This unit, entitled a "Centennial Perspective", is a graphic representation of the modern look at UMass.

Another large display, executed by the College of Agriculture, will be located in the Exposition's Grange building.

The presentations emphasize different facets of UMass' 100-year record of service to the Commonwealth and the larger national and international community, and are co-ordinated to reflect the promise of public higher education in the coming century.

Originally designed for the Springfield showing, both exhibits are constructed of durable materials and will be used at other large gatherings throughout the Centennial year.

The units will be manned for the duration at the Exposition, September 15-23.

Dr. Cary Authors History Of UMass For Centennial

A UMass faculty member, Professor Harold W. Cary, has written a comprehensive narrative, The University of Massachusetts: A History of One Hundred Years. This book is a Centennial year project which will be published in October.

Dr. Cary is a member of UMass' department of history and has been on the faculty for thirty years.

A Yale alumnus listed in Who's Who in America, the author combines a genealogical association with his subject and substantial scholarly credentials in his presentation of the authoritative volume.

The book begins, not with opening day at Massachusetts Agricultural College, but several decades earlier, when a concerted drive for improvement in agriculture and higher education began.

"One of the major difficulties," Professor Cary notes, looking over his two and a half years of research, "was the gathering of materials."

"The materials were scattered from the University of Michigan to the Library of Congress, and from Goodell Library to the several libraries in Boston."

Dr. Cary feels that "it has been the acceptance by the Commonwealth of the idea of a State University" that has made the story of UMass different from those of other land-grant institutions.

"Because Massachusetts had a comparatively large number of institutions of Arts and Sciences", he said, "the State University idea developed more slowly here than it did in other states."

The 250-page volume is being prepared by the Springfield, Mass., printing company of Walter Whittum, '25.

Alumni Adelphians To Initiate Seminar

The alumni chapter of UMass men's senior honor society, Alumni Adelphia, will conduct the first annual Alumni Adelphia seminar as part of the UMass Centennial on December 1 in the SU.

Daniel M. Melley '55, chairman of the group's executive committee, said that the seminar would concern itself with the problem of "maintaining academic excellence concurrently with dramatic UMass expansion."

The conference represents the first formal approach by Alumni Adelphia to discussions involving improved faculty-student relationships, counselling programs, and other topics concerned with the changing UMass campus.

Selected members of the faculty, student body, and administrative staff will be invited to participate in the discussions.

Melley asked that interested Alumni contact the UMass Alumni office in Amherst.

Pres. Lederle Announces Opening Of Centennial Year

It is a unique privilege for me to announce, on behalf of the entire University of Massachusetts, the official opening of our Centennial Year. I extend our warm invitation to all of you to join in the many events honoring our 100th anniversary.

Our Centennial occurs at one of the most dynamic periods in the University's history. Our record enrollment and measured program of expansion provide obvious evidence of this.

It is fitting that we pause at this challenging time to pay tribute to the 100 years of publicly-supported higher education which have brought this institution to the impressive point at which it stands today.

We sincerely hope that you will take advantage of the rich and diverse schedule of public programs that the University has planned for the coming year.

As you participate, may you enjoy these events and come to appreciate the excitement and sense of public responsibility we feel as we embark on our second century of service.

Mt. Holyoke Hikes Tuition, Room, Board

A tuition hike of $100 at Mt. Holyoke College effective in September, 1963, has been announced by President Richard G. Gettell.

The cost of room and board will go up $150 at the same time, he said.

These increases will bring tuition to $1600 and room and board to $1150, but will not affect this year's fees.

UMass—Progress

During this centennial year we will undoubtedly hear, see and read a great deal about the history of our University. While this historical information has value in itself, it must serve a more important cause than just to interest us.

Consider a young man about to enter his freshman year at the University of Massachusetts. While packing he comes across a pair of pants he wore as a boy, and he stops a moment to consider how fast his life has gone by, and how much he has to look forward to.

The University is like that young man. Our Centennial marks an important event in our history, and we pause to look back. What is more important is that we use this pause to look ahead. The progress we have made in our first 100 years is a worthy record. The progress we make in the next 100 years will be startling.

When we hear about our past it wil not hurt us to pat ourselves on the back for our accomplishments to date, and use this historical reminder to focus our attention on the future.

The true value of this centennial year should not be more publicity for the University. It should serve as a focusing lens on our future so that in our next 100 years our academic pants will not outgrow our physical body.

OPERETTA GUILD TO PRESENT 'GUYS AND DOLLS'

A Damon Runyon story, bristling with theatrical dialogue by Jo Swerling and Abe Burrows and buoyed by the zesty music of Frank Loesser is the University Operetta Guild's initial offering of its 15th stage season.

"Guys and Dolls", a box office smash on Broadway and as a motion picture, opens its four-day University run on October 11 in Bowker Auditorium at 8:15 p.m.

Herbert Mongue stars as Sky Masterson, Diane Fairfield as Sara, and Paul Cwiklik as Nathan. Mr. Cwiklik also serves as student production manager.

Music department head Doric Alviani is director-advisor for the comedy which features Ernest Bilodeau as Nicely Johnson and David Taylor as Harry the Hose.

The production is the highlight of an unusually rich fall season on the University campus. It opens the week following the initial Centennial Convocation on October 4th, and runs through the annual Homecoming Weekend.

A full chorus and troupe of dancers enliven the production numbers in the two-act undergraduate performance.

Ambassador Bowles To Speak At UN Week

Chester Bowles, President Kennedy's Special Representative and Advisor on African, Asian, and Latin American Affairs and United States Ambassador-at-Large, will address the University of Massachusetts student body on Friday, October 26, at 4:00 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

The speech by the former Connecticut Congressman and Ambassador to India will highlight a seven-day, Centennial Year United Nations week observance, October 21-28, held in conjunction with the nationwide UN week commemoration.

Ambassador Bowles' remarks will embrace the problems and promise of the increasingly important and constantly changing national patterns on the three continents to which he is assigned.

University of Massachusetts student groups will provide the major share of the week's events. In addition, the under-graduates are developing a project to assist one of the new nations in Africa. According to Bobbie Farrell, '64, students will solicit contributions throughout the week to aid a United Nations program in Dahomey. The money will help establish a pilot farm and agricultural project in Dahomey.

Other offerings to be presented by the students during UN week are an International Club dance on Saturday night, October 27, and a concert of folk music on Sunday, October 28.

On the campus grounds near the Student Union the Panhellenic and IFC groups will combine resources to present a carnival with an international theme.

STUDENT UNION DISPLAYS NEW MURALS

MURALS OF UMASS HISTORY

Shown above is one of the new murals to be uncovered in the Hatch on Sunday, September 16. This picture shows the latest of three stages in the history of UMass. The other murals depict the university one hundred years ago and a rope-pulling contest, a former UMass tradition.

Three colorful and impressive Centennial murals, combining historical accuracy and a unity of perspective in representations of the University's 100-year history, adorn the south wall of the Hatch.

Executed by muralist Phyllis A. Gardner of Northampton, the paintings represent the contributions of the Student Union to the Centennial of the University of Massachusetts.

The three canvases, each measuring over sixteen feet long and five feet high, will be dedicated at a formal ceremony on Sunday, September 16.

They project the Amherst campus, its appearance, student life and dynamic forces, as it began in the 1860's, as it marked its 50th year, and as it looks today on the threshold of its second century. The paintings will remain as a permanent part of the Student Union.

Miss Gardner was born on the (English) Channel Island of Jersey, and studied at London's Royal College of Art, in Paris, and in Florence, Italy. A 24-year resident of South Africa who is now an American citizen, the artist has painted murals in Africa, and for American businessmen here.

Miss Gardner is currently a teacher of painting and history at the Mary E. Burnham school in Northampton.

Speech Dept. To Present Stage Series

The immortal Oedipus Rex to be presented at 8:15 p.m. on November 2-3 by undergraduate drama majors in the Student Union Ballroom, will provide the first public demonstration of the newly developed depth in the drama area of the University's department of Speech.

Prof. Arthur Niedeck, head of the department, announced that a pioneering stage series, emphasizing the great plays of the past and beginning concurrently with the University's centennial observance includes Moliere's Tartuffe, on December 7-8, Shaw's Androcles and the Lion on March 8-9, and T. S. Eliot's Murder in the Cathedral on May 10-11.

Professor Orville Larson, director of the University theatre, stressed the educational features of the new program.

"Beginning on October 28," noted Prof. Larson, "and continuing through the November performance of Oedipus Rex there will be an exhibition of scene designs on display in the Commonwealth Room of the Student Union."

These designs were executed by Lee Simonson, one of the founders and principle designers for the Theatre Guild. Mr. Simonson will be on campus during the exhibit, and will be a guest at a student-faculty coffee hour on October 31."

On the day before the first performance, Prof. Herbert Weisinger of the Department of Comparative Literature at Michigan State University will deliver public lectures on the Sophocles tragedy itself, and on "The Myth and Ritual Theory of the Beginnings of Tragedy."

The University players will be garbed in the costumes and masks used by the cast of Oedipus Rex when the Stratford Memorial Theatre in Stratford, Ontario staged the drama in 1953.

Throughout the year, similar lectures will be offered to the students in an attempt to develop a deeper understanding of the theatrical arts.

This year's schedule of plays stands as the first in a four year cycle of similar dramas. This, Prof. Larson states, will provide dramatic experience to each four year class of drama majors and enrich the student community at large by supplementing the knowledge gained in literature courses.

Goldberg Goes To Penn.; Remains Centennial Director

Dr. Maxwell H. Goldberg, executive director of the UMass Centennial observance, has been named Professor of Humanities and Associate Director for the Humanities in the Center for Continuing Studies at the Pennsylvania State University.

Dr. Goldberg, who was the first member of the UM faculty to be named a Commonwealth Professor, has been a member of the UMass faculty for three decades. Dr. Goldberg will retain his designation as executive director of the Centennial throughout the year-long celebration.

Named Commonwealth Professor

Immediately following announcement of Dr. Goldberg's appointment to the Pennsylvania post, the UMass Board of Trustees gave the long-time teacher and administrator the title of Commonwealth Professor Emeritus in recognition of his 31 years of service. Dr. Goldberg was also honored by his colleagues in the Department at a reception held on August 25. He was appointed head of the Dept. of English in 1955. He served in that position until 1960. After a year's leave of absence, he was given responsibility over the planning phases of the University's centennial celebration.

Active In Student And Faculty Affairs

Long active in student, faculty and alumni affairs, Dr. Goldberg served on many important committees in each of these areas. For 15 years he was secretary of the University's Course of Study Committee and for almost the same length of time he was a member of the Faculty Committee on Honorary Degrees, having the responsibility of writing formal citations for honorary degree recipients.

DR. MAXWELL H. GOLDBERG

His most important committee assignment was his recent chairmanship of a faculty group assigned to undertake long-range academic planning for the entire University. In addition to regular teaching assignments, Dr. Goldberg also taught in experimental interdisciplinary honors colloquia for freshmen and in honors sections of the sophomore humanities course.

During his three decades at UM, Dr. Goldberg worked with many student organizations. For 14 years he was adviser to all student publications. Also, he aided fraternity and sorority groups in various ways, and in 1945 received the Gitelson Memorial Medallion awarded for outstanding service by Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity.

A veteran member of Adelphia, senior men's honor society, he helped form an Alumni Adelphia group and is currently a member of its executive committee. The 1942 Index, student yearbook, was dedicated to Prof. Goldberg in honor of his many contributions to student life.

An active and much-honored alumnus, Dr. Goldberg was instrumental in developing the University's Alumni College program and served as chairman of the Alumni Committee on Honorary Degrees and Medal Awards. In addition to work on many alumni committees over the years, Dr. Goldberg helped to create the Alumni Committee for Centennial Development.

Past executive officer of the College English Association and since 1952 executive director of the Humanities Center for Liberal Education in an Industrial Society, Prof. Goldberg was named at its inception to the Committee on Industry and Higher Education of the American Council on Education.

Early this year he was nominated for the presidency of the Association for Higher Education, in which he has served as a member of the general education committee and the executive committee.

A native of Malden, Mass., Prof. Goldberg attended Boston Latin School where he won prizes in writing, German, and other modern languages. After completing a bachelor of science course with highest honors at UM in 1928, he studied for a time at Amherst College before embarking on advanced studies at Yale University, where he received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees.

Agriculture Students Announce Speaker

Charles B. Brown '63 and Rone R. Medeiros '63, College of Agriculture students and presidents of Alpha Zeta and STOSO, have announced that Murray Lincoln '14, founding president of CARE and chairman of President Kennedy's Food for Peace program, will be the featured speaker at the Centennial Convocation on October 25.

The undergraduate leaders will handle the bulk of the arrangements for the Convocation, set for 11 a.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

In addition to Lincoln's address, scholarship awards, drawn from the "New York Farmers Fund" will be presented to the four outstanding scholars in the College of Agriculture by a member of the college's administration.

In his remarks to the formal gathering of students, faculty and state agricultural leaders, Lincoln will draw on his distinguished career in agriculture and public service, which spans nearly half a century.

An author and businessman, Lincoln is president of the Nationwide Insurance Companies and member of the board in several other corporations.

Urban Shift To Be Topic Of Hays Talk

At the annual conference of the Adult Education Association in Massachusetts, scheduled for October 27 in the SU, state and regional leaders in adult education will examine the effects of the urban shift of American population on their profession.

Frederick O. Hays will deliver the major address on the conference theme, "The Challenge of Urbanization on the Adult Educator."

Hays serves as assistant commissioner for program planning in the Urban Renewal Commission of the United States Housing and Home Finance Agency in Washington, D.C.

Four distinguished panelists from the adult education field will develop the theme in depth following the opening address, and all conferees will be invited to participate in afternoon discussion workshops.

The meetings will be conducted by Dr. Stephen Dean, of Simmons College, Boston. As President of the Association, Dr. Dean will present awards honoring the outstanding Adult Education programs in the state.

Dr. Albert Anthony, Professor of Education at UMass, will serve as program chairman of the meeting.

760 Seniors Graduated In Ceremony Last June

Some 900 students, including 760 seniors and 130 graduate students, received bachelor's master's or doctorate degrees at graduation ceremonies held at UMass on Sunday, June 10.

Main speaker at the exercises closing the institution's 99th year was Federal Judge Thurgood Marshall of the U.S. Second Circuit Court of Appeals.

Dr. John W. Lederle, who this year is entering his third year as the University's 15th chief executive, presided at the exercises held on the lawn north of the Women's Physical Education Building.

A total of 40 senior members of the University's ROTC units received commissions as second lieutenants, 24 in the U.S. Army and 16 in the Air Force. The commissioning was held in Bowker Auditorium.

Preceding the ceremonies, the President's Reception for parents of candidates for degrees was held on the south lawn of the Student Union.

A four day schedule of activities for seniors, parents and alumni began with the traditional Senior Dinner Dance on Thursday evening, June 7. On Friday afternoon the Senior Picnic was held at Forest Lake Park in Palmer.

Class Night, a highlight of commencement activities, was scheduled for Saturday evening on the lawn of the Women's Physical Education Building. In this last meeting of the senior class prior to commencement, the class gift was presented and the traditional Hatchet and Pipe Orations were delivered.

Eight persons were granted honorary doctorate degrees at the commencement exercises. These were Henry Cabot Lodge, Dr. Paul Dudley White, Dr. Mary L. Bunting, Thurgood Marshall, Thomas Messer, Foster Furcolo, Dr. Shannon McCune and Dr. Frederick N. Andrews.

Alumni classes held meetings and dinner events on Saturday, followed by attendance at the commencement exercises on Sunday to welcome the newly created alumni group.

Some five persons received honorary citations at ceremonies held by the Associate Alumni during the weekend. These included State Senator Maurice A. Donahue of Holyoke, Lawrence S. Dickinson of Amherst, Arthur L. Swift of Amherst, State Representative Sumner Z. Kaplan of Brookline and Miss Mildred Pierpont, long time schedule supervisor of the University.

"THE LIBE"

A familiar sight to freshmen before long will be Goodell Library, built in 1935. The addition was completed in 1960 and opened in the fall of 1961, providing two and one half times more floor space than the old building.

Of some 560,000 books in the Libe, about 425,000 are in the new building. The first and second floors are used for storage; the third and fourth have the index and reserve sections. The card catalogue is on the fifth floor.

The addition was planned to contain a minimum of books and a maximum of study area for students. Both buildings seat about 1200 students.

Teaching Is First Role Of University--Lederle

"State universities must regard the role of the teacher as first among all functions" or face the prospect of blighted undergraduate programs, President John W. Lederle said in a special annual report to the UMass trustees.

In a special speech made last June to the trustees, Dr. Lederle expressed concern that unless more "men of substance" are drawn into the country's classrooms, universities will "produce only mediocrities born of a system of mediocre instruction."

PRES. JOHN W. LEDERLE

Report Dedicated to Land Grant Colleges and UM Centennial

The president's report, issued as an 18-page illustrated document, is dedicated to all of the nation's Land-Grant colleges and universities, now celebrating the 100th anniversary of the signing of the Morrill Act, Federal legislation that brought the state university system into being. The report is also dedicated to UMass' centennial observance.

Dr. Lederle cited as a clear danger the possibility that "graduate education and advanced research will atrophy if the desire of our undergraduates to aspire to these higher activities" is stifled by poor teachers.

The president continued that "while we should strongly encourage research and publication, we should look first for the teacher-scholar who demonstrates that he is committed to imparting knowledge and the zest of learning to his students."

Pointing to the "relentless democratizing of our educational community" in the last century, Dr. Lederle noted that this spirit should carry over into educators' views of the kinds of students needing the most attention.

"Our conception of excellence must admit of gradations," the president said, adding that "there is the excellence of the obviously outstanding scholar, but there is also the excellence of the student who, though not intellectually exceptional, performs effectively because of superior motivation."

Land Grant Institutions "Great Forces"

Turning to the development of the state university system in this country, President Lederle cited the "ready adaptability" of the Land-Grant institutions as "one of the great forces contributing to progress in American hisory."

"Since passage of the Morrill Act, public institutions of higher learning have met the country's pressing needs from the time of the great agrarianism of the later 19th century to the age of space exploration now in its opening phases."

But the public colleges and universities must take on greater responsibilities in fulfilling state and national objectives, the president added. "The current master plan of any Land-Grant institution, therefore, must be based on our national purpose, on those goals which for our time in history impel all Americans to work for a better national and world community."

UM Included In Ceremony Honoring Land Grant Act

UMass was one of 68 institutions represented at a special ceremony in Washington, D.C. on July 2 marking the 100th anniversary of President Lincoln's signing of the Land Grant Act that opened doors at government supported schools of higher education.

Dr. James T. Nicholson, national chairman of the UMass centennial and a member of the University's class of 1916, joined with other guests in the commemoration held in the National Archives.

Congressmen, cabinet members, the Supreme Court, Federal officials and educators from all parts of the nation also attended the ceremonies in Washington.

Chapel Bells Rung

The event was noted on the UMass campus by playing of a special carillon concert from the tower of Old Chapel. Some 67 other colleges and universities, also brought into being by the Land Grant Act signed by President Abraham Lincoln in 1862, observed similar ceremonies across the nation.

The concert at UMass was directed by Prof. Doric Alviani, head of the University's department of music. Selections included traditional UMass songs as well as Civil War pieces.

According to President John W. Lederle, the land grant colleges have been a major force for progress because of their "ready adaptability." They not only keep up with the times; they are often in the forefront.

Senator George D. Aiken of Vermont delivered the principal address at the Washington event. Dr. Wayne C. Grover, Archivist of the United States, opened a Land Grant Centennial exhibition during the observance.

New Englanders Largely Responsible

Although Lincoln's signing put the proposal into effect, it was only after the efforts of two New Englanders that the idea reached the White House. A Templeton educator, Jonathan Baldwin Turner, receives the credit in many historical quarters for developing the idea itself.

Turner's pioneering idea stemmed from his conviction that the "sun has never shone on such a nation (as America) with such facilities (for) public advancement and improvement . . ."

Given the means of education, said Turner, "there is no secret of nature or art we cannot find out; no disease of man or beast we cannot understand; no evil we cannot remedy; no obstacle we cannot surmount; nothing that lies in the power of man to do or to understand, that cannot be understood and done."

When the proposal finally reached the legislative phase, it was Justin S. Morrill, representative (and later senator) from Vermont, who brought his own brand of stubbornness and parliamentary skill to a fight that proved rough and full of setbacks. Morrill won out, and the bil since then has been known as the Morrill Act.

Research Varied at UMass

At UMass, as at many state universities, there is a whole host of studies at the frontiers of knowledge—research in such fields as environmental psychophysiology, polymer chemistry, nuclear science and engineering, gas chromatographic analysis, relationship of symptoms in certain animals to phenylketonuria.

UMass had its poets, writers, artists, dramaturgists and musicians. Each year, too, UMass brings outstanding artists and lecturers to the campus for public appearances.

The main emphasis at land grant institutions is still on students, the young people whom Turner saw as the country's first and most valuable resources. Today, the land grant institutions educate 20 percent of all the college students in the country.

Revelers Set Up Card Sections For Football

REVELERS are organizing a card section to consist primarily of Freshmen who will perform during the half-time at the football games ths year. Definite plans for carrying it out have been made.

By starting on a small scale, they hope to have the system perfected when the new stadium is completed.

The card section, it is hoped, will instill greater spirit not only for Freshmen but for the whole campus, and also increase the attendance at the football games.

The system is being patterned after the card section at the University of Southern California with the help of Bob Jani, Special Events Coordinator, for that school.

Remedial English Program Will Include Upperclassmen

The College of Arts and Sciences plans to extend the remedial English program so that it may include upperclassmen.

According to a memorandum issued by I. Moyer Hunsberger, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, each teacher in the College is authorized and urged to refuse to accept work prepared outside of class which is not in acceptable form, even though it results in an incomplete or failing grade for the student involved. Examinations are written under circumstances of limited time, the memorandum continues. For this reason, it is unfair to apply the same high standards to examinations; but it is reasonable to expect students to use good English even under the pressure of examinations, states the memorandum.

Some students in English I are assigned to special remedial sections with an extra class meeting with no extra credit. These students are selected on the basis of the summer counseling and testing program.

If a student is unwilling to enter the new remedial program on a voluntary basis, any extremely poorly written paper may be used as the basis for formal referral to the program. Any faculty member may initiate the process by attaching the paper in question to a recommendation for referral.

The recommendation must be approved by 1) the head of the department to which the paper is submitted, or by 2) a designated member of the English department. The Dean's office is to be notified when a student is referred to the remedial program in this way.

The instructor in the remedial class will notify the Dean's office when the student is released from the program; release is based on demonstrated improvement in the appropriate skills. A student under referral for remedial training in English will not be cleared for graduation until he has been released.

Smith College Buys Observatory Site; To Share Facilities

Smith College has bought 180 acres atop Poplar Hill in West Whately for a site for an observatory.

The project will be part of a long range $23,000,000 development. Construction will begin this Fall, with the observatory ready for operation next spring.

Smith will share the facilities with Amherst and Mount Holyoke Colleges and with UMass.

Leading Profs Of Economics To Confer Here

Leading New England professors of economics will meet in the Student Union on November 10 for the semi-annual conference of the Connecticut Valley Economic Association.

The meeting of the twenty-year-old association has been planned in conjunction with the UMass Centennial observances.

Association members are on the staffs of most of New England's colleges and universities. Participants in the conference will represent a majority of the schools in the Connecticut River Valley, Professor Phillip Gamble, head of the UMass department of economics, noted.

Profesor John Blackman, program chairman, has outlined a conference schedule including afternoon refreshments and a dinner meeting at which a noted economist will appear as guest speaker.

UMass Excellence Is Topic At SWAP

"Excellence at the University" was the topic of Provost Gilbert L. Woodside's keynote address to a group of over one hundred student leaders and administrators at the fifth annual Student Workshop on Activities Problems held last weekend at the Oak'n' Spruce Lodge in South Lee.

Introduced by SWAP committee chairman Gerry Anderson, Provost Woodside discussed the several benefits of the UMass autonomy bill which was passed by the state legislature this summer.

Some of the main points brought out in the speech were:

1. Financial freedom enables recruiting, hiring, and maintaining outstanding faculty who were formerly drawn to other schools by larger salaries.

2. Laboratory and classroom equipment can be ordered without going through Boston channels for items up to five hundred dollars. The limit had been twenty dollars.

3. Trustees of UMass are permitted to make tenure regulations for faculty members. (Woodside noted that the faculty committee is presently at work preparing a recommendation for new tenure regulations, to be

"We're Rolling" Says Lederle Of UMass Medical School

"I think we're rolling," said President John W. Lederle about the recently established state medical school to be under jurisdiction of the University's trustees.

The act establishing a medical school within the University passed the State Legislature this summer after a fierce fight in the General Court and reached approval in late July.

President Lederle gave credit for help in the bill's passage to several sources. "University Alumni", he said, "took great interest in the bill and Labor forces were strongly for us. Also, Cardinal Cushing strongly supported it."

The bill, which had a relatively easy road to run at first, winning its first Senate roll call vote in mid-July after Senate Ways and Means recommended that the bill be killed, hit a rocky path later in its battle for victory. The bill had already obtained House approval.

When the bill reached the office of Governor Volpe for approval, Volpe sent it back to the House with an amendment calling for five additional trustees to be named if the bill were to be enacted.

House Speaker Thompson blasted Volpe's move, predicting Volpe would name five physicians as trustees who would see to it that the school was inferior to existing private medical schools in the state.

Senate President John Powers accepted the condition, "so long as it moves the medical school to fruition".

Thompson and Powers clashed loudly and openly over the proposed amendment, which was finally compromised to call for four additional trustees to be named by the governor and two members ex-officio—the commissioners of public health and of mental health.

According to a Boston Globe report, it was learned that Volpe plans to name doctors as trustees.

Largely responsible for effecting the compromise was Holyoke Senator Maurice A. Donahue, Democratic floor leader who chaired the special 15 member study commission which unanimously recommended state supported medical education.

President Lederle said he is now developing the program of action to select a dean for the new medical school. Whether or not a committee to select the dean will be named has not yet been decided.

Once the new dean is chosen, Lederle said, it will be his responsibility to staff the school and plan its development.

Still remaining for solution is a location for the school. Possible locations would be Boston, Worcester or Springfield.

Heavily opposed to the bill all through its battle in the General Court was the Massachusetts Taxpayers' Association.

Maroon And White Beanies Invade Campus With Spirit

by LAURA GOLDMAN '63

Things have been hopping for 1856 Frosh, entering UMass in its centennial year, since they have stepped officially into campus life at UMass.

Sally Minnich '66 expressed the appreciation of the entire new class for "the friendliness of everyone as a great help in overcoming 'that lost feeling'".

Jean Cann '63, asked how it feels to have a younger sister on campus, replied "I don't know —I never see her!" The Frosh have certainly been busy getting to know their new home.

President John W. Lederle was the featured speaker at the Freshman Convocation Monday at the Curry Hicks Building. He was among others in welcoming the Class of 1966 to UMass.

Of particular interest seems to be the class spirit obvious as the Class of '66 wanders across campus in their crisp maroon and white beanies. Arnold Carr '64 feels that the enthusiasm of the Revelers and the Scrolls, particularly their additions to old traditions, are an asset to the school.

And no one can escape those 4 a.m. beanie checks.

Sunday night's Revelers' rally—the high spot being the Frosh salute to Metawampe, the University's Indian guardian—was, according to Revelers' spokesmen, one of the most spirited (and the most crowded) in years.

Professor John D. Trimmer, head of the physics department, urged at the first class

Campus Life Examined At SWAP

Ed. Note—The following points brought out in the SWAP discussion groups are only the highlights of many resolutions made. Students who wish complete records of the SWAP conference notes are urged to obtin a copy from Mr. Watts' office on the second floor of the SU.

The student body is directly concerned in all of the resolutions passed at the SWAP discussion groups. Recommendations to the proper authorities and direct action can only be initiated after a thorough knowledge and understanding of the campus problems by the student body.

The following resolutions are selected from the secretaries' reports of the individual discussion groups.

I. Dormitory and Campus Life

1.) Strong men's and women's Interdorm Councils need to be established and should work together as a single co-ed dorm committee for dorm social activities.

2).Each dorm should contribute a definite amount to establish a working treasury for the I.D.C.

3.) Study areas should be established on each floor with strictly enforced quiet hours.

II. Extracurricular Activities

1.) There should be extensive orientation programs for freshmen during the summer counseling period, concerning extracurricular activities.

2.) Organizations should be told about the Student Activities cards and the information cards on faculty members in Mr. Watts' office so that they may find interested students to fill positions, and interested faculty to advise such organizations.

3.) Money should be available as

by JOE BRADLEY '64

Despite an alleged violation of parliamentary procedure in the Senate meeting of May 16, the meeting was accepted without objection last night.

The alleged violation arose at the May meeting when a quorum count was objected to by Senator Hench, and was subsequently overruled by the chair. Senator Robicheau appealed the decision ". . . in order that the whole Senate might vote on the ruling."

The Senate voted to accept the ruling without objection after President Cournoyer admitted that "a mistake was made," but that "the best of faith was in mind."

In further action the Senate announced dates for Campus elections and dates when nomination papers will be available as follows:

Nomination papers become available Thursday, Sept. 20.

Nomination papers are due Thursday, Sept. 27 at 5 p.m.

Elections will be held Monday, October 1.

The Senate also passed the S.U. Executive Committee constitution, the Fencing Club constitution, the Musigals constitution, the Operetta Guild constitution, and the Oriental Sports Club constitution.

President Cournoyer announced the appointment of Senator Marilyn Singer as chairman of the Public Relations Committee.

Senators Steve Gray, Donna Bonner and Karen Hebert reflect pensive attitudes as Betsy Robicheau makes a point during Wednesday's Senate meeting.

This year's SWAP Conference provided ample evidence that students at the University are not apathetic.

The resolutions passed by this convention demonstrate that both administration and students are cognizant of problems facing the University, and that something IS going to be done about these problems. We hope that all of the resolutions passed in SWAP will be considered and accepted by the organizations in question.

SWAP, however, is only a beginning. The Collegian looks to all campus organizations and the Student and Faculty Senates in particular to follow SWAP's example of constructive efforts to improve the University.

Another Type Of Integration

The administration is currently following a policy of integrating the freshmen and upperclassmen in the mens' dormitories. We feel this to be a wise policy.

Anyone who has lived in a men's dorm comprised of ninety percent or more freshmen is aware of the vandalism, noise, and lack of leadership. We are not so naive as to think that every upperclassman will supply this leadership or demonstrate proper behavior at all times, but we do feel that breaking up the large herds of freshmen will greatly reduce the vandalism and noise. The integration has certainly been successful in the women's dorms.

We are also opposed to a large number of fraternity men living in any one dorm, regardless of that dorm's proximity to fraternity row. Greeks owe their first allegiance to their houses (and rightly so), not to the dorms in which they live. We feel that too many fraternity men living in a dormitory will lead to hostile feelings between the independents and the Greeks of that residence.

The IFC might well take a lesson from PanHel on this matter.

NO MONEY

It is quite possible that the University Band and Precisionettes may not represent us at any away football games this year. They simply do not have the funds for travel.

The original Fine Arts Council budget had a request for such funds, but before final Senate approval the request was withdrawn. It appears that the Fine Arts Council and the Senate feel the responsibility for the band's appearing at football games lies with the Athletic Department. This latter group does not share that view, and either through lack of funds or disagreement with the principle, is not supplying the travel expenses.

Where does the fault lie? This is a difficult question, and at this point almost irrelevant. It makes no difference why the money isn't there; the problem is how to get the money now.

Students and administration are meeting this week to try and find a solution. It would be farcical if the University were not represented by our own band and marching drill team. Let's get the money!

All "Letters To The Editor" must be double spaced, typed at sixty spaces per line, signed, and of general interest to the campus. Names will be withheld upon request.

Students, Faculty and Administration are all encouraged to publicly express their opinions in this column.

The Collegian reserves the right to reject any letter for publication.

Setting The Record Straight

It is most unfortunate that the people of the Commonwealth should misunderstand the "fiscal autonomy" bill for the University of Massachusetts. Yet Thursday's Herald printed an article about this bill which was absurd, sarcastic, and incorrect.

"Under it (the 'autonomy' bill)," stated the article, "the University trustees have a comparatively free hand in spending the taxpayers' money. So sweeping is their authority that they are now virtually a law unto themselves."

This is not true. The total sum of money allocated to the University is still approved by the General Court. Complete and frequent accountings are made to the State as to how and where money is being spent. The University of Massachusetts is still an organ of the State, and is still responsible to the State. By no means are the trustees a "law unto themselves."

The "fiscal autonomy" is not a license to steal, it is a license to educate.

WOMEN'S CURFEW

The new curfews for women came as a surprise to most students this fall. On Mondays through Thursdays, the curfew for juniors has been extended from 10:30 to 11, and seniors are not required to return to their dorms until midnight, as opposed to the 11 o'clock curfew of previous years. Others must be in by 10:30, as before. One of the obvious advantages of this new scheme is that it will be unnecessary for seniors, who are often engaged in advanced courses, to sign out for late library permission.

In all, this new move is to be commended, and we are certain that the women students involved will prove worthy of the new trust and responsibility which the administration has seen fit to bestow upon them.

News Item in New York Times:

The White House announced late today that a board named by President Kennedy has recommended that four aerospace producers accept a union shop labor contract DEMANDED by two unions.

Clocks Of The World - Unite!

Clocks! Yes, we mean you. Are you going to stand for the abuse you have taken for thousands of years and your grandfather clocks before that? No, you are not — not if you unite with us in the ABC-XYZ International Union of Clocks.

Why should you work twenty-four hours a day when labor as a whole is working for the thirty-two hour week? The union will guarantee you an eight hour day. You need not work one second more.

We propose that all seven day clocks be put on permanent pensions so as to create more jobs for the many unemployed clocks and watches of today's troubled times. Four hundred day clocks will be eligible for retirement on 75% of full pay if they accept our union offer.

Cuckoo clocks will receive special benefits. They need only work an eight hour day with the rest of our members, but if they desire overtime time they need only cuckoo every other time on overtime hours.

Are you still hesitant, clocks of the world? Remember, it is the clocks that rule the world. Let us unleash the mighty power that you hold.

Interested?

Any student interested in joining the staff of the Collegian should report to our office in the Student Union.

There are positions available in the business, editorial, news, make-up, sports and photography departments.

Overheard in the Woman's Physical Education Building during registration: "There is no God, but Univac is coming on strong."

The New Frontier

I read with a sigh of relief a while ago that the children in a small California town at last will be able to read Tarzan stories in the open, for the librarian was told that the Apeman and Jane were legally married after all and not cohabitating. The Victorian librarian must have been greatly relieved to know she wasn't responsible for disseminating smut to the underage.

Then the other day I heard of a group of clever Californians who are raising money so they can go around the country covering the reproductive organs of all animals in captivity.

People like the librarian and the animal crusaders are extreme, but they are somewhat representative of our sex attiudes. On the premise we are a middle class society; psychologists time and time again point to the sexual anxieties of this social level, our difficulties with toilet training, with love and with abnormal situations. We are in a bit of a moral quandary, and all these sensational reports further enlarge the center of confusion.

The question before us is whether or not we can mature our outlook. The fact that we can view pictures like the Virgin Spring, Town Without Pity, Two Women, A Taste of Honey, The Children's Hour and the like and read similar novels does not show any increasing amount of immorality but rather an increasing maturity. To wish as Dylan Thomas once did, that we all be hermaphrodites, is certainly an easy way out.

ASTERISK —

A Footnote To Contemporary Propaganda

by

by M. PALTER '63 and P. THEROUX

We live in a world of manufactured crises necessitated by the ever changing political and economic needs of war economies which the Cold War has produced. Crises no longer represent a spontaneous series of events but rather the culmination of highly purposeful decisions on the part of the great power blocs led by the United States and the Soviet Union. To meet their internal political, economic, and psychological needs, these powers have found that periodic heightening and reduction of tensions is the effective tool. It is an obvious fact that the demands of either the Soviet or United States government in times of heightened tensions are more easily accepted by those governed, whereas in times of "thaw" significant deviation can develop.

At the present time, the United States has found it necessary to compound crisis by taking an aggressive stand on Cuba. Apparently the State Department has decided that aggravation of the Cuban situation becomes necessary as a counterbalance to events within Berlin. Thus the political and possibly military offensive of the Soviets is to be met by a similar offensive on the part of the United States. ..... The Administration, faced with the declining morale of the American people to a great extent symbolized by the reserve call-up fiasco, along with the desire of President Kennedy to establish the necessary legal instruments to call-up an additional 150,000 reservists, has found it necessary to use Cuba as a psychological and political pawn in the international chess match.

Unfortunately, the United States faces two major disadvantages in this policy of counterbalance. The first, and more obvious, is that U.S. policymakers have no way of determining the degree of Soviet resolve toward Cuba. It is not likely that the Soviets will commence rocket warfare to protect Cuba. On the other hand, it is not out of the question. Furthermore, the United States must bear the burden of a difficult political and moral position. A hard line toward Cuba would certainly alienate Central and South American nations while a position of flexibility could destroy the Alliance for Progress.

Morally, the United States holds a tenuous position. The government of Cuba, while a dictatorship, is unquestionably a popular regime. While the middle class dissipates, the peasants have secured significant advantages. Within a revolutionary context, the regime must be considered to be progressive and by no means ruthless.

Legally, the United States has little or no grounds for military action toward Cuba. The Monroe Doctrine can not be considered a valid legal document if only because it is unilaterally based. Economic blockade, although invoked by the O.A.S., is not legal in the full sense if only because of the essential illegality of certain member governments.

Thus, it would seem that the utilization of the Cuban situation as the fulcrum of counterbalance and internal need is a dangerously irresponsible position which can but undermine Western strategy in the Americas.

grants-in-aid to certain assignated officers if the person showed need.

III. The Exploitation Problem

1.) Leaders in extra-curricular activities should be aided in some way. Two resolutions emerged from this discussion: a. No aid money should come out of the student tax. b. Some extra consideration should be given to the extra-curricular leaders when they apply for scholarships and loans at the placement office, assuming they can meet the other criteria for the loan or scholarship.

IV. Campus Traditions

1.) Soph-Frosh rope pull across Campus Pond should be brought back—limited to teams instead of the whole class.

2.) We should have a freshman section at football games on the 20 yard line. They will "move up" as sophomores.

3.) The sophomore class should be responsible for hazing freshmen (following an approved list of suggestions).

V. Greek Problems

1.) Individual houses should reassess their goals, values, responsibilities and their reasons for existing. Individuality should be stressed in each house and activities planned with this in mind.

2.) The houses should make a point of inviting non-members to their houses, i.e. independents, faculty, and foreign students.

3.) Greeks should have some form of identification, perhaps at concerts, football games, etc.

VI. Housing Problems

1.) Freezing within the dorms serves to integrate the dorms and to decrease destructiveness. Experience has shown that non-integrated dorms do not function well.

2.) It would be difficult to establish all-senior dorms because not enough seniors would want this. Also, seniors serve a beneficial function in planning activities for underclassmen.

3.) Installation of extra intercom systems is aboslutely essential.

4.) There is insufficient cleanup and janitor service on weekends and holidays, a time when UMass is most frequently visited by guests. Strong recommendations are to be made for improvments. More services from Maintenance to the dorms would insure smoother functioning for the dorms. Requisitions should be available for service jobs done by Maintenance.

5.) The establishment of study halls on the floors of dorms for every twenty-five students should be continued. There is a recognized need for small rooms to be used for studying.

Should the main lounge of the Student Union be converted into a study hall?

VII. Student-Faculty Relations

1.) There is a need of students and faculty to go "half way" to form better relations between the two groups.

2.) There is a need for having a faculty mug book which would include names, personal history, and interests.

WSO Goes National; Now Gamma Sig

The UMass Women's Service Organization has been accepted as a probationary colony of the national service sorority, Gamma Sigma Sigma, it has been announced by Jean Sargent, President of WSO.

Notification of the acceptance was received from Mrs. Carl Staebler, National Second Vice-president of Gamma Sigma Sigma. Probationary status is for one year following which the organization hopes to become an active chapter of the national sorority.

WSO, which petitioned for recognition by Gamma Sigma Sigma in May, is comprised of UMass undergraduate women who are interested in service.

The guiding principles of the national sorority are service, friendship, and equality. WSO has been in operation since March 1961 and currently has an active membership of 25.

Chametzky, Lopreato Fulbright Exchangees

Two members of the University of Massachusetts faculty will undertake lecture and research assignments in foreign countries under the Fulbright exchange program conducted by the U.S. Department of State.

Dr. Joseph Lopreato, assistant professor of sociology, and Dr. Jules Chametzky, assistant professor of English, will be on leave of absence from the University during the current academic year while on assignment in Italy and Germany, respectively.

Dr. Lopreato will be a Fulbright Research Professor at the Institute of Statistics of the University Rome. Dr. Chametzky will lecture on American and English literature at the University of Tubingen.

Dr. Lopreato, who received his doctorate in sociology at Yale University, has worked in the Interaction Laboratory at that institution and has done field research on social change in Italy. The Massachusetts sociologist is a member of the Eastern Sociological Society and the American Sociological Association. He has published articles in journals both in this country and abroad.

Dr. Chametzky received his Ph.D. degree from the University of Minnesota and later taught at that institution and at Boston University. Managing editor of The Massachusetts Review, national quarterly of the arts, literature and public affairs, he is a founder and charter member of the Association of Literary Magazines of America (ALMA). He is also an elected member of ALMA's distribution and promotion committee.

Former editor of Faulkner Studies, he has contributed fiction and criticism to American magazines and journals. Dr. Chametzky is a member of the Modern Language Association, the College English Association, the American Studies Association, and the American Association of University Professors.

Student Chapter of ASCE Receives Commendation for Activities of 1961

The Student Chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers at UMass is one of 15 chapters at engineering schools throughout the country to receive a certificate of commendation for outstanding activities during 1961, it was announced at Society headquarters in New York.

The certificate reads: "For excellence in the effective and meritorious conduct of its affairs: The ability and professional diligence of your Chapter officers, members and faculty advisor, responsible for your success, have been commended by the Society's Committee on Student Chapters, and the Board of Direction has authorized this CERTIFICATE OF COMMENDATION to be issued."

The UMass Student Chapter's faculty advisor is Associate Professor of Civil Engineering, William W. Boyer.

Folksinger Ken Carter To Appear

The first event sponsored by the Arts and Music Committee of the Student Union will be a concert given by Ken Carter, a folksinger and folklorist.

Carter is a resident of Amherst, but has done most of his singing in New York. He has been on both major television networks as well as on radio, and has appeared in many nightclubs.

The concert is Saturday, Sept. 15, at 8 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge. Admission is free.

Recreation Dept. Holds Training Ins.

The first All-Commonwealth Playground Leaders Training Institute was held on the campus of the University of Massachusetts the weekend of June 23.

The two-day program featured semi-participation workshop sessions in arts and crafts, drama, music, playground incentives, and the organization and administration of playgrounds.

Keynoters of the Institute were Mr. Richard A. Tapply, New Hampshire Representative of the National Recreation Association and Dr. Charles Weckwerth, Professor of Recreation and Head of the Department of Recreation and Community Services, Springfield College.

Other session leaders included Prof. Justin Cobb, Department of Physical Education, University of Massachusetts, Dr. Evelyn Kirrane, Assistant Superintendent of Recreation, Brookline, Massachusetts, Dr. Doric Alviani from the University's Department of Music and Professor Orville Larson, Head of the University Theatre Area.

The Institute was the first to be held on an All-Commonwealth level and was inaugurated by the University's Department of Recreation Leadership in cooperation with the University of Massachusetts Cooperative Extension Service and the Massachusetts Recreation Society. For several years, requests from many towns and cities of Massachusetts had indicated a real need for qualified summer playground leaders.

Assistant Director Named to Office Of Inst. Studies

Raymond C. Castelpoggi has been named Assistant Director of the Office of Institutional Studies at UMass, it was announced by Pres. John W. Lederle.

As assistant director, Mr. Castelpoggi will work with Dr. Leo Redfern, who came to the University in 1961 as the first Director of the Office of Institutional Studies. In his new position, Mr. Castelpoggi will assist in collating statistics and information on UMass and other institutions of higher education. He will also work with faculty and administration in a continuing analysis of the University's institutional practices.

A native of Danbury, Conn., Mr. Castelpoggi was graduated from Bates College with an A.B. degree. His major was sociology. He attended Boston University graduate school and expects to receive his M.S. degree in January 1963.

House of Walsh

"Home of Quality Clothers for Men & Women"

Have you seen this jacket on campus lately?

If you have, you know THESE are outstanding on campus. We at the House of Walsh feel, that after consultation with several students, we have finally come up with a jacket which truly is worthy to bear the name "Massachusetts." If you would like to wear this jacket home for vacation, we offer a Student Credit Plan.

The jacket is all wool on one side and the reversible side is waterproof satin.

Former Provost McCune Appointed Civil Administrator of Ryukyu Isles

Shannon B. McCune, former provost of the University, was appointed earlier this summer as new civil administrator of the Ryukyu Islands by President Kennedy.

SHANNON B. McCUNE

Mr. McCune, geographer and educator, was provost of the University for five years prior to accepting a position as director of the department of Education for UNESCO in December of 1960.

It has been reported that the new appointment has been accepted with enthusiasm by government officials and political spokesmen with the exception of Communist opposition.

McCune is the first civilian to hold the position since it was created after World War II. His predecessor, Brig. Gen. John G. Ondrick, left Okinawa last May.

The change from a military man to a civilian as civil administrator was prompted by a survey conducted on the Islands last fall at President Kennedy's request. The survey was made by Dr. Karl Kaysen and a team of experts.

Despite McCune's appointment, power in the Ryukyus will still be vested in the United States High Commissioner of the Ryukyu Islands. That now is Lieut. Gen. Paul W. Caraway. McCune will act as a subordinate to General Caraway.

Reaction of the moderate political factions was typified by Seisaku Ota, chief executive of the government of the Ryukyu Islands. He said:

"I am sure Mr. McCune was appointed as a result of careful selection. It is said that the new civil administrator has wide experience in education and economics, thus qualifying as an expert in Far Eastern affairs."

THE CLEAN WHITE SOCK

He not only wears the clean white sock; he is "clean white sock." It's a kind of confidence that comes from knowing the right thing to do; even if he decides not to do it. His clean white socks are by Adler. His girl is by his side, every bit as "clean white sock" as he is. Naturally they don't always wear white socks, they just act like they do. People who really swing are wearing the Adler SC shrink controlled wool sock. $1.00.

J. D.'s CORNER

Hi, everyone! Welcome back. Have you found all the things you stored in the basement yet? I'll bet you'd forgotten about most of the things you left there last spring, and the boxes must seem like surprise packages. Passing the trunk room in my dorm last night, I heard someone squeal, "Did I leave a full chianti bottle here?" If she did, it's probably not full any more.

And that reminds me: since my freshman year, I've had a bottle collection—chianti bottles (empty, unfortunately), saki bottles, nip bottles, and lots more of all shapes and sizes. We used to hang them in clusters from the walls, or drip candles in them. But this year my roommate has decided against avant garde decor, and so I'm stuck with a mammonth collection of bottles, which I shall give away to the first person who writes in requesting it. Any takers?

This year I'm planning lots of contests, handy campus information, and of course information about all sorts of things you can get for free. If there's room, perhaps I'll list some at the end of the column.

Now here's the latest news from New York, where I spent my summer. Late in August, they finally finished the job of reconstruction on the George Washington bridge and opened the second level to traffic. It was added just underneath the original one, and hip New Yorkers are referring to the new level as the Martha Washington.

One of the things I accomplished this summer was a lot of reading, and some of the books I read were excellent. One that I should like to recommend is Lord of the Flies, by William Golding, a book which can give you an entirely new outlook. It's probably available at the university store.

And speaking of books, I am reminded of the best place on or near campus to buy and sell used textbooks. That's the A.P.O. booksale, right in the S.U. It's the only place where you can name your own price for books you want to sell, and you can choose a book to buy in just the condition and at just the price you want. You'll be surprised to see what low prices other students are asking for their used texts. Actually, they don't call this service a book sale, but a book exchange. Drop in soon to buy or sell textbooks. The service fraternity has set up the book exchange for your benefit, and its members will be on hand to help you.

Now let's see what's for free:

The Italian Scene, an "urbane cultural report," is free upon request from any Italian Consulate.

Free sample copy of Frontier Times—whatever that may be—for anyone who requests it. Just write to P.O. Box 5008, Austin 31, Texas.

Three more things you can get for free: The Pencil Collector, a magazine published at Sterling, Kansas; Information Free, a newsletter published by Arnold Hagen, P.O. Box 228, St. Paul 2, Minnesota; and "Pacifists Criticize Pacifism," a leaflet put out by Richard Kern, % The Greater New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to the Human Animal, 150 Nassau St., New York 38, New York. (Send stamped self-addressed envelope, please.)

Wave Named To UMass Ent. Dept.

Dr. Herbert E. Wave, an entomologist with the U.S.D.A. Agricultural Research Center at Beltsville, Md. since June of 1961, has been appointed assistant professor of entomology in the College of Agriculture at UMass, Pres. John W. Lederle announces.

Dr. Wave has assumed his new post in the department of entomology and plant pathology. He will work in the area of fruit insect research and will have responsibilities for Extension activity in the same field.

His appointment, says Dr. John H. Lilly, head of the entomology and plant pathology department, is of particular interest and importance because of the recent acquisition by the university of the Belchertown Horticultural Research Center.

Dr. Wave obtained his B.S. degree in forestry from the University of Maine in 1952 and his M.S. in entomology from Rutgers University in 1960. His Ph.D. also was obtained from Rutgers in 1961.

Discussions on Gov't Relations Held at UMass

The 14th Governor's Conference on State, County and local Relations was held at UMass August 9 and 10.

The conference, originated by former Gov. Christian A. Herter, was open to the public.

Prof. Joseph Zimmerman of Worcester Polytechnic Institute moderated a panel on home rule. Another panel was devoted to the General Court and the communities, moderated by Dr. John Gillespie of the State Department of Education. A third panel discussed improved state and local tax methods.

Director Cobb Announces New Plan For "Independents"

The following is a letter from the desk of Justin L. Cobb Director of Intramural Athletics for the University:

"I would like to take this opportunity to bring to your attention the new policy concerning the entry of Independent teams in men's intramural competition this season.

"Any Independent group that wishes to enter a team in the men's intramural sports program must be a properly registered RSO organization. This means that future Independent leagues will be made up of teams from Animal Husbandry Club, AIIE, Forestry Club, Physical Education Majors club, Newman Club, etc.

"This may or may not affect your club or organization, depending upon the interest you and your membership have in this plan. It could, however, be utilized through proper organizational techniques as a natural wholesome outlet for sports-minded members of your organization.

"If your organization would like to enter a team in any of our current Intramural activities or if you wish more information concerning this please contact me."

Mr. Cobb was forced to make this decision because of the overcrowded and overtaxed facilities of the Cage. In a recent interview Mr. Cobb reiterated his hopes that the idea of each organization having its own teams would "catch on, and eventually become an integral part of many campus organizations."

Another reason for the recent decision is that too often a group of students would decide to enter themselves as a team but soon lose interest. Mr. Cobb feels that if the students are representing their own club there would be a greater feeling of responsibility and less likelihood of the team dissolving.

This decision of course has no effect on fraternities and dormitories which are Registered Student Organizations.

In other intramural news, there will be a meeting of all dormitory and Independent athletic chairmen on Wednesday, Sept. 19, at 6:30 p.m. in Room 10 of the Cage. Dormitories and Independents desiring to enter a football team in the intramural progrom this year must have a representative at this meeting.

All dormitory and Independent football rosters must be submitted to Coach Cobb at the Curry Hicks Gym, Room 8, by no later than Friday, September 21.

All I.F.C. rosters must be submitted no later than today, Friday, September 14.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

SOCCER

Any undergradautes, particularly foreign students who are interested in playing soccer may see Coach Briggs in Room 6 at the Cage.

The Freshmen soccer team starts practice Monday Sept. 17. All those interested see Coach Leaman in Room 10 at the Cage.

RIFLE, PISTOL

There will be meetings Monday afternoon and evening for all those who are interested in varsity Pistol and Rifle shooting. Both meetings will take place in Dickinson (ROTC Building) in the rifle range.

The meeting for the pistol team will be at 4 p.m. and the rifle team meeting will be at 6:30 p.m.

All are welcome.

4. Money can be transferred between accounts.

Although fiscal autonomy has greatly facilitated the operations of the growing university, Provost Woodside reminded his audience that the legislature still "has the authority to decide general policy and the amount of money to be appropriated in all. We send financial and personnel accounts to be studied in Boston. Every cent is examined for the fiscal year."

Another area touched upon by the Provost was the compulsory ROTC problem. This decision, Woodside said, belongs to the Trustees.

Although land-grant institutions are required by law to offer ROTC instruction, there is no governmental rule for compelling students to enroll in the courses.

Other land-grant colleges which have lately abolished compulsory ROTC, have found the voluntary ROTC programs so far satisfactory. Among these colleges are included the University of Connecticut, Rutgers, Cornell, and M.I.T.

Other topics included in the Provost's address involved a Phi Beta Kappa chapter at UMass, curricular changes and administrative-faculty-student relations.

Provost Woodside concluded his remarks by stressing the importance of leadership and support of the leaders. "There is no goal out of reach now for the University," he stated, "and the students and the faculty alike must show their pride in its accomplishments."

UConn Soccer Star Turns To Football

The UMass Homecoming Day game is never too far in the future for early-season prospects, and it looks as if the UM campus will see a new face of special interest when the Huskies of UConn are hosted by the Redmen in less than a month. For the University of Connecticut football team may find itself calling upon a senior who never before played college football.

He's Jack Janiszewski of Springfield, Mass., who made quite a name for himself in soccer at UConn.

Jack came to campus about a week ago on personal business and tried punting a loose football (with tennis shoes) while the UConns were on the field in pre-season work. He had so much success with the experiment that he asked if he could try it with a pair of football shoes.

An All-New England halfback on the UConn soccer team last fall, Jack promptly began booming them 50 yards, on the average; and he has frequently ranged 65 to 70 yards in the air on his punts. On kickoffs, he makes a habit of kicking the ball beyond the end zone.

He worked out in several scrimmages and informed Coach Bob Ingalls he will cast his lot with football this season.

The decision to play football was a difficult one for Jack to make. He had a wealth of background as a soccer player. But he's making a gamble he'll make good with his foot in football.

Janiszewski played soccer at Springfield Technical High School where he lettered three years and was captain as a senior. He was All-Western Mass. in soccer three years and a member of the Western Mass. championship team as a senior. He also lettered in baseball and basketball for a year prior to his graduation in 1959. At Connecticut, he lettered in soccer as a sophomore and a junior and made honorable mention in the All-New England balloting last fall.

Is this the only reason for using Mennen Skin Bracer?

Skin Bracer's rugged, long-lasting aroma is an obvious attribute. But is it everything?

After all, Menthol-Iced Skin Bracer is the after-shave lotion that cools rather than burns. It helps heal shaving nicks and scrapes. Helps prevent blemishes. Conditions your skin.

Aren't these sound, scientific virtues more important than the purely emotional effect Skin Bracer has on women? In that case, buy a bottle. And—have fun.

Redmen Pickups Make Season Roughest In History

Fusia To Build Team Around Sophomores; Five Will Start

by STEVE HEWEY, Associate Sports Editor

The University of Massachusetts Redmen under their sophomore head coach Vic Fusia start their 1962 grid campaign and one of the toughest schedules in the school's history when they play host to last year's Yankee Conference champs, the University of Maine, one week from tomorrow. In his first year on the job Fusia guided the Redmen to a respectable 5-4 win-loss record. This year, with a nucleus of 12 returning lettermen, and promising juniors and sophomores, the former Pitt backfield mentor hopes to improve upon the 1961 Redmen record.

This year's schedule, when compared with that of last fall, shows several changes. Holy Cross, A.I.C. and Northeastern have been dropped and taking their places are Ivy League powerhouse Dartmouth, Bucknell University and Vermont. In addition to its regular selection of Yankee Conference teams, UMass will again engage B.U. and powerful Villanova, last year's Sun Bowl victor over Wichita. Although Coach Fusia faces a tough schedule, his team has a solid enough base to hold its own against all competition. But since the team is a primarily young one (more than half of the 40-odd man squad are sophomores), improvement and experience can only be gained after the season has moved along by a few games. Several of the opening contests (Dartmouth and Bucknell) could hurt the Redmen standings, but by mid-season Fusia hopes for a better than average squad.

The principal problems to be ironed out by the coaching staff center around the end positions and the fullback slot. Probable starters at the end positions will be senior Paul Majeski, top end for the Redmen for the past two seasons. As a sophomore, he led the team with 14 grabs and last season he caught 11. At the opposite end will be Dick Bourdelais, a soph, for whom Fusia has high hopes. Dick is a rangy fellow (6'3", 200 lbs.) with big hands and a lot of deceptive means on offense. Should either of these two become lost to the team, replacements will be difficult. The remainder of the line will probably be filled out by Paul Graham and soph Bob Burke at the tackle posts, junior Bob Tedoldi and soph Peter Pietz at the guards and Co-Captain Tom Kirby at center.

In the fullback starting role will be Art Perdigao, the team's leading rusher, averagewise, last season. Here again a lack of depth is the problem. But Dick Warren, a converted halfback, could be pressed into action should be occasion arise.

Most likely, the key factor to Redmen hopes will be the performance of sophomore signal caller Jerry Whelchel. Most coaches view a sophomore starter at quarterback with mixed emotions but Fusia has placed a lot of faith in Whelchel. Jerry does not appear to excel in any one department but is quite versatile as a runner, passer and blocker. Also earmarked for plenty of action is John Schroeder, also up from last season's Little Redmen crew.

The two starting halfback positions will probably be filled by a senior and a sophomore. The senior is Sam Lussier, one of the top Redmen backs in many a season. Sam can go well both ways, but is noted for his offensive talents. Averaging 5.3 yards per carry last season, he led the Redmen in that department. Since putting on a UMass jersey Lussier has scored nine TDs and has romped for 1,012 yards. The soph hopeful is Leo Biron, who was switched from quarterback to halfback during the spring drills. Another top candidate for the halfback position is Ken Kezer, a senior, and always a dangerous break-away runner. People still remember how Ken came off the injured list in 1960 and scored six touchdowns in the final two games to emerge as the top point-getter and ground-gainer for the Redmen that season.

Remember, the Redmen's season opener is against Maine, at home, on September 22nd, and the following Saturday the squad will travel to Hanover, N.H., to face the rough Dartmouth team. It is expected that many UMass fans will want to accompany their team on the first trip of the season, and there will be more about how UMass students can obtain tickets and transportation to the Dartmouth game in next week's Collegian.

Head Coach Vic Fusia with Redmen co-captains Paul Majeski and Tom Kirby.

NOTICES

Season tickets for wives of UMass undergraduate students are now on sale in Room 10 Men's Physical Education Building. The price of the ticket is $5.00 and it will admit the bearer to all football and basketball games. Seating will be in the sections reserved for students.

OFF TACKLE SLANTS

by HERB COWLES '65

This is the first in a series of articles featuring professional sports. This column contains a brief rundown of the teams in the Western Conference of the National Football League. Next week—the Eastern Conference.

The Western Conference

1. Green Bay—The best offensive line in pro football leads the way for the rugged Jim Taylor at fullback and the versatile Paul Hornung at halfback. The passing attack is capable with the underrated Bart Starr at quarterback and three large ends in Boyd Dowler, Max Magee, and Ron Kramer. The defensive forward wall, anchored by all-pro Henry Jordan, is big and aggressive. Green Bay also sports the best set of linebackers in the N.F.L. The one "weakness" is in the defensive backfield where sophomore Herb Adderly will have to come strong—don't count on it.

2. Detroit — The perennial bridesmaids of the West are strong favorites to repeat. Milt Plum at quarterback with receivers like Terry Barr and Gail Cogdill to throw to will give Detroit a needed boost in the passing department. Newcomer Tom Watkins will pair up nicely with Pietrosante at fullback providing he likes running behind a sub-par offensive line. The defense is the best. Tackle Alex Karas, linebacker Joe Schmidt, corner backer Dick (Night Train) Lane, and safety Yale Lary are all-pro caliber.

3. Baltimore Colts—This team has a poor defensive backfield, poor defensive linebackers, a fair but aging defensive line, and a poor running attack led by only an average offensive line. Why are they picked for third? Unitas is ready! No longer bothered by a sore thumb John Unitas is ready and able to throw to the best set of receivers in the League—Lenny Moore, Jimmy Orr, Raymond Berry, and R. C. (Alley Oop) Owens. There is so much talent here that Lenny Moore may shift to running halfback when he recovers from his recent injury.

4. Chicago Bears—Quarterback Bill Wade leads a strong offense which features the running of Casares, Galimore and rookie Ronnie Bull, plus the receiving of Johnny Morrison, Angelo Coia, and the fabulous tight-end, Mike Ditka. Up front on the defense Bill George leads a capable crew, however the defensive backfield resembles a group of refugees from the A.F.L.

5. San Francisco Forty-Niners —John Brodie has come into his own as a T-formation quarterback, however the receiving will suffer from the loss of R. C. Owens to the Colts. J. M. Smith and C. R. Roberts lead a rushing offense that lacks real class, however soph Bill Kilmer could help there. The offensive and defensive lines are good as is the defensive secondary, however Matt Hazeltine is the only big time linebacker.

6. The Los Angeles Rams—This team has plenty of depth—in the front office. The ram owners are currently embroiled in a legal battle for control of the team. In the meantime General Manager Elroy Hirsch is running the show. This attitude of dissension has infected the players who think nothing of voicing their displeasure with their coaches and even fellow teammates. The only bright spot on the team is the fine showings of rookies Roman Gabriel and Merlin Olsen. Of course, halfback Jon Arnett, End Red Phillips, and flanker Ollie Matso are back to surround struggling quarterback Zeke Brutowski with real class. Ed Meador glitters in an otherwise fair secondary. The lines, offensive and defensive, are weak.

7. Minnesota Vikings — This sophomore N.F.L. entry has put together a feasible offense which features Fran Tarkenton at quarterback and Hugh (the King) McElhenny at halfback. John McCormick (class of '62, UMass) appears to have won the second string quarterback job. Since Tarkington suffers from occassional attacks of asthma, Big John could be throwing in the big time any Sunday now. Since the defense isn't worth mentioning, I won't.

Freshmen Cheer At Revelers' Pep Rally

Some 1500 spirited Freshmen attended the Revelers-sponsored Pep Convocation for the Class of 1966 held last Sunday evening.

A parade, led by Revelers, Scrolls and Maroon Keys, began at the boys' dorms, continued to the girls' dorms, and proceeded to the S.U. Ballroom.

The cheerleaders, under the direction of co-captains Sheila Ryan and Dave Bates, "pushed 'em back" until the ballroom was full.

Steve Burke welcomed the Freshmen and handed out booklets containing traditions, songs and cheers of the University, edited by the Revelers.

Revelers president George Gaughan also welcomed the new class.

Kathy Meehan, president of Scrolls, explained the Scrolls' function.

Maroon Key president Bill Wilkinson gave a pep talk to the members of the Class of 1966, centering around University spirit. He introduced a new cheer for the Frosh.

Plans for the Freshmen Ball were announced. The first ball to be held exclusively for Freshmen, it is scheduled for September 22, 8 to 12 p.m. in the S.U. Ballroom.

Dress for the ball will be semi-formal. Tickets will be on sale at the Union lobby at the following times.

Today, 10 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 4 p.m.; Monday, 10 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 4 p.m.; Tuesday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Wednesday, 1 to 4 p.m; Thursday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Friday, 10 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 4 p.m.

French Films To Be Shown By Corrider

The French Corridor of UMass is presenting a series of full-length film classics for the benefit of all interested. Films will be shown Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium approximately every other week.

Due to rental cost of the movies, which must be paid in advance, admission will be by subscription to the whole series. Tickets will be on sale in the Student Union daily from 9 to 11 a.m. and from 2 to 4 p.m. until September 22.

All films are in French with English, sub-titles.

The French Corridor, located in Abigail Adams House, was established last year as an aid to those girls who wished to have practical opportunities to improve their ability to speak French.

This year the French Corridor has introduced Miss Francine Abadie as counselor and general "enthusiasm for French Encourage", according to a Corridor member. The customary Thursday evening meal at the Commons, Wednesday evening chats at the Abbey, and social events will continue throughout the year.

C.A. Lecture Will Present Noted Author

Hans Hofmann, internationally-known author, editor, and Director of the Harvard University Project on Religion and Mental Health, will deliver the keynote address in the first of a series of Christian Association sponsored programs designed, according to C. A. President Howard Stone, to challenge the University campus on key current issues.

The address, entitled, "School Starts—Does Religion Stop?" is scheduled for Sunday, September 16, at 3 p.m. in the S.U. Ballroom.

Hans Hofmann, well known for his serious insight and timely wit, has written several books, among them being "The Theology of Reinhold Niebuhr" and "Making the Ministry Relevant," was editor of "Ministry and Mental Health," and has written articles for The Christian Century, The Christian Scholar, and Pastoral Psychology. He was born in Basel, Switzerland and received his B.D. from the University of Basel and his TH.D. from the University of Zurich.

The Christian Association anticipates a lively talk on this question. Admission is free of charge and all are welcome to attend.

meeting of the Class of '66 on September 10 that students take the initiative to sign for a course titled "Do It Yourself in Universal Math" or "What Does It All Add Up To?" The course is neither a requirement nor listed in the catalogue.

Dr. Trimmer asked attending students, in the course of talks and discussions, to search out and accept truth, "not as it happens to fit in with your own ideas, but to accept truth as it is—especially when it is disconcerting." A good season of "bull sessions" to you all!

Hillel Supper To Feature Taj Mahal

A campus entertainer known as Taj, who is well-known by UMass students, will provide entertainment at the Hillel Foundation Delicatessen Supper, 5:30 p.m. Sunday, September 16 in the S.U. Ballroom.

Last year Taj sang on a non-competitive basis in the S.U. arts and music committee sponsored talent show and is also well known for his evening "sings" in front of the dining commons.

At this first Hillel function of the season, Rabbi Kaplan from Holyoke will also speak. He is religious advisor to the Fellowship of Faith at Mount Holyoke and did his undergraduate work at C.C.N.Y.

Rabbi Kaplan is a graduate of the Seminary College of Jewish Studies. He graduated from the Jewish Theological Seminary in 1954. For two years he was a U.S. Army Chaplain. He has been in Holyoke since 1959.

Admission to the supper is 50¢ for members and $1.00 for non-members. Membership may be obtained at the door. All are welcome.

There will be introductory broadcast engineering classes for prospective members of WMUA every Saturady from 9-10 a.m., starting Sept. 15.

Annual fall budget meeting to be held on Tues., Sept. 18 at 7 p.m. in the Senate Office. Any changes in appropriation figures will be dealt with at that time.

All Veteran students who are studying under provisions of Public Law 550 (Korean Bill) must fill out V.A. enrollment forms at once in Room E27, Machmer Hall, if they expect to receive early payment of benefits. Also, children of deceased Veterans under Public Law 634 must file V.A. enrollment forms at once if they expect benefit payments.

Next Tuesday morning at 11:15 a.m. the Revelers, led by President George Gaughan, will tap a new Reveler in the Hatch. This is the first tapping of the year, and Freshmen especially are invited.

Free transportation will be available for students who wish to attend the North Congregational Church of Amherst. Rides will be available outside of Hills House and Arnold House each Sunday during the school year from 10:30-10:45 a.m. North Church is located one mile north of the University campus on Route 116. The Rev. Russell G. Claussen, former Protestant chaplain at the University, is the minister.

wards should be made available. b. There is not enough esteem and respect attached to the positions. c. The Gryphon Society could turn into the most valuable professional group on campus. Its concern would be primarily for the good of the dorm and campus, rather than for the individual member. Consequently they would not deal with many social functions. Through the Gryphon Society, students can be trained and developed into good counselors.

2.) That the members of the Greek system should not be excluded from counselorships. A diversified group is more valuable.

3.) That the seven o'clock curfew for freshmen women and the sign-out system were of definite merit and have proved successful.

IX. Communications

1.) And Ad Hoc Committee should be set up by the Senate consisting of a representative of the Senate, Collegian, WMUA, and Mr. Watts to work on the proposed Communication committee.

2.) A concrete proposal should be submitted to the Senate stating that there should be no more poster campaigns except in centralized and restricted areas.

3. Collegian and WMUA should not endorse candidates.

4. Student communications media are not direct reflectors of student opinion, but they implement discussions.

X. Curriculum and the Pursuit of Academics

1. An all night study room in the library is impossible because no one room can be locked up with an outside exit.

2. An investigation should be made of who should purchase the fans for ventilation for a smoking room in the library.

3. There should be at least one or two days of review period before finals regardless of the calendar.

4.) Freshman finals should not count as much as upperclass finals.

5.)Three-quarters of the SWAP group favored unlimited cuts after freshman year, after weighing all the factors.

6.) It should be made general knowledge that any course can be taken as a summer reading course if the student has a 2.5 cum. and secures the permission of the instructor.

XI. Academic Honesty

1.) The plus-minus system should be instated.

2.) An honor system should be instituted in small classes of majors.

3.) The present system of allowing an offender against academic honesty a second chance before suspension is fair.

4.) Old exams are profitable if they are made available to all students. Files should be set up containing old exams and administered by Interdorm Councils.

XII. Centennial Events

1. Each organization will be given an equal number of pages in the IFC-PAN HEL Book to write of history, etc.

2.) Organizations from all over the state will pay tribute to UMass in the parade to be held next spring. High school bands and corporations will also take part. Chronologically arranged sections could coincide with the handbook to be distributed.

3.) Entertainment should be provided on campus for the weekend of May 5th, which would involve only those activities and demonstrations in which students participate.

4.) There should be an Outstanding Professor Award given each year to a professor elected by the student body.

Pictured here is the lobby of the new Brett dormitory. Brett offers its residents new facilities such as study lounges on each floor, teak furniture, and modern light fixtures.

Men's Dorm Named For Noted Alumnus

A new four-story men's dormitory at UMass housing 252 students, has been named after a prominent alumnus and long-time member of the institution's Board of Trustees.

Pres. John W. Lederle announced that the University's Board of Trustees recently voted to name the building for Alden Chase Brett, a graduate of the University in 1912.

Brett House is a modern L-shaped structure with special study rooms on each floor. It brings to 13 the total number of occupied men's dorms on campus.

Noting the appropriateness of the honor, Dr. Lederle said, "Mr. Brett was a founder and the only president of the University of Massachusetts Building Association that built 19 dormitories, two faculty housing units and the Student Union during the last 20 years. Now that the Association has been replaced by the University of Massachusetts Building Authority, established by the General Court in 1960, it is particularly fitting that one of the first dormitories built under this plan be named for him."

Retired treasurer of the Hood Rubber Co., Mr. Brett is a retired director of the Second Bank State Street Trust Co. in Boston, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Boston Mutual Life Insurance Co., and president and director of the Arrow Mutual Liability Insurance Co.

In addition, he is treasurer and director of the National Cranberry Association and director and executive committee member of Associated Industries of Massachusetts.

During World War II, Mr. Brett served as assistant director of purchases for the War Production Board. He has been a member and vice president of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce and Boston chairman of the Committee for Economic Development.

In 1954 Mr. Brett received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from the University. He served the University as a president of the Associate Alumni and received the Alumni Medal in 1960 from that organization for distinguished service to the University. Mr. Brett is also an honorary member of Adelphia, senior men's honor society at the University. At this year's commencement he was elected to membership in Beta Gamma Sigma, national honorary Business Administration society.

Mr. Brett and his wife are residents of Belmont.

1962 Index Receives A Rating

The 1962 Index, the yearbook of the University, received a national critique rating of "A for Excellence", placing the Index in the top 10 per cen of yearbooks in the nation, according to an announcement from the Index office.

The rating was awarded by the National School Yearbook Association of Columbia, Missouri, a critique and rating service which specializes in high school, college, and university yearbooks.

Special mention was made of the opening section which was devoted to a pictorial history of the University's first 99 years. Also cited were the Sports section and the Administration section.

Alan Savat, Editor-in-Chief of the 1963 Index commented: "While the 1962 Index is the finest UMass yearbook produced to date, we intend to produce a bigger and better Index in every way for the Centennial class."

Experimental Math Program Held For Frosh Engineers

by MARCIA ANN VOIKOS '63

As the number of U.S. college freshmen enrolled in engineering dropped from 79,000 in 1957 to 68,000 in 1961, a special prefreshman program in Mathematics for selected students entering the School of Engineering has been initiated at UMass.

This program was held two weeks before classes began and was financed by the Charles F. Kettering Foundation and the University.

Because of the experimental nature of the program, enrollment was limited to 41 students and six senior instructors. This preparation geared the students not only to orient themselves to college life and to develop leadership abilities, but it also reviewed high school math and introduced the students to the slide rule and logarithms on engineering type problems.

Moreover, the students were familiarized with the history and tradition of engineering and were taught applied mathematics from films.

"It's a double-barrelled program," stated Prof. Edward J. Rising, director of the program. "Primarily, it functions to improve freshman study habits and enables him to decide if he wants engineering or not, so that he can change majors now, rather than wasting a semester."

"Secondly," he continued, "the six selected senior instructors who are interested in graduate school are in a better position to aquaint themselves with college teaching both by instruction and daily seminars."

Nowadays, very few graduate students pay their own way; parttime teaching is a popular source of financial support, Prof. Rising noted.

Joe Moynihan, senior instructor, mentioned what the program did for him: "It gave us positive feelings about teaching. Under ideal conditions, it introduced us to individual differences which point up that teaching is a rewarding profession."

The other five instructors were Gregory Erhard, Charles Fohlin, Charles Warbuston, Kenneth Goff, and Arthur Morin.

"It was the first time in my life I enjoyed studying," said George Mellen, one of the selected freshmen. "I never learned so much before in two weeks. We had the advantage of learning the complicated use of every scale on the slide rule—incoming freshmen will have to learn it on

Nominations Are Opened For Queen

With Homecoming just three weeks away, October 13, the University Homecoming Committee has announced that nominations are now being accepted by the committee for Homecoming Queen.

Nomination papers, which have been sent out to all dormitories, fraternities and sororities, must be returned to the Adelphia RSO box in the Student Union by Wednesday, September 19, at 5 p.m.

For the first time, the Homecoming Committee, along with Adelphia, will supplement the house nominations with individual "tappings" of their own. Thus, co-eds about campus may expect to be spotted by these members and invited to the interviews scheduled for Monday, September 23.

Murals Representing UMass Life Unveiled

Looking on while Mrs. Gardner explains her murals are (l. to r.) Skip Oakes, Elaine Carlson, and Betsy Robicheau. Mrs. Gardner's murals were unveiled yesterday at a ceermony held in the Hatch.

by MARY ROCHE '64

"The Student Union houses the pulse signalling the health of the University as a whole," said Dr. Maxwell Goldberg, Executive Director of the Centennial, at yesterday's unveiling of the murals in the Hatch.

John W. Ryan, Secretary of the University, in commenting on the growth of the University as it is depicted in the murals, stressed that the main idea of public education is to provide opportunity to everybody and to achieve the maximum within the student.

In these three murals depicting the 100 years of the University's existence, the artist, Mrs. Phyllis Gardner, has "given us a chance to be reminded that we are a part of a continuing tradition." said Dr. William Field.

The murals follow the life of the University from its inception as the Mass. Agricultural College up until the present time.

The first mural shows the College with three of its original four buildings in the background and in the foreground, Col. Clark and Mr. Stockbridge discussing future plans.

The second mural, the rope-pulling contest, is a reminder of the "spontaneous need for relax-

Automobile Registration This Week

UMass campus police officials have announced that car registration will be held this week for UMass students.

Seniors and graduate students are to register tomorrow from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in South Lot next to the ballfield.

Others desiring car registration may register Wednesday, from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in South Lot next to the ballfield.

In case of inclement weather, registration will be held elsewhere. Information regarding alternate registration locations may be obtained from campus police.

HAIL TO THE CHIEF

The successful passage of the "fiscal autonomy" bill this past summer was, in great part, due to the efforts of University President Dr. John W. Lederle.

We do not in any way mean to slight the efforts of other University personnel or members of the Massachusetts Legislature, but Dr. Lederle's efforts were certainly instrumental in tipping the scales.

Without the passage of this bill the University would still be bound up in a snarled package of red tape. It clears a major stumbling block from our path.

The entire University family owes a vote of thanks to all those connected with the passage of this bill, and to President Lederle in particular.

WHERE ARE THEY?

On registration day there were over 1800 beanies perched atop over 1800 downy heads. Today there are not over 1800 beanies in evidence (although more down can now be seen.)

The first touchdown (the first of many, we hope) has not yet been scored by our football team, so we ask: Freshmen, where are your beanies?

LIBRARY HOURS

It is possible that there is no student or member of the faculty who wishes to use the library Saturday evening or Sunday morning? We think not.

The library closes at 4:30 Saturday afternoon, and does not reopen until 2:00 on Sunday afternoon. This is almost one complete day during the week when students and faculty alike are not allowed to study in Goodell Library. We wish to point out to those entrusted with power to change the library hours that education is not a business with a six day week. Even if only a small percentage of the University desires the use of this facility, it should be kept open.

Not only the study areas should be open, but also the reference and research desks. Weekends are ideal times for research on special projects for students and faculty alike, but under the present hours this is very difficult.

We hope that the standard excuse of "not enough money to pay for this kind of thing" will not be offered by library officials. Now that we have fiscal autonomy, let's make the money available, and keep the library open.

AN "A" RATING

The "A" rating of the 1962 Index is a just reward for the outstanding yearbook of last year's senior class. Ed Rodriguez deserves congratulations for his work as editor, and in particular for the outstanding pictorial section that preceded the regular features.

We are confident that the 1962 Index has set a standard of excellence that will be equalled or surpassed by Al Savat and the 1963 Index staff.

TIME AND TRASH WAIT FOR NO MAN

The physical plant of the University has grown rapidly in the last three years, but the maintenance of these buildings has not progressed with equal speed.

We are speaking now of janitorial service. Up to the present time, janitorial service has been either at a minimum or non-existent on weekends. Certainly the powers that be realize that students are living in dormitories seven days a week. Trash must be picked up, floors must be kept clean, and other services performed on weekends just as they are on weekdays.

There are health hazards involved when trash is allowed to pile up and spill over into hallways. In addition, it might also be added that many visitors to the University are on campus during the weekends, and the impression they receive of our dormitories must certainly be a poor one. Who enjoys having his parents stare at a pile of trash when they visit on Sundays?

Normal janitorial work on a seven-day-week basis is a reasonable request for an essential service.

"A" MODEST PROPOSAL

One of the most interesting proposals to emerge from the SWAP Conference this year concerned campus wide elections. The delegates proposed that the only signs and posters that be allowed in campus-wide elections be placed in the designated area in front of the Student Union.

There are two major advantages to this proposal. The first, and perhaps the most obvious, is that our campus would not assume the appearance of the Amherst town dump during the spring and fall elections. This is reason enough for SWAP's proposal, but there is a more important advantage.

If a candidate wants his name known on campus he will have to do something more than just paste or tape his name over every tree, brick, or sidewalk. He will have to get out and speak to the voters.

WMUA has made a generous offer of their air time for candidates to debate or question each other on issues of the campaign. The political debate has certainly become fashionable during the past month, and it is an excellent vehicle for the voters to know who is who.

The Collegian is also willing to provide equal space for candidates in major campus elections.

We hope that the Student Senate will turn SWAP's proposal into law so that campus elections will become a measure of the voter's intelligence, and not his ability to wade through mountains of posters.

WEIGHING THE RISK

Last Saturday night the U.S. Public Health Service recommended a temporary halt in the use of the Type III oral polio vaccine for adults. The decision came as the result of four cases of paralytic polio discovered in Canada from among approximately four million who have received the vaccine, and sixteen cases of polio in this country from among the millions of people who have received the three types of oral vaccine.

As Dr. Gage of the UMass Health Service noted, at the moment it is not even positive that the four Canadian cases of polio were the result of the oral vaccine. Even if these four cases have resulted from the vaccine, it is still a "one-in-a-million shot."

Dr. Gage also pointed out that if the four million people had received penicillin shots there might have been a more severe reaction. Certainly no one would suggest stopping the use of penicillin.

There is always some risk involved in a vaccination program, and the advantages must be sufficient to overcome the risk.

The question is whether or not the risk is worth the advantages. We feel that it is.

It has been pointed out that the recent Thalidomide scare has put the U. S. Health Service on the edges of their seats. They are not willing to take even the slightest risk at this time.

If the risk was a real threat, then the Health Service would have forbidden the use of this vaccine instead of suggesting that it not be used.

We hope that local Health Services will weigh the risks and advantages on their own merits, and not on the basis of the failure of an unrelated drug.

THE 25 BARRIER

The University of Massachusetts, with its Honors Colloquium and honors programs, has done much to encourage the scholarly endeavor of its students. These programs, however, seem to be drifting from their original intent—higher education and scholarship—by limiting the chance of self advancement to only those on campus wih 2.5 cums or above.

This past summer's reading courses are exemplary of the rift between aim and accomplishment. Those with a 2.5 cum or higher, could buy books for a course, read them at home, and take a registration day test to obtain classroom credit for the course. Now, a 2.5 cum is representative of a good student, but we all know that a cumulative average can not take into account the host of factors that can ruin the yearly average. To the Freshman who has had a rocky first semester, due to a mischoice of majors, the 2.5 barrier is nearly insurmountable. Though he may change his major and "miraculously" recover, the fact that he was, at first, weak, will forbid his summer advancement in a course.

Looking more closely at the situation, one will see the 2.5 requirement, or any required OVERALL average for advancement in a specific area, is A MISTAKE. If one excels in a subject, to the extent of consistent B or A, or a teacher's recommendation (as it's worded in the catalog), the fact that another subject has put him near disaster—average-wise—does not disable him in the field he enjoys. Thus, this type of "honors program" defeats its own purpose. By requiring the English scholar to excel in Math before he can be judged capable of summer advancement in English is illogical. The University should strive to make such extra credit courses open to all those qualified in that specific field. Special discussion groups, more privileges and recognition, and more financial support to the high honors students, are encouraging; but an abstract limit of a 2.5 cum placed as an entrance requirement for courses of advancement—NOT ADVANCED COURSES—is unfounded, and cries for repair.

GOODBYE, DR. GOLDBERG

The students, faculty, and alumni of UMass owe a vote of appreciation and thanks to Dr. Max Goldberg, Executive Director of the Centennial Observances, who has recently been named Professor of Humanities and Associate Director for the Humanities in the Center for Continuing Studies at Pennsylvania State University. (See Collegian of September 11).

Although "Max" has left the UMass campus in order to take the Penn State position, he remains Director of the Centennial program, and retains his interest in the 1962-63 year, as evidenced by his appearance at the unveiling of the Centennial murals in the Hatch on Sunday.

We feel safe in saying that we are expressing the gratitude of the entire campus in extending our best wishes to Dr. Goldberg as he takes on his new endeavor in the field of Adult Education.

We salute you, Dr. Goldberg—Thanks, and good luck.

All "Letters To The Editor" must be double spaced, typed at sixty spaces per line, signed, and of general interest to the campus. Names will be withheld upon request.

Students, faculty and administration are all encouraged to publicly express their opinions in this column.

UMass Gets Choice Seats At Dartmouth

by JIM TRELEASE '63

The Indians are worrying these days up in New Hampshire on the Dartmouth campus and not all of it is being done on the gridiron. It appears that memories of the now famous Saturday morning motorcade from UMass to Harvard Stadium in 1955 have provoked problems among ticket and stadium officials at the Hanover institution.

The thought of thousands of loyal University students storming the gates of Dartmouth's beautiful stadium as they did at Harvard seven years ago has convinced Dartmouth financiers that the only recourse is to supply the demands of the Redmen from Massachusetts.

With our demands in hand, UMass' Financial Manager of Athletics Robert O'Connell went to work with his scalping hatchet in hand and arrived back in Amherst this weekend with the finest selection of tickets this campus has seen since we began football with the Ivies. Not only did O'Connell chop the usual $4.00 ticket price to $2.00 but he also carved our seats from the very heart of the Dartmouth Stadium —mid-field on the 50 yard line.

With seniors and juniors remembering well the sound drubbing UMass gave its last Ivy opponent two years ago (UM 27-Harvard 12), a huge throng has already begun plans for the march to and against the "Big Green", Saturday Sept. 29.

Special buses have been chartered for those not making the journey by car. Game tickets are $2.00 and can be purchased from Mr. O'Connell in the Curry Hicks building Mon.-Fri. until Sept. 26. Bus tickets will be priced at approximately $3.00 will be able to be purchased in Memorial Hall at the Alumni offices across from Curry Hicks. For those wishing to lunch before the gridiron action begins, the Hanovers Lions Club has invited all University students to a chicken barbeque ($1-1.50) at the entrance to the stadium. The buses will also stop for supper on the return trip to campus in the evening. Redmen followers with cars and looking for passengers are urged to leave tags at the ride board in the Student Union and riders can sign-up here also.

With the Dartmouth Indians rated top threat for the Ivy Crown and the UMass Redmen seeded number one for the Yankee Crown, a vicious battle of the Tribes looms for this Sept. 29 weekend. It is therefore important for all students to realize that limited number of tickets are available and a "first come, first serve" policy will prevail.

their own. It took a lot of study."

Freshmen Camps have been considered before at UMass. Although it is generally agreed that such programs are needed, the question is how to finance and operate them. After a year and a half, the University has donated $3000 to cover the operating expenses of this endeavor on a trial basis in connection with a matching grant of $4000 from the Charles F. Kettering Foundation for research and evaluation.

Moreover, three outside consultants have been called in to observe and judge the program. They are Prof. Dis Maly of RPI, Dr. Vernan Jones, Head of Educational Psychology at Clark University, and Dean Arthur Bronwell, Dean of Engineering at the University of Connecticut.

"If the results are successful, we'll go to the administration in hopes that the program can be expanded in the future," said Prof. Rising. "I think the program points up our own goals—that we, as a state University, are more oriented to undergraduate study compared to some private institutions, because we are obligated to contribute to the industry and taxpayers of the state."

ation," said Dean Field, and is a comment on the physical vigor of the students.

The third mural, showing the Student Union building as it is today, suggests the variety and numbers of the present student body.

These murals depict "the past, the present and open vistas into the future," said Dr. Goldberg.

In time, perhaps others can be added as the University grows, expands and the future becomes the present.

The artist, Mrs. Gardner, expressed her enjoyment in working on the project and termed it a "terrific opportunity" to dig into the life and history of the University.

Mrs. Gardner spent much time in the historical research that went into this work, searching for long hours into records and looking at old sketches and prints of the University to verify the details that show up in her work.

The actual unveiling of the murals was done by Elaine Carlson, acting in her capacity as representative of the S.U.G. Board, Skip Oakes, as the representative of the class officers, and Betsy Robicheau, representing the Student Senate.

Speaking Of Sports

by BARRY BROOKS '63

When the Black Bears from Maine make the tiresome 322 mile journey from Orono this Saturday, it will mark the ninth meeting of these two teams over the years. For eight Redmen this will be the "rubber game" of a three game series which began for them with a 21-13 win over coach Hal Westerman's eleven here at Alumni Field back in 1960. For Sam Lussier, Ken Kezer, Art Perdigao, Loren Flagg, Tom Kirby, Matt Collins, John Kozaka, and Paul Majeski, this will be the last time they will face the Black Bears. The past two years Massachusetts and Maine have split, each registering a loss away from home.

Not many Redmen followers can forget last year's game played in snow, rain, and mud. before a handful of fans. Both teams were looking forward to carrying home the Yankee Conference Beanpot. The game, originally scheduled for the season's opener, was postponed until November 22 because of a flu epidemic which sent 22 Redmen gridsters to the University Infirmary. The gentlemen from the Pine Tree state were not so gentle as they walked away with the YanCon championship by virtue of a fourth quarter field-goal which gave them a 10-7 edge.

In 1960, in a game played at Portland, the Redmen handed the Westermen a 21-13 loss. Chuck Studley was in his freshman year and had handed the quarterbacking assignment to a junior—John McCormick. ('61) now with the Minnesota Vikings of the NFL, completed ten of fifteen passes that afternoon for a total of 179 yards.

Over the years the Redmen have won 4, lost 3, and tied one.

The Fusiamen, five and four last year, are looking forward to bettering that mark this year. Let's support the Redmen.

End PAUL MAJESKI and Center TOM KIRBY, two of the Redmen squad who are anxious to come out ahead in the three game series with Maine.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

RIFLE, PISTOL

There will be meetings Monday afternoon and evening for all those who are interested in varsity Pistol and Rifle shooting. Both meetings will take place in the rifle range.

The meeting for the pistol team will be at 4 p.m. and the rifle team meeting will be at 6:30 p.m.

All are welcome.

TICKETS

Season tickets for wives of UMass undergraduate students are now on sale in Room 10 Men's Physical Education Building. The price of the ticket is $5 and it will admit the bearer to all football and basketball games. Seating will be in the sections reserved for students.

Eminent English Poet To Deliver Reading

Professor Robin Skelton, First Semester Centennial Lecturer in English Literature at UMass and Senior Lecturer in the Department of English at the University of Manchester (England), will deliver a reading of his poetry tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge of the S.U.

The program will be one of a series to be presented by the UMass English Department in celebration of the University's centennial year. Theme for the series will be Modern Trends in British and American Literature.

Professor Skelton, educated at Christ's College, Cambridge, and Leeds University, has been an outstanding booster of poetry and plastic arts in England. He has recently lectured at Victoria College in British Columbia.

He has read his verse to audiences in many English schools and universities including Oxford and Cambridge, and is distinguished by T. S. Eliot as one of the most promising of the younger poets in England.

Founder and then secretary of the Peterloo Group of Poets and Painters (1957-60) and subsequently of the Manchester Institute of Contemporary Arts (1960-62), he has appeared on a number of programs of the British Broadcasting Company.

Mr. Skelton has four volumes of verse in print and has published book-length critical studies of Ruskin, the Cavalier Poets and the nature of poetry (The Poetic Process).

Individual poems of his have appeared in publications including The London Times Literary Supplement and The New Statesman.

Medeiros Requests Winter Carnival Theme Suggestions

James Medeiros, president of the class of '64, has announced that a box will be in the Student Union lobby for University undergraduates until Wednesday evening to leave theme suggestions for the '63 Winter Carnival, to be sponsored by the Junior class in February.

Themes should be related to the University's centennial celebration. The author of the winning theme will receive free tickets to all Winter Carnival events.

Stephen Kingsley, publicity chairman for the Carnival, is anticipating one of the largest and best winter carnivals in University history.

The Carnival committee met Thursday night to begin preparations. Chairmanships for committees were discussed.

Vacancies Exist In Committee

Student Senator Bob Brauer has announced that openings exist in the Senate Curriculum Committee.

The Committee is a joint student-faculty undertaking, limited to five student members, which makes recommendations to the authorities concerned with the student body's needs in the curriculum area.

During the current year the Committee will discuss the continuation of compulsory R.O.T.C. in the University curriculum, the general field of scheduling, the increase of the university language program, and the four college courses program.

Interested persons should sign the application sheet found outside the Student Senate office on the second floor of the Student Union.

The Executive Committee of the Senate will make the final selection of the committee members and will notify them of their appointment.

Earl J. Banner Reminisces Amherst's Mulberry Craze

Earl Banner reminisced about the Amherst mulberry craze of the 1830's, when mulberry seed sold for as much as $15 per ounce in the UMass area, in an article which appeared in the Boston Globe earlier this summer.

According to Mr. Banner: "A sharp-eyed traveler passing through Amherst, the seat of our state university and one other college of good repute, may notice an occasional mulberry tree. These are the sole reminder—and only to those with the sharpest of memories—of the town's mulberry craze of the 1830's.

"It all began with one Tim Smith of South Amherst who, in 1830, began raising white mulberry trees upon which to hatch and feed his imported silk worms. A few years later and farmers throughout the county were neglecting their usual crops to emulate Smith's success.

"Some made a buck, too. It was said that for a while there, a man could start out in the morning with a little bundle of mulberry cuttings under his arm and return in time for dinner with $100 to $200 in cash in his pockets from the sale of same.

"Mulberry seed sold for as much as $15 per ounce and silk worm eggs were worth 10 to 12 cents per hundred. The county fair at Northampton paid premiums for the greatest length of mulberry hedge.

"Then came the crash! Every investor in the mulberry-silk worm business lost his investment. The trees remained -- in large numbers—for some decades as a warning against subsequent get-rich-quick schemes. A few still flourish but hardly anyone gets their message."

Intramural Program Aims At 'Esprit De Corps' Buildup

With much talk on the UMass campus these days about intramurals, the Collegian is reprinting this article which was published last year and which we feel explains the workings and ideals of the Intramural Program.

The purpose of this program is to provide a broad pattern of organized recreational activities to attract the leisure time pursuits of the student body.

It is hoped that at least 50 percent of the male student body will take advantage of the facilities available to them. As Provost Gilbert Woodside puts it: "Intellectual work is the most important activity in a college student's life ... But I know that the vast majority of people simply cannot engage in intellectual activity all of the time. The human body is not geared to do this. A student who tries it will be endangering his health. Therefore we urge the student body to take part in the intramural program of the University."

To meet this need, the program of intramurals has been expanded for the benefit of all students who wish to participate.

Intramural competition is designed especially to fulfill the desire for athletic participation among the large group of students who because of skill level, or inclination do not wish to compete on a varsity level. The Intramural program is a supplement to, and a continuation of the general physical education program. Provision is made for the inclusion of all members of the University community in the programming of events.

The Intramural Department is administered by the Director of Intramurals, a supervisor representing each class, an IFC Athletic Chairman, Dormitory representatives (chosen by the Dean of Men), and the Intramural Editor of the Collegian.

The council shall interpret and enforce the rules and regulations, make additions and changes when necessary, rule on protests, develop a system of appropriate awards and in general advise the director.

EXTRAMURAL EVENTS

In addition to the regular schedule of men's intramural activities the campus champion in Touch Football and the campus champion in Basketball represent the University of Massachusetts in an annual game with the respective campus champions of the University of New Hampshire.

The inclusion of faculty members on teams and in tournaments is encouraged. Faculty groups may compete in the Independent Leagues and when possible will be scheduled to compete against other faculty groups.

The Department of Intramurals is always in need of qualified officials. Students who are interested should apply directly to the Intramural Office. Those who are selected receive $1.00 per hour for their services.

According to Coach Cobb, due to the efforts of the IFC and because of the sense of purpose that pervades fraternity life, there always is a fine host of fraternity teams in intramurals.

But this esprit de corps should also apply to dormitories. Dorms can and should have a purpose and a unity similar to that of the fraternities. Because of the relatively small percentage of male students in fraternities (about 35%) the key to the enjoyment of life on campus is the development of an esprit de corps in the dorms.

Identity with the dorms, believes Coach Cobb, an identity somewhat similar to that between a fraternity and its members, is the key to disciplinary problems on campus. The denial of certain varied activities to students and the pressure upon students to behave requires an outlet for the energies of the students. This outlet could be found in intramurals.

A 45 team facility in the Cage makes it possible to carry out a successful program. This allows for the fifteen fraternity teams and eighteen dormitory squads as well as some independent teams.

Touch football, basketball, bowling and volley ball are some of the most popular activities available to the student body, but others include softball, lacrosse, tennis, badminton and many more. The number of sports played depends entirely upon the student interest and participation in intramurals.

To increase this student interest, an elaborate point system has been set up. This system is distinctly separate from the IFC system and applies to all teams playing in intramurals, whether they be dorm, fraternity or independent. Coach Cobb has also perfected a system ensuring that each team eventually plays all other teams in their respective sports.

TROPHY AWARDED

One of the main stimuli to the participation in intramurals is the hope of obtaining the coveted Stephan Davis Trophy. Victories in the various sports would earn points throughout the year. At the end of the year whichever dorm, fraternity or independent team had garnered the most points would be awarded this plaque. Thus the total number of points, and not merely the possession of a few first places, is the deciding factor in the winning of the prize. The Davis trophy is a beautiful one, and a proud addition to the trophy room of any dorm or fraternity.

The fraternities have always been strong in intramurals, and, although in recent years the dorms have been making rapid progress, there is still much room for improvement.

It's up to the student to provide for his own health, enjoyment and honor, and there is no better channel of obtaining all of these than the University's Intramural program.

English Dept. Announces Lectures

The UMass department of English has announced that four public lectures and four seminars on modern trends in British and American literature will be given during the current academic year in honor of the University's centennial year.

Two public lectures and three related seminars open to upperclassmen in the four college community, will be given during the first semester and two lectures and one seminar will be held next semester.

Professor Robin Skelton, Senior Lecturer in the Department of English at the University of Manchester (England), and First Semester Centennial Lecturer in English Literature at UMass will give a poetry reading tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge of the S.U.

Prof. Skelton will deliver a lecture on J. M. Synge: The Poet and Tradition on November 7 at 8 p.m. in the Auditorium of Bartlett Hall.

Seminars Offered

Three seminars to be given this semester will include classes in The Irish Literary Renaissance, Psychological Insights in the Novel and The Structure of Poetry.

UMass Associate Professor of English David R. Clark will conduct the class in the Irish Literary Renaissance.

Visiting Lecturer Simon O. Lesser will conduct the class on Psychological Insights in the Novel.

Mr. Lesser, who holds a baccalaureate in philosphy from Chicago, has studied also at the Kenyon School of English and Columbia University. He has taught at New York University and the College of the City of New York, and served in editorial or technical capacities for Sears Roebuck, LaSalle, the General Education Board, the U. S. Bureau of Intelligence, the Institute for Motivational Research, Louis Harris and Associates, and the major television networks, 1958 to date.

He is author of some 30 articles on psychological and literary subjects, his best-known work is a book-length study entitled "Fiction and the Unconscious, published in 1957.

Noted Poet Heads Seminar

Professor Skelton will conduct the class in The Structure of Poetry.

Professor Skelton, who was educated at Christ's College, Cambridge, and Leeds University, has been an outstanding promoter of poetry and the plastic arts in England, and has lectured recently at Victoria College in British Columbia.

The seminars will include three class hours a week and will be for three credits each.

Housemother Shows Work At Exposition

UMass housemothers were well represented at the opening of the Eastern States Exposition yesterday.

Mrs. Lillian Hunter, Housemother at Baker, greeted Gov. John A. Volpe on behalf of the Hampshire (Co.) Weavers, an exhibitor at the week-long exposition.

Mrs. Hunter, well known around campus for her fine needlework, was assisted by Mrs. Molly Houle, Secretary of the New England Weavers.

Mrs. Hunter also toured the six buildings representing the New England states. She took special interest in the Massachusetts Building where UMass is an exhibitor.

"The exhibit is a campus in miniature — very attractive and very nice", said Mrs. Hunter. She also reported that the Massachusetts building was the most heavily visited one of the New England buildings.

APO - GSS Co-sponsor Used Book Exchange

Several students exchange books and smiles at the APO Book Exchange.

Alpha Phi Omega, men's service fraternity, has joined this year with Gamma Sigma Sigma, women's service sorority, in cosponsorship of the Used Book Exchange.

According to a statement issued by the two groups, the book exchange is to "enable students to sell their books in a public place at their own fees."

The exchange will be opened Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Hampden and Franklin rooms of the S.U. where students will bring their books at "their own prices", the statement said.

APO and GSS will sell the books at the desired prices for a slight service charge, although there will be no charge if the books are not sold. Payments on sold books may be claimed at the RSO office between Sept. 13 and Oct. 15.

Honor Frat Will Tutor Freshmen

Phi Eta Sigma, the freshman honors fraternity, will tutor most freshman courses this year, it has been announced. The tutoring is free and open to all freshman who desire such help.

The members of Phi Eta Sigma are in the process of setting up the schedule for the current semester. Tutoring is expected to be initiated during the first week in October.

Notices announcing times and meeing places of classes will appear in the Collegian and will be posted in the dorms by the end of September.

Freshmen are encouraged by Phi Eta Sigma members to take advantage of this service early so they may obtain full benefit from the instruction.

Reverend Albert L. Seely Appointed To New Position

The Rev. Albert Seely, interdenominational chaplain at UMass since 1954, has been named an associate secretary of the United Board for Christian Higher Education in Asia, it has been announced by Dr. William P. Fenn, general secretary.

Mr. Seely, who will assume his new duties October 1, was born in Greenfield, and prior to his association with the University, was for three years pastor of the Congregational Church, Wells River, Vermont.

He holds a Bachelor of Divinity degree (1951) from Yale University and took other undergraduate work at Oberlin College in Ohio. He has done graduate work in theology and ethics at UMass, Oberlin College and Harvard University where he is presently completing his thesis for a Master of Theology. While still attending Yale University Divinity School, Mr. Seely was minister of education in the Cheshire Congregational Church, New Haven, Conn.

Mr. Seely lived for two years in China during the early 1940's as a representative of the Oberlin Shansi Memorial Association, an independent organization supported by the students of Oberlin College in memory of the Chinese people who lost their lives in the Boxer Rebellion.

The UMass United Christian Foundation in their annual meeting last May expressed their appreciation for Rev. Seely, noting his work in establishing better relations not only between the UCF and the administration, but also beween the UCF and other denominations on campus and Amherst churches.

REV. SEELY

"Mr. Seely brought great administrative sensitivity . . . helped to establish a more friendly and open relationship beween the UCF and its Roman Catholic and Jewish counterparts . . . improved communication with the administration . . . Mr. Seely has borne" the task "bravely and patiently."

Rev. Seely is married to the former Betty Cameron who was also an Oberlin representative in China. The couple has four children ranging in age from 6 to 1, their names being David, Anne, Margaret, and Peter.

Young Democrats To Hear O'Connor

John O'Connor, former mayor of Westfield and chairman of the Massachusetts Commonwealth Organization of Democrats, will be the first guest speaker for the UMass Young Democrats Club, according to a club announcement.

O'Connor, hailed as "a driving force for clean government", will give his talk at 11 a.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U., Thursday.

A Young Democrats spokesman stated that interested persons, regardless of party affiliations, are invited to attend what he described as an "important meeting".

THEY'RE IN THE INN

Zeta Nu Fraternity Acquires New Home

The brothers of Zeta Nu have found a home.

The 49 members of the University's newest fraternity, organized last fall by the Interfraternity Council on recommendation of the IFC Expansion Committee, have taken over 336 North Pleasant Street, familiar for the last 45 years as the Mount Pleasant Inn.

One of the largest fraternity houses on the UMass campus, the former inn boasts 20 bedrooms, a finished attic for storage, complete kitchen and dining facilities, a parlor, a recreation room and a private office.

Decor and fixtures are basically Old English, with fireplaces in several of the larger rooms. Some 37 brothers of Zeta Nu are now living in the structure, which has sound proofed rooms.

According to House president Tom Antonucci, the building "had all the facilities needed when we moved in. The only thing needed in the line of improvement was a sprinkler and fire bell system to conform to University fire regulations."

The furniture that was included with purchase of the building has been augmented with furniture purchased from Tau Epsilon Phi, from the old TEP house razed during the summer.

Occupying two full house lots, the house has a 20 car parking space to one side of the three car garage in the rear of their building.

According to one brother, occupancy in the building is "just like living in a home—the quarters there are fantastic."

When the building was first raised some 45 years ago by a local contractor for use as an inn, it was one of the largest public structures in the area.

Tentative plans for renovation, said Antonucci, include having a dining area in the downstairs and converting the present living room to a lounge.

Purchase of the building was made in early August, he said. Funds for buying the House were raised from the individual brothers' room and board fees. The building will be paid for by the House over a ten year period, he said.

House officers other than the president now include Vice President Bob Small, Treasurer Mike Belanger, Secretary Bruce Petersen and Historian Dave Burnett.

House officials are now interviewing applicants for the position of housemother.

Plans are being made, at this time, for an open house at the building, Sunday, September 30 from 2 to 4 p.m.

Republicans At UMass To Aid GOP

Two years ago the University Young Republicans began preparation for work during this year's political contests, club officials have stated. Founded in post-election 1960, the YR's spent its first year laying the organizational groundwork for an effeective campaign task force.

"Getting Republicans elected is our main aim", said Club Chairman David Manley. "With this in mind, we have set up a GOProgram for this fall built around our Political Activity Committee.

PAC, directed by Del Ketcham, consists of student teams assigned to the campaign camps of various Republican candidates.

The committee is prepared to work in three areas. Manpower will be sent to work in local races for the State Legislature, statewide campaigns, and Amherst Republican Town Committee activities.

PAC's secondary purpose is to enable students with Independent and Republican sympathies to get their feet wet in a political campaign, said Manley, "and, obviously, to aid the candidate of his or her persuasion wage his campaign."

"Candidates," said Ketcham, "need all the help they can get. And students get a good grass-

Trustees' '64 Budget Request Based On Record Enrollment

A 9020 student body enrollment is the basis upon which UMass has formulated its budget policy for fiscal year 1964. An anticipated 850 additional students, over the present record-high level of 7500 enrollments, has led the University board of trustees to adopt a budget request sufficient to provide adequate educational opportunities for the continuing expansion of students at the Amherst campus.

The trustees' request, to be submitted to the Governor and Legislature, sharply outlines the University's growing needs at a time of booming population growth. Despite continued legislative support given in recent years to expand University facilities, the college-age population is swelling to such proportions, and applications for college are hitting such record peaks, that the University expects to be able to handle only 2.8 per cent of this college-age group in Massachusetts.

To provide the teachers and facilities needed for this all-time high enrollment of over 9000 students will require, according to the trustees, a total outlay of some 16 million dollars. About 3 million of this, however, will come from University revenues collected from students in the form of tuition and other fees. Major priority items listed by the trustees are the following:

- Continued building of an excellent faculty and professional staff.
- Provision of adequate facilities to accommodate the great increases in enrollment.
- Allowances for the increased cost of maintenance and operation of a physical plant that will add 11 major buildings during fiscal 1963-64.
- Expansion of library facilities and staff to provide the necessary books and periodicals required for the enlarged student body and for the rapid expansion of knowledge which is taking place in many areas of higher education.

Noting that the current budget request has been prepared "at a time of historic transition in the development of public higher education in this Commonwealth," the trustees cite the budget proposal as the "indispensable instrument for advancing the University" as a first-rate institution developed by the Legislature and

UM Officials Are Election Analysts

UMass Business Manager Gerald Grady, formerly associated with the University's Bureau of Government Research, and Dr. Leo Redfern, Director of the Office of Institutional Studies at UMass, served as commentators on State Primary election returns last night on Springfield television.

Mr. Grady was moderator for the second debate between United States Senate candidates Ted Kennedy and Ed McCormack, held in Holyoke earlier this month. At the request of the management of Station WWLP Channel 22, the two UMass officials, Grady and Redfern, appeared on the air last night from 10 to 10:30 p.m. and from 11:30 p.m. on.

Univ. Theatre Plans Coordinated Program

"The University Theatre is a laboratory for drama interests," said Prof. Orville K. Larson, of the UMass Speech Department, about the newly formed drama group of the Department of Speech. "Our program is an extracurricular activity for those who want to learn about drama by taking part in the four productions."

Long-range planning has gone into the scheduling of the Theatre. Productions will probably be programmed in four-year segments, as new courses in speech and drama are added to the University's curriculum.

The plays to be put on are far from isolated, Prof. Larson continued. "We are planning a close co-ordination of lectures, exhibits, and the plays."

As an example, he pointed out the first production, Oedipus Rex, to be held on November 2 and 3, will be preceded by an exhibition of stage designs by Lee Simonson, a lecture on Oedipus Rex by Professor Herbert Weisinger of Michigan State University, and a coffee hour and gallery talk by Prof. Larson.

Features of the University Theatre Program include a special discount rate for students who purchase a subscription to all of the plays. Subscription holders also have the choice of reserved seats.

The Theatre group will hold matinee programs on Saturday afternoon for the many high school students who visit UMass as prospective enrollees.

An important feature for students wishing to participate in the productions is the novelty of wearing the complete masques (including costumes) of the Old Theatre. The distinction brought about in this cover-up effect is the anonymity of the person playing the part. Only the personality of the character comes through to the audience.

In the "Statement of Purpose" issued by the University Theatre, ". . . they (the productions) should be related, through lectures, demonstrations, exhibits, symposia, and concerts, to the spirit of the ages that produced them. Therefore, as this program develops, we plan to intercross not only the fine arts, but the social, political, and economic arts as well, correlating our program with the curricular studies in all areas of study and investigation, when and wherever possible."

In summing up the University Theatre programming, Prof. Larson stated, "If we can get this thing going, we'll have something no one else in the country has."

COLLEGIAN

"May we all hope that the remarkable genius, imagination and resources . . . being devoted to the exploration of outer space may equally be brought to bear on those critical problems that gravely endanger the world of our own planet." — U Thant

With Strings Attached

Some time today in a joint conference room in the Capitol building a group of sixteen senators and representatives will meet to sign their favor on the committee's recommendation for a federal aid to education bill. If, as is expected, this bill is then favorably received by the respective houses of the congress it will make available to students and institutions of higher learning, some 2.3 billion dollars of federal funds, over a five year period.

In coming up with the recommendation for this bill the joint committee was forced to solve or compromise on some of the naughtiest problems facing American education and educators today. The first of these to come to mind is, of course, the problem of religion in education. The law makers were required to come to two decisions on this particular point. First of these decisions was how to control the funds so as to be fair and yet not favorable with the building grants, some nine-hundred million dollars. In this decision the committee made an excellent move. They defined the grants not by type of school but by type of building. Thus any college in the country, Catholic, Protestant, Jewish, or private, may acquire grants or loans if they assure that the building they plan to erect is of the type covered by the proposed law. And further that this building will be used strictly for the stated purpose.

However, there is another branch of the same bill, and here it would seem that the law makers were not quite as wise as they were in the first case. In the treatment of the loan fund for individual students, some six-hundred million dollars, an unfair barrier has been erected between the student and the subject that he may choose to study. Money will be loaned to a needy student to study the sciences or education. If the student is promising enough he may not even be required to pay back what he owes. But, if the same needy student decides that he might like to study a divinity course and perhaps become a minister, he can receive no aid whatsoever.

Now it is not our proposition that the United States government should support religious schools. But we do propose that, while it may be fair to pick the course that these funds may support at any one college, it is far from fair to do the same with a student. After all, the college is a big unit—the student is a very small one. When we support a single type of building on a college campus we allow the college to use its own funds to other advantages. When we pick and choose the courses which we will allow our students to take, we are doing something altogether different. It is wrong to offer to help a student at the University of Massachusetts while refusing to help one, just as needy, at Bloomfield Seminary. To help a student is not to support a school. It might be a good point for our educators and our law makers to remember. —R.J.M.

YOU CAN BE HEARD

Who are you? You're more than just a series of punched holes on an IBM card. In fact, you are the very justification for the existence of this university. You can be heard if you are willing to step forward with what you have to say; it is in your power to influence University policy.

Where can you be heard? That depends upon what you have to say. In addition to WMUA, this campus has a great number of publications, including a literary magazine, a humor magazine, and this newspaper.

One of the functions of any newspaper is to present public opinion. This is done indirectly through editorials and directly through letters to the editor. By writing to the editor of your newspaper you can air your views and bring your concerns to the attention of those who are involved.

Here at the University, nearly everyone reads the Collegian. It is through the students' newspaper that the administration may learn the wishes and opinions of the students. It is up to you as an interested and responsible campus citizen to raise your voice and be heard.

What might be on your mind? The low student salaries for campus jobs? Do you wish to organize a peace protest? Perhaps it involves campus, state, national, or even international policy.

Don't just grumble to your friends; sit down today and write a letter to the editor. You, as a student, are important here, and you CAN be heard.

— LETTERS TO THE EDITOR —

To the Editor:

Well, Mr. Kennedy, we're extremely honored to have you and your lovely wife visit our state university—over here you can see our new dorms . . . Here is our new and modern science center—and yonder the new addition to our physics building. Progress is the watchword. Over there is South College, our administrative offices—and here is Machmer Hall, one of our newer classroom buildings. Note the glorious American flag waving to your left—and to your right, the flag of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts—uh, well, anyway, on to the Student Union, million-dollar edifice in which the students can relax and eat and study. I apologize for the Massachusetts flag—state protocol—fiscal confusion—no doubt someone's ordered a new one.

Well, anyway.

Sincerely,
Ann H. Baxter

To the Editor:

Why is it that so many students found on Registration day, much to their disgust, that it was necessary to drop them from courses which they had selected? Why is it that a large number of courses were cancelled, a fact which many students learned only when arriving at that class? Perhaps the electronic computor had saved the University precious time and money (???), but from the student's point of view, had it been worth it? Now that this University has funds at its disposal, let us hope they will be judiciously spent. Many of the classrooms and halls, especially in some of the older buildings on campus, are actually frightful; we need more classrooms and newer lecture halls. The building of new dormitories and the admission of an ever-increasing number of students shall only complicate the situation which is already poor enough. Let some of the University funds be spent on increasing the faculty as well as the availability of sound classrooms, and perhaps the troublesome scheduling of courses will be remedied.

A disappointed student

To the Editor:

I see that the administration, with its usual perspicacity and foresight, has planted a tree, and is now trying to grow grass in the path in front of the Student Union. Students, when left to themselves, generally find the best and quickest way of getting from one building to another, and it can be seen that this path is an example of this. It is the shortest and most convenient way from Bartlett or the Library to the Union. I hope the administration realizes that despite barriers, the students are going to walk there, and trample the grass. The mud that builds up there in the Fall and Spring is also a small hindrance to students trying to reach classes that are across campus from each other. But all is not lost! May I forward two suggestions? The first is to jack up the Student Union, and rotate it until it faces the pond. The other, a little less obvious, is to asphalt the path, thus saving the student's time and temper. —Victor Aronow

Gayle Buckley Is Winner Of Silver Opinion Contest

UMass sophomore Gayle P. Buckley of Lanesboro, Mass., was one of the 100 winners of a "starter set" of Reed & Barton sterling silver and fine china and crystal in Reed & Barton's 1962 Silver Opinion Competition held last spring.

Over 12,000 students in 255 colleges and universities entered the Competition this past year.

Once a year Reed & Barton encourage applications for this scholarship through an announced Competition. The two fold purpose of this scholarship is to provide financial assistance for worthy students and to compile a library of expressions of American taste.

The 1962 Silver Opinion Competition was judged by the Editors of House Beautiful, Seventeen and Bride's Magazine for what they unanimously felt were the six most suitable combinations of sterling silver flatware, china and crystal made up from the 30 designs provided each student entry in a printed color folder.

MIT Frosh Number 890 This Year

Some 890 freshmen from every state and 18 foreign countries will register today at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The class of 1966 includes 23 women, one of whom is 15-year-old Susand Hemley of Forest Hills, N.Y., the youngest freshman in the class.

Prof. Roland B. Greeley, director of admissions, said 87 percent of the freshmen ranked in the top tenth of their secondary school graduating classes.

Bridge Notes

by PROFESSOR HAROLD W. SMART

Duplicate bridge fans held their first session in the Plymouth Room last Wednesday at 7 p.m. Although no previous announcement was given, except by word of mouth, there were eight full tables in play.

By a majority vote of those present, it was decided to hold the games on Wednesday evenings, from 7 to about 10 p.m.

Bridge players are asked to meet tonight at 6:30 with Clarence B. Shelnut.

Occasionally those interested will be asked to meet at 6:30 p.m. before the game to determine policy and settle questions.

In the sessions 24 deals played, ten were slams, six were grand slams and 63 was average. Their results were as follows.

North South: Lidman and Margolis 75, Burt and Stein 65½, Higginbotham and Crawford 65, Baler and Emond 64, Swanson and Warburton 61½.

East West: Shea and McCarthy 84, Sherman and Jefferson 80½, Raskowski and Gibbs 66, Rothchild and Israel 66, McGraw and Bowman 62½.

The slam hands are interesting but the ordinary ones are the difficult ones. Here is one that on all seven plays went down from one to four tricks. How would you have bid and played? Straight Goren method of valuation will be used. Strange and unusual conventions will be ignored (or carefully indicated). South is dealer and East-West are vulnerable.

(1) As dealer I would probably pass this hand but in third position I bid on weak hands to protect my partner's strong pass (i.e. this would be a strong pass). (2) The informative double asking partner to show his good suit and promises at least an opening hand. (3) Does not show spade support but guarantees at least 10 playing points (he has 12). (4) This shows a minimum hand. Otherwise he should consider bidding to interfere with the double. (5) He now says, "I've told you everything and I don't promise spades." (6) Double dummy the best bid is to double 2D but he is not allowed to use a periscope. I'd probably thank partner by showing that my spades are rebiddable. It is close play but it can be made.

Greenfield J. C. Officially Opens

Greenfield Regional Community College, the second state junior college in Western Massachusetts, opened its doors to 130 students Monday when it officially became part of the state education system.

Berkshire Community College in Pittsfield opened two years ago. Holyoke Junior College will become part of the community college setup in September, 1964.

Civil Service Now Taking Applications

Applications are now being accepted for the 1963 Federal Service Entrance Examination the United States Civil Service Commission has announced. This examination, open to college juniors, seniors, and graduate students regardless of major study, as well as to persons who have had equivalent experience, offers the opportunity to begin a career in the Federal Service in one of some 60 different occupational fields. A written test is required.

The positions to be filled from the FSEE are in various Federal agencies and are located in Washington, D.C., and throughout the United States. Depending on the qualifications of the candidate, starting salaries will be $4,345 or $5,355 a year. Management Internships with starting salaries of $5,355 or $6,435 a year, will also be filled from this examination.

Applicants who apply by September 27, 1962, will be scheduled for the written test to be held on October 13, 1962. Six additional tests have been scheduled during the year. The dates are: November 17, 1962, January 12, February 9, March 16, April 20, and May 11, 1963.

The closing date for acceptance of applications for Management Internships is January 24, 1963. For all other positions the closing date is April 25, 1963.

Details concerning the requirements, further information about the positions to be filled, and instructions on how to apply are given in civil service announcement No. 287.

These announcements may be obtained from many post offices throughout the country, college placement offices, civil service regional offices, or from the U.S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D.C.

J. D.'s CORNER

Before you all get too busy, we're going to have a contest. It's going to be a very simple one—a limerick contest. All you have to do is type or write out your favorite limerick and send it in with your name and address to Limerick Contest, J.D.'s CORNER, Collegian, Student Union, UMass, Amherst, Mass. The deadline will be early in October, so that gives you a full two weeks or more to recall all of your favorite limericks and send them in. The winning limerick will be printed here (if printable), and at least one of the prizes will be a banned book, a book of French cartoons, or a volume of "forbidden" limericks. So let's see those entries start pouring in.

Next on the agenda for today is a definition attributed to Dr. Ferrigno of the department of romance languages. He reportedly informed one of his classes that a "virgin forest" is "one in which the hand of man has never set foot."

I'm certain that you're all interested in what's going on on other campi (one campus; two campi) around the country. Well, the latest fad seems to be marathon telephone calls. Here's how it works: a boys' dorm makes a local phone call to a girls' dorm. After the initial callers are finished talking, they put someone else on the phone, and they continue the conversation. For a single dime, every guy in Van Meter, for example, who dates a girl in Arnold, say, can talk to his girl. And when the boys run out of girls they know in the dorm they've called, just anyone gets one the phone and introduces himself or herself to the party at the other end. In fact, lots of blind dates get made this way. The only rule of the talkathon is that there must always be someone on the phone at each dormitory. Last year at some colleges dorms used to challenge each other to talkathons, and they used to last for days around the clock before the connection was broken. Let's hear from you as to what you think was the longest inter-dorm phone call, and then we'll try and find someone to break your record. Okay?

And now, more for free: the Food and Drug Administration (U. S. Health Department, Washington 25, D. C.) has become alarmed by the number of people who drive under the influence of tranquilizers, antihistimines, bennies, etc. and has prepared a free leaflet called "Drugs and Driving." Write away for it.

UMass '62 Graduates Appointed To Naval O.C.S.

Two UMass graduates of the Class of '62, Ralph Joseph Simmons and Bernard Philip Schultz, have been appointed to the Naval Officer Candidate School at Newport, Rhode Island to begin training October 29.

Both participated in campus and fraternity activities. Mr. Simmons was a vice president and activities committee chairman for Tau Kappa Epsilon, besides being Inter-Fraternity Council representative to the First Annual New England Land Grant Colleges Conference of Fraternity Councils and Deans in 1961.

Mr. Schultz was on the Dean's List in his junior and senior year. He was also a member of Alpha Epsilon Pi, a marshall for the School of Business Administration, at commencement exercises on the advisory board for the Class of '62, chairman of the Winter Carnival Concert in '61, and chairman of last June's Senior Dinner-Dance.

At the Officer Candidate School they will study such subjects as naval history, gunnery, seamanship, and engineering. They will be commissioned Ensigns in the Naval Reserve at the completion of their four months' course.

Radio WFCR-FM To Carry Boston Symphony Concerts

WFCR-FM, Amherst will broadcast the eleventh consecutive season of live Boston Symphony Orchestra broadcasts beginning Friday, Sept. 21 at 2:10 p.m. and Saturday, Sept. 22 at 8:25 p.m.

Direct from Symphony Hall in Boston, these concerts will be heard throughout the Symphony season with William Pierce as the announcer, with Jordan Whitelaw continuing as the Symphony producer.

The first Friday-Saturday concerts mark Erich Leinsdorf's debut as music director of the orchestra, a post held for so long by Charles Munch. For his opening program Leinsdorf has chosen three works: Beethoven's "Eroica" Symphony, the Seventh Symphony of Boston composer Walter Piston and Richard Strauss' delightful "Til Eulenspiegel."

For WFCR listeners these concerts would not be complete without the pre-concert commentary of G. Wallace Woodworth. The enthusiasm and vast musical knowledge of the famed Harvard Professor have added greatly to the enjoyment of these concerts for many years, and so "Woody" will again be a regular feature on WFCR. Thursdays at 9 p.m. and Saturdays at 6 p.m., his pre-Symphony analysis adds a special dimension to the weekly Boston Symphony Orchestra broadcasts.

WFCR-FM (88.5) is a non-commercial educational radio station supported by the Western Massachusetts Broadcasting Council. Council members are: Amherst College, Mount Holyoke College, Smith College and the University of Massachusetts. WFCR is a member of the seven-station Educational Radio Network, which operates from Boston to Washington, and also a radio affiliate of the National Educational Television and Radio Center in New York.

Adelphia Rally And Dance Kickoff Redmen Football

An all-time record turnout is expected this Friday evening for the year's first football rally which officially ushers in the 1962 gridiron season. Beginning with a parade through the men's and women's dormitory areas and including the introduction of players and coaches, the night's festivities will be highlighted by the lighting of the traditional bonfire by Metawampe and climaxed by a huge rally dance.

With the record Freshman class on hand anxiously awaiting their first collegiate football contest, the highly touted Redmen team will be on hand on the eve of the Yankee Conference's opening game against the Black Bears of the University of Maine at Alumni Field. Team Co-captains Paul Majeski and Tom Kirby will address the student body along with Head Coach Vic Fusia. Also expected to take part in the festivities will be President John Lederle, Director of Athletics Warren McGuirk, and Dean Field.

The rally parade will begin at the top of Butterfield Hill at 7 p.m., continuing down the hill past Mills and Fernald Hall. As the parade passes each of the boys' dorms, the crowd will rapidly grow and by the time it reaches the girls' dormitories there will be approximately 2,000 boys in the procession. It will then move toward the girls' dorms by way of the old Infirmary, past the Women's Physical Ed. building, and finally into the rally area behind the Student Union.

Adelphians Jim Trelease and Steve Israel head the Rally Committee which includes Mortar Board, Scrolls, Maroon Key, A.P.O., Cheerleaders, Revelers, the Redmen Marching Band, and the Precisionettes.

With the rally beginning at 7:30, the dance will follow immediately with the popular music of the Northern Lights in the S.U. Ballroom. Admission to the dance will be 50 cents.

Metawampe, traditional symbol of the spirit of The Redmen, leads off the band in performance at half-time during one of last year's football games. On campus, Metawampe is Robert Small '63.

Cheerleaders go into one of their many spirited calls, leading the Redmen on to victory.

LACROSSE

Coach Garber has announced that there will be a meeting of all varsity lacrosse players Friday, September 21, in Room 14 of the Men's Physical Education Building.

Free Dartmouth Passes Offered

Mr. Robert O'Connell, Financial Manager of Athletics for the University, announced yesterday that two free tickets to the Dartmouth game will be given away to the president of the fraternity or sorority which buys the most tickets to the Hanover clash.

This is perfect opportunity for fraternities and sororities to give further proof of their strong school spirit, and reap other rewards in the bargain.

As was reported in Monday's Collegian, special buses have been chartered for UMass students, faculty, and other fans who wish to make the trip to Hanover, New Hampshire to support the UMass team when it takes the field against the powerful Dartmouth "Indian" squad.

The price of the bus ride has now been definitely set at $4.00 for the round trip. The bus tickets are on sale in the Alumni offices in Memorial Hall. Game tickets are $2.00 and may be purchased from Mr. O'Connell in the Curry Hicks Building Monday through Friday until September 26. A chicken barbecue lunch will be available to students at the entrance to the stadium for a moderate price. Arrangements have also been made for the buses to stop for supper on the return trip to the campus.

Students have already begun to purchase their tickets for the game and the bus ride, so why don't you join the rest of the UMass rooters and travel with your team to what promises to be one of their hardest-fought contests of the forthcoming season.

by HERB COWLES '65

The following are my predictions for the Eastern Conference of the N.F.L. as was promised in last week's column. Although the opening games have already been played, the results served to confirm rather than alter my predictions.

1. Cleveland Browns — Coach Paul Brown will not tolerate another year of defeat (that means second or third place to Paul Brown). This year the Brownies will present a new look. Jim Ninowski, a capable roll-out passer, will replace Milt Plum at quarterback, and Tom Wilson, a good halfback who played behind a better one at Los Angeles, will make good when given the chance. He will get the chance because of Ernie Davis' tragic illness which may end his football career. The rest of the backfield contains Ray (Rocket) Renfro at flanker, a ten year veteran, and Jim Brown at fullback. Jim Brown, who has led the N.F.L. in rushing every year he has played, is the best runner in the history of football. A strong offensive line, headed by all-pro Jim Ray Smith, will lead this potent backfield. The ends are many and capable although there are no great ones. Rookie Gary Collins might help. The defensive line has great mobility, but lacks the necessary size. Rookies Mike Lucci and Sam Tidmore are both good and will add class to the linebacking. Bernie Parrish leads a young and improving secondary which could be first-class if Jim Shofner is replaced.

2. St. Louis Cardinals—John David Crow! The return of John Crow to his running halfback slot provides the big reason for this prediction. Although Crow is neither as fast as the fastest nor as big as the biggest he "dies hard", as one crack N.F.L. defensive lineman put it. Sam Etcheverry, "The Rifle" from Canadian football, should have a better season. He will throw to Bobby Joe Conrad at flanker, Tad Anderson at right end, and the great Sonny Randle at split-end. Frank Mestnik will be the fullback unless new coach Wally Lemm realizes that he should move Crow to fullback and let Prentice Gautt, another fine runner, cavort at halfback. The lines, offensive and defensive, are good, and the defensive secondary is very effective. This is a team with no real weakness.

3. New York Giants — The Eastern Division Champions of '61 are still a basically sound team, however age, long a Giant nemesis, may have finally found its mark. Y. A. Tittle, 34, is back at quarterback; Frank Gifford, 32, is out of retirement to play flanker; Alex Webster and Bob Gaiters hold down the running positions. The ends are good with Del Shafner, an all-pro. The offensive line is sound at the moment, but Stroud, 34, and Wietecha, 33, may need help. The defensive line is one of the best, but it, too, is aging. Andy Robustelli is 35 and Dick Modzelewski is 32; add to this a 32-year-old Tom Scott at linebacker and you have a real weakness. The secondary has lost Dick Nolan, but Erich Barnes, Dick Lynch, and Jimmy Patton are all big time. Alan Webb, a Canadian veteran, will probably fill the fourth spot.

4. Philadelphia Eagles—Sonny Jurgenson leads the best passing attack in the Conference. On the receiving end of Sonny's accurate passes are Tommy McDonald, Fete Retzlaff, and Bobby Walston. The running is sound with Jim Schraeder from the Redskins anchoring an adequate offensive line, and Clarence Peaks, Ted Dean, Theron Sapp, and the shifty Timmy Brown providing the ball-carrying punch. This fine offense leaves the defense to take the blame for its projected fourth place finish. The defensive line is old and in need of shoring up, and the backfield will sorely miss Tom Brookshier. The linebacking is the only bright spot with John Nocera, Maxie Baughan, and veteran Chuck Bednarik making those key tackles.

5. Pittsburgh Steelers—A dark-horse candidate, the Steelers have the defense and the inspiration in quarterback Bobby Layne to go all the way. Bob Ferguson, a rookie who was everybody's All-American at Ohio State, makes the backfield look good. Ed Brown will give Layne the rest when he needs it. The two major weaknesses are lack of a good outside runner and another first-rate receiver to go with Buddy Dial.

6. Washington Redskins—For the first time in years the Redskins will present an offensive threat. Snead has improved at quarterback, and ex-Brown Bobby Mitchell is the number one breakaway threat in the N.F.L. The defense is strong against rushing and weak against passing.

7. Dallas Cowboys — This will be the year for Don Meredith to come of age—if he is going to. He has competent mates in the backfield and at ends. The defense needs help in linebacking, pass rushing, and at halfback.

Big 10 Teams Lead Coaches' All-American Squad Choices

Midwestern football powers in the Big 10 have the greatest concentration of All-America prospects for the 1962 season, a poll of the nation's college grid coaches showed today.

Eight players from Big 10 schools—including two each from Michigan State and Iowa—give that conference the largest representation among the 47 top college prospects selected by members of the American Football Coaches Association. The selections by more than 500 coaches were announced today by Bill Murray, association president and Duke coach.

Named from the Big 10 were: Pat Richter, Wisconsin, Cloyd Webb, Iowa, ends; Bob Bell, Minnesota, Bob Vogel, Ohio State, tackles; Dave Behrman, Michigan State, center; Larry Ferguson, Iowa, Dave Raimey, Michigan, halfbacks, and George Saimes, Michigan State, fullback.

Both the Southeastern Conference and the Big Five from the Pacific Coast each rated seven candidates in the coaches' voting, while the Southwest Conference qualified five, including two from Texas—guard Johnny Treadwell, fullback Ray Poage. Duke tackle Art Gregory and halfback Mark Leggett were among four nominees from the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Eastern independents Penn State, Syracuse and Holy Cross contributed a total of four All-America candidates. Tony Day, Columbia guard, was the lone Ivy League pick, and Notre Dame fullback Mike Lind was the single Irish selection.

WMUA Will Broadcast Weekly Language Studies

UMass Junior Waldemar Ulich will give a series of weekly programs, each consisting of two half hour segments in French, Spanish or German, aimed at students studying a contemporary foreign language.

Listeners will hear music, anecdotes, stories and customs of the countries in which the languages being used by Ulich are spoken.

The series, which began last night, will be given from 7 to 8 p.m. Tuesday evenings over WMUA, UMass campus radio station (91.1 FM).

Programs have been arranged so that each language may be heard twice every three weeks on a revolving schedule.

According to Ulich, the purpose of the programs will be to enable those studying a language to obtain a cultural background to complement their grammatical studies in the classroom.

James O'Hearn, WUA director, and director of educational programming Joe Turowsky both regard Ulich's effort as a major advance in educational broadcasting in the Pioneer Valley and are proud to add the program to the WMUA roster of public service and information.

UM Lags In Faculty Pay

The budget statement of the trustees stresses the highly competitive academic market as the source of the University's most pressing problem in maintaining high quality in its educational programs.

For all practical purposes, the University is in a weak competitive position for qualified faculty members. With colleges and universities around the country now offering top salaries of $18,000, $25,000 and up, the University's present salary structure is unrealistically low, the trustees said.

Even among the New England state universities, Massachusetts must be prepared to take giant strides to keep up. Connecticut has taken the lead with salaries for full professors being set at a minimum of $11,340 and a maximum of $16,760, with additional provision for a $540 across-the-board increase for all ranks planned for 1964. The trustees said that Massachusetts must move effectively against this kind of salary competition.

Other public universities in New England are already planning on salary improvements of 7 per cent to 10 per cent. At the national level where the University draws a substantial number of its faculty, conditions are likewise adverse. Compared to the average full professor salary of $10,010 at the University, the U.S. Office of Education reports that the average salary of a full professor in the North Atlantic area was $11,470, an increase of 6.5 per cent over the previous year. Because of budgetary restrictions, the University had not been able to adjust its salary schedule in a comparable manner.

The trustee budget request calls for approximately six and a half million dollars to meet continuing salary commitments as well as one and one-half million to provide for new teachers and to take some steps forward in meeting this heavy competition in faculty salaries.

Although the trustees do not, by law, have the authority to fix salaries of non-professional personnel at the University, they express the hope that the General Court will provide a salary increase for these state employees.

The trustee statement, in listing salary improvement as a high priority item, points out that the officials and people of the Commonwealth have established a state university to provide sound educational opportunities. "The funds requested," stated the trustees, "are necessary to carry out that responsibility."

Mount Holyoke Introduces Special Recognition Plan

Qualified Seniors at Mount Holyoke College who receive a special recognition for their honors work may now also be cited for high achievement in all their college work.

The new plan, as presented in the revised Faculty Legislation, calls for degrees in distinction, with great distinction, with honor, with high honor and with greatest honor.

A degree with distinction will be granted to all students who have achieved a four-year college average of B (9). All students with a four-year average of B plus (10) and a grade of B or better on the general examination will receive the degree with great distinction.

This recognition for excellence in general studies has been extended to include those students enrolled in the honors program. Previously an honors student was only eligible for one of three honor degrees or the regular degree, according to the quality of her work.

Other Requests

The budget request approved by the trustees provides for required improvements in other areas by emphasizing that the University goal must be to provide "facilities for our Massachusetts young men and women that are comparable to those existing at other state universities."

Funds are requested for continued maintenance of the physical plant, which will increase in fiscal 1964, with the addition of the new building for the School of Business Administration, new physics building addition, and nine other major buildings. In addition, requests are made for $1,280,000 for educational supplies and equipment, called by the trustees "the most important ingredient in university education next to good teachers and an adequate library." Requests for continuing research projects, scholarships and other items supporting the total educational program complete the budget document.

The trustees' policy statement concludes that the problems involved in the budget request "are not independent of the development of public higher education in this Commonwealth. These issues involve the very real problem of accommodating, beyond expansion plans charted, the great numbers of qualified young people in this State who are seeking a college education and the allocation of sufficient revenues on an increasing scale to provide a quality educational program."

Civil Service Exam To Be October 13

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced that UMass juniors, seniors, and graduate students desiring to take the Federal Service Entrance Examination October 13 should apply by September 27. All are eligible regardless of their majors.

The Commission has scheduled six additional tests for November 17, January 12, February 9, March 16, April 20, and May 11, 1963. The closing date for all applications is April 25, 1963, but students wishing to take the Management Internships test must apply by January 24.

Further information can be obtained from the post office, University placement office, in Machmer Hall, local civil service office, or from the U.S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D.C., by requesting civil service announcement No. 287.

The Federal Service offers career opportunities in sixty different fields, and a written test is a prerequisite for entrance.

US Naval Reserve To Resume Activity On UMass Campus

U.S. Naval Reserve Company 1-3, affiliated with the Office of Naval Research, is resuming its activity on the UMass campus.

The Company affords reservists the opportunity to maintain and improve their status within the Naval Establishment. Members of the student body as well as individuals within the faculty and staff who are members of the Reserve are eligible, as are other reservists who live in Western Massachusetts.

Meetings are held two or three times monthly on Tuesday evenings at 7:30 p.m., in Dickinson Hall.

Interested reservists are invited to address their inquiries to Prof. Herschel G. Abbott, Commanding Officer, in care of the Forestry Department, Conservation Building.

Brown Represents Alpha Zeta At Conference

UMass senior Charles B. Brown attended the 28th Biennial Conclave of the Fraternity of Alpha Zeta held at the National 4-H Center in Washington, D. C., September 10-13. Delegates from each of the fraternity's 51 chapters attended.

Mr. Brown, who makes his home in Roselle, N. J., is a food science and technology major at the University.

The conclave was highlighted by the initiation of Orville L. Freeman, Secretary of Agriculture, and Charles Dana Bennett, special consultant to the Foundation for American Agriculture, as honorary members of the fraternity.

Alpha Zeta is an honorary agricultural fraternity. Founded in 1897, the fraternity has had through the years over 42,000 members chosen on the basis of high scholarship, fine character, and potential leadership.

100 Fellowships Open To Seniors And Grads

Dr. John T. Conlon, Chairman of the Department of Management, with office in Draper Hall, announced today that nominations are now open to UMass students for 100 Danforth Graduate Fellowships, and will close October 28.

Offered by the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Missouri, the fellowships, worth up to $12,000, are available to male college seniors or recent graduates preparing for a career of teaching, counseling, or administrative work at the college level. Applicants may be planning to major in any field of study common to the undergraduate liberal arts and sciences curriculum, at the American graduate school of their choice, but should not have already undertaken graduate work.

The fellowships will be awarded to outstanding candidates nominated by Liaison Officers or accredited colleges and universities in the United States this year. Nominees will be judged on intellectual promise and personality, integrity, genuine interest in religion, and high potential for effective college teaching.

Winners will be eligible for up to four years of financial assistance, with an annual maximum of $1,500 for single men and $2,000 (as well as $500 per child) for married men, plus tuition and fees. Students without financial needs are also invited to apply.

There are now 472 Danforth Fellows in graduate study preparing to teach, and 267 more already teaching in some 150 colleges in this country and in 20 institutions abroad. Danforth Fellowships may be held for life, with certain benefits after completion of graduate study such as financial assistance to attend educational conferences.

Senate Committee Has 5 Openings

Openings for five University students-at-large exist on the Senate Public Relations Committee, chairman Marilyn Singer has announced.

The committee functions in promoting publicity for the Student Government Association and in promoting all programs that would extend the University name.

Public Relation programs now being planned include an orientation program for new senators, talks on and off campus about University programming and a conference for Freshman candidates for office to explain election procedures and rules, responsibilities of office and programming.

D'Avanzo Resigns: Senate "On Trial"

by RUTH KOBS '64

Senator Andy D'Avanzo resigned from the Student Senate at their meeting on Wednesday night declaring that the Senate "was on trial" as an organization and that there was a "breakdown of formality which was ruining the Senate".

ABDUL SAMMA

Sen. D'Avanzo, a Senator for the past three years, concluded that "the Student Senate would have some good potential with more effort".

Senator Abdul Samma, with D'Avanzo a member of the Student government organization for the past three years, also announced that he will not run for re-election. He thanked the Senators for the opportunity and experience of working with them.

Senators Fred Thurber and Rosemary Seward were appointed co-chairmen of the Elections Committee. Both Senators will have only one vote on the Executive Committee.

The 1961 election rules were approved by the Student Senate for the coming election.

It was agreed to increase Index appropriations for the current year by $480. The increase will allow the Index to eliminate advertising, thus allowing more pages for other items of interest to the student body.

The United Nations Week Executive Committee was denied its request for $170 for publicity for the week's events. Senator Bob Brauer questioned "the need for the money" while Sen. Samma declared that the Committee did good work for our campus.

An Ad Hoc committee to the Services Committee will deal with the problems in the dining areas. The new committee is called the Committee on Dining Facilities.

Senator Marilyn Singer, chairman of the Public Relations Committee, announced that she is making plans to hold a conference for freshmen to inform them of the procedures and rules of running for election.

An announcement was made of the appointment of Senator Joan Labuzoski as chairman of the Activities Committee.

UMass Names Dr. C. Cox Head Of Microbiology Dept.

Dr. Gilbert L. Woodside, UMass Provost, today announced the appointment of Dr. C. D. Cox as Commonwealth Head of the Department of Microbiology in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Dr. Cox succeeds Prof. Ralph L. France, who retired in June, 1961 after 33 years on the University faculty, eight years as department head. A specialist in intercellular parasitism who has also done work in immunology and microbial physiology, Prof. Cox comes to the University from Washington, D.C., where he served as head of the microbiology branch of the Office of Naval Research for the past two years.

Prior to that, Dr. Cox served as chairman of the Department of Microbiology at the University of South Dakota School of Medicine. He has also taught at Pennsylvania State University and at the Medical College of Virginia at Richmond.

Dr. Cox is a graduate of the University of Illinois, where he also received his M.S. and Ph.D. degrees. He has published some 22 research papers in a number of different scientific journals. He is on the editorial board of the "Journal of Bacteriology."

A captain in the U.S. Army during World War II, Dr. Cox served as officer-in-charge of bacteriology, 9th Medical Laboratory, in the China-Burma-India Theatre.

Dr. Cox is a member of the American Society for Microbiology, the Society for Experimental Biology and Medicine, and a fellow of the American Academy of Microbiology. He is a member of Sigma Xi, national scientific society.

UMass Research Program To Study "Stress Factors"

The effects of technological and natural "stress factors" on the health, safety and efficiency of human beings will be probed in a major research program opened at UMass, Pres. John W. Lederle has announced.

Established by the Board of Trustees, a new Institute of Environmental Psychophysiology will study behavorial and bodily reactions of humans subjected to unusual temperatures, noises, lights and other factors.

The Institute's staff will simulate the stresses and pressures felt by persons working in unusual surroundings on industrial, military or aerospace projects. The research will also analyze the effects of complex, high-speed machine systems on the people who operate them.

According to Dr. Edward C. Moore, Dean of the UM Graduate School and Coordinator of Research, the Institute is practically unique in its use of a team approach whereby experts in different fields pool their knowledge to attack major problems in the new branch of research.

Administratively the new facility will operate within the UM Department of Psychology, but team members will be drawn from many other areas. A board composed of leading American scientists will serve as a distinguished advisory body to conduct long-range planning and to provide an independent basis for technical evaluation.

Research equipment in the Department of Psychology will be used to carry out the Institute's program. Included is a specially-designed chamber for study of human subjects undergoing temperature and humidity tests. Complex apparatus is used to record changes in behavior and bodily reactions, with windows permitting visual observation of subjects. The chamber is one of only two or three used in university research in the entire country.

1800 Students To Visit UM Next Month

Approximately 1,800 high school students from all parts of the Commonwealth will visit the UMass campus next month for the University's traditional High School Guest Day program.

Students representing Massachusetts public, parochial and private secondary schools will attend in groups on each Saturday in October for informational talks by University officials.

Principals and guidance counselors have received invitations to the program. They will accompany students according to a county system in use for the third year.

The four programs are scheduled as follows: October 6—Dukes, Middlesex, Nantucket and Plymouth Counties; October 13—Berkshire, Franklin and Worcester Counties; October 20—Essex, Hampden and Hampshire Counties; October 27 — Barnstable, Bristol, Norfolk and Suffolk Counties.

Main purpose of the Guest Days is to introduce the students —particularly seniors — to the University's campus, facilities, admissions procedures and courses of study. Parents are also encouraged to attend the sessions.

Representatives of the University's colleges, schools and departments will be on hand for consultation at each session.

Members of the Registrar's staff will explain the University's requirements for entrance, as well as other procedures used in judging students for admission.

All participants in the Guest Days program are invited to attend athletic activities scheduled for October. These events include varsity and freshman soccer games, a varsity cross-country contest and two varsity football games.

Mass. State Constitution Criticized

Evan Johnston '50, Director of Associate Alumni, told UMass Young Democrats Wednesday that the present Massachusetts constitutional system "invites misuse of funds."

Johnston gave his talk to a crowd of about 40 persons present at the first meeting held by the Young Democrats this semester.

"Democrats and Republicans alike have to sign these petitions", said Johnston in reference to five initiative petitions sponsored by Endicott Peabody, Democratic Candidate for Governor, which call for reforms in the Commonwealth's governmental organization.

The Five petitions include:

1) A four year term for governor and Lt. governor with both men running as a team.
2) Abolition of the Governor's Council.
3) Limit legislative session to six months.
4) Give governor power to reorganize executive department.
5) Home rule for towns and cities.

Johnston declared that the five reforms sought by the initiative petitions were "big, basic planks" in Peabody's campaign. Johnston stressed that the need for these reforms transcended party politics.

Speaking on behalf of the Commonwealth Organization of Democrats, a wing of the Democratic party devoted to ridding the Massachusetts party of corruption, Johnston told the gathering that they must get out and fight to clean up Massachusetts politics.

Following Johnston's talk, club members volunteered to circulate the five initiative petitions on campus and in the Amherst area.

Committee preparations are also being made for a tea to be held for Mrs. Endicott Peabody scheduled for the afternoon of Thursday, Sept. 27. Details will be announced.

The next Young Democrats meeting will be Tuesday at 4 p.m. in a room to be posted.

Preserve The Press

Somebody wise in the ways of the world once said of Woman, "You can't live with her and you can't live without her." In some respects at least the press in our society today is like a woman: Often frustrating and hard to live with but literally impossible to live without.

Wise men of all time have depended on the press for the circulation of their ideas.

It will be readily recalled that the wisdom of many of these men was not recognized as such in their own time. Only the ages have proved the agelessness of their thought. But at least they were heard; at least their wisdom was preserved and passed down to us, so that we who realize the value of what they said can utilize their wisdom in a modern context.

John Kenneth Galbraith is a wise man. But his wisdom has been recognized in our own time, and fortunately our time is also his. John Kenneth Galbraith was a Professor of Economics at Harvard University. He showed his wisdom and keen insight in books like The Affluent Society and The Liberal Hour. He is now United States Ambassador in India. He was awarded an honorary degree at Annamalai University in India and it was on this occasion that he said:

> For those who seek change, criticism is an essential instrument of political action . . . . The last presidential campaign in the United States was fought largely over the issue of social criticism. Should we make a point of our faults and shortcomings in the hope that this might be an inducement to improvement? Should we avoid mention of them lest this be taken as an admission before the world of weaknesses in the American society? There were some who thought this a rather slight issue. I am not so sure. It concerned, I think, one of the central characteristics of the open society.

How does American society make a point of its faults and shortcomings to induce improvement? Most generally this is done through a free and independent press. The issues of the day are subjected to close scrutiny, mistakes are pointed out, and those who made them are called to account. Imagine a society in which the leaders could act without fear of being publicly called to account for their misdeeds, a society in which an uninformed public would have to take the word of those in charge that what was done in the past, what is being done in the present and what would be done in the future was in their own best interest. Imagine such a society. Or better yet, look around you and see one in operation.

The assumption that University society is closed raises certain questions. Can and should we criticize University policy, methods, and organization? Does such criticism do any good? How can it be accomplished?

We all know that the freedom of the student press on this campus could be taken away in an instant. It can be taken as a sign of good faith on the part of the administration that this freedom is still very much a part of our existence. As far as the administration is concerned, we have not always been easy to live with. But like the proverbial woman, it finds us hard to live without. As our leaders, they need an index by which to gauge the flow of undergraduate feeling. And they realize, I think, perhaps even more than the students this newspaper serves, the need for a public line of communication between them and the student body.

The President of the United States is sensitive to social criticism of a much more caustic nature presented on a much broader scale. Wise men feel this issue concerns "one of the central characteristics of the open society."

Should University society be more open than it is? Those whose words appear on these pages may not always be the wisest people our small society can produce. But who is to say whether their words are wisdom or folly? Maybe they are right, and if they are we must hope that they will eventually be heard. But to be heard they must stop fearing the wrath of the powers that be. They must have the courage of their convictions, say what needs to be said, and maintain a free student press in which to say it. They must fight for what they believe, or that which they believe will cease to matter. And when belief ceases to matter in an institution of education where improvement of intellect and the value of the individual should be propagated above all else, our whole society is in danger. —Vern Perro

"We reproach people for talking about themselves; but it is the subject they treat best." —Shultz (via Charlie Brown)

ARE YOU COMING?

UMass salutes the Redmen tonight with our traditional pep rally and bonfire, setting the '62 football season in motion. The Student Union will be the scene of mass celebration with band, cheerleaders, and precisionettes leading the all campus parade—then inside for a rally dance sponsored by Adelphia.

All this culminates in UMass' opener with Maine tomorrow—and if you didn't know—Maine was the Yankee Conference champion last year, so the match should prove to be exciting! Freshmen, this game is what you've been waiting for. The reign of the beanies will end in a rain of beanies when UMass scores its first touchdown. Freshmen have a section reserved for them and no frosh will be admitted to the game without a beanie.

1:30 is the time, Alumni Field is the place.

Indifferent Independents

For the last few years we have noticed a steady decline of interest in dormitory activities. We feel that now is an opportune moment for independents to take a lesson from the fraternity system.

Homecoming Week will soon be here, but preparations will be left 'till the last moment or simply will be forgotten.

We realize that fraternities and sororities often have more money to work with than do the dorms, but this is not sufficient reason to account for the difference between most fraternity floats and most dormitory floats. The reason is participation.

We see no reason why the "spirit of belonging" can not be cultivated in dormitories just as it is in the fraternities. It is the responsibility of each dormitory House Council to encourage participation and to organize events which will stimulate interest.

There are dormitories on campus where indifference is not the password, but these are few and far between. Many independents live in the dorms for four years, and that's a helluva long time to sit around and complain about the size of your room.

We are not accusing anyone of being apathetic. The word is overused and has lost its meaning. We simply want every student to know that the opportunity to participate and to belong lies right within his own dorm.

If you don't participate and you have no complaints: good luck! Otherwise: take note.

Money For Spirit

To the Editor:

It has come to our attention that neither the Fine Arts Council nor the Athletic Department will take the responsibility or initiative to sponsor a vital force of spirit at several of the away football games. This is no time to squabble over funds to send the Redmen Marching Band and Precisionettes Drill Team to these games. Something must be done now! We ask the support of the faculty, student body, and senate to make known their feelings on this matter. As the first away game draws near, the Redmen Band and Precisionettes face the fact that they are financially unable to support the team and represent the University on September 29 when the Redmen face Dartmouth. The spirit that drives the Redmen on to victory must not be lacking, as the money is.

Members of the Redmen Marching Band

To the Redmen Marching Band:

The Student Senate and the Fine Arts Council have been working on the problem of transportation of the Marching Band and Precisionettes to away games since March, 1962.

The student body, through the tax fund, is now paying the $10,400 to support the band's program. The Senate and the Fine Arts Council decided that the additional $5,000 needed for the trips should come from a source other than the students' tax. The Senate and the Fine Arts Council further decided that, since the performance of the Marching Band and Precisionettes is important to the spirit of the football games, the Athletic Council or department should sponsor these trips as part of an athletic event.

The Athletic Council was notified of the decision before their budget meeting in the spring. They did not grant the money because they did not feel that the bands and Precisionettes were their responsibility.

Donald Cournoyer, president of the Student Senate, and I met with President Lederle on Wednesday to discuss the Band's problem at length.

As a result of that meeting and of the responsible concern of student senators and Fine Arts Council members, a review of the request for the trips will be held by the Fine Arts Council, most probably before next Wednesday's senate meeting.

We as students and interested faculty are trying to solve the Band puzzle. What are the members of the Band doing to help us?

Betsy Robicheau,
Vice President Pro Temp.,
Student Senate

'Till Death Do Us Part

Poor old Marilyn, she finally stole a headline or two from Liz. In fact I think that if the President were to die tomorrow he wouldn't get nearly the news coverage that Marilyn did.

Many of my friends are of the opinion that Marilyn's death signifies more than the lethalness of sleeping pills. Marilyn, they maintain, was a living symbol, an unhealthy symbol of the sick '50's. The 1950's were a period of social turmoil in this country. We began with Korea, McCarthy of Wisconsin, recessions and those Eisenhower years. Our literature, politics and culture all reflected an illness, some sort of residual malnutrition from the war years.

Well, now the '50's are passed along with Marilyn. I hope that the finality of her burial holds true for the passing of that transitional period. Future historians, though, will have much to say on the representational importance of her life and career.

Now we have entered the Dynamic '60's, the age of space exploration and nuclear fission. Looking over the Hollywood crew it's hard to pick a representative of these times. I think though, that whomever she may be, a better end awaits her than did Marilyn.

Letters To The Editor

To the Student Body:

I urge all members of the University community to give their most thoughtful cooperation to members of the University Police in bringing order to the presently confused parking and traffic situation.

It must be the responsibility of each person who operates any vehicle, be it car, scooter or bicycle, to be familiar with campus regulations and to comply with them at all times. If there is any doubt concerning these regulations, any officer will welcome your questions.

Special attention should be drawn to the following:

1. No unregistered cars are permitted.
2. No speed in excess of 20 M.P.H. can be considered safe at any time.
3. Driving to and from classes is expressly prohibited.
4. Pedestrians must follow the instruction of any officer directing traffic.

The "Fiscal Autonomy" bill has given the University the clear responsibility and authority to establish and enforce all appropriate rules and regulations, including court summons. To insure the safety of all concerned, the University must take consistent and firm action as it may be necessary. Operating any vehicle is a privilege which must be withdrawn if the operator fails to accept his responsibility.

I sincerely hope that the cooperative and friendly spirit which characterizes our citizens when they are afoot can be extended to the roadways and parking areas.

William F. Field
Dean of Students

Dear President Cournoyer:

I sincerely regret to announce my resignation as Student Senator from Wheeler dormitory. As many of you know, my undertaking of many Senate responsibilities has made it necessary for me to endure a very heavy work load. My decision to discontinue Senate activity has culminated not as a result of an inability to meet both Senate and academic responsibilities, but because of the lack of the basic desire to continue to meet both demands. I have considered my three years in the Senate very fruitful, adding greatly to my personal development.

In passing, I would like to leave one thought in the mind of each Senator. We have a very unique and powerful student government set-up here at the university. We could very well lose it by default. After last year's haphazard performance, I say that the Student Senate is on trial in much the same way that SWAP was two weeks ago. The people of SWAP have done an excellent job in salvaging SWAP. It is up to you people to do your job.

I would like to thank all of those people who have graciously given me their assistance and extend my best wishes for a successful year in the Senate.

Sincerely yours,
Andrew M. D'Avanzo

University Theatre Closely Coordinates Scheduled Exhibits, Lectures, And Plays

As a part of a "laboratory for drama interests", the University Theatre will schedule closely coordinated lectures, exhibits and plays in an attempt to relate the plays to the times which produced them.

The schedule follows:

Oedipus Rex

A talk on "Oedipus Rex and the Myth and Ritual Theory of Tragedy" will be given by Prof. Herbert Weisinger of the Comparative Literature program at Michigan State University, at 8 p.m. October 30 in Bartlett Hall.

Sophocles' Oedipus Rex, an arean production, will be presented by the University Theatre November 2 and 3 in the Ballroom of the S.U. at 8 p.m. There will be a special high school matinee November 3 at 2:30 p.m.

Tartuffe

A lecture on "Tartuffe, Moliere's Terrible Tribulation", will be given by Prof. Robert Johnson of the UMass Department of Romance Languages in Bartlett Auditorium at 4 p.m. December 6.

The Theatre will present a proscenium style production of Moliere's Tartuffe at 8 p.m. December 7 and 8 in Bowker Auditorium of Stockbridge Hall.

Androcles and the Lion

Prof. Seymour Rudin of the UMass Department of English will deliver a talk on "Androcles, Saint or Simpleton", on March 6 at 4 p.m. in Bartlett Hall Auditorium.

The University Theatre's proscenium style production of George Bernard Shaw's Androcles and the Lion will be presented March 7 and 8 in Bowker Auditorium.

Murder in the Cathedral

UMass Department of History Professor Schafer Williams will lecture on "Thomas Beckett: Royal Power vs. Papal Power" on May 9 at 4 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium.

T. S. Eliot's Murder in the Cathedral will be presented, proscenium style, by the Theatre on May 10 and 11 at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

ANOTHER YEAR, ANOTHER DOLLAR

With today's entry I begin my ninth year of writing columns in your school newspaper for the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes.

Nine years, I believe you will agree, is a long time. In fact, it took only a little longer than nine years to dig the Suez Canal, and you know what a gigantic undertaking that was! To be sure, the work would have gone more rapidly had the shovel been invented at that time, but, as we all know, the shovel was not invented until 1946 by Walter R. Shovel of Cleveland, Ohio. Before Mr. Shovel's discovery in 1946, all digging was done with sugar tongs—a method unquestionably dainty but hardly what one would call rapid. There were, naturally, many efforts made to speed up digging before Mr. Shovel's breakthrough—notably an attempt in 1912 by the immortal Thomas Alva Edison to dig with the phonograph, but the only thing that happened was that he got his horn full of sand. This so depressed Mr. Edison that he fell into a fit of melancholy from which he did not emerge until two years later when his friend William Wordsworth, the eminent nature poet, cheered him up by imitating a duck for four and a half hours.

But I digress. For nine years, I say, I have been writing this column for the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes, and for nine years they have been paying me money. You are shocked. You think that anyone who has tasted Marlboro's unparalleled flavor, who has enjoyed Marlboro's filter, who has revelled in Marlboro's jolly red and white pack or box should be more than willing to write about Marlboro without a penny's compensation. You are wrong.

Compensation is the very foundation stone of the American Way of Life. Whether you love your work or hate it, our system absolutely requires that you be paid for it. For example, I have a friend named Rex Glebe, a veterinarian by profession, who simply adores to worm dogs. I mean you can call him up and say, "Hey, Rex, let's go bowl a few lines," or "Hey, Rex, let's go flatten some pennies on the railroad tracks," and he will always reply, "No, thanks. I better stay here in case somebody wants a dog wormed." I mean there is not one thing in the whole world you can name that Rex likes better than worming a dog. But even so, Rex always sends a bill for worming your dog because in his wisdom he knows that to do otherwise would be to rend, possibly irreparably, the fabric of democracy.

It's the same with me and Marlboro Cigarettes. I think Marlboro's flavor represents the pinnacle of the tobacconist's art. I think Marlboro's filter represents the pinnacle of the filter-maker's art. I think Marlboro's pack and box represent the pinnacle of the packager's art. I think Marlboro is a pleasure and a treasure, and I fairly burst with pride that I have been chosen to speak for Marlboro on your campus. All the same, I want my money every week. And the makers of Marlboro understand this full well. They don't like it, but they understand it.

In the columns which follow this opening installment, I will turn the hot white light of truth on the pressing problems of campus life—the many and varied dilemmas which beset the undergraduate—burning questions like "Should Chaucer classrooms be converted to parking garages?" and "Should proctors be given a saliva test?" and "Should foreign exchange students be held for ransom?"

And in these columns, while grappling with the crises that vex campus America, I will make occasional brief mention of Marlboro Cigarettes. If I do not, the makers will not give me any money.

The makers of Marlboro will bring you this uncensored, free-style column 26 times throughout the school year. During this period it is not unlikely that Old Max will step on some toes—principally ours—but we think it's all in fun and we hope you will too.

Past UMass Officer Dies At Amherst

Margaret Pomeroy Hamlin, in honor of whom the University trustees named a woman's dormitory in 1949, died last month at a local nursing home at the age of 80.

Miss Hamlin was a local resident of 76 North East Street.

Born October 2, 1881, in Pittsfield, she was a Smith College graduate and was placement officer for women for 30 years.

In 1918 Miss Hamlin was appointed by Massachusetts Agricultural College President Kenyon Butterfield as "Agricultural Counselor for Women" at the new Stockbridge School of Agriculture.

In that position she assisted women at the school in securing opportunities in horticulture and animal husbandry, in obtaining scholarships, part-time work, summer jobs and positions after graduation.

She served as first placement officer for women at the University until her retirement in 1948.

A pioneer in her field, Miss Hamlin was asked by Mrs. Richard Borden, director, and Arthur M. Schlesinger, chairman, to write an article for the Women's Archives at Radcliffe College, a depository of manuscripts relating to important contributions of American women to history.

Open House To Be Held By Zionists

by MARCIA VOIKOS '63

The Student Zionist Organization will present its first program of the year, "Cafe Jerusalem," as an open house membership drive 2 to 5 p.m., Sunday, in the SU dining rooms.

The program will feature folk singing and dancing and refreshments. The musical comedy, "My Fair Sabra," will also be shown.

Master of Ceremonies for the program will be "Taj Mahal." The price for non-members is $.75 and $.25 for members.

Bob Glickman, president of the group, said that SZO is a vital part of Hillel and is devoted explicitly to Zionism in Israel. Hillel functions as the Jewish community on campus and provides for every phase of Jewish life, including Zionism.

According to Bob, the purpose of SZO is two-fold: primarily, it serves to educate its members in the field of Israeli culture, history, and traditions. Secondly, it attempts to make each member aware not only of his identity as a Jew but also of the importance of Israel in Jewish life.

"SZO recognizes Israel as the Jewish national home-land," said Bob. "This organization has assisted many Jewish students on extended tours for study and travel throughout Israel."

Future meetings of the SZO will be held in the Hampden Room at time to be announced.

NOTICE

All Veterans students who are studying under the provisions of Public Law 550 must fill out VA enrollment forms at once in room E27, Machmer Hall, if they expect to receive early payment of benefits. The same applies to children of deceased Veterans who are studying under Public Law 634.

The "Village Inn" Sold; Second Time In Last Two Years

by SAUL GLISERMAN '63

"The Drake", home away from home for many UMass students, has changed hands for the second time in two years.

Formally called "The Village Inn", the establishment was sold last Wednesday to Bradford O. Parker, of Longmeadow, who has been involved for many years in the hotel business in Pennsylvania. Parker is currently engaged in diverse business enterprises in this section of Massachusetts.

The hotel was purchased from "Pat" Kamins, Amherst realtor, for $100,000. Acting as representatives on behalf of Parker's interests were Philip Galligan and attorney George Cramer, both of Amherst.

Kamins had bought the Inn from Lincoln Realty in the summer of 1960.

Although no change in the name of the hotel is planned for the moment, Parker stated that if such a change is indicated, the name will probably be one which is associated with some aspect of UMass, similar to the way in which the Lord Jeff is connected with Amherst.

Parker also disclosed prospective plans for a faculty lounge upstairs in the hotel. The Town of Amherst Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations are in complete accord with his plans, said Parker.

Amherst, Mass.

Dear University Student:

When you come to town do stop in and say "hello" to Mr. and Mrs. Carter at Bolles Shoe Store.

We hope to have what you need. We can't carry all styles in all lines but we do try to have what is "Collegiate."

We have P.F. gym shoes and a fine line of sox—wool athletic, cotton campus and stretchy knee sox.

And, of course, we have several styles of loafers for both men and women.

When it comes time for the first formal we have white satin pumps we can dye to match your gown.

We will do our best to earn your friendship.

Sincerely,
Audrey & "Joe" Carter

Robert Frost To Appear At Mt. Holyoke During 125th Anniversary Celebrations

Robert Frost, Aaron Copland, soprano Adele Addison and playwright Edward Albee will come to Mount Holyoke College during the week of October 8 to take part in the "Words and Music" program of the 125th anniversary celebrations.

The 88 year old poet, winner of four Pulitzer prizes, whose poetry reading at Mount Holyoke in April 1959 is still remembered by local residents, has long been a friend of the Connecticut Valley Colleges. Mr. Frost, who recently returned from a trip to the Soviet Union where he met Mr. Khrushchev and talked with Russian poets, will give a reading from his poems on October 13.

On October 10, Aaron Copland will lecture on "The Composer's Experience." Winner of a Pulitzer prize for music, Copland has been called "one of the most significant and influential creative writers of his generation." At the age of 15 he decided to become a composer, and since then has written music for movies, the radio, schools and the theater as well as the concert hall. His composition "Quiet City" was performed recently at Tanglewood on the occasion of Charles Munch's farewell concert.

Following this, Adele Addison will be heard in a performance of Copland's setting of "Twelve Poems of Emily Dickinson." Noted for her versatility and ability to perform difficult works, Miss Addison's achievements range from singing the part of Bess on the soundtrack of the movie "Porgy and Bess" to engagements with the New York City Opera. Last year she was one of the artists for whom the Ford Foundation commissioned compositions, the resulting performance of Lukas Foss's "Time Cycle" being enthusiastically acclaimed by New York critics.

For his lecture at Mount Holyoke on October 11, Edward Albee has chosen the subject "How 'Absurd' is the Theater Today?" Albee, whose plays have recently aroused considerable interest in critical circles, was born in Washington, D.C., and now lives and works in Greenwich Village. His interest in the theater dates back to childhood — his grandfather was a partner in the Keith-Albee vaudeville chain. His first success came with "The Zoo Story," premiered in Berlin in 1959, and was followed by "The Death of Bessie Smith," "The Sandbox" and "The American Dream," a play at once comic and deeply critical of contemporary social values. His latest play, "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" opens on October 13 at the Billy Rose Theater on Broadway.

Geologists Expedite In Montana

Grizzly bears, grizzled beards, dried food, and tent living in the wilds of Montana—a jam packed summer for a team of UMass geologists has drawn to a close.

Picks, hammers and equipment necessary for hardy outdoor living have been put aside, and the work of evaluating results now goes on inside the University's laboratories.

Purpose of the expedition was to study the geology of the Lewis and Clark Range and the Swan Range in western Montana. The study is part of a five-year program, one year of which was financed by a teacher's research grant from the University, and the remaining four by the National Science Foundation. The joint student-professor project is aimed at making a significant contribution in the broad problem of determining the origin of the great mountain ranges.

Under Direction of Dr. George McGill

Under the direction of Dr. George E. McGill, assistant professor of geology at the University, six graduate and undergraduate students moved into an area about 60 miles south of Glacier Park. The men set up a camp 19 miles from the nearest road, and had their non-perishable goods brought in by packhorse.

About once every two weeks they walked to the nearest town to collect mail and bring in food. Main concern of the crew was to protect camp and food supplies from the grizzly bears, since that area contains one of the largest surviving populations of these animals in the country.

In a rustic setting, a field camp near Red Lodge, Montana, the Yellowstone-Bighorn Research Association held its annual election. Made up mostly of professional geologists from the nation's universities and industries, the 150-member organization met in an unacademic but woodsy atmosphere, and elected Dr. McGill as its next president.

Two UM Undergrads Attend Summer Camp

The association operates a field camp near Red Lodge where a summer field course of six weeks for undergraduates is taught each year.

A "gathering place" for geologists in the area, the camp has cabins available for graduate students and faculty members doing research in the area. Membership in the association includes many of the most active researchers in the northern Rockies area.

Architect's Plans Completed For New Alpha Chi House

Fifteen UMass sophomore women founded a local sorority called Gamma Chi Alpha in the fall of 1958. With the help of the Panhellenic Council and the backing of the administration, the Chapter progressed until December, 1960, when Gamma Chi became Delta Mu Chapter of Alpha Chi Omega, a national sorority.

In September 1961, the Alpha Chi's moved in, bag and baggage to the present residence at 813 No. Pleasant St. This was a big step after becoming a national as it enabled girls to live together and enjoy new aspects of sorority life.

The architect's plans are finished for the last step in the short life of this chapter and within a year there will be a new house for UMass Alpha Chi.

Nationally, Alpha Chi Omega, was founded at De Pauw University in 1885. It now numbers 99 chapters of which Delta Mu is the 93rd. Along with the other national traditions, the 65-member chapter on this campus adopted Alpha Chi's main philanthropic project, cerebral palsy, and last year made toys for children stricken with this disease.

Another annual tradition that the girls follow is carolling at Belchertown State Hospital during the Christmas season.

Dorm News

On Sunday, September 9, the Freshmen of Brooks Dormitory arrived on campus to start the 1962-1963 school year. Although the dorm is still being renovated and is lacking many facilities, the spirit of the girls more than makes up for it.

On Monday, the first house meeting was held, and Mrs. Rugg, the new House Resident, was officially introduced to the girls. At the same meeting, the following officers were elected: Interdorm Council Representatives — Freshman, Debbie Wye, and Sophomore, Cookie Smith; Dorm Treasurer, Lee Wilcox; W.A.A. representative, Carol Ricci. The Homecoming queen nominee from Brooks is Jan Jablonski. It was also announced at the meeting that Kathleen Makula has received a $1000 scholarship from the Stanley Home Products, Inc.

Joy Traquir of Brooks was nominated for Homecoming queen by Brett House. We would like to thank the boys of Brett, the new men's dorm, for a most enjoyable Dessert Hour held on Friday night, September 14, from 6:30 to 7:30.

SORORITY NEWS

LAMBDA DELTA PHI

The sisters of Lambda Delta Phi extend their congratulations and best wishes to Mrs. Robert Hilton, nee Carol Kierstead '63, and to Mrs. Patrick O'Toole, nee Joyce Parent '61, on their recent marriages. To Sarah-Jean Carpenter '62, who is teaching in Athol, and to Carol Folley '62, and Mary Kay Heath '62, who are doing their graduate work at UConn and UM, respectively, we extend our wishes for a successful year.

Lambda Phi is happy to announce the initiation of Sonja Stockhaus '63. Congratulations, Sonja!

Lambda Phi is also proud to announce that Nancy O'Hara, an exchange student, here last year from Calif., was pledged by Beta Chapter (URI) at our second National Convention in June. Nancy will be initiated on the West Coast and her chapter at Long Beach St. Teachers College will be Epsilon.

SIGMA KAPPA

Sigma Kappa welcomes back all the sisters and Mrs. Mellin from the summer vacation. Additional welcomes are given to our two returning houseboys, Bob Sloane and Lee Rockwood, and three new ones, Larry Murphy, John Kelly, and Charlie Rock.

Thank you from the sisters of SK to QTV for the really great pizza party Friday, the 14th. The event was the start of the Sigma Kappa social season.

The sisters of Sigma Kappa are very proud of their new pledge, Mary Wolfrum.

Congratulations go to Judy Ditmars for being SK's nomination for Homecoming Queen.

Research Grant ...

The institute is designed to provide "a new dimension in graduate study of psychology and physiology," Dr. Moore noted. "The facility will give graduate students a special opportunity to work as research assistants with experts from various fields. This approach should provide first-rate training for the new field of 'life science' that is vitally important to developments in industrial, military and other programs."

Teichner To Direct

Director of the new facility is Dr. Warren H. Teichner, professor of psychology at the University. Dr. Teichner has a wide background in environmental psychophysiology. For five years he was chief of the psychology branch in the Environmental Protection Research Division of the Quartermaster Research and Engineering Center at Natick, Mass. He has also worked at the Aerospace Medical Research Laboratory of the Wright Air Development Center and has taught extensively at various institutions.

For the past five years Dr. Teichner has been engaged in major research projects supported by agencies of the Federal government. The projects have dealt with the effects of noise, lighting and temperature on human subjects in various environments. The University research has resulted in many technical articles published by Dr. Teichner in scientific journals.

A fellow of the American Psychological Association, Dr. Teichner is a member of the American Institute of Physics, the Human Factors Society, and the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He is listed in American Men of Science and Who's Who in the East.

Organizations or individuals interested in the Institute's work should write to Dr. Warren H. Teichner, Director, Institute of Environmental Psychophysiology, Bartlett Hall, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass.

Brouillet To Pace YanCon Champs

by ALAN RICE '66

The Redmen begin defense of their Yankee Conference and New England Inter-Collegiate Cross Country championships a week from tomorrow, September 29, when William Footrick starts his ninth season at UMass by sending his finest team against the Coast Guard Academy before the campus fans who don't make the trek to Hanover for the Dartmouth football contest.

Last year's cross country squad was the finest in Coach Footrick's term here, with an 8-2 record, and victories in the Yankee Conference meet at Orono and the New England meet at Boston at which all the top schools in the six state area participated, but the 1962 edition should be even better since only one man graduated from last year's titleists. The squad is paced by junior Bob Brouillet, the top Cross Country man in the Conference and possibly the best in New England.

Co-captains on the '62 team are seniors David Balch and Dick Bloomstrom, who each finished eighth or better in every race they ran with one exception. Balch placed fourth in the YanCon meet, second in the Coast Guard-Hartford three team contest, and third in the Connecticut-Boston U. triple meet. Bloomstrom also finished near the head of the pack in every meet, except for a bad day in the New England run.

The big winner is expected to be Brouillet who was victorious in three regular meets and the conference meet as well. The hard running junior took a pair of seconds and two thirds. Also, he took 19th in the IC4A national meet at Madison Square Garden last November.

Seniors Jim Wryne and Bob Avery were also mainstays last year.

Other seniors are Ken O'Brien and Tom Leavitt, both regulars last season, Bruce and Ron Thompson, Gene Hasbrouck, and Bob Carpenter.

Juniors besides Brouillet are Bob Pendleton, and Gene Colburn who appeared in every meet and finished ahead of most of the upperclassmen. Sophomores moving up from Justin Cobb's freshman team are John Lavoie, Armand Millette, Tom Panke, Tom Remsey, Charlie Sisson, Paul Twohig, and Bill Young.

The season should open on a happy note since last year, also on opening day, Mass beat the Cadets from New London by 20 points. New additions to the schedule are New York University, and Army which won the IC4A. The new squads will be met in a three way competition at West Point, Friday, Oct. 26.

The 1962 Yankee Conference championships are slated for November 3, at Storrs, Conn. The Redmen will be gunning for their third flag in a row in that meeting, and the New England IC4A will be in Boston, November 12. The UMass runners have averaged better than fourth place in that big affair during Coach Footrick's career here. The climax of the season is the national meet November 20, in New York.

Tickets

Season tickets for wives of UMass undergraduate students are now on sale in Room 10 Men's Physical Education Building. The price of the ticket is $5 and it will admit the bearer to all football and basketball games. Seating will be in the sections reserved for students.

INTRAMURALS

JUSTIN COBB
Director of Intramurals

The Intramural football competition is about to begin. On Monday the first of the IFC clashes will take place. On the following Monday the dormitory and Independent teams will start their league season.

All dorm and Independent rosters must be turned into Coach Cobb at the Curry Hicks Building no later than today, Friday, September 21.

The deadline for the submission of applications for the intramural tennis tournament has been postponed from today to next Monday, September 24, at 5:00 p.m.

The following is the Intramural football schedule for the week of September 24 to September 28.

For The Freshmen

Introducing Vic Fusia

The 20th head coach in the University of Massachusetts seventy-nine year football history, Vic Fusia begins his second year at the helm of the Redmen football regime.

A native of Pittsburgh, Coach Fusia attended Wilkinsburg (Pa.) H.S. and Mt. St. Michael's H.S. (Bronx, N.Y.) He graduated from Manhattan College in 1933 with a B.S. degree and as an undergraduate was an outstanding tailback for the Jaspers.

Following his graduation from Manhattan Fusia taught for a year at Bernard School for Boys in New York before entering the U.S. Navy. He served in the Pacific for two years with the 7th Fleet Force and was discharged in 1946 with the rank of Lieutenant Junior Grade.

Fusia coached at Rankin (Pa.) H.S. in 1946 and 1947 where he lost but two league games in two years. He then moved to Indiana (Pa.) H.S. and climaxed three very successful seasons with an undefeated team in 1950. In 1951 he began a four year stay at Brown University on the staff of Alva Kelley where he served as backfield coach. In 1955 Coach Fusia moved to the University of Pittsburgh to serve as backfield coach and first assistant to head coach John Michelosen. During his six years there the Panthers were rated as one of the top independent college elevens in the country with Fusia being accorded much of the credit for the team's success with his offensive strategy.

NOTICES

Any member of the class of 1963 who has not yet made an appointment for his senior pictures should go to the Index office in the Student Union immediately! Those who graduate in January and August as well as June are considered members of the class of '63. If there is any question concerning one's class status he should check with the Registrar's office in South College.

Redmen Open Season With Hungry Bears

Crucial Conference Tilt In Battle For '62 Beanpot

by STEVE HEWEY, Associate Sports Editor

Yankee Conference football, 1962 version, gets underway tomorrow afternoon at Alumni Field on the campus of the University of Massachusetts as the UMass Redmen entertain the visiting Black Bears from the University of Maine. This is the team that bested the UM squad, 10-7, in the showdown game last fall to grab the Beanpot, traditional symbol of Yan-Con grid supremacy. In tomorrow's PM encounter, Vic Fusia, opening his second season at the head of the UMass coaching staff, will be out to avenge that loss to Maine and to grab an early lead in the Yan-Con standings. This game, incidentally, is the only Conference meeting on tap this week.

In the eight meetings between UMass and Maine in a series which began way back in 1909, the Redmen have emerged victorious in four and have dropped three while tying one. If Maine coach Harold Westerman, now in his 12th season at the Orono school, expects his boys to equal their undefeated Yankee Conference record of last year (5-0), he must beef up the end slots and the backfield positions. Hard to find adequate replacements for will be quarterback Manch Wheeler, halfback Dave Cloutier and end Dick Kinney, all of whom picked up their diplomas last June and all of whom were selected to the All-Conference Team last season. To further add to Westerman's headaches in searching for talent is the fact that he has only three starters back from last year. He too,like Vic Fusia, will have to draw from sophs and other players with limited varsity action.

BOB TEDOLDI
Right Guard

Although Maine appears to be short on seasoned talent, she is rated by some circles, along with UConn, as a definite threat to pick up Yan-Con honors this fall. UMass is also a definite contender and tomorrow's fray may actually hold the key to the Conference title.

Overall, the sophomore-studded Redmen squad is in good shape physically. But whether guard John Kozaka and center Matt Collins will see duty tomorrow is a cloudy question. Both of these lettermen are plagued by recurrences of old knee injuries, injuries that also limited their services during last fall's campaign.

When the UMass starting lineup is announced tomorrow it is expected that three sophomores will be included. At quarterback, the position that will hold the key to Redmen success this season, will be Jerry Whelchel. Don't look for the long bombs that were the trademarks of last season's signal caller, John McCormick, but be assured that Welchel is a fine passer in his own right and looks exceptionally well for a first year man. Big Dick Baudelais will start at one end position while third soph is guard Peter Pietz.

Game time is 1:30.

Ingalls Still Undecided On First Squad

Connecticut opens its football season this Saturday with Yale at Yale Bowl; and UConn Coach Bob Ingalls is still uncertain as to who will make up his starting lineup.

Going into the final week of preparations for the season opener, Ingalls stated that he had two men for consideration at most every position.

There are a dozen lettermen included in the top 22 candidates for the starting assignments. By positions, they are as follows:

Lettermen in the above group are: Bell, Noveck, Simeone, Contoulis, McConnell, Mazzocca, Brunelle, Doty, Korponai, G. White, Sgrulletta and Magaletta.

Contoulis and Doty have been named co-captains for the Yale game. Connecticut will have game captains for this season.

500 Senior Men Attend Placement Convocation

The first Senior Men's Placement Convocation was held yesterday in Bowker Auditorium. This was the first of two placement convocations; the second will be held in Bowker next Thursday at 11 a.m.

Some 500 senior men received Senior Placement Registration Forms at a placement convocation yesterday in Bowker Auditorium at 11 a.m.

Robert J. Morrissey, Director of Placement and Financial Aid for University men, directed the program.

Mr. Morrissey stressed that all senior men should register with his office to facilitate his staff's work in supplying information to prospective employers.

He said that senior men who did not attend the meeting should stop by his office and get the necessary forms.

Federal Civil Service booklets were also handed out to those wishing to take the Civil Service exams. The only persons exempt from taking these exams, who are applying for the Civil Service, are those majoring in accounting, chemistry, physics, and engineering.

A second placement convocation will be held next Thursday, September 27, in Bowker Auditorium at 11 a.m. for all senior men. This second meeting will be concerned with job opportunities and salaries for men in various major fields.

Annual Inter-Dorm Sing Scheduled For October 2

by IRIS LOFARO '66

The annual girls' Inter-Dorm Sing is scheduled to be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday, October 2, in the Women's Physical Education Building.

The sing, sponsored by the Inter-Dorm Council, is one of several events in which each women's dorm competes for points toward obtaining the Inter-Dorm Council plaque given at the year's end to the women's dorm with the most points.

Before the sing begins, each dormitory's song leader draws a number to decide her dorm's position in the order of the sing. The song leader also draws for selection of the school song which her dorm's group will sing.

These songs are: "Fight Massachusetts", "Sons of the Valley", "When Twilight Shadows Deepen", and "Sons of Old Massachusetts".

Besides one of these four songs, each dorm will sing a song chosen by the Dorm Council.

Judging of the sing will be based 50 percent on participation, 25 percent on originality and 25 percent on presentation.

Judging the sing this year will be Esther Wallace, a member of the Physical Education Department, and two members of the Music Department.

Seniors Can Get Gowns For Convo

Seniors wishing to participate in the Opening Centennial Convocation October 4, who have so notified the Alumni Office, may pick up their caps and gowns in the Memorial Hall basement 10 a.m. to noon and 2 to 5 p.m. October 1, 2 and 3.

Associate Alumni Director Evan Johnston has announced that some 370 seniors have already notified the Alumni office that they will participate in the Convocation. Mr. Johnston said that, as 500 caps and gowns will be available, the Office is still welcoming acceptances.

He said that Seniors will not have to pay for the loan of the gowns and caps, that the cost will be covered by the Alumni Office.

No arrangements have been made, he said, for a specific time and place for Seniors to don their gowns and that this will be left to individuals to decide.

Tryouts For 'Oedipus Rex' Announced

Tryouts for the first in a series of four planned University Theatre productions, Oedipus Rex, will be held Tuesday and Wednesday at 7 p.m. in Room 229 of Bartlett Hall.

Directing the production will be Harry Mahnken of the UMass Theatre staff. Mr. Mahnken comes to the University this fall from the University of Richmond (Virginia).

The University Theatre production of Oedipus Rex will be given November 2 and 3 in the S. U. Ballroom.

TEP House Is Coming: October 12 Is V Day

TEP's answer to Frank Lloyd Wright.

by JOE ALEN '66

The brothers of Tau Epsilon Phi will have a home—target date for completion of the new TEP fraternity house living quarters is October 12.

House officials have said that living and social quarters of the building — first new fraternity house on campus since 1938 when Kappa Sigma built one— will both be in use by November 1.

"The original plans for the building," said House president Barry Weiner, "called for completion of the living quarters by October 1, while the social wing was to done on November 1.

"However, at a crucial stage in the construction, the Anderson Window Co. employees went on strike for ten days, causing a halt in work on the building. Since the house contains an enormous amount of glass, some ceiling to floor, further progress was delayed almost totally during that period."

Presently, the windows are all in place, the wiring is done and outside bricking is being completed. Insulation and interior work are in their early stages.

When the two-story building is functional, said Weiner, it will have 17 double rooms per floor, one floor on street level and one under the street floor to conform to the steep natural slope of the terrain.

Interior and exterior design is completely modern, with all new furnishings. The dining hall, to accommodate 140 persons, will be serviced by a modern kitchen equipped with steam and freezer tables.

To help cover the project's cost, each brother's bill for the semester has been increased $40 over last semester. The new House bill for $455 per brother is just slightly above the average fraternity House bill at the University.

Mrs. Luree Beth Scheider, formerly a housemother at Theta Chi and at Sigma Alpha Epsilon, will be housemother at the new TEP building.

Plans are being made to construct a 50-car parking lot in the Spring of 1963 and a patio to be located within the L shaped building.

OTS Team Will Be Here Next Week

The Officer Training School Selection Team will be in the SU lobby Monday through Thursday, from September 24-27. Students interested in this Air Force program may contact Captain Pfefferkorn or Sergeant Sheram.

Applications can be made 210 days prior to graduation. The student will be under no obligation but may choose from fields of specialization guaranteed before enlistment and participate in a 90-day training program conducted in San Antonio, Texas.

U.N. Week Planned By 7 Organizations

by DICK HAYNES '64

A committee representing Seven UMass student organizations has announced plans for a United Nations Week, October 21 through October 28.

The committee is comprised of representatives from Alpha Phi Omega, Debating Club, Pioneer Valley Folklore Society, Women's Interdorm Council, Interfraternity Council, Panhellenic Council, and the Women's Service Organization (probationary colony of Gamma Sigma Sigma.)

Purpose of United Nations Week Outlined

The purpose of United Nations Week is to "stimulate campus and public consideration of world problems and to insure our involvement in them (a) through discussion of the United Nations and world problems, (b) through raising funds for the Pilot Farm and Agricultural School in Dahomey (UNESCO Gift Project #319) and (c) through additional United Nations projects in support of the United Nations theme," the Executive Committee announced.

Calendar Announced; Chester Bowles and IFC-Panhellenic Carnival to Highlight Week's Activities

On October 26, Alpha Phi Omega will present Chester Bowles at 4 p.m. in the S.U. Ballroom, who will speak on a subject as yet not announced. Also on October 26, the IFC and Panhellenic Council will sponsor a carnival in the S.U. Parking Lot. Each house will have a booth featuring games from another country.

Other events for the week include a folk concert on October 28, sponsored by the PVFS; a dance on October 27 in the Ballroom featuring a half hour demonstration of foreign folk dances under the arrangement of the International Club. Paul Waldron's Band will play for dancing.

The Debating Club is trying to arrange a debate between several prominent politicians for October 23.

On October 24, Alpha Phi Omega will present a speech by a representative to the United Nations.

Throughout the week the Women's Service Organization will run a United Nations Information and Sales Counter in the SU Lobby. The Women's Interdormitory Council is planning to raise money to support several foster children through the UNESCO foster parents plan.

$5,000 Needed

The Executive Committee has designated UNESCO Gift Project 319, Pilot Farm and Agricultural School in Dahomey as receipient of all funds raised through the week's activities.

The school was organized in 1953 by the Young Christian Workers Organization to prove that modern tools and techniques could raise farm productivity above the subsistance level and offer new hope and a decent livelihood for a large percentage of the territory's 20,000 unemployed youth.

The school is now at an intermediate stage. Most voluntary sources of revenue have been exhausted. But the farm will not be on a solid, self-financing basis until 1964, when the first plantings begin to pay off.

D.V.P. Plans Dylan Thomas Presentation

Lloyd David '63, chairman of the Distinguished Visitors Program, has announced that the program's first offering this season will be Dylan Thomas' comedy-drama, "Under Milkwood." The play, produced by Theodore Mann and Jose Quintero of New York, will be presented here on October 9 at 8 p.m. in the S.U. ballroom.

Telling of life in a Welsh seacoast village, "Under Milkwood" opened to favorable reviews at its Broadway opening two years ago. The producers chose the play to celebrate their own 10th anniversary as theatrical collaborators.

Deciding the drama would offer itself well to the theater, Mann and Quintero presented it despite the fact that another of their productions, "The Balcony," was still running.

The team of Mann and Quintero has also produced the Pulitzer Prize-winning "Long Day's Journey into Night," and numerous other plays, among them "The Iceman Cometh" and "Our Town," winners of the Vernon Rice Memorial Award and the Lola D'Annunizio Award respectively.

The producers are currently presenting two cycles of plays by Thornton Wilder entitled "The Seven Ages of Man" and "The Seven Deadly Sins."

Mr. Mann was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., and educated for the law at New York University and Boston Law School. Rather than enter his father's law firm, however, he took a year's leave of absence to go out on his own. In the course of that year he joined Jose Quintero in a summer theater venture at Woodstock, N.Y.

Mr. Quintero, a native of Panama, studied medicine at the University of California. His interest in the theater grew out of a course in remedial English he took while at the University.

The team of Mann and Quintero first appeared in New York with the play, "Dark of the Moon." This production was the winner of four awards and launched the twosome's theatrical career.

Centennial Event Will Honor Neighboring Private Colleges

UMass, starting its official centennial observance next month, will pay tribute to three neighboring colleges in a unique salute to a unique educational enterprise—the Four College Cooperation Program.

The special Centennial Convocation on Oct. 4 will be the setting for granting of honorary degrees by the state university to the presidents of Amherst, Smith and Mt. Holyoke Colleges. The three private institutions and the University have conducted a wide-ranging program of cooperative educational activities for the past five years.

CALVIN PLIMPTON

Honorary degree recipients will include Calvin H. Plimpton of Amherst, Richard Glenn Gettell of Mt. Holyoke, and Thomas C. Mendenhall of Smith. The main speaker at the exercises, John J. McCloy, chairman of President Kennedy's General Advisory Committee on Disarmamen and chairman of the board of Amherst College, will join the three presidents as an honorary degree recipient.

RICHARD GETTELL

The convocation next month will officially open the University's centennial celebration, planned as a year-long program of special lectures, conferences, and other events honoring the institution's century of progress.

The observance will reach its high point on April 29, 1963, the hundredth anniversary date of the founding of the University as a Land-Grant institution.

Presiding at the convocation ceremonies will be Dr. John W. Lederle, 15th president of the University, with Gov. John A. Volpe representing the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The observance will be opened officially by Centennial Chairman James T. Nicholson, executive vice president of the American Red Cross (retired) and a member of the UM Class of 1916. A brief address of welcome will be given by Dr. Frank L. Boyden, headmaster of Deerfield Academy and chairman of the UM Board of Trustees.

Students and faculty from the campuses of the three private colleges will be given a general invitation to attend the convocation at the University. All of the major Centennial events will be open to the public.

UMass YR'S Will Support Czuj, Dressel

Republican office seekers Edward Czuj (2nd Franklin) and Robert Dressel (4th Hampshire) were endorsed by over 100 members at a recent meeting of the campus Young Republican Club.

Also endorsed were State-wide candidates Governor Volpe, Edward Brooke, George Lodge and Francis Perry. They, along with Czuj and Dressel, were pledged support by the Young Republicans Political Activity Committee (PAC). Teams were sent out over the Weekend to meet some of the candidates they are working for.

Edward Czuj, successful primary winner, is running for State Representative from the Greenfield district. Czuj is one of the founders of the Greater Greenfield Young Republican Club.

Robert Dressel is waging a vigorous campaign in the 4th Hampshire, which consists of Amherst, Ware, Granby and Belchertown, for the office of State Representative.

Charles Nihan, president of the Young Republicans, and Bob Crooker, will co-captain the student delegation for the Statewide campaigns.

"We're already off to a good start," said Nihan. "Lodge and Brooke bumper stickers were handed out at the Maine game, and next Thursday we're participating in a 'Candidates' Night' at the local high school."

Appearing at "Candidates' Night", sponsored by the Amherst League of Women Voters, will be Volpe, Perry and their Democrat rivals.

There will be a campaign meeting Sept. 27, in the S.U. at 11 a.m.

Independents To Campaign For Hughes

At the first meeting of the Young Independents' Club last Thursday in the S.U., club members unanimously pledged support of Prof. Stuart Hughes, independent candidate for the United States Senate.

A group spokesman said that the group felt, in the words of Prof. Hughes, "Here in Massachusetts, the two old parties have proved themselves incapable of responding imaginatively to the issues of the nuclear age . . . It is time for a new kind of politics . . ."

There was discussion of the aims of the campaign, after which Ed Doty, the area coordinator, described campaign methods.

One of these will be the systematic leafletting of plants and industrial areas by persons volunteering for this work.

Club spokesman Victor Aranow said that anyone interested in working on the campaign for Hughes is invited to attend the next club meeting Thursday, September 27.

At that meeting, several members will describe a Hughes conference they attended Saturday in Newton. There will also be a group discussion on problems and experiences encountered during factory leafletting, Aranow said.

In addition there will be a planning session for the seminar Oct. 4.

Panhellenic Council Holds Workshop For New Sororities

Panhellenic Council sponsored an officers' workshop yesterday afternoon for the two new sororities, Sigma Sigma Sigma and Iota Gamma Upsilon.

Officers from all the sororities met to discuss the duties and responsibilities of their respective offices. Round-table discussions were held to enable the officers of the new sororities to better understand their positions.

Each of the eight sororities were hostesses for one group of officers. The Presidents met at Sigma Delta Tau; Standards at Lambda Delta Phi; Pledge Trainers at Alpha Chi Omega; Rush Chairmen at Chi Omega; Treasurers at Kappa Alpha Theta; Scholarship Chairmen at Sigma Kappa; House Managers at Pi Beta Phi; and Social Chairmen at Kappa Kappa Gamma.

"No man can reveal to you aught but that which already lies half asleep in the dawning of your knowledge.—The Prophet

A MODERN TRAGEDY

We are all aware of the tremendous increase in college enrollment. In 1900, 4% of that year's high school graduates went on to higher education, while 58.6% of the high school class of 1962 have set a goal for more schooling. This is an estimated 4,729,000 students, of whom 83.2% will aim for degree-credit courses. Subtract from these, 450,000 junior college students, and we have 3,383,000 students entering four year colleges—a gargantuan proportion. All this when the 1964 post-war surge has not yet invaded our colleges.

Of this phenomenal number attending our colleges, the proportion of students finishing their work for a degree is pitifully small. The 48% of the class of '65 at the University of Massachusetts is right in line with the estimated 50% of all college Freshmen that are lost from the U.S. "brain-trust" each year. The three following years, though a little less deadly, reduced last June's graduation of Bachelor of Arts degrees to a mere 450,000.

The next drastic numerical decrease is in the number of students going on to a masters or doctorate degree. 79,700 masters and only 10,320 doctorates will be graduated in 1962. The increased demand for scientists, engineers, and mathematicians resulted in only 38,600 Bachelor of Science degrees, while just 3,600 masters and 1,900 doctorates will be awarded this year. Reducing our estimates to even fewer digits, we consider the field of Mathematics, so important in this technical age. In 1962, there will be just 1,671 men and 394 women obtaining a masters degree; while 305 men and 19 women will earn a doctorate.

What has all this numerical show led to? From the nearly 5,000,000 seekers of higher education, we have drawn 324 doctorates in Mathematics. Consider a less popular field, and the number of doctorates produced last year is more than likely halved. Of these few highly trained persons, how many will bypass lucrative business propositions to become college professors? Of these who choose to teach, how many can this University hope to attract to its staff when that 1964 surge demands expansion?

These startling figures, listed by Mr. Hechinger in his New York Times education column, graphically show the high hurdles we of the University of Massachusetts, and the entire country, must overcome. If, of a team of nearly 5,000,000, we have only a few hundred finishers, we can not expect to win a battle for our democratic way. The remedy escapes us. We found these facts shocking. Publicizing this tragedy seems the only way to aid in its prevention.

Autonomy

Med School vs. Mentally Ill

Yesterday's Boston Herald raised an interesting editorial point concerning the University. Speaking about the Commonwealth, the article stated: "While it only half serves its 30,000 mentally ill, it obligates itself for a state medical school, again with fiscal autonomy, to spend with an unjustifiable priority."

If we interpret this editorial correctly, we understand that the Herald is raising the question—which is more important; our mentally ill citizens or medical education for citizens of the Commonwealth?

Does the Herald presume that one is more important than the other?

It seems to us that this question can not, nor should it be, answered. Both concerns are responsibilities of the State, and both of them will have to be met.

We object to the University's being attacked from many sides because we have "fiscal autonomy' and are allowed to budget our own money in a manner which is most fitting to ourselves.

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts has many responsibilities to meet. One of them is the care of its mentally ill citizens. No one has the right to say that the responsibility of education is more or less important than the responsibility of care for the mentally ill.

This is not a matter of "unjustifiable priority"; both are necessities.

Letters to the Editor

Dear J.D.,

How do you expect anyone to get a legitimate call through if everyone gets in on your "talkathon." My life has already been blackened by the eternal busy signal at Knowlton House and others. This is by far the most uncreative bit of rubbish you have ever printed in your already unimaginative column in the campus rag.

If your idea catches on, I hope that some higher power wills that you may never again receive another phone call, and that you die, a wrinkled-up old spinster. ABL

It is quite unlikely that J.D. (38-26-38) will ever come to such a fate, however those interested in "saving" her may contact J.D. at Arnold. —Ed.

A COMMON GOAL

Dear Miss Robicheau:

"What are the members of the band doing to help us?" What can we do? The mission of the Redmen Marching Band and Precisionettes is primarily to rehearse a full hour a day for five, often six days a week to present a half-time performance worthy of being connected with the University of Massachusetts. We do not have the time to raise money even if it were allowed for said members to canvas the campus for these desperately needed funds. The Senate once made a decision that the Athletic Department was to be the sponsor. The Band staff presented to that department what it felt was the necessary amount, and when it was refused the Senate was duly informed. Since then the problem has been passed from hand to hand with no obvious results. The time has come for another decision. You and the other officers of the Senate are the ones to put it in motion.

Last Friday night at the rally all of the speakers stressed the importance of all-out support for the team, not only against Maine but against all future opponents. We are ready, willing, but unable to comply with their wish.

We feel like an illegitimate child! We have the moral backing of everyone for what we do, however, NO ONE wants to take the responsibility for us.

You stated that "the Student Senate and the Fine Arts Council have been working on the problem of transportation of the Marching Band and Precisionettes to away games since March, 1962." Miss Robicheau, since December of 1961 one of our committee has been working on new and (we hope) more visually exciting and more musically thrilling pre-game and half-time performances in keeping with the Centennial observances of this University.

Since we, "as members of the band," have nothing to do with the monetary portion of the transportation problem, your question to us is inappropriate. We are doing everything we know of to fulfill our mission! At the same time, we realize that we cannot possibly foresee all the inherent aspects of the situation. Any suggestions which you could offer toward the realization of what we know to be our common goal would be willingly accepted.

ASTERISK —

A Footnote To Contemporary Propaganda

by

M. PALTER '63 and P. THEROUX '63

After everybody realized that neither could use the dynasty issue to political advantage, they sat down to discuss "the issues." But secretly Teddy said to Eddy, "my father can lick your uncle any time. He's younger!" Which did not phase Eddy because he knew his uncle owned a heavy gavel and was not afraid to use it!

But while everybody agreed that "the issues" were more important than the personalities, a further impasse developed when it was discovered that Eddy and Teddy agreed on just about everything. This angered those who had given up a night of bowling in the vain hope of witnessing televised hari-kari. Subsequently, an enterprising press agent, disillusioned at the degree of agreement between the two men, suggested that they run together under one name. Someone suggested "Eddy" Kennedy. Another put forth "Teddy" McCormick. But this didn't satisfy anyone, and besides, a fellow with horn-rimmed glasses and a Harvard hair-cut implied that this would be illegal.

But let us not make jest of the political situation in Massachusetts. Let us not make foolish value judgments. Rather let us resolve that the political debate is essential to the education of the electorate. Let us not jeopardize this institution.

Mr. Kennedy has been criticized for refusing to debate with both Lodge and Hughes. He has been abused, mishandled, and ridiculed. Let us not descend to the level of the mob in heaping this ridicule upon a man who has won the confidence of thousands of voters. We have no intention of criticizing him as a person but rather of reminding him of a principle. And with the marginal degree of respect which we have for him, we are sure he will submit to at least a marginal debate.

—M.P.

THAT OLD FEELING

I was watching an old movie the other night, and in a barroom scene a German girl asked an American Sergeant what Democracy was. "Well," he said, "it's a sort of feeling." I wonder how many of us experience the same feeling, whatever it was, that he did.

The novel part of present day democracy is that we all interpret it differently, all feel it differently. Yet, though we may all differ in interpretation, there was a time we would have blindly dashed off at a moment's notice to fight for Democracy, to preserve our way of life. I don't criticise this, what I do criticise is our indifference to patriotism.

With an unheard-of enthusiasm Americans will lose weight, mow lawns, play golf at the country club and buy fad products, and yet when politics are discussed on a basis deeper than who are you going to vote for, we can't participate. Patriotic speeches and holidays are dismissed as flag-waving spectaculars. We approach these things waiting for a laugh, for smug, naive, entertainment.

I do not mean that when a man runs with a flag we should hound and ferret out those with fanatic viewpoints. I do suggest that we approach the subject with a bit more respect and humility. Those who realize how uneducated and uncultured we are, who have feeling for our hungry and homeless, might borrow a line from Max Schulman and "Rally Round the Flag." —Paul Harris '63

State Universities Award Most Master's And Doctor's Degrees In Essential Fields

State universities and land-grant institutions serve as the principal source of the nation's most highly educated manpower, conferring most of the advanced degrees in essential fields.

The 95 members of the Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges and the State Universities Association awarded 54.9 percent of all doctorates in 1959-60. In the more critical fields, they awarded 70.2 percent of all biological science doctorates, 57.1 percent in mathematical subjects, 60.4 percent in engineering and 53 percent in education.

According to the Joint Office of Institutional Research, the member schools conferred 5,393 out of the aggregate number of 9,829 doctorates granted during the year, 1959-60. This compares with a 1958-59 percentage of 54.1, or 5,064 out of a 9,360 aggregate.

These schools, in addition, conferred 39.1 percent of all master's degrees—29,107 out of a national total of 74,497—and 31.1 percent of all bachelor's degrees —122,997 out of a 394,889 total —in 1959-60.

The bachelor's category includes bachelor of arts, bachelor of science, such first professional degrees as M.D., LL.B., B.D. and certain master's level degrees when they constitute the first professional degree. The master's level includes degrees beyond the bachelor's or first professional, but below the doctorate.

The 1959-60 year marked a substantial increase in the percentage of doctorates conferred by member schools in the fields of architecture and fine and applied arts, although the number of candidates in these fields was small.

Sixteen of the 17 architecture Ph.D.'s, or 94.1 percent, were earned at member schools, compared with one out of three in the previous year. In fine and applied arts, 54.1 percent of the doctorates were conferred by member schools—158 out of 292 —compared with 40.94 percent, or 113 out of 276, in the previous year.

Redmen Start Season With 10-0 Win Over Maine

Whelchel, Lussier And Majeski Shine

by STEVE HEWEY, Associate Sports Editor

The University of Massachusetts by virtue of a second half drive smoothly engineered by quarterback Jerry Whelchel and the driving talents of halfback Sam Lussier met and conquered defending Yankee Conference champions, the University of Maine, 10-0, at Alumni Field Saturday afternoon. Some 7100 fans watched Vic Fusia's Redman stage a scoreless duel with the Bears for threequarters before Lussier slammed into the Main defenses for the day's only touchdown.

Early in the first period the Redmen looked as if they would waste no time in scoring. Sam Lussier picked up a Maine punt and moved it up to the UM 38. From there, Lussier, Loren Flagg and Dick Warren divided the carrying chores and in eight plays drove to the Maine 11 yard stripe before the big Bear line stopped the threat. Maine took over on downs but two plays later a fumble put the Redmen in possession on the enemy 19. Whelchel tossed a screen pass to Dick Warren for one yard and carried himself down to the 13. Lussier picked up two more yards, to the 11. On 4th and one, George Plear came in to attempt a 3 pointer. There was no kick, however, as Whelchel tried to pick up the first down via the air but managed to get away only a harmless toss as he was hit by two Maine defenders.

The Bears found it hard to get their ground game moving against the Redmen front wall. In the first three series Maine ran, they had to relinquish the ball twice on punts and loose it once on a fumble. The visitors' only real threat of the game came late in the second period when a poor punt by UM's John Schroeder gave Maine control on the Redmen 37. In three plays Maine advanced to a first and ten on the 26. But a holding penalty combined with Paul Majeski's nabbing the Maine quarterback in back of the line put the ball back on the 47. Maine went to the air but could only harvest a short gain and was forced to punt again.

The UMass second half touchdown drive which ate up 19 plays began after Lussier ran a Maine punt from his own 10 up to the 18. Ken Kezer was dropped for yard loss but Lussier knifed his way up to the 43 on a crossbuck play to pick up the first down. Kezer and Warren moved the ball up to the Maine 47 but an offside infraction pushed UMass back to their own 47.

It was here that Whelchel pulled off one of the smoothest bootleg plays seen at Alumni Field for quite a while. On third and six Jerry faked to one halfback and backtracked with the ball behind his back. As the Maine defenders pulled out to move upfield Whelchel stood all alone, took his time to find Lussier with a perfect pass for the first down on the Maine 45. Kenny Kezer gained five more yards for the Redmen, then UMass proved that it not only had skill but also luck. In a strange play Jerry Whelchel faded back to pass but dropped the ball. However, instead of the ball's rolling end over end away from Whelchel it bounced right back in his hands allowing him to fire a pass to Art Perdigao on the Bears 24 yard line, giving the Redmen another first down. Kezer plowed to the 22. Art Perdigao, Lussier and Loren Flagg ground out short gainers down to the 11. Whelchel threw to Perdigao all alone about a foot from the goal but it went incomplete. At this point Lussier took charge and drove to the 2.

Lussier again carried and took it to the one yard line for the first down as the third period ran out. After the teams switched sides Sam was called upon again but found the eight man Maine line almost solid as he was halted a scant foot from the goal. He slammed into the line again and managed only a gain of a half foot. It looked as if Maine would hold with a determined defensive effort. But Lussier was also determined and found his way through for the score. Up went six points on the UM scoreboard and up went a flock of freshmen beanies. George Pleau came in and added the extra point. Later in the same period Pleau was called upon to use his talents in booting a field goal from the 16 yard mark to round out the scoring.

Halfback Sam Lussier was the workhorse for the Redmen Saturday as he ground out 75 yards in 18 carries. After the game UMass backfield coach Jack Delaney who while at Cincinnati coached over a half dozen boys

O'Connell Thanks Dorms; Free Homecoming Tickets

There are a lot of happy men over at the Cage today. One of them is Robert O'Connell, Financial Manager of Redmen Athletics.

Mr. O'Connell is not only happy about Saturday's win over the Maine Bears but is also excited about the number of UMass students purchasing tickets for the Dartmouth game in Hanover next Saturday.

"The spirit of the Redmen football team on the field is matched by the spirit of the student body in general." When Mr. O'Connell said this he was speaking of the great enthusiasm shown by everyone on the campus ever since tickets for the Dartmouth clash went on sale last week.

As was reported in last Wednesday's Collegian the Athletic department is giving away to the fraternity or sorority which buys the most tickets two free passes to this Saturday's contest. The response to this offer was, as Mr. O'Connell put it, "fantastic". Within four days over 275 tickets had been sold. This averages out to almost 70 tickets a day.

The Athletic department realizes that it is not only the Greeks who are buying ticket after ticket, but also a large number of Independents have bought them. Therefore, in way of thanks to the Independents Mr. O'Connell is giving two free tickets to the Homecoming game against Connecticut to one dormitory whose name will be picked out of a hat.

This is not a reward nor an incentive but a way the Athletic Department has of saying thanks to those Independents who purchased their tickets last week and to the even larger number who will buy them this week.

In the standings of the fraternities Kappa Sigma is in the lead but closely followed by the rest of the fraternities who are so close together that they could be covered with two passes to the Dartmouth game.

Fraternities and sororities are urged to purchase their tickets in blocks so that the bookkeeping for the contest can be made a little easier. If, however, a Greek purchases only one or two tickets at a time Mr. O'Connell cautions him not to forget to state which fraternity he belongs to so that the number of tickets he bought can be tallied in with those of his fraternity brothers.

The tickets are going quickly and Mr. O'Connell urges buying them early so you won't be left out when a large part of the UMass campus travels up to Hanover to serve as a cheering section for the Fighting Redmen.

J. D.'s CORNER

Hello again. How do you feel now that classes are in full swing? . . . oh? Sorry I asked. Let's change the subject.

Have you heard why American scientists are so frustrated? Every time they invent something, the Russians claim that they invented it, and the Japanese can make it cheaper.

I have another free offer—cartoons by Jules Feiffer, Nordenstrom, and Jaf. These are clippings from the Village Voice, which the exchange desk has been receiving for years. The old papers have to be thrown out, but it seemed a shame not to keep these cartoons, so I clipped them. Anyone who writes in will receive a generous collection of these inimitable cartoons.

Have you heard about Outlet? It's a new magazine of creative writing by students, published in Longmeadow. It sells for only 25c a copy ($1.25 per year.) I've given the current issue the once-over, and it definitely seems worth having. Contact Rosemary Simpson, Mary Lyon House, or get in touch with me for a subscription or a sample issue.

Do you have a friend in Art 32? This course is called Basic Design, and its members have been seen lugging huge chunks of balsa wood across campus. These blocks are now being carved into a variety of shapes; the idea is to make them look as unlike blocks as possible. I suppose you'd have to say that they're succeeding, at present all the blocks look like bedposts of one kind or another. The Freudian psychologists could come up from the basement to the art room and have a field day. But the real scene is the sight of the room after the wood-carvers have left; the tables are piled high and the floor is ankle-deep in shavings. In fact, the place resembles the aftermath of a beaver convention. Drop by 209 Bartlett some Tuesday or Thursday afternoon if you don't believe me.

Sonny Vs. Floyd Tomorrow Night

LISTON IN SEVEN

by ROBERT DUGGAN '66

Floyd Patterson has been heavyweight champion for six years, but tomorrow night will see the end of this. Sonny Liston has shown himself to be the only true contender. One look at these fighters' records, and this becomes clear.

While he has been champion, Floyd Patterson has fought an ancient light-heavyweight champion, Archie Moore, an Olympic champion with no professional experience, Pete Rademacher, and a fighter who couldn't even beat his own sparring partner, Tom McNeely.

Let's look at Liston's record. while it is true that Liston has fought numerous unknowns on his way up, as Patterson has, he dropped this habit four years ago, a practice Patterson continues. In the past four years Liston has fought every major contender for Patterson's title and defeated them all. First, the number two contender at this moment is Eddie Machen. While Liston did not knock Machen out, the fight resembled a track meet, with Liston chasing this veteran fighter all around the ring. Of course Liston won a unanimous decision. Cleveland Williams, the number three contender and a powerful puncher nearly equal Liston's size, did very well in his first fight against him. He lasted nearly two rounds. Although Williams was always pressing for a championship fight with Patterson, he had to fight Liston again. This time he lasted almost a full round.

Although Patterson has not fought either of these, there is one fighter that both Liston and Patterson have met, Roy Harris. In his fight with Patterson he succeeded in knocking down the champion in an early round, although losing in the twelfth round. It was a different story with Liston, however. Harris did not last a round.

With these facts in mind, let's look at the fighters themselves. Patterson is noted for his great speed, both with his hands and on his feet. He has an excellent left hook and a fair right. However, he is handicapped by a weak chin. Ingemar Johannesson has a strong right, but no left; yet he succeeded in knocking Patterson down seven times in the first fight, winning it, and two times in the third fight, barely losing.

Liston? While fighting the top contenders, he has never been knocked out, nor even touched canvas. Although not as fast as Patterson, Liston is much stronger, and has an excellent right, along with a punishing left. While Johannesson used his left as a prop, Liston uses his as a formidable weapon. This is the big difference.

Tomorrow night Patterson will be up against a two-fisted fighter, not a one punch man. This is why I predict Sonny Liston to defeat Floyd Patterson within seven rounds.

PATTERSON IN SEVEN

by EUGENE BURGIN '66

For nearly a year boxing fans have been anxiously awaiting the night when Floyd Patterson would step into the ring to defend his World Heavyweight title against Sonny Liston. Tomorrow, Tuesday night September 25, these two men will finally clash in Chicago's Comiskey Park.

Sonny Liston's personality and past life have been his major drawbacks, first in securing the title match and now as a psychological factor in determining the outcome. At the age of thirteen he began basic schooling—at the age of seventeen he had finished, replacing education with a barrage of nineteen counts of petty larceny. Many of Sonny's difficulties were due in a large part to the fact that he was one of twenty-four children and had been neglected as a child. It was not until Sonny ridded himself of Frankie Carbo and Blinkie Palermo, two underworld czars, that he was allowed to fight for the title.

It is an undeniable fact that Liston presents a great deal of fighting potential. He is massively powerful but concurrently slow afoot. At 6'2" he weighs approximately 212 pounds. His reach is 84" as contrasted to Patterson's "mere" 71¾". He also possesses an "over-publicized" fist of 14" (Patterson's is 12¾"). Liston's power can be attested to by his 23 KO's in 34 professional bouts. A "rocking" left and a "clubbing" right have been his most lethal weapons. This sheer power and strength are offset somewhat by his lack of speed which may in the end lead to his downfall.

Since winning the Heavyweight crown in 1956, Floyd Patterson has fought a number of so-called unworthy opponents. Floyd, a very proud man, is grateful that there is a "killer" like Sonny Liston available to him, for this is the first time that the public agrees that he is meeting an accredited opponent. He knows that this fight will give him the opportunity to disprove those who refer to him as a "Cheese Champion."

Patterson is a true boxer in every sense of the word. He sets up his knock-outs with a planned attack, consisting of combinations of left jabs and right crosses, ending with the now famous "left hook."

In short, I feel that Patterson will press the match, making Liston fight exactly the way he wants him to fight. Sonny will become overeager and, swinging at an ever-moving target, will miss continually. Thus, I predict that within seven rounds Floyd will unleash his lightning-fast left hook, destroying at last the legend of the "indestructible" Charles "Sonny" Liston and building for himself a greater legend as a true Heavyweight Champion of the World.

Commonwealth Professor Of Government Scrutinizes Ohio Politics In Harper's

Voters in the pivotal state of Ohio are closely scrutinized by a UMass political scientist in a major article scheduled to appear in the October issue of Harper's Magazine.

Written by Dr. John H. Fenton, an Ohio native who is Commonwealth Professor of Government at the University, the article discusses the unpredictable way in which Ohioans vote in major elections.

Before forecasting what might happen in the coming senatorial and gubernatorial races in Ohio, Dr. Fenton marks out the chief factors influencing Ohioans as they exercise their franchise.

According to Fenton, "the most puzzling aspect of the way Ohioans vote is their penchant for electing and re-electing candidates whose political actions in office do not serve the narrow economic self-interest of a majority of the electorate."

Calling the latter "the belly vote law" of politics, Dr. Fenton points to a number of Ohio elections when, from normal expectations, liberal candidates should have won if the law held true. But even experts were often surprised by the election of conservatives such as Robert Taft, John Bricker, and Frank Lausche.

After analyzing many factors affecting the Ohio political situation, Dr. Fenton makes a prediction as to the outcome of the fall election in that state.

The Massachusets professor, a native of Canton, Ohio, and a former Littauer Fellow at Harvard University, taught at Tulane University and Michigan State University before joining the University faculty in 1959.

Author of two books, Politics in the Border States (1957) and The Catholic Vote (1960), Dr. Fenton has written many articles for national journals. He was promoted to Commonwealth Professor of Government at the University in 1961.

Bernard Lurie To Conduct UMass String Orchestra

UMass offers instruction in string instruments for the first time this semester.

The University's music department has announced the appointment of Bernard Lurie to the faculty to instruct courses in College violin, string playing methods and instrumental ensemble.

At present, Lurie is also a staff member of the University of Hartford as Assistant Director of the String Department at Hartt College of Music. Other positions presently held by him are Concert Master of the Connecticut Opera Association and Assistant Concert Master of the Hartford Symphony.

He has performed extensively in the New England area. Locally, he is former Concert Master of the Amherst Community Opera Series. He has also performed in New York City including an appearance at Carnegie Recital Hall and Philadelphia.

Mr. Lurie has played under such noted conductors as Leonard Bernstein, Charles Munch, Arthur Fiedler, Fritz Mohler and Moshe Paranov.

As a special service in connection with Music 21 and 22, he will conduct a string orchestra. Membership in the orchestra will include music majors and minors plus any others who are interested. All those who are interested in joining the orchestra including members of the student body, faculty and community are invited to attend rehearsal on Thursday, September 27 in Room B of Old Chapel at 7:30 p.m. It will be the second meeting of the semester and rehearsals will be under way immediately.

Credit is received for membership in the ensemble and the Department of Music will provide two first chair players.

UMass Operetta Guild First Student Musical Co. In N.E.

The UMass Operetta Guild is an organization unique among New England colleges and universities, Guild officials have stated.

The Guild was the first organization of its kind in New England to perform modern musical comedy.

A self-supporting organization, its purpose is the promotion of student and faculty interest in operas, operettas, musical comedies and musical plays. It also provides actual working experience in the problems of writing, staging and enacting such productions for a live audience.

It is administered by a business manager, who acts as chairman of the executive board, a personnel coordinator, a public relations director, and a student technical director.

The box score of former Guild productions is marked by an "all hit no miss" record. Its past shows include "Red Mill" (its first musical), "Brigadoon," "South Pacific," "Carousel," "Finian's Rainbow," "Damn Yankees," "Bells Are Ringing," and "Oklahoma." This fall's offering is Frank Loesser's "Guys and Dolls."

According to a Guild spokesman, plans for future shows are already underway to assure interested campus and local persons a well-rounded and continuous program by the Operetta Guild.

The foundation for present Guild productions was a Savoyard Cycle from 1938 to 1943. Six Gilbert and Sullivan shows have been produced at the University by Doric Alviani, present Guild advisor-director.

This fall, the Operetta Guild welcomes to its professional ranks Wayne Lamb, professional choreographer. Mr. Lamb's choreographic and staging credits are outstanding, say Guild spokesmen, and the Guild is proud to include him on the staff.

The appointment of Prof. Frederick Mirliani as musical director for "Guys and Dolls" has also been announced by the Guild.

week will supply necessary tools and equipment to insure the maintainance of the farm-school's current position until it can become entirely self-supporting.

"The successful completion of UN Week will insure the continuance of this self-help project and contribute to the social and economic, as well as the agricultural, development of the entire area," stated the committee.

Specifically, $5,000 is needed for farm machines and equipment.

Chairman of the Executive Committee is A. Parker Cleveland.

Goodell Library's Reserve section is now open until midnight.

Library Will Increase Hours On Trial Basis

by Neal Andelman

In approximately two weeks, Goodell Library will offer increased services to the University community.

Sunday through Thursday, the reserve desk will be open until 12 midnight—the regular closing hour, at present, for the library study areas. This will represent an additional two hours a night that the reserve desk may be used.

Saturdays the library will maintain full services until 4:30 p.m., and study areas will remain open until 10 p.m. Saturday evening.

Friday hours will remain unchanged, with full service being offered until 10 p.m.

These new hours will be on a trial basis for the remainder of the first semester. Head Librarian Hugh Montgomery said that library officials are striving to have the library more fully accommodate members of the University community who wish to use it.

If the experiment is successful, the new hours will become a permanent addition to the library schedule. If the experiment is not a success the new open hours will be dropped.

The change closely fellows last year's increase of library hours from 10 p.m. to midnight for study hall purposes.

This brings the total number of hours open for Goodell Library to 98.5 a week, with 88.5 hours of full service being offered each week.

The new hours will bring the total number of hours open to 104 per week..

(Ed. Note: The Collegian has printed a form for an opinion poll (page 2) on the new hours, and asks its readers to fill out this questionnaire and return it to the Collegian mailbox on the Student Union lobby counter.

The poll also includes a question on Sunday hours, which will remain unchanged for the present. Future changes in libe hours will depend a great deal on response to this poll, and the Collegian urges its readers to participate in this survey.)

Zeta Nu Will Hold Open House

Zeta Nu Fraternity has announced that a general invitation is extended to the campus to attend an Open House on Sunday, September 30, from 2 to 4 p.m. No freshman men are allowed.

The 49 Zeta Nu brothers, 37 of whom are living at the former Mount Pleasant Inn at 336 North Pleasant St., have described their new home as "fantastic quarters." Facilities and furniture were purchased with the house. Furniture was also bought from the old TEP house.

Complete kitchen and dining room facilities, a parlor, a recreation room, a private office, and twenty bedrooms are some of the main features of the house, one of the largest fraternities on campus.

Senate Nomination Papers Due

Nomination papers for the coming Senate elections are now available in the RSO office in the SU. These papers are for students seeking election as dormitory, sorority, fraternity, and commuter senators.

All those who have not yet picked up their papers are urged to do so immediately, as they must be returned by tomorrow at five p.m.

The election for these offices will be held Monday, October 1.

The Senate is also announcing openings on various Senate committees. All students interested in becoming non-Senate members should sign up as soon as possible.

IFC Speakers Will Discuss Aspects Of Fraternity Life

Interfraternity Council Rushing Chairman James Bradley of Theta Chi has announced that first semester fraternity rushing will be held this year and will begin November 3 and 4 with Round Robins.

An IFC rushing convocation, open to all men of the Class of '66, will be held in the S.U. Ballroom at 7 p.m. Tuesday, October 2. Purpose of the convocation will be to give freshmen the opportunity to meet with fraternity men and discuss fraternity life with them.

A film, "The Fraternity Idea", will be shown at the convocation and refreshments will be served.

Guest speakers at the convocation will talk on the various aspects of fraternity life. Speakers will be Dean of Students William Field, Dean of Men Robert S. Hopkins and George Rogers of the Fraternity Manager's Association.

An IFC spokesman said that first semester rushing is being held this year so that freshmen may become an integral part of House activity before Spring social activities.

Having the new brothers settled by the end of first semester, he said, facilitates payment of House bills for the year.

Also, he pointed out, the new brothers will be more apt to concentrate on academics second semester if they are already integrated into House life.

"It is believed that both the freshmen and the fraternities will benefit from the new system," said IFC President Stephen Israel.

He said that IFC expects a high percentage of freshmen to rush this year, and schedules for smokers and other events are being prepared by Bradley and his committee.

Specific fraternities will be assigned open smoker dates for the week of November 5 through 9.

Rushing will end on November 19 at 7 p.m. According to IFC 1962 rushing rules, fraternity men may not discuss fraternities with freshmen and no freshmen shall be allowed in Houses from that time until after Pledge Chapel.

No rushing will be allowed before November 3 and after November 19. Freshmen are not allowed to sleep in the House prior to or during rushing.

Fraternity men will not be allowed in the rooms of freshmen prior to rushing, and fraternity men not living in a dormitory are not permitted in any dormitory housing men of the Class of '66 before formal rushing.

In order to be pledged by a fraternity, a freshman must have achieved a 1.7 average (as determined by the Registrar's Office) for mid-semester An upperclassman must have achieved a 1.7 for the previous semester or for mid-semester—whichever was the first received.

Special African Trip Cancels Bowles Talk

by DICK HAYNES '64

Chester Bowles, special advisor to the President, Tuesday canceled his scheduled address at UMass on October 26.

The State Department today announced that Bowles would make a special trip to Nigeria and several other African nations for the State Department and the White House.

He will leave the second week of October for the three week trip. Purpose of the trip was not announced.

Sponsored By Alpha Phi Omega

Bowles was to speak under the sponsorship of Alpha Phi Omega as part of the United Nations Week observance here.

George P. Jones, Alpha Phi Omega Speaker Committee Chairman, expressed disappointment at the cancellation. He said, "The State Department is trying to find a replacement for Bowles."

Keynote Address To Be October 24

Jones also announced that arrangements are being made to secure Louis Ignasio Pinto, Dahomey Representative to the United Nations, for the keynote address on October 24, United Nations Day.

One of the purposes of United Nations Week here is to raise funds for the Pilot Farm and Agricultural School in Dahomey, a UNESCO Gift Project.

Horticulture Show To Note Centennial Year

This year's Student Horticultural Show at UMass will mark two significant milestones with its presentation on November 2-3-4.

It will be the fiftieth annual show conducted by students of horticulture and related fields in the College of Agriculture. And, the University is celebrating its 100th anniversary starting this year.

Reflecting the Centennial Observance, the show's theme will be built around "100 Years of Horticulture." Three major sections will be used to carry out this theme.

One section will depict the early days of Massachusetts Agricultural College when horticulture was rife with superstitution and plant explorations were bringing in new plant material. Another section will reflect the days of Massachusetts State College and the growth of horticulture through research and plant breeding.

The third section will represent the University as it is today with the scientific research now being conducted by a greatly expanded horticulture.

In addition to the selection of the show's theme, faculty chairmen have been selected as a prior step to the naming of student committees and workers. A fourth section of the show has been reserved for display and competition by Holyoke-Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club members.

Arts Council Turns Down Redmen Band

Last April third, the Fine Arts Council voted to recommend to the Student Senate that the Redman Marching Band take no trips except for those supported by funds other than student tax money.

A major portion of the increase of approximately $6000.00 in the proposed Band budget is due to these planned trips.

Religion Seminars To Be Held

Three seminars, aimed at deepening the Protestant students' understanding of the beliefs and issues of the Christian faith, will begin next week.

Two seminars listed are six weeks long. They include:

Religious Insights in Modern Art, beginning Oct. 3 at 3:30 p.m. in Memorial Hall. Selected works of contemporary dramatists, poets, and artists will be discussed with special consideration of the religious issues raised by each. The Rev. Jere Berger will lead the seminar.

Introduction to Christian Thought will introduce students to some of the crucial themes of Christian doctrine. The doctrines of God and revelation will be discussed as the point of departure for Christian thinking. The instructor will be the Rev. Richard Koenig.

A two seminar, Inquiry, will involve four hours a week from the student. It will consist of a lecture, a seminar period, a one page reading report, and one hour of outside reading. The first semester considers the issues of existence, freedom, authority, finitude, sin, evil, faith and reason. The second semester considers the particular Christian response to these basic issues of our lives. Readings include selections from Camus, Eliot, Salinger, and Updike.

Inquiry is open only to upper

"A great institution in Mississippi has been dealt a staggering blow."* —State Atty. General Joe Patterson on the admission of negro student James H. Meredith to the University of Mississippi.

Pains, Peaks, And Polls

The University of Massachusetts is not a business; it is an educational institution operating twenty-four hours a day and seven days a week. The new library hours (see page 1) represent a realistic decision by library officials to help maintain this seven-days-a-week schedule.

The new hours, however, are only an experiment. The library is going to great pains and expense to provide the additional service and they want to know if it is worthwhile. It will take them a semester before the answer is known. If members of the University family do not take advantage of the additional services, then certainly there can be no legitimate complaints if the services are withdrawn.

Opening the library doors and providing for more services is only part of the key to a great library. The rest is up to us.

If the periodical room has to be guarded to insure that no bound periodicals are stolen, then another library staff member has to be taken away from a legitimate library job. If librarians have to "proctor" the study areas, then they too are drawn away from more useful tasks. We can offer no solution to these problems. The answer lies with each library user.

We have noticed that the library has certain peak hours and certain slack hours. According to library statistics, from seven until nine in the evening are the busiest hours. Mornings, and after nine in the evening the number of library users is considerably lower. The reference desk reaches a low point between five and six, and is at a peak between seven and eight. We point these hours out so that library users may take advantage of the slack times and thus even out some of the peaks.

The opinion poll in today's Collegian will serve as a valuable guide in determining future library policy. Perhaps no one wants the additional hours or service, but we doubt this. We can only know for certain if you return the opinion poll to the Collegian mail box on the Student Union Lobby counter.

POTENTIAL DISASTER?

There exists the frightening possibility that if tomorrow the Russians were to agree to comply with our latest disarmament proposal, the congress of the United States of America would fail to ratify the attending treaty, i.e., fail to carry out our end of the bargain. Just as President Wilson's League of Nations was murdered, so too might the present dream of world peace be aborted.

Primarily, two things bespeak this potential. First, and of less importance, there is the tremendous political strength of all those industries either directly or indirectly supported by the Defense effort. And second there remains the overwhelming distrust of the Russians which is felt by the majority of American people. That this feeling is grounded historically can not be denied, as shown by the long line of Russian deceits culminating in the shirking of their Berlin responsibility. They have continually disregarded international agreements; but what this fear of trusting the Russians might mean in the near future is almost too horrible to contemplate. —M.C.

Letters to the Editor

To the Student Body:

The Literary Magazine, the student literary publication here at the University is launching its annual appeal for material. You Shakespeares, Miltons, and Kerouacs hiding in collegiate guise, sharpen your pencils and replace the ribbons on your typewriters; we need your help. We are looking for work of high literary quality and merit: stories, poems, book reviews, critical essays, and articles of social and political significance. Contributions should be placed in the Literary Magazine's box in the Recognized Student Organization's office on the second floor of the Student Union; all manuscripts submitted should be unsigned and enclosed in a sealed envelope with the author's name and campus address on the outside. The author's anonymity will be maintained during the judging to insure impartiality in the selection of material to be published.

The Literary Magazine's primary aims are to stimulate creative thought and its appreciation among the student body and to provide an outlet for artistic expression worthy of being published. The magazine is currently undergoing revamping in an attempt to not only broaden its scope and raise the quality of its content, but to render it ultimately more stimulating and enjoyable to you, the student body. With a new and enthusiastic staff we are looking forward to an exceptionally successful year for the magazine.

However, our success, like that of any student organization on campus, will depend to a frightening degree on you, the students. We need your support. It is not necessary for you to write great prose or poetry to help us, although that is certainly one of the ways. We ask you merely to read the Literary Magazine and to let us know what you think of it. If you enjoy it, we want to know; and we also want to know when you don't like it. Any constructive criticism and all intelligent suggestions are welcome and appreciated. Be it as contributor, reader, or critic, your support is needed and anticipated as the expression of your confidence in us.

Very sincerely,
Richard Towers
Editor, Literary Magazine

VERY DIFFICULT INDEED

To the Editor:

Anyone on campus who would want to read a Parisian French newspaper in Goodell Library wouldn't be able to do so: The German and Russian Department has seen fit to have subscriptions to two German and two Russian newspapers in the Library, but not one Romance language paper is to be found.

I am not asking the University to spend money to subscribe to a French newspaper for myself alone. If you read the syllabus for French 27, you will find that there are to be four themes on subjects taken from a newspaper or magazine. This task is more difficult if the sources of information are lacking.

Now that this deficiency has been pointed out, I hope that both the Department of Romance languages and Goodell Library will act immediately to remedy the situation.

BLINDMAN'S REBUFF

Dear Sweet Betsy Robicheau,

Concerning your letter in the last Collegian: I'm sure if the gracious senator would supply the members of the band with cups, they would sit out in front of the Student Union and sell pencils.

Or perhaps the University would be willing to sponsor a testimonial dinner, charging $100.00 a plate, to send the band to away games. ("Come on folks, every hot dog you eat sends another band member to Villanova.")

Maybe the University would have Mr. Contino sell his baton and lead the band with a drinking straw.

Seriously though, it seems almost outrageous that the University can't find the funds to send the Redmen Band to at least two or three away games. When they are away, the team needs the band more than ever.

You asked: "What is the band doing?" Well, Miss Robicheau, the band members spend at least one hour every day of the week rehearsing for the Friday night rally and the performance at the football game on Saturday. What more would you have them do?

An irate U.Mass. citizen,
Paul Kaplan '65

The Collegian has received several letters similar to reader Kaplan's. The Fine Arts Council has again denied the band travel funds (see page 1), and as of the moment it appears that the band will not attend any away games this year. —Ed.

REVIEW REVIEWED

by JUDY DICKSTEIN

The time has come when it has become obvious that The Massachusetts Review has outlived the need to be reviewed. Let me explain: basically, the purpose of writing or reading a review of a given piece of writing is to determine whether it is "good" or "bad." The publication in question, however, has thwarted the reviewer by proving itself consistently excellent. Consequently, it now merely remains to point up the high spots of the current issue and give a cursory glance at the contents. Beyond that, the magazine can rest on its laurels.

On the cover appears a piece of sculpture—Beethoven: Death Mask, by Josef Danhauser. This is related to the first and feature article of this issue, an inquiry into "The Riddle of Beethoven's 'Eroica'," by David Holden, composer, music critic, and teacher at Mount Holyoke College. Mr. Holden's thesis is sound, and the article is well-written, illustrated with selections from the work, for those who can read music.

Next in the realm of non-fiction appears a long article on good and evil in Faulkner's characters, by Cleanth Brooks, Grey Professor of Rhetoric at Yale; Brooks writes with clarity and conviction.

In addition to a three-man symposium on the topic of Fiction Today, there remain two other essays which I should like to mention here. The first of these is an outstanding piece of writing by Benjamin DeMott, essayist, novelist, and Professor of English at Amherst College. His title is "Cultivated Politics," which could do with a bit of explanation. This article, which was originally a talk given to the members of Phi Beta Kappa at the University of Massachusetts in May of 1962, is based upon four assumptions. First—in the author's words—"that in many quarters the words cultivated and cultured are now dirty words. Second, that people who belong to Phi Beta Kappa are likely to be spoken of, ... as cultivated people. Third, that for this reason, members of Phi Beta Kappa might be interested in one teacher's attempt to probe the layers of muck encrusting the label that sooner or later will be attached to them. And finally ... that a successful effort to clean up these dirty words ... conceivably could do much to improve the prospects for a revitalization of American political concern."

The remaining work is a detailed study of Henry James's novel The Sacred Fount, by Sidney Finkelstein.

Let us now take a look at the fiction in this issue, the poetry and the short stories.

John Holmes, poet, teacher, and critic, died in Medford, Massachusetts on June 22, 1962, at the age of 58. In a letter to the editors on April 16, commenting upon his poem "My Father's Silence," printed in this issue of MR, he wrote: "This long poem I'm showing you is pretty straight autobiographical, and in fact Berkshire regional. My father did have these black moods in his later life, and I thought I'd escaped them but as I get nearer the age he was, I realize one does not. But there is the difference, just enough, so that I think maybe by plunging into the black mood and coming back and telling the truth, I have found out something." I believe he has.

In addition, there appears some excellent poetry by the following: Neil Myers, Paul Ramsey, Paul Petrie, S. C. Leland, Philip Murray, Milton Speiser, and Robert Burlingame.

Two beautiful and sensitive stories appear in the Summer 1962 MR. The first of these—and the one I prefer—is by Frieda Arkin, and entitled "A Ride In." "In" refers to into the city, where we see Mr. Lesko driving Nina to her music lesson in a downpour as the story opens. They stop at a tavern, where they learn that the bridge up ahead is washed out and that Nina will have to miss her music lesson, which she has been eagerly anticipating all week. The author writes with tenderness and understanding, contrasted with grim realism, producing a story which is a joy to read.

The second story is by Clara Winston, novelist and translator. In "A Lovely Day" she demonstrates her understanding of children and their emotions; Constance is going for a walk with her mother, who is wheeling her little brother Raymie. Rosalie, her little sister, has come along too, grasping one handle of the stroller and trotting along. We may not think so at first, but by the end of the story we realize that for Constance it was indeed "a lovely day."

Finally we come to this issue's feature art section, a collection of sculpture and drawings from classical mythology with three excerpts from The Testament of Daedalus, all by Michael Ayrton, British artist and writer. This section must be seen, for it speaks for itself.

Again the editors have done an impressive job of consolidating material into a magazine; we look forward to the fall issue for a repeat performance, par excellence.

Powerful Harriers Meet Coast Guard On Saturday

by JIM RYAN '66

The University of Massachusetts varsity cross-country team will open the 1962 season this Saturday afternoon at two o'clock in a dual meet with the Coast Guard Academy on the University course. This meet should be the beginning of another winning season for coach William Footrick's Yankee Conference and New England Intercollegiate Athletic Association champions. Coach Footrick has virtually the same team which, in addition to winning the above mentioned titles, compiled an 8-2 record last season. For those of you who are not going to Hanover for the Dartmouth game, this is your chance to see the boys in action in the first of four home meets this fall.

Led by fabulous Bob "Digger" Brouillet, UMass will have returning men who took seven out of the first ten places in last year's meet. These veterans include co-captains Dick Blomstrom and Dave Balch, Ken O'Brien, Jim Wrynn, Bob Avery, Tom Leavitt, and Gene Colburn. Bob Pendleton, a transfer student who was ineligible last year, is expected to be a great help to this year's team. Coach Footrick will also have the services of last year's freshman team which defeated the Coast Guard freshmen by a perfect score of 15-50, low score winning, and here indicating that the freshmen took the first five places in the meet. Moving up to the varsity are Tom Panke and Bill Young, both outstanding last year, and Tom Ramsay, Armand Millette, and John Lavoie.

BOB "Digger" BROUILLET

Coast Guard has nine returning veterans from last year's team which was defeated by UMass 20-40. Expected to be the top performers for the Coast Guard are Dennis Brody, James McDermott, and Ronald Wetzel, who finished third, fifth, and ninth respectively in last year's meet at the academy.

Those of you who are at the Women's Physical Education Building for the start of the race on Saturday afternoon will see a team that is probably the strongest that Coach Footrick has yet developed, a team that is among the most powerful, if not the most powerful, in New England.

TKE-AEPi Highlight IFC Opening Night

The Intrafraternity football season went into full swing Monday night with a full schedule of four games.

In the first of the two 7:00 clashes Theta Chi took an early lead over TEP as TC's Howie Harris caught two touchdown passes before the first half had ended. However, the temporarily homeless TEP boys bounced back in the second half with TD's by Kaplan and Weiner with the extra points being made by Gordon and Kaplan. With the score TEP 14 and TC 12, Howie Harris caught his third touchdown pass of the evening and the extra point wound up the game scoring with Theta Chi the victor over TEP by a score of 19-14.

In the second 7:00 contest SAE rolled over ATG by a score of 34-0, with Fallon, Prior, Perretti, Elson, Kazukonis and Depaulo accounting for all the scoring.

Phi Sigma Kappa blanked Phi Sigma Delta and TKE did likewise to AEPi in the two 8:00 meetings. However, the latter game was far more exciting as TKE and AEPi held each other scoreless until the last five seconds of the game when TKE's Pete Bernard made a tremendous endzone catch to wrap the ballgame up for the men from North Pleasant Street.

In the first game PSK walked over PSD with Wojnar and Mitchell doing all the scoring for the Kappamen.

All IFC games are played under the lights on Alumni Field on Monday through Thursday nights.

Intramural competition begins this coming Monday, October 1.

by HERB COWLES '65

The offense has come a long way in the thirty-odd years of big-time professional football. In a sense pro football begins with the forward pass for it was in this weapon, originated in college, that the pros saw their chance to succeed. The forward pass opened up football and made the game more exciting to watch. However the running attack continued to feature the same dull direct snap to the tailback (fullback) and a confused and hard-to-follow plunge into the line.

It was not until the 1940's and the advent of the split T that the ball was handled out in the open in plain sight to all spectators in spite of increasing the faking maneuvers in the backfield. The split T made famous by Sid Luckman and the Chicago Bears quickly caught on and soon everyone was using it. From the most formidable weapon in football, the afore-mentioned forward pass, quickly developed into an art which has no peer in contact sports. It is an art made famous by Sammy Baugh of the Washington Redskins who as a rookie just starting his first pro practice, was told by his somewhat doubtful coach to "hit that receiver right in the eye." To which came Baugh's legendary answer "Which eye, Coach?"

After Baugh came the 50's and a whole flood of great passers including Otto Graham, Bobby Layne, Norm Van Brocklin, who was the greatest passer ever (note passer, not quarterback). In the pure art of throwing a ball either hard and short or long and soft, "the Dutchman" has never been equaled.

Finally we come to John Unitas and the Baltimore Colts of '58 and '59. This was the golden era of pro passing. Unitas who was blessed with a fabulous set of receivers threw almost constantly pulling out victory after victory with the forward pass. Since then, however, the pass has dropped off a slight bit due mostly to the awe-inspiring success of Green Bay's running attack.

After all this necessary buildup we finally come to the subject of this article, i.e. the anatomy of the modern Pro offense, 1962 style. The two most striking differences in today's offensive football and the pre-war era are first the formations, which although basically featuring the same split T are complicated by the planked halfback and the split end or even Pop Ivy's fantastic creation, the triple wing T and second the size of the player who executes the strategy of the high command.

Each position in modern pro football offense is a highly specialized and skilled job. First and most important despite what anybody thinks is the line. In a typical modern offense the center averages 235 and must be extremely quick for he has to make the most difficult block in the game, that of taking out the defensive middle linebacker who may stand as much as 3 yards away. The center may also assist either of the guards in a double team block on the defensive tackle when it is imperative that he be removed from the play. The best at this position today is the 230 pound Jim Ringo of Green Bay to which anyone who saw the tremendous job he did on Giant middle linebacker Sam Huff in the '61 playoff game can attest.

Next come the guards who average 250 and are as swift as lightning. This may seem impossible, but one had only to witness the fleet Bobby Mitchell, former Cleveland halfback turning the corner and outdistancing everyone but the 250 pound Jim Ray Smith who leds the blocking to believe in such speed for these 250 pound battering rams. Fred Thurston and Jerry Kramer of Green Bay also excel at the demanding maneuver of pulling out from the line and leading fleet halfbacks downfield.

At the tackle spots the physical character of football becomes rather obvious, these men average 265 and are mainly used for straight ahead primary blocking and pass protection, Jim Parker, 270 pounder of the Baltimore Colts is one of the main reasons for Unitas' passing success and Roosevelt Brown, 260 lb., of the Giants paves the way for the Giant running attack.

At end there are two types which differ from one another as much as the quality of competition in the N.F.L. and A.F.L. One type of end is 6'4", 235 pounds and still growing, this type of end is called a tight end and plays about 3 yards away from the tackle and blocks linebackers, he hopes, and catches an occasional "surprise" pass. This position is currently undergoing an even further change with the coming of Ditka of the Bears. Big Mike (6'4" and 230 pound catches more than an occasional pass as does Ron Kramer of

by LAURA GOLDMAN '63

Teaching French courses, taking English courses and acting as counselor to the French Corridor in the Abbey is Miss Francine Abadie, a graduate of the Sorbonne University in Paris.

According to the blonde young woman from France, the educational system of the United States is markedly different from that of her own country.

As a typical freshman at the Sorbonne, Miss Abadie followed a year of French language courses and only two other subjects.

Once she had made her choice to follow the field of letters (language, history), she was not allowed to change to another course of study.

In France, she mentioned, all books are pored over with a fine-toothed comb; she was surprised at the number of books UMass students read for a single course.

Miss Francine Abadie, an exchange student from France, has added a continental spirit to the Abbey French Corridor, where she resides on the UMass campus. She is pictured here with Mrs. de Kerpely, Head of Residence of the Abbey.

200 Students Per Lecture

Lectures at the Sorbonne average 200 students per room—food for thought for those complaining of the factory-like classes here.

Quizzes in French schools are unknown, Miss Abadie continued. The grade for an entire year's study depends solely on the intensive exams given in June.

Long papers may be written for a course, but they aren't corrected or read.

Miss Abadie explained that the French college system is so much more difficult than the American because the "high schools" are more specialized. Children at age eleven are tested intensively to determine whether or not they will be allowed to continue in secondary school.

Thursday Deadline For Dartmouth Tickets; UMass Cavalcade Planned

Tomorrow afternoon at 5:00 P.M.—that's the deadline for the purchase of tickets to the Dartmouth football game in Hanover this Saturday afternon. The Thursday deadline has been instituted due to the fact that Dartmouth has asked that all unsold tickets be returned to them on Friday morning. Therefore, it is imperative that all students who are making the trip north but their tickets Wednesday and Thursday.

In order to make ticket buying easier for students (eliminating the long and tiresome trek over to the Cage and back again to the Hatch) the Athletic Department will sell tickets in the Student Union lobby all day from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Thursday.

In the little over a week that the tickets have been on sale over 500 have been sold, in and outpouring of student spirit that has extended to all parts of the campus.

However, 550 tickets is not enough, at least a thousand must be sold to live up to Dartmouth's expectations of the UMass student body. The Dartmouth Athletic Department has heard much about us from their counterparts at Harvard and Holy Cross. Mr. Robert O'Connell of the UMass Athletic Department has high hopes of selling at least another 450 to bring the total to 1,000 Redmen fans that will be in Hanover to root for their team. Mr. O'Connell bases his optimism on the amount of enthusiasm shown by both Independents and Greeks during this last week. Kappa Sigma fraternity is still in the lead followed closely by a number of others in the standings of fraternities and sororities based on the number of tickets purchased. The winning fraternity will receive two free tickets to the game.

Plans have been made for a UMass cavalcade up to Dartmouth leaving the University campus at 9:00. All those who are driving cars to the game are urged to join the parade as further proof of the Redmen fighting spirit. Cars will form up in the South parking lot (in front of the Curry Hicks Building) between 8:30 and 8:45. The caravan will be headed by the WMUA broadcasting staff, followed by the cheerleaders. Hopes are high that this cavalcade will surpass the one that traveled to Boston two years ago for the Harvard game.

It had been originally planned that buses would also make the trip to Hanover but due to lack of student interest in this plan the buses have been cancelled. All those who have already purchased bus tickets may pick up their money in the Alumni offices.

Remember! Buy your tickets in the Union on Thursday and then join the rest of the Redmen rooters Saturday morning in the South parking lot at 8:30 as they form the cavalcade that will roll up to Hanover.

Speaking Of Sports

by BARRY BROOKS '63

The last time the Redmen faced an Ivy League opponent they moved across the banks of the Charles and burned a march through Harvard Sq. into the Crimson endzones, looking all the while like Sherman's march to the sea. That was 1960 and the Studleymen embarrassed Charlie Ravenel and the Johnnies, 27-12.

This Saturday the Redmen will meet another Ivy opponent, the Dartmouth Indians, an opponent they haven't seen on the schedule since the 1919 season, and have never beaten in 16 tries. Since the game of football has changed considerably since 1919, the Redmen will travel to the reservation in Hanover, N.H. hoping to bring home a few scalps.

The Ivy League is always the most unpredictable circuit in the country, this year being no exception. But those whose business it is to predict, rate Dartmouth at least a co-favorite in the race for the Ivy Crown.

Last year the Big Green finished third in the league with a 5-2 record.

Only two of eight tackles are returning from last year's squad, while three tackles from the frosh squad have also been lost.

The Indians have 14 lettermen returning, as compared to the "nucleus of 12 returning lettermen" for the Redmen.

The guard slot is hurting too. Only one of the five lettermen is returning, while the first three freshman guards have also gone their separate ways.

Coach Bob Blackman hopes to compensate for his personnel losses by employing a three-unit system similar to that used by Paul Dietzel at Army—a two way team, a defensive unit, and an offensive unit.

If the picture looks bleak thus far—wait, there is a brighter side to the Big Green. First of all, there's All-Ivy quarterback Billy King who led the league in offense last year with 727 yards by virtue of his passing and running. Sam Lussier, last year's leading ground gainer for the Redmen, registered 609 yards on the ground alone. Halfbacks Tom Spangenberg, Chris Vancura, and Dave Lawson give the Indians probably the second best backfield in the league.

Up front, from tackle to tackle, the Big Green tip the scales at an average of 214 pounds; the Redmen line weighs in at 206 pounds. Don McKinnon, a 6-3, 215 pound center, is considered by some as the best lineman in the "Ivies."

An all important factor in the Redmen's favor lies in the fact that UMass' Line Coach Ted Schmidt scouted Dartmouth annually during his eleven year tenure as Harvard line coach.

Still Kicking

The kick-off Saturday is at 2:00 p.m. The game will be broadcast "live" by WMUA beginning at 1:55 . . . Over 300 tickets have already been sold for Saturday's game. Regular admission and half-price student tickets will be sold until 5:00 p.m. tomorrow in room 10-A of the phys. ed. building. . . The next home game is October 13, Homecoming Weekend, against the UConn Huskies.

Off Tackle . . .

Green Bay and Dale Cogdill of the Detroit Lions. At the other end we have a tall, slim specimen who plays as much as 15 yards off the tackle. Del Shofner 6'3" and 185 pound of the Giants is the best at this position. The split end is the prime passing target in pro football sometimes catching as many as 70 passes in a season.

In the backfield the key man is the quarterback. He is the brains of the offense and generally calls all the plays as well as doing almost all the passing. He must be quick and mentally alert in his endless duel with the defense. Unitas, Y. A. Tittle, and Sonny Jurgensen are among today's best. At halfback we again run into two different specialists. There is the flanker who lines up either 15 yards away from the fullback in the "slot" between the split end and the tackle. The main requirement of the flanker is that he be very fast. The other halfback is called the running halfback and his main duty is obviously to run, it is an added advantage if he can throw an occasional pass. Lenny Moore of the Colts and Tommy McDonald of the Eagles are the best at flanker back.

MEANDERING MIKE

For those of you who are new to this campus, and I understand there are many, I'd like to introduce myself. I am WMUA's answer to the roving reporter—a meandering microphone.

WMUA, the student radio voice, is located in the Engineering building and can be heard at 91.1 megacycles on your F.M. band. WMUA is an educational radio station and can be received only on radios specifically designed for F.M. Much of the program content includes material directly relevant to courses taught at the University.

Just a brief run down on my boss men: Niel Nevins, Station Manager; Jim O'Hern, Program Director; Dave Mainwaring, Business Manager; and Vern Pero, Publicity Director. And now those who are a little lower on the totem pole of our newly created positions: Norm Ryan, News Director; Pat Barnett, Campus Events Coordinator; Langdon Lombard, Classical Music Department; Ron Engle, Jazz Department; Genie Wisiolek, Program Logs; Joe Turowsky, Programming; and Marty Nason, Record Librarian. More about these personalities to follow.

And don't forget—if you can't follow the Redmen to Hanover this Saturday, join them by radio at 1:55 p.m. in the Amherst area WMUA, the Springfield area WMAS, in the Pittsfield area WBRK, and in the Lowell-Lawrence area WLLH.

Jim Trelease will give the play-by-play while Barry Brooks adds the color. Bob Healy will engineer the program. I almost forgot John Yates the spotter. For those who, like myself, are not yet wise in the ways of football a spotter is one who indicates by various systems to the play-by-play man, the player(s), who makes the tackles, touchdowns, etc. This definition is by courtesy of the Sports Department.

Bridge Notes

by PROF. HAROLD SMART

West Point bridge club members have invited UMass bridge fans to hold exchange matches, Clarence B. Shelnutt reported at last Wednesday's meeting of the Bridge Club. He said that efforts are being made to arrange the matches.

There were seven tables in play at the meeting. Average for the evening was 63 and winners were as follows.

North-south: Baker and Emond 77½, Crawford and Stein 75½, Strong and Singh 69.

East-west: Burrell and Appleton 80½, Horvitz and Temkin 79½, Effenson and Sherman 60½, Swanson and Warburton 59.

The following hand was especially interesting. Liberty has been taken by me in creating a void in the north and south by exchanging a 7 and 6, thus favoring mis-bidders and accenting the comments. N-S vulnerable and N is the dealer.

1) Many bid 2H (and they actually held only 4) preferring a major, but I always prefer the longer suit first; and the lower ranking if they are equal because I can bid the higher ranking later if partner bids again. If he doesn't, I don't want to bid again.

2) He could bid, but he could double and make partner bid. But with two suits bid and a defensive type of hand, I think a pass is in order.

3) Yes, six carders are rebiddable (he actually only held 5 but I shifted one) but this is a partnership game. If his partner had bid hearts he would now rebid spades and stop, but with the club bid he should show his support. Obviously, no one actually did.

4) If his partner had bid he would now be obligated to.

5) Now he can show his hearts by a minimum bid. And then his partner will rebid clubs. In case of a misfit buy as cheap as you can. But this is not a misfit. Those clubs make game.

Come on out and try your luck or at least learn something. See you tonight.

earned the customary two Baccalaureates by passing specific exams for each; one at the age when American students are receiving their high school diplomas, and the other, in philosophy, when students here have completed their freshman year.

As a result of the difficult studying program, Miss Abadie pointed out, most French students do not work during vacations. Those wanting extra money usually tutor.

Miss Abadie has found the American university more socially oriented than that of France. Student houses, rather than dormitories, are the living quarters. Often kept by nuns, these houses have similar regulations for girls; however, there are no counselors or organized social events.

There is also a different conception of the weekend, Miss Abadie said. In France students often study on Saturdays and Sundays.

Dress More Formal

Campus wear also differs greatly in the two communities. "One never wears bermudas in a French university. And no one wears sneakers. Since most French universities are in cities, girls often wear high heels and many men attend classes in suits and ties," Miss Abadie commented.

For the first time living in "mountainous" country, Miss Abadie loves the abundance of grass and trees which give our campus so much atmosphere.

Having spent much of her life in a summer resort of sun, sea, and sand-dunes, she is anxiously awaiting her first snow-storm.

To a final comment, on television, came the immediate response, accompanied by a wide smile, "Oh, yes, everywhere in France we have the T. V."

The single-channel government owned network prohibits advertising and shows the same variety of programs as American stations.

Offer Made To Band; But Redmen Cannot Go

REDMEN MARCHING BAND AND PRECISIONETTES

by ANN MILLER '64

Following an unexpected offer yesterday morning of transportation to and from the football game tomorrow at Dartmouth for the Redmen Marching Band and the Precisionettes Drill Team, Bands Director Joseph Contino said the band and drill team would not attend the game because there was not time "to prepare for such a large scale endeavor."

The Student Union Executive Program Committee voted at a meeting Wednesday night to provide funds for transportation for the band and drill team to tomorrow's game. The University's Athletic Department and Dining Commons' officials simultaneously offered to provide meals for the two organizations during their trip.

The move resulted from a decision of the Student Senate and the Fine Arts Council that the $5000 needed for the trips should come from a source other than the students' tax.

According to Senate Vice President Pro Temp. Betsy Robicheau, "The Senate and the Council decided that, since the performance of the band and the Precisionettes is important to the spirit of the football games, the Athletic Council or department should sponsor these trips as part of an athletic event.

"The Athletic Council was notified of the decision before their budget meeting in the spring. They did not grant the money because they did not feel that the bands and Precisionettes were their responsibility."

Senate Upholds Decision Not To Sponsor Trips

At a review of the Council's recommendation that the money not come from the student tax at Wednesday night's Senate meeting, the Senate upheld the Council in their motion.

Contino said the bands had been under the assumption that they would not be going to the Dartmouth game, and so had not been preparing formations and selections for it. Such a large scale presentation, he said, takes some planning and practice.

When asked if the band could use formations prepared for past games, Contino said that, like any program, this too would have required practice.

Athletic Dept. Offers Cage For Rehearsal

An Athletic Department offer of use of the Cage yesterday and this afternoon for rehearsal was refused by Contino because, he said, "the Cage has no yard-lines necessary for practice and is not long enough to serve as replica of a football field."

He further stated that he was "reluctant to accept temporary aid" and wanted to get settled "once and for all, whose responsibility it is to pay the band's transportation to games.

"I am interested in seeing a policy established permanently," he said.

"The band members generally are disappointed but the officers are doing all they can to keep the program on an even keel".

Dorm Sing Competition October 2

Inter-Dorm Council officials have urged all girls to support their dorm in the Inter-Dorm sing since points which count in the Inter-Dorm competition are awarded to the winners.

The Sing will be held on Tuesday, October 2, at 7 p.m. in the Women's Physical Education Building.

As in past years, each dorm will be required to sing one of four school songs: "Fight Massachusetts", "Sons of the Valley", "When Twilight Shadows Deepen", and "Sons of Old Massachusetts". Besides one of these, each dorm will sing a song chosen by the Dorm Council.

The judging of the Sing will be based 50 percent on participation, 25 percent on originality, and 25 percent on presentation.

Fine Arts Council Schedules Events

The University of Massachusetts' Fine Arts Council, in cooperation with the Concert Association, has scheduled a distinguished series of appearances by musical celebrities and chamber-music groups for the institution's centennial year observance.

Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, headlines the roster of guest performers. Mr. Fiedler will conduct the 70-piece New Haven Symphony Orchestra in the University's inaugural concert of the academic year, scheduled for the evening of October 21 at the Curry Hicks Physical Education Building on the University campus.

Other major events in the 1962-63 series include appearances by George London, operatic baritone, on March 6, 1963, and the Handel and Haydn Choral Society of Boston on April 21, 1963.

The Hague Philharmonic will present a program at the University on May 16, 1963. Conducted by Willem van Otterloo, the 102-piece Hague Philharmonic Orchestra, renowned for its virtuosity, will be touring the United States for the first time.

Chamber-music groups scheduled to perform at the University during the series include the New England Woodwind Quintet, the Beaux Arts Trio, the Hartford Symphony Chamber Orchestra, and the Paganini String Quartet.

The University's Fine Arts Council was established last year to coordinate activities of campus organizations interested in the arts. Dr. John S. Harris, Commonwealth Head of the University's Department of Government, serves as council chairman. Faculty members and students are represented on the council. Representing students on the council are Alan Savat, Bob Brauer, Betsy Robicheau, Francis Cadwell, Ritchie Weinberg, and Pat Valiton.

All events are open to the general public. Season tickets may be obtained at a reduced rate by writing to the Activities Office, Student Union, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass.

Sponsors Of Homecoming Parade Announce Rules

This year's Homecoming Parade will assemble at 5:15 on Ellis Drive Friday, October 12, sponsors APO and Adelphia have announced.

Maximum height for all floats is not to exceed 14 feet. Floats over 10 feet will travel at their own risk and must be accompanied by poles, which are not to be used on electrical wires.

The maximum height figure was reached co-operatively with the Town of Amherst and the Parade Committee.

Smoking or fires of any type are expressly forbidden, and all decorations must be fire-retardant or fire-resistant.

Any electrical equipment (spotlights, etc.) and generators must be approved by the Fire Marshall, who can be reached at University extension 239.

All floats must have fire extinguishers, carbon dioxide in the case of electrical equipment. Extinguishers are to be used for fire only, and not as smoke props.

The University Fire and Safety Marshal has agreed to let dormitories use their extinguishers as long as they sign them in and out with their housemothers.

Trailers carrying floats must be registered.

Violators of any of these rules will be disqualified.

More information, placement of entries, and applications for the float parade can be obtained in the Program Office on the second floor of the SU.

Poli Sci Club Plans Events Of Semester

The UMass Political Science Association held its kickoff meeting of the year yesterday at 11 p.m. in the Worcester Room of the S.U.

Around twenty students discussed possibilities and suggestions for speakers throughout the year. Several political figures, of city, state, and national importance, headed the list of tentative visitors.

The Political Science Association, which was started several years ago by the Government Department, is a non-partisan group of students interested in both practical and theoretical aspects of government. All three levels of rule, city, state, and national, are included in programming.

The Association this year intends to emphasize informality in its programs, according to Chuck Hadley, president of the group. "Discussion with interested participants is often more rewarding than a lecture, in which the students rarely have a chance to express their views

Students Held For Discipline In Wednesday Demonstration

by JOE BRADLEY '64

Dean of Men Robert S. Hopkins, Jr. warned students yesterday that severe disciplinary action will be the result for disorderly conduct on campus.

"Student Liable"

"The student makes himself liable to disciplinary action when he involves himself in disorderly situations", stated Hopkins yesterday following Wednesday night's demonstrations in front of Brooks House.

At least eight individuals will face disciplinary action which could result in expulsion from the University, although Dean Hopkins could make no definite statement concerning their fate until he had conferred with those involved.

Alexander P. Blasko, Head of the Security Section, estimated a total of 2,000 students were involved in the group which hooted, shrieked, and yelled catcalls to the women living in Brooks.

According to Blasko, a group of male students waiting for a vendor were joined by other students who had advance knowledge of a fire drill scheduled for Brooks. Blasko stressed that the women were not allowed out of the dormitory by a previous arrangement.

On President Kennedy's signing of the Federal Housing order: "For 616 days the signing of this executive order has been imminent. I'm glad to hear from a responsible source (Ted)—and I use the word advisedly —that it will be signed. Let us hope so.

—George Cabot Lodge

TEETH FOR THE LAW

A warm night, the grinder man is a couple of minutes late, a hundred other coincidences, and we had a riot.

We do not use the term riot loosely, for Wednesday night's outbreak was just that. It wasn't just a group of guys yelling out in front of a dorm, it was 2,000 students, some shouting, but many of whom were throwing rocks and other missiles. In a perverted sense we can say that it is fortunate that injuries were kept to gashed legs, smashed knees and severe bruises.

What makes the entire situation seem even worse is that it could happen again. Brooks dormitory is a poor location for women students. Its very presence is a major root of the problem. What can be done about it? Certainly it would be wasted space if we were to say: "O.K. now students—don't riot because it isn't nice."

The method of insuring that such a riot does not occur again is to put some teeth into the laws and rules which govern our campus. There were eight students "arrested" by the campus police that night and what to do with these people has yet to be decided.

If a finger is waved in front of their noses and they are told naughty-naughty, then students may just as well be told that it's all right to riot because nothing will happen to them.

We feel that heavy penalties should be placed on these eight; expulsion if necessary. Experience has convinced us that this type of penalty will serve as the only warning that will be understood by all.

COOLIDGE ECONOMY?

What would you have said if you were the Worker in the Hash House who ate forty-four meals and worked forty-three and eleven-twelfths hours, and then received a bill from the College for $.03? The Treasurer's Office has certainly taken Benjamin Franklin's teachings of thrift seriously. It goes to show that there is real efficiency in one department on campus.

The editorial which appears above is reprinted from the December 12, 1928 Collegian.

After the initial humor had worn off we began to realize that in some areas the University evidently has not progressed too much since that 1928 editorial. Student pay scales are still quite low in the "Hash House" and in many other areas around campus.

If a student has to take time out from his studying to support himself financially, the powers that be should insure that time spent on jobs be made worthwhile.

It seems to us that students might well hurl back some Franklin advice to their employers: "Go fly a kite." —Ed.

MONEY EXISTS, BUT...

We wonder if Our Readers are aware that on the campus there are over one hundred foreign students from all the continents of the World. Unfortunately there does not exist any student body that could organize any activities for them and therefore they are forced to live in a solitary vacuum. Surely there is a need for such a body to bring them all together, introduce them to the many facets of this country they have come to. For the American students, this would present the unique opportunity of knowing more about the different parts of the world these students represent. Indeed it seems to us that the advantages gleaned from such an International Body would be too numerous to be passed over.

On the lists of the R.S.O. there does exist an "International Club" and a fair amount of money is also earmarked for its benefit. Yet this International Club does not have any Constitution. No regular meetings are held, if any at all, and no programs are ever arranged.

Clearly this state of affairs cannot go on any longer. With this in mind, we welcome the move to hold a meeting next Friday with the definite purpose of putting an end to the present feeling of inertia and inactivity. It is our earnest hope that every foreign student on Campus will attend the meeting and contribute towards a constructive program for the coming year. —S.P.

CAMPUS STEPCHILD

For some two weeks now there has been considerable controversy about the appointment of funds for the transporting of the Redmen Marching Band and the Precisionettes to the away football games. This family row among our University departments has included almost every argument imaginable.

In letters to the Collegian, the band has asked the Student Senate for help. The Senate replied that the band ought to help the Senate, if it was in turn to help the band. To this the band asked what it could do to raise money.

We have heard any number of threatening rumors, all of them — talk.

Today, for the first time, it seems that some one decided to do something. The Student Union Executive Program Committee has promised to provide transportation for the band, and the dining commons and Athletic Department have pledged meals for the trip to Dartmouth.

Finally, at noon on Thursday, 48 hours before the game, the band was notified. The answer from the band was predictable. As Mr. Contino, bands director, pointed out, the band has been operating on the premise that there was to be no trip this Saturday. As a result there has been no preparation for a performance. In the short time remaining, we wonder how anyone can expect a decent program to be planned, rehearsed, and executed. As can be expected, a trip this Saturday is impossible from the band's viewpoint.

Had all these not been considerations, however, we have the feeling that the band might still have refused the trip. To quote Mr. Contino, "We don't want temporary aid." The director pointed out that what the bands are seeking is some sort of permanent arrangement within a set policy, not a hand-to-mouth, never-know arrangement on a weekly basis.

We have been told that the members of the band are discouraged with present conditions, and we can well see where they might be. We cannot feel that the offer, timed as it was, and with its necessary conditions, was very fair to the band.

There are some suggestions that seem pertinent to the issue at hand. As students, you are represented by your Senators. You elect them; they are reponsible to you. Let them know how you feel about the problem. If you think that the Senate should stop playing games and support the band, tell them so. And since the Senate can not do anything until next Wednesday, perhaps it might not be a bad idea for the Executive Program Committee to repeat its offer, for the Bucknell game, while there is still time.

—D.M.

Letters To The Editor

To the Editor:

The problem of the University Band is not just an isolated question of obtaining funds to cover the transportation costs of a few away football games; rather it is symbolic of the disproportionate financial and qualitive emphasis placed on football and sports in general. This emphasis is not due to any benefits for the human body and mind or for learning good sportsmanship. This aspect has disappeared from sports the same way chivalry did from war.

Sports today, particularly football on this campus, have become the easy way out for American colleges to acquire a 'big name'. We are edging our way into the schedules of the 'big name schools' in the hope that a little of their prestige will rub off on us. We want to be known, we want everyone to take notice of the fact that we are playing Dartmouth but not that we are muscling our way into a place that we should achieve scholastically. We seem to prefer using all our energy for producing physical violence on the field rather than in an effort to produce better scholars in the classroom. We entice football players with athletic scholarships, we feed them special food, we watch out for their health and safety, we put them on a hero's pedestal and now we are being told in so many words that we have to play music for them in order to spur them on to victory.

The band, for their part, has good intentions. They really feel that their support is necessary to bolster the spirit of the team (and as a small insignificant sidelight, Dartmouth has a good stadium where the band as well as the team can win a name by association). However, regardless of the intentions of the band, the question involved resolves itself into one of principle and value. The principle is this: if we have to go wild over football and if the band is essential in a critical way to win games, then the Athletic Department, which is already billing the students for benefits unseen, should support the cost, seeing as it is in their interests to win games, not a small reward of which is keeping their jobs. Under values two can be listed: first, it is the primary goal of a University to provide all the facilities and opportunities needed to turn out intellectually, socially well-balanced, independent thinkers; secondly, the opportunity for an education should be made available to the greatest number of qualified students possible. It does not require too much insight to realize that the undue emphasis on league sports and what appears to be a lopsided budget to the Athletic Department, in accordance to where athletics should stand in a college education, conflict with the two above mentioned values. In both cases energy and sorely needed funds are being concentrated in an area which will not help the University in attaining its true goals.

We cannot win the name of a great university on the football field, nor would we deserve it if it could be done. Our greatness will be measured by the qualities of the men and women we produce, not by the number of times we carry a football over the end zone. In order to produce great men and women we need to put our efforts and money into hiring more outstanding professors, building up the book reserve in our library, instilling an intellectual instead of a football spirit into our campus, and most important of all we need to attract great men to our classrooms instead of big name football teams to our field.

It is for these reasons that I am opposed to giving money to the University Band for transportation, money that I know can be used for more lasting and enriching purposes.

Richard D. Buck
Student Senator

BEWARE, LIT MAG EDITORS

To the Editor:

I was very much interested to read Mr. Towers' appeal for support for the Literary Magazine in the Collegian. One would think that we students have been remiss in our patronage of the magazine. I for one am extremely insulted. I have supported the magazine with both contributions and suggestions since I first came to the University last year. Is it my fault that neither my contributions nor stories have been accepted by the staff? While some excellent poetry and artwork appear in the magazine, the staff's choice in stories is often in very poor taste. I realize that an occasional scatalogical allusion in a poem or two may serve to bring about a particular desired effect, but I cannot appreciate literature(?) that reeks of detestable filth and endeavors to degrade a particular minority group of individuals and make a farce of their problem. I refer specifically to the story, "Not Just Any Old Queer" which appeared in the Commencement issue of last year. I should like to remind the editors of the Literary Magazine that homosexuality is not a laughing matter.

I shall continue to support the Literary Magazine however, with helpful suggestions and literary contributions, but I must warn you that if you continue to print stories degrading minority groups, I shall not only discontinue my suggestions but will be forced to send my travelogues elsewhere to other magazines. —P.B. lured more students to the scene. Shortly after, said Blasko, another group broke away from the Brooks crowd and ran to the quadrangle.

At the quadrangle violence erupted as stones and turf were hurled at the police officers, Blasko said. He stated that at least two officers were injured and required medical attenion.

Blasko said that he believed that most of the students involved had been intent on "following the crowd." He also congratulated the counselors from the mens' dormitories and the watchmen who held the crowd in check, thus easing the policing task.

Wayne Lamb Hired By Operetta Guild

Wayne Lamb, "a New Yorker but still with definite Kansas overtones," comes to the UMass campus as professional choreographer of the Operetta Guild's fall production of "Guys and Dolls." His credits are outstanding and began at the age of 11, when he made his debut as a dancer in Dodge City, filling in for a sick member of the chorus line, at the dedication of a new band shell. From then on dancing was his main objective.

He studied under a local teacher, Daphne June Throm, soon becoming an assistant teacher at the school and a well-known performer in western Kansas.

During his third year at the University of Wichita, he got his first professional job as a replacement in the road company of Earl Carrol Vanities, playing in the five-a-day movie houses. He left the show to join the Army and spent the next four years in the Armed Services here and in Europe, collecting five campaign stars and the Bronze Star.

Upon his release from the Army, Mr. Lamb resumed his interrupted career in New York at the Alviene Academy of Theatrical Arts. In rapid succession came Day Before Spring, a featured part in Yours is My Heart, and the G.I. revue, Call Me Mister, which he had joined as lead understudy. He took over the part in the national company after one week in Boston.

After several Broadway shows, Mr. Lamb was chosen by Max Leibman as one of the original dancers on television's first big spectacular, The Admiral Broadway Revue, which in turn became Your Show of Shows.

Three years later he turned to concert, completing three transcontinental tours. During this period he found time to be featured on television on the Martha Raye Show, Toast of the Town, Stop the Music, and The Colgate Comedy Hour, appearing with such stars as Ezio Pinza, Lily Pons, Alicia Markova, Rise Stevens, and Jan Pierce.

Mr. Lamb then directed his interest to choreography, working on concert groups, variety shows, and Shakespearean plays —one of which, Twelfth Night, received such acclaim by the New York Critics that it was revived the following year.

His career in modern musical comedy began when he was chosen to choreograph Guys and Dolls at the Barn Theatre in Augusta, Michigan, where he is now General Manager. He has staged, designed, directed, danced in, acted in, and choreographed literally dozens of well-known successes from Annie Get Your Gun to The Music Man.

In the past few years, Mr. Lamb has become interested in theatre in educational institutions and has devoted a large part of his winters to the choreographing and staging of musicals for theatre departments of colleges and universities.

He welcomes the challenge of working with beginners in the theatrical field—seeing them grow and come to an understanding of themselves. Helping to effect a gradual change of attitude from engaging in extra-curricular activity to a dedication of purpose in those few who will go on is an endeavor that Wayne Lamb finds exciting and rewarding.

LIBRARY EMPLOYMENT

Because of the increase in service now being offered by Goodell Library, the library has positions available for students. Interested candidates should contact Mr. Egard, Assistant Librarian at Goodell Library.

HEALTH NOTICE

Influenza immunization will be offered by the University Health Services each week beginning September 26. Injections will be available at the infirmary on Wednesdays from 2 to 4 p.m. and on Thursdays from 3 to 5 p.m.

A charge of 50¢ per injection wil be made to cover the cost of materials.

Those wishing to receive injections should come to the infirmary only at the designated hours.

BRIDGE INSTRUCTION

Starting on Tuesday evening October 2nd, instruction will be provided for beginners in bridge. Sign up sheets are available in the Student Union Program Office.

OUTING CLUB

The University of Massachusetts Outing Club will sponsor a Connecticut Valley Regional Conference on the weekend of September 28-30.

Twenty colleges have been invited to gather at Camp Howe in Goshen, Mass. There will be hiking, camping, swimming, boating, square dancing, folk singing, and meetings.

PEACE CORPS

A placement test for the Peace Corps will be given on Sept. 29, at 8:30 a.m. in Amherst Regional Jr. High School on Lessey St.

Further information may be obtained at the office of the Placement and Financial aid Services in Machmer Hall.

TRANSPORTATION

Free transportation will be available for students who wish to attend the North Congregational Church of Amherst. Rides will be available outside of Hills and Arnold House each Sunday during the school year from 10:30 to 10:45 a.m.

WMUA

Introductory broadcast engineering classes for prospective members of WMUA are held every Saturday from 9-10 a.m.

NAIAD TRYOUTS

Naiads will hold tryouts Wednesday, October 3 and Thursday, October 4, from 5 to 6 p.m. in the Women's Physical Ed. Building.

Oriental Sports Fans Form Club: Will Practice Judo

The first meeting of the Oriental Sports Club will be held this Saturday, September 29, at 1:30 p.m. in the Barnstable Room of the S.U.

The Oriental Club is presently pursuing the promotion and development of judo. The "widely acclaimed sport" has proven tremendously popular on the West Coast among the colleges and universities, and is moving eastward, according to Oriental Sports Club officials.

At present the club is restricted to male enrollment. Men interested in learning judo, or anyone who has had background in the sport, are welcome to attend the meeting.

Class Of '64 Will Hold Meeting Tues.

There will be an important meeting of the Junior Class, Tuesday at 11 a.m. in Bartlett Auditorium, officials of the class of '64 have announced.

Plans for Winter Carnival, the Junior Class scholarship fund, and other Centennial events will be announced. Appointment of a class adviser will also be announced.

"One hundred percent attendance is hoped for," said an official spokesman for the class, "as this is the most important meeting of the year for the class."

Class committees are presently formulating preliminary plans for this year's Winter Carnival to be held in February. Publicity chairman is Stephen Kingsley.

Class officers are James Medeiros, president; Betty Mercer, secretary; and Carol Esonis, treasurer.

Schedule For IFC Rushing Announced

by BILL GREEN '65

The Interfraternity Council has announced the rushing dates for this semester.

Round Robins will be held on November 3 and 4. Interested freshmen whose last name begins with A through L will meet on November 3; those in group M through Z on November 4. The purpose of Round Robins is to give freshmen an opportunity to see each of UMass' fifteen social fraternities and their members. The tours will be made in small groups led by an IFC representative.

Open smokers will be held the week of November 5. Rushees will have the opportunity of attending informal meetings at all houses during this week.

Formal rushing will end at 7 p.m. on November 19. After this time fraternity men will not be allowed to converse with freshmen until Pledge Chapel.

The rushing season concludes with Pledge Chapel in the Student Union Ballroom on November 20.

Each fraternity, sorority, and dormitory on campus will be busily constructing their entry in this year's Homecoming float parade during the next few weeks. The parade marks the opening of the weekend festivities. Pictured here is AEPi's third place winner of last year.

IFC And Pan-Hel Plan Many Activities For Fall

First semester rushing gets a kick-off Tuesday evening at 7 p.m. in the S.U. Ballroom. All Freshman males are invited to take this opportunity to meet fraternity men and discuss fraternity life with them over coffee and doughnuts.

A film, "The Fraternity Idea", will be shown. Guest speakers will be Dean of Students William Field, Dean of Men Robert S. Hopkins and George Rogers of the Fraternity Managers Association.

Representatives of IFC and Pan-Hel will sell balloons during the Homecoming float parade and before the homecoming game October 13. Proceeds are to go toward new books for the libe.

A carnival will be sponsored October 26 by Pan-Hel and IFC as a part of the University's United Nations' week celebrations.

Proceeds of the carnival will go toward a UNESCO (United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization) pilot farm project in Africa.

Sorority Column

The sisters of Lambda Delta Phi have nominated Dorothy Johnson, '65, as candidate for Homecoming Queen. Congratulations, Dotty!

Dorothy Buckman, '61, an alum who has been giving much of her time to help the House, was entertained at a dinner in her honor last Wednesday. Dotty shared with us her slide pictures of the wedding of Joyce Parent, a sister also of class '61.

Merrilee Atkins '61, our past president, is now doing her field work in social psychology in Cincinnati in connection with her studies at Smith College.

FRATERNITY PROFILES

With rushing around the corner, IFC public relations and the COLLEGIAN staff are cooperating to present a series of FRATERNITY PROFILES to include brief outline histories of the campus' 15 Houses.

ALPHA EPSILON PI

Although a $20,000 modernization program has just been completed, negotiation is underway for a new Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity house to be built within two years on "fraternity row."

AEPi, an international fraternity of 75 active chapters in the United States and Canada, is represented on campus by the Phi Chapter at 136 Sunset Ave. Originally a local, Delta Phi Alpha, the national AEPi came to campus in 1933.

In its nearly three decades of existence here, Pi has come a long way, having taken five first and four second place awards in the annual Interfraternity Council (IFC) point competitions which awards honors to outstanding houses.

With 15 different major fields of study represented by the brotherhood, and many Dean's List scholars included, AEPi consistently places high in IFC academic competition, having taken first place in 1961-62. In extra curricular activities, AEPi takes part in many aspects of campus social, academic, and cultural life.

Alumni number over 400 graduates of Phi chapter. Alumni relations are strong, and many of them are active in local chapter activities. Plans this year include a quarterly newspaper and broader publicity coverage on campus. With 100 per-cent active participation expected, AEPi looks forward to another successful year.

SIGMA PHI

Alpha Sigma Phi was founded at Yale University December 6, 1845 and is the tenth oldest National Fraternity in the country. Gamma chapter was founded at Amherst College in 1854 and in 1913 the Charter was granted to the College Shakespearian Club here at the University of Massachusetts. Today Gamma is the oldest chapter in the fraternity. In its one-hundred-seventeenth year Alpha Sigma Phi enjoys a rich heritage both locally and nationally.

Membership in Alpha Sigma Phi offers contact with over 30,000 alumni, and affiliation with 54 chapters located in 30 states.

Gamma Chapter is presently looking forward to a busy year with a full social calendar including several well-known bands.

Inside renovations have been completed at the chapter ho.. and an exterior paint job is planned. A growing building fund has enabled Gamma Chapter to make plans for an addition in the near future.

Fraternity members are offered a wide variety of intramural sports and activities. Members of Alpha Sigma Phi are from widely diversified academic backgrounds and are majoring in many subjects, giving younger brothers and pledges the benefit of experienced tutors in many of their courses.

The house is now engaged in upperclass rushing and is sincerely looking forward to greeting the class of 1966 in November.

BETA KAPPA PHI

Starting at this time last year, Beta Kappa Phi began to take on a new look with the construction of an addition to the chapter house, the rest of which is to be completed by 1966. This past summer, at a "work weekend", the parking lot was cleared and rebuilt so that all cars could be taken off the street during the winter.

Since BKP's return to campus, improvements have been made both inside and outside the old part of the house. These improvements include tiling and painting of the entry hall, painting of the old house, and completion of the landscaping started last spring.

Also new to the house this year is the housemother, Mrs. William P. Yoerg of Holyoke, Mass., who was formerly employed as a receptionist at Providence Hospital.

An active social calendar is also planned. In addition to the usual weekend parties, featuring local name bands, picnics are planned to follow each home football game. During Homecoming weekend, the brothers and their dates will be hosts to alumni and their wives at a dinner and dance to be held at the house. Also included in the calendar are a number of exchange suppers.

Honor Fraternity To Begin Free Frosh Tutoring

Freshmen are reminded that Phi Eta Sigma, the Freshman Honor's Fraternity will begin its annual free tutoring of Freshmen soon.

Notices with information as to where and when each subject will be taught will be placed in each dorm and will also appear in the Collegian.

The advantages of attending these tutoring sessions are obvious. Phi Eta Sigma has helped hundreds of students in the past and this year it hopes to help many more.

Do you have a high I. Q.? If so, you may be eligible to join Mensa. What is Mensa? Mensa is a unique society. The only qualification for membership is to score in an intelligence test higher than 98% of people in general. Its primary purpose is research in psychology and social science, but its other function of providing contact between intelligent people is scarcely less important. Mensa is an international society; at present, most of its over 2000 members are British. They are of every occupation and age group.

The following is the procedure for admission: Every applicant for membership will be sent a preliminary intelligence test. Those who qualify must undergo a second test under supervision, the results of which will be decisive.

Groups meet locally. There are several dozen members in the Boston area alone, and meetings are held monthly in Waltham. The New York City area has some two hundred members, and must rent halls for its monthly meetings, which include speakers. They also have luncheon, dianetics, social, and other special interest groups.

To apply or for more information, write to: American Mensa Selection Agency, Dept. 2d, P.O. Box 86, Gravesend Station, Brooklyn 23, New York.

To change the subject, have you ever heard a camel defined as a horse whose specifications were drawn up by a committee!

Thanks to those of you who have already sent in entries to the limerick contest. What about the rest of you? Entries need not be original, you know, and I'm certain you can recall lots of good limericks which you've heard. Send them in. You may win one of the several prizes offered.

Finally, I'd like to reprint a request I received the other day —verbatim.

Bits and pieces:

Finding material for a column such as this can be a problem, but William Kingsland of URI seems to have solved it quite well; he asks his readers for contributions of jokes or anecdotes. Let's see some of the contributions he got:

The instructor of a human relations class asked the students to pick out the one word which does not belong in the following group. MEN, WOMEN, RUG, SEX, EGG.

Almost everyone in the class picked the word "RUG". But to their surprise the instructor showed them that they were wrong. She said, "You can beat a man, you can beat a woman, you can beat a rug, and you can beat an egg, but you can't beat sex."

Girl, haughtily: "Sorry, but I don't kiss on the first date."

Boy, cheerily, "Oh . . . well, how about on the last one?"

Harry Truman, talking politics with a group of Yale students, was asked by one earnest youth, "How do I start in politics, sir?"

Replied the former President, "You've already started. You're spending someone else's money, aren't you?"

I'll bet you readers can do even better than that, though. Send in any jokes and anecdotes you've heard recently, and I'll print the best ones.

Leon Barron To Perform In Opera

Leon Barron, Assistant Professor of English, will sing the role of Alfonso in the Amherst Community Opera production of Cosi Fan Tutte by Mozart. The Opera will be presented Nov. 9 and 10.

Mr. Barron is most versatile as a performer. As an undergraduate at UMass, he was a member of the Statesmen, a double male quartet, and the Glee Club. He also sang leading roles in two campus Gilbert and Sullivan productions, Samuel, in the "Pirates of Penzance," and Captain Merrill in "Yeoman of the Guard." While in the army, he appeared in a jazz show in Tunis and Bizerte, North Africa.

Well acquainted with the demands of opera, Mr. Barron has sung four leading roles in previous AMCOP productions; the Baron in "La Traviata," Schaunard in "La Boheme," a King in "Amahl and the Night Visitors," and Enrico in "Lucia di Lammermoor."

Mr. Barron's most recent theatrical experiences include the role of Philoctetes in Irving Mandel's adaptation of Sophocles' "Philoctetes," a stage reading given here and at Smith College; and the leading roles in "Samson Agonistes," and "Oedipus Rex," productions sponsored by the Literary Society at UMass. He also had the acting-singing role of the Ballad Singer in Dennis Johnston's dramatization of "Finnegan's Wake," presented at Mount Holyoke College and the Yale drama festival.

As a UMass English professor, Mr. Barron does not resemble the disillusioned dandy, Don Alfonso. Actively engaged as a writer, Professor Barron has had many of his poems published in local magazines which include "Folie," "Liason," "The Massachusetts Review," "Amherst Poets," and "Northampton Poets." He is the fiction-editor of the Massachusetts Review and a reviewer for "College English." Soon to be published by the University is a book of poetry, "A Quireous Choir," in which the poetry of Mr. Barron and three other University professors will appear. Mr. Barron has a master's degree from the University of Minnesota and his doctorate from Harvard University.

House Downs College Aid Legislation

The House of Representatives has rejected a compromise $2,345,000 college-aid bill, 214 to 186.

The action, a heavy blow to the administration apparently ended any prospect of college aid legislation this session.

A major and perhaps decisive factor was widespread but largely unspoken opposition, particularly among southern Democrats, to federal grants to educational institutions supported by the Roman Catholic Church.

The vote came on a motion to return the measure to a Senate-House conference committee that has devised the compromise in seeking to reconcile differences between bills passed early this year by the House and Senate.

Recommittal Motion

The recommittal motion by Rep. Carroll D. Kearns (R-Penn.), called on House conferees to insist on the deletion of provisions for a $595,000,000 student loan program.

In the debate, opponents concentrated their fire on a proviso that would have allowed colleges to allocate 20 percent of their loan funds as non-repayable grants to "exceptionally needy" students. They contended that this amounted to a thinly camouflaged $120,000 federal scholarship program.

The religious issue, although largely ignored by opposition speakers, was regarded by many legislators as the factor that decided the outcome.

Brought To Head

It was brought to a head by telegrams sent to all House members by William G. Carr, executive secretary of the influential National Education Association.

The complaint was against provisions for $900,000,000 in grants for the construction of libraries and science and engineering buildings. They would have been available to both public and private colleges, including those supported by religious institutions.

Dr. Carr contended in his telegram that the bill thus "imperils America's traditional concept of separation of church and state."

Supporters of the compromise bill sought to counter the religious issue by citing various existing programs of federal grants to higher education without regard to whether the recipient institutions are church-related.

Langland Is Author Of "Poet's Choice"

Joseph Langland, recently promoted to full professor at UMass, is the co-editor and author of "Poet's Choice", a new book of poetry scheduled for publication in October.

The book includes a single poem chosen by each of 103 poets from his own work, and the poet's comment on that poem. The preface to the book, also co-edited and written by Professor Langland, appeared in the Aug. 11 issue of the Saturday Review.

The volume includes new comment by such distinguished authors as Robert Frost, William Carlos Williams, Conrad Aiken, Robert Graves, Robert Penn Warren, W. D. Snodgrass, Marianne Moore, Stephen Spender, John Crowe Ransom, Robert Lowell, C. Day Lewis, Richard Wilbur, John Wain, E. E. Cummings, Kingsley Amis, Theodore Roethke, Allen Tate, Archibald MacLeish, and many others.

In three months Dial Press will also issue Langland's second collection of his own poems, "The Wheel of Summer." The long title poem of this volume will shortly appear in "Poetry" (Chicago); others are forthcoming in "The New Yorker" and "Virginia Quarterly Review." The central group of twenty "sacrifice" poems in the volume has been recorded and broadcast nationally by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. Most of them have also been recorded by The Library of Congress.

Langland's first collection of poems, "The Green Town," was published by Scribner's in its "Poets of Today III" series. This volume was among the final nominees for the National Book Award in 1957. Langland is also co-author of a college text in short fiction, "The Short Story," issued by Macmillan a few years ago.

Prof. Langland came to the University three years ago from the University of Wyoming. He also serves as a poetry editor of "The Massachusetts Review."

Indian Students To Celebrate Mahatma Gandhi's Birthday

The International Club Indian Students will hold a public program Tuesday in celebration o the birthday of Mahatma Gandhi, India's apostle of non-violence who was born October 2, 1869.

The program, to be open to the public, will take the form of a meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers of the S.U.

Two outstanding speakers on the topic of Gandhian philosophy will talk following the general format of a Gandhian prayer meeting.

Speakers will be Prof. Amiya Chakravarty of Shantionekatan, India, and James Farmer, president of the Congress of Racial Equality with headquarters in New York City. Prof. Chakravarty is presently a visiting profess of theology and comparative literature at Boston University.

UMass Philosophy Department head Prof. Clarence Shute will act as moderator for the event.

Organizing the program for the students is Baldev Mitter, Indian student in the department of chemistry.

The meeting, following the outline of a Gandhian meeting, will include readings from the Bible, the Koran and from the Bhagvad-Gita, reading of selections from the writings of Gandhi and a hymn used by Gandhi to close his meetings.

The Gandhian meeting will be followed by talks on his philosophy and life.

Gandhi, a believer or disciple of Ahimsa (non-violence), was a leader in India's fight for independence from the British.

Freedom was obtained in the early 1940's but India was broken apart by the violence of Hindu-Muslem clashes. Gandhi was shot to death while attempting to end the religious strife which threatened to hurt his nation's independence.

According to Mitter "Independent India has taken long strides toward realization of the India that Gandhi dreamt of. Success has been achieved in many aspects of national development, economic betterment, abolition of land-lordship, ending of untouchability, education of women, compulsory high school education.

"But the curse of poverty still exists in India, providing fertile soil for communism which is an outburst of violence and usurper of individuality—a negation of Gandhian philosophy.

"That the masses in India, in spite of their poverty, will not fall prey to communism, is a fact not fully recognized outside of India. Gandhian ideals of non-violence and peaceful coexistence will always be the Indian motto."

Index To Add 8 Pages For Centennial

The Index stands to save money this year in the production of the yearbook and add eight pages of Centennial features besides.

Index Editor Al Savat announced that the eight pages of advertising, which have netted $480 in past years and cost $520 to print in the book, have been dropped from the book.

The Student Senate last week appropriated $480 to cover the cost of book printing that would normally come from advertising.

Savat pointed out that 39 advertisers had been given complimentary copies of the Index in 1961 and that this would no longer be necessary. Postage cost would be saved because the book could now be mailed as educational material.

Grateful Team Invites All UM Housemothers To B.U. Game

A week ago Head Coach Vic Fusia fielded a Redmen football squad that defeated its first opponents of the season, Maine. The football team demonstrated to the UMass student body that they are a squad with a desire to win, a squad with spirit, and in doing this an unspoken challenge was hurled at the UMass student body—could they match the spirit of the fighting Redmen? All this week the answer has been echoing back — a resounding "yes."

The students have been showing their spirit by buying tickets to the Dartmouth game at a tremendous rate of over eighty a day for a total well into the six hundreds. The fraternities bought in large blocs, the dormitories one by one. In a competition sponsored by the Athletic Department Kappa Sigma outdistanced all other fraternities and sororities by purchasing the most tickets. For this demonstration of spirit they have been rewarded with two tickets to the Dartmouth game which may be used Saturday or may be exchanged for tickets to other UMass games.

Shortly after the fraternities started their friendly rivalry it became obvious that not only the Greeks were showing their spirit but that many Independents were also buying tickets. As a way of thanking the dorms two free tickets have been awarded to Leach dormitory whose name was drawn out of a hat by Dean Field.

However, the Redmen football squad felt that this was not thanks enough, and they have asked the Athletic department to further display their gratefulness. Therefore, the Athletic department, acting on behalf of the fighting Redmen has invited every fraternity, sorority and

by GENE COLBURN '64

The 1962 edition of the freshman cross-country squad will open its season against the Coast Guard Academy on Saturday. During the last few years the freshman teams have compiled impressive records, and this year's team looks as though it will be as strong as, if not stronger than, any in the past. In 1960 the frosh went undefeated in dual meets and won the New England Intercollegiate Athletic Association Meet. The 1961 team compiled a record equal to the varsity's of 8-2. They placed third in the New Englands.

This year's team seems quite capable of being the best ever. In the various time trials that they have had, the frosh have equalled many of the best times ever recorded. Bob Molvar is currently leading the team. He hails from Melrose, and graduated from B. C. High. Close on his heels are Bob Larsen, Clayton Berry, and Dave Sullivan. Clayton Berry won the New England Prep School cross-country meet last year, and is expected to be a really big help to the team. Rounding out the team are Don Campfield, Don Cheney, Jim Collins, John Crowe, John Hill, Carl Lopes, Ron Oakland, and Jon Scherban.

In order for a cross-country team to be good, there cannot be too great a distance between the first and the seventh man. The

INTRAMURALS

Next week the Intramural football program will shift into high gear with a total of thirty-three touch football teams participating in all the leagues.

There are five separate leagues, two fraternity, two dormitory and a mixed league. Dorm league "A" is made up of the six bigger dormitories, while League "B" is drawn from the smaller dorms. The mixed league of five teams is constituted by the Married, Stockbridge, and new dorms and Independent teams.

Last Tuesday night Sig Ep beat Alpha Sigma Phi 19-6, Kappa Sig walked over Lambda Chi 26-7, Phi Mu Delta was the victor over Zeta Nu by a score of 18-13, and in the final game QTV ran all over BKP, with the score being 19-2.

In Wednesday night's action TEP took Phi Sigma Delta 18-0, TKE upset SAE 24-19, Theta Chi beat Alpha Sigma Phi 26-6, and Zeta Nu was the victor over ATG 9-0.

WRITE? YOU'RE WRONG

In the recent furor over the assassination of President McKinley, it may have escaped your notice that a nationwide study of the writing ability of American college students has just been published.

The survey reveals an astonishing fact: that when students have completed their freshman year and are no longer required to take English, their writing skill progressively declines until we come to the fantastic situation where graduating seniors actually are poorer writers of English than incoming freshmen!

Many theories have been offered to account for this incredible fact. Some say that seniors know less English than freshmen because all seniors major in French. This is not true. No more than 94 percent of seniors major in French. How about the other six percent?

Well sir, of the other six percent, half—or three percent—take physics, and it is not hard to understand how those poor souls grow rusty in English when all they ever say is "E equals MC squared."

Of the remaining three percent, two-thirds—or two percent—major in whaling, and their English too grows feeble with disuse. Whalers, as we all know, do not speak at all except to shout, "Thar she blows!" maybe twice a year.

Of the one percent remaining, it cannot be fairly said that they are poor writers. The fact is, we don't know what kind of writers they are. Why not? Because they never write. And why don't they ever write? Because this remaining one percent of American college students are enrolled at the University of Alaska, and never take their mittens off.

(Incidentally, I received quite a surprise upon first visiting Alaska two years ago when I was invited to Juneau to crown the Queen of the Annual Date Palm Festival. Frankly I expected to find a surly and morose populace. After all, going through life with your mittens on all the time is hardly calculated to make you merry as a cricket. Not only can't you write, but you miss out on all kinds of other fun things—like three card monte, making shadow pictures on the wall, and lint picking. However, to my astonishment, I discovered Alaskans to be a hale and gregarious group, mittens notwithstanding, and I soon found out why: because mittens notwithstanding, they could still smoke Marlboro Cigarettes, still enjoy that rich mellow flavor, that fine, clean Selectrate filter, that truly soft soft pack, that truly flip-top flip-top box—and that, friends, will make anybody happy, mittens notwithstanding. In fact, Alaskans are the happiest people I have ever met in the whole United States—except, of course, for the Alaskan vendors of Marlboro Cigarettes, who have not been paid in many years—indeed, never—because how can anybody dig out coins to pay for cigarettes when he is wearing mittens?)

But I digress. What are we going to do about this deplorable condition where college students, having completed Freshman English, become steadily less proficient in the use of the language? The answer is simple. We will make them take Freshman English all through college. In fact, we won't let them take anything else! This solution, besides producing a nation of graceful writers, will also solve another harrowing problem: where to park on campus. If everybody takes nothing but Freshman English, we can tear down all the schools of law, medicine, engineering, and whaling, and turn them into parking lots. Can't we?

Redmen And Indian Warparties To Clash On Plains Of Hanover

by STEVE HEWEY '63, Associate Sports Editor

Tomorrow afternoon at Hanover, New Hampshire will witness the revival of hostilities between two New England tribes who have not met since the year 1919. For the first time in over forty years the University of Massachusetts Redmen will be playing the Dartmouth Indians. In the 16-game series that began in 1902 and ceased in 1919 the Ivy League Indians held a most decided edge of 15 wins and one tie.

Two years have gone by since UM has had an Ivy League opponent to cope with. The last one was Harvard in 1960, rated at the time as the probable League Champion. The Redmen pulled a big upset win, 27-12 over Harvard that season and again they will be seeking to pull the rug out from underneath Dartmouth, rated this season as the probable Ivy title winner.

UM has one thing in its favor. That is they have already had one game—and won it. For Dartmouth this Saturday will be the first trial of the season. Coach Fusia has already seen his squad in action under fire and has had a chance to pick out the weak spots and work on them. Coach Bob Blackman of Dartmouth can only hope that he does not have many holes in his attack and defenses.

Coach Fusia and the Redmen are ready to go with the same starting line-up that produced last Saturday's 10-0 win over Maine. At the end slots will be Dick Baudelais and Paul Majeski. Paul Graham and Sam Tombarelli will feature at tackle. Guard positions will be filled by Peter Pietz and Bob Tedoldi and at center will be Tom Kirby. The backfield starters will be Jerry Whelchel at QB, Sam Lussier and Loren Flagg at HB and Art Perdigao at FB. Also expected to see action is Sophomore guard Bob Burke who had been ailing for the last couple of weeks.

Fusia expressed his satisfaction with the Redmen defense, calling it "good, sound and stiff." But he added that the offense still needed to be sharpened up. As far as the team's maturing goes he views it as coming along very well, pointing out that he is pleased with the way the seniors are helping the juniors and the juniors are aiding the first year men to come along.

For Saturday's encounter Fusia will once again feature the two platoon system with a balanced attack. But missing from action again this week will be John Kozaka and Matt Collins, both senior linemen being sidelined with knee injuries.

With one game under their belts, a good sound defense and versatile offense, and a large student following, the Redmen are ready.

Dartmouth Coach Bob Blackman has announced that sophomore halfback Bob O'Brien (above), who was to play an important part in Dartmouth's strategy in Saturday's game will not be able to play due to injuries received in a scrimmage last Saturday.

PROSPECTS FOR DARTMOUTH GAME ARE FAIR—M.A.C. LIGHT

Neither Team has Showed Exceptional Ability or Speed.

The following is a reprint of the pre-game writeup for the UMass-Dartmouth clash of 1919, the last time the two schools faced each other. See Monday's Collegian for the results of both UMass-Dartmouth contests, 1919 and 1962.

The second game on the football schedule, to be played with Dartmouth at Hanover next Saturday, should be fast and interesting. In the light of last week's games, M.A.C. should hold the big Green team down to at least a small score.

Dartmouth opened their season two weeks ago with Springfield, and tore the latter's first line to pieces, piling up forty points, without their own goal being seriously threatened. In that contest, Robertson, the Dartmouth halfback, played a remarkable game, while the entire backfield were constant gainers. Cannell, as quarter, played well, and Holbrook, who substituted for him in the last quarter, did some good forward passing. However, fumbles were frequent in the Dartmouth backfield, and the play was loose throughout.

Last Saturday, Dartmouth played Norwich, and was held down to a 13-0 score, all the Green points coming in the last part of the game. Dartmouth showed lack of good form in almost every department, the backs being unable to gain through the cadet's line. Robertson kicked well, having the better of a duel with the Norwich quarter. Robert on, also, with Holbrook, made most of Dartmouth's gains. Fumbling was costly, a fumbled punt being carried to the Green's five-yard line in the first period, and only Robertson's toe prevented a touchdown. No one in the Dartmouth line played a particularly good game, though most of the tackling was done by the secondary defense.

On Aggie's side, Pond is expected to counter-balance the punting of Robertson. He kicked well in the first game, and his goal from placement was clean-cut. Pond also showed up well as a ground-gainer, making several short runs in addition to his long sprint for a touchdown. Lent also made many gains for M.A.C. Forward passing was not a success in the first contest, and only once during the game was a gain made by this means.

The line, where the team lacks veteran skill, showed need of much bolstering for the attack of the heavy Dartmouth backs. The Connecticut team gained rather disconcertingly through the line last Saturday, especially in the third period. On the other hand, fumbles were not frequent.

From the evidence at hand, it seems that the two teams meeting next Saturday have similar weaknesses in their lines, and that both depend on their backs to cover that weakness. Considering these facts, Aggie can look for a well-fought contest, with even a remote hope for a victory.

SWIMMING

Freshmen and Varsity swimming teams will begin practice Monday, October 1, in the Men's Physical Education Building Pool. All those interested should sign up with Coach Joe Rogers.

Math Fulbright Prof. Returns From India

by RUTH KOBS '64

"In a project of this sort, a person does far more learning than teaching," said David Dickinson, a member of the UMass Math Dept., recently returned from a leave of absence spent in Aligarh, India.

Granted a Fulbright professorship by the U.S. and Indian Governments to teach and work in India, Dickinson spent six months at the University of Aligarh and several weeks at the University of Baroda.

After an orientation period in Washington, he left America on a Japanese freighter bound for Tokyo. After a short time in Tokyo and Bangkok, he flew to New Delhi. At a conference in New Delhi he met and talked to Prime Minister Nehru, Indian President S. Radhakrishnan, and the United States ambassador to India, John Galbraith.

The University of Aligarh is an old Moslem University located in a Hindu portion of India. For Indians, it offers an exercise in tolerance. The University follows the British tradition with a different emphasis from that found in U.S. universities.

"The Indians were very hospitable", said Dickinson, and gave to him and his family better accommodations than they had themselves. Even with these comforts, adjustments had to be made.

The house occupied by the Dickinson family was built when the Purdah system was in full strength, with a 12 foot stone wall surrounding the home. A cook, gardener, cleaner, and wash boy helped in the maintenance of the house.

Their stay in India was colored by a series of Hindu-Moslem religious riots. While the city was under martial law, Dickinson and his family ate most of the chicken, pigs, peacocks, and geese that lived in the garden adjacent to the house. Also in the garden were bananas, mangos, and more exotic Indian fruits.

Fulbright scholar David Dickinson, his daughter Sara, and his son Dan are seen talking with Indian President S. Radhakrishnan on their recent visit to Aligarh, India. While in India, Dickinson asked the president about the religious tensions building up in that part of India where Moslems and Hindus live. A short time later religious riots broke out and Dickinson and his family were interned.

Mrs. Dickinson taught courses at the university and tutored her own children at home. The family unit in India, Dickinson explained, is much closer knit than it is in the U.S. Because a person "marries his mate's family", and not just the individual, marriages are usually arranged.

The Purdah system is still found in India. By tradition a Moslem women stays at home and sees no male other than the members of her own family. If she does go out (which is seldom), she is attired from head to foot. Attending a university, however, a woman is rarely veiled for she is starting to come out into the world.

Enthusiastic about Indian Music which is similar to 16th century English music, Dickinson and his wife took music lessons while in India. "This music", he explained, "is complicated and has many rules; yet, it is free and open. There are no words to describe it."

Many changes have been brought about by independence he said. "The Indians are only beginning to find out now what independence really means. They are full of plans and busily at work."

Dickinson was also sent by the University to Stockholm to the International Congress of Mathematicians. He remained there for a week and then went on to England for 3 months, before his return to this country.

600 Frosh Attend First Annual Ball

Some 600 Freshmen attended the first annual Freshman Ball Saturday evening from 8 to 12 in the SU Ballroom.

Profits from the Revelers' sponsored event will go into the Revelers' Scholarship Fund toward a scholarship to be awarded at Student Leaders' night.

Music was provided by Rod McLeod's orchestra. A jazz arrangement of "Fight Massachusetts" ended the evening.

Dress was semi-formal. Decorations included red and green lights in the Ballroom.

Eng'g Dean To Serve On Panel

George A. Marston, UMass Dean of Engineering, will take part in the program during a meeting of U.S. and Canadian educators and industrialists at Alfred University on Oct. 12-13.

He will serve as a member of a panel on "State Universities—Their Role in Engineering Education" during the 17th annual meeting of the New York-Ontario-Quebec Section of the American Society for Engineering Education. The Friday afternoon panel discussion will be one of a series in which faculty members representing 21 colleges and universities and two industries will participate.

Approximately 300 members of ASEE and their wives are expected to attend the annual meeting.

UMass Grad Ladd Receives Approval For "Excess Leave"

Second Lieutenant Richard B. Ladd, UMass graduate student in Mathematics, yesterday received a regular U.S. Army Commission with special approval to continue "excess leave" to carry on work for a master's degree.

Captain Green B. Williams said the situation of a regular army commissioned officer taking such leave was "highly unusual" and he could cite no other such instance ever having occurred at the University.

Ladd received his reserve commission as Second Lieutenant from Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Maine, upon his graduation there last June. While studying at UMass, he is working as an instructor in Freshman math at the Stockbridge School of Agriculture.

He received the Commission from UMass Prof. of Military Science Colonel Albert Akroyd in Col. Akroyd's office at Dickinson Hall. Also present were officers and enlisted men of Ladd's detachment.

Synthesis Votes To Support Senatorial Candidate Hughes

Synthesis, the four college political organization, held its initial meeting of the year Wednesday night.

Michael Palter, chairman of the group, explained the statement of purpose and related matters having to do with membership requirements. General aims of the group revolve around disarmament, civil liberties, and civil rights.

Although the Synthesis organization has worked primarily with disarmament, Mr. Palter outlined the growing "disintegration of civil liberties since the McCarthy era as symbolized by such laws as the McCarran Act and the machinations of the House Committee on Un-American Activities."

He said that "the northern student has been concerned with integration efforts in the South sometimes to the neglect of conditions within our own back yard."

It was generally agreed that the activities of Synthesis would coincide with the Senatorial campaign of Professor H. Stuart Hughes, running as independent U.S. Senate candidate from Massachusetts.

Plans for leafletting the industrial plants throughout Western Massachusetts were also announced. Many of those present felt that an effective leafletting campaign could garner as many as "100,000 votes" among the factory workers.

NAIADS Hold Swim Tryouts October 3-4

Naiads will hold tryouts Wednesday, October 3 and Thursday, October 4 from 5-6 p.m. in the Women's Physical Education Building.

Optional practice for the tryouts will take place at the W.P.E. on Monday and Tuesday October 1 and 2, from 5-6 p.m. Instruction will be given during these practices.

Those who try out will be expected to perform a front surface dive and to synchronize to music: the front and back crawl the sidestroke, and the breaststroke.

This year the synchronized swimming group will present its water show March 14-16 and Open House Weekend April 27-28.

Unlike many synchronized swimming groups at other colleges and universities, Naiads is a club run exclusively by the members. Naiad members choose the theme, music, and costumes for their shows, and choreograph and direct numbers.

Faculty advisor is Miss Esther Wallace. Officers of the club include: Carole Marsden, president; Beverly Brent, junior Naiad manager; Gayle Gordon, secretary; and Bobbi Farinella, publicity.

Election Candidates Campaign In Town

Endicott "Chub" Peabody speaks to a large audience, including a number of UMass students, at the Amherst Regional High School on his gubernatorial qualifications. Other speakers on the program included senatorial candidates Stuart Hughes and George Lodge.

George Cabot Lodge and H. Stuart Hughes highlighted the "Meet the Candidates" night held last Thursday at the Amherst Regional High School, under auspices of the Amherst League of Women Voters. The event was heavily attended by members of the University community.

Lodge And Hughes

Both Hughes and Lodge considered the Cold War to be an important issue. Referring to the arms race as "dangerous and foolhardy" and something "we can't win," Hughes suggested several measures to alleviate tension; unilateral disarmament, withdrawing from foreign bases, and neutralizing Cuba by withdrawing all foreign troops from the island.

Lodge viewed the Cold War conflict as something "we can't win." To counteract Communist expansion, Lodge, drawing upon his experience as Chairman of the International Labor Organization, made specific suggestions for increasing the efficiency of U.S. foreign aid. "Ted" Kennedy, the other Senate hopeful, was absent.

UMass Student Support

The University was represented in large numbers by students for Hughes, the Young Republicans' campaign committees for Lodge, Volpe, Brooke and Perry, and representatives of the UMass Young Democrats Club. Groups were active, handing out leaflets and waving posters in response to their candidate's speeches.

Gubernatorial Candidates

On the Gubernatorial level, "Chub" Peabody, the Democrat candidate, pointed up the absence of Governor Volpe, who is in Denmark for a four-day meeting. Peabody attacked the Governor's record, saying that this State has the highest real estate tax in the nation.

Governor Volpe undertook to study the sales tax as a means to relieve the real estate tax in 1961, Peabody said. "The committee's report was quietly buried," Peabody said, and nothing has been done about it.

Also on the speaker's platform was the Republican candidate for Attorney-General, Edward Brooke. Referring to the Attorney-General's office as being the chief law enforcement in the Commonwealth, Brooke said, "I hope to give bold and decisive leadership in that capacity."

"We will get rid of graft and corruption in Massachusetts whenever and wherever we find it," Brooke said. The wage earner and the taxpayer, he said, cannot afford the luxury of corruption. The Democrat candidate for Attorney-General, Francis Kelly, was unable to attend.

Other Candidates

Young Dems. To Canvass For Petitions

UMass Young Democrats will begin canvassing the Town of Amherst for signatures for the five initiative petitions aimed at overhauling the Commonwealth's constitutional organization.

A task force of volunteers will be given precinct maps and lists of qualified Amherst voters before beginning the door to door campaign for signatures.

Starting Wednesday volunteers will distribute flyers explaining the five points of the petitions to all Amherst townspeople. The initiative petitions are considered basic planks for the platform of Democratic gubernatorial candidate Endicott Peabody.

A Tuesday meeting of the Young Democrats Club at 4 p.m. in a SU room to be posted will lay the groundwork for the campaign, and interested students of any political persuasion will be welcomed as volunteers.

Lederle Suspends Classes For Centennial Convocation

President Lederle has announced that all University classes will be suspended from 3 p.m. on Thursday to enable students to attend the Opening Centennial Convocation. His message to the UMass community reads as follows:

"On October fourth, I have asked all heads of Departments to suspend classes from 3 p.m. on, in order to permit their students to attend the Opening Centennial Convocation.

"Since this is the first event of great importance to the observance of our Centennial, I urge the student body to turn out in force.

"In the past, opening convocations have been a family affair, limited to the campus community and interested friends in the immediate vicinity. This year we have invited many distinguished visitors, including the Honorable John J. McCloy, the presidents of our sister colleges, the Board of Trustees, prominent state officials and legislators, and alumni from all parts of the country.

"These people should have an opportunity to see, as I have seen since I became your President, that the student body at the University of Massachusetts is an active and vigorous one, sincerely interested in every aspect of the continuing development of this institution.

"Members of the Centennial Class of 1963 have shown their willingness to participate in the Convocation by wearing academic robes. Four of the principal student leaders will take their places in the Academic Procession with the Faculty, the Trustees and members of the Administration.

"But this Centennial belongs as much to the other classes at the University as it does to the Centennial Class. It is my wish that you will, through your enthusiasm, show visible evidence of this by attending the Opening Convocation."

Six Finalists Selected For Homecoming Queen

Carol Ann Russell '65, Gail Benvie '65, Carol Jennings '66, Sue Spearen '63, Carol Esonis '64, and Pam Chase '65 have been selected as Homecoming Queen finalists.

Selecting the Queen and her court, the Homecoming Committee interviewed 38 candidates Monday, September 24, and narrowed the field down to six finalists. It has been the custom in the past to elect five finalists but because of the "exceptional beauty of these six girls, we felt the only fair decision could be the increase of the number of the Queen's Court by one," said Alumni Director Evan Johnston, a committee member.

This year's Queen will be announced to the Student Body when she is crowned on the eve of the Homecoming game with the University of Connecticut, October 12. Along with a special place in that evening's float parade, the finalists will also be honored in special ceremonies at half-time during the Homecoming game.

This year's Queen will be entered in next year's Sport Magazine Campus Queen contest for national recognition.

Nominees included Rory Broderick, Joyce Traquair, Jan Jablonski, Brenda Brian, Diana Anastas, Glenda Stockwell, Sue Lydon, Carole Paquette, Evelyn Ruthel, Donna Sweeney.

Also, Joyce Selansky, Janice Kwapien, Christina Cady, Sandy Robinson, Nancy Fish, Dotty Johnson, Roberta LaBatte, Elaine Foster, Lois Fleishman, Nancy Kahila, Margie Olson;

Also, Maria Mortimer, Angela Klarmann, Kathy Manning, Ann Swanberg, Marsha Zeisher, Judy Ditmars, Sandy Jones, Diane Dixon, Dolores Grinuk, Mary Pat Carroll, and Nancy Thompson.

Senate O.K.'s Fine Arts Band Report

The Student Senate Wednesday night reaffirmed its approval of the Fine Arts Council's recommendation that financing of transportation to away games for the Redmen Marching Band and the Precisionettes Drill Team not come from student tax money.

Senator Dick Buck ('64-Married Dorms) charged parliamentary procedure was being disregarded in bringing the Council's report containing the recommendation to the floor. He said the Senate had not the power to approve or disapprove the council's recommendation and the Council had not the power to bring such a measure to the floor.

Senator Betsy Robicheau ('63-At-Large) called for an end to the discussion of parliamentary procedure that followed Buck's charge by stating that she, as Council chairman, was simply "asking approval or disapproval of the report and not reapproval of the recommendation contained in the report."

The Senate voted approval of the report.

Baldev Mitter spoke, requesting $50 to pay costs of a public meeting Tuesday, sponsored by the International Club—Indian Students, in celebration of Mahatma Gandhi's birthday.

The event at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Union Council Chambers, is open to the University community.

The Senate voted approval of the appropriation for the event.

The Senate elections, scheduled for today, have been postponed until tomorrow, Tuesday, in the SU lobby.

...."The world that we have to deal with politically is out of reach, out of sight, out of mind. It has to be explored, reported, and imagined . . . Inevitably our opinions cover a bigger space, a longer reach of time, a greater number of things, than we can directly observe."

ROAD TO TYRANNY

As our nation approaches its worst segregation crisis since Little Rock we can not help but gape in absolute amazement.

As of last evening Governor Barnett had all but officially conceded to admitting Mr. Merideth as a student of the University of Mississippi even though his "heart said never." On what grounds had the Governor defied the courts of the land as well as the nation itself? Undoubtedly Mr. Barnett will receive great political support from the voters of Mississippi, but we are sure that this does not constitute the Governor's only motive for action.

The officials of Mississippi and the University of that State are defending a way of life that can be classified as sick.

It is unnecessary to point out here that the very foundation of our democracy has granted us all equal rights; as Governor of Mississippi Mr. Barnett has set himself above and apart from the Constitution of the United States as interpreted by the Supreme Court, and has re-instituted a problem supposedly solved by the Civil War.

What seems to us even more amazing than Governor Barnett's actions is the amount of popular support given to him by many of the students of the University of Mississippi. Those students supposedly represent an intellectual segment of that State's population. Are they thinking? Are they questioning? Or are they accepting bigoted values and defending these values with all the bigoted enthusiasm they are capable of mustering?

Retired General Walker (who commanded the federal troops at Little Rock) has offered his aid to Governor Barnett as have other prominent southern figures. "Peace" marchers are moving towards Oxford to help Mississippi defend her "way of life." Federal forces are also gathering to help preserve the peace. Unless Governor Barnett officially backs down from his stand there will be a clash of these "peace" forces, and some of them are going to be dead.

We gape with amazement and can easily picture Mr. Khrushchev happily grinning as he pushes the lever of the propaganda mills up to high speed. N.C.A.

— LETTERS TO THE EDITOR —

INTELLECTUAL FREEDOM

To the Editor:

"The human race," someone has observed, "has been playing at children's games from the beginning, and will probably do it till the end; which is a nuisance to the few people who grow up." Chief among these games is the fancy that we know absolutely, or that we know absolutely that such-and-such a parent, counselor, book, or society knows absolutely.

In so far as we mature, however, we learn that we do not know absolutely; we perceive that all human judgments are human judgments, including our judgments that some propositions and authorities are naturally untrustworthy and that others are supernaturally trustworthy; we come to know that any of our judgments may be mistaken. This is the wisdom of Socrates, who knew that he was ignorant.

How can we know this? In the sense that, in the last analysis, we take it to be the most trustworthy hypothesis, the larger hypothesis, like "All generalizations are dangerous except one."

True maturity does not paralyze, weaken, or corrupt one. On the contrary, the more mature one is, the better one feels the earth, breathes the air, perceives the world, assumes responsibility, and enjoys living as a human being. No healthy person wants to give up what maturity he has gained. The more mature one is, the more one understands Democritus' statement that "an evil and foolish and intemperate and irreligious life should not be called a bad life but, rather, dying long drawn out."

It is the maturer persons who champion the major rule that permits all individuals and organizations that allow others the same privilege to flourish, offer what truth they can, develop further if possible, compete as they try, and cooperate as they learn.

The maturer persons recognize the need for special places, academies, where society can, through its most able and, we hope, mature numbers, work out the best progress of which society is capable. Thus the ivory tower, with its modern ways of getting information, can be one of the most useful of public buildings.

Only the most mature persons, whether rich or poor, and schooled or unschooled, realize that the essential rule, for the public in general and the academy in particular, is absolute freedom of inquiry. thought, and discussion; intellectual freedom. As this rule implies equal opportunity for individuals, it is the guiding principle of art science, democracy, and, I would add, religion. Approaches to such maturity seem evident in the Newman Club members of Smith College who chose a roster of speakers largely from "the other side." Thomas Aquinas, in his Summa Theologica, insisted that every Cath olic ought to learn the arguments against his faith, since his faith is weak if he cannot answer all objections to it. Like maturity is evident in the non-Catholic students who wanted to learn the Catholic view.

Anyone too frail to develop such intellectual and personal integrity, anyone who must stay within sectarian walls social, political, religious, or other, ought to be not in a college or university for education but in a seminary for indoctrination. As Bernard Shaw pointed out, a sectarian college or university is a contradiction in terms.

Of course, being human, every vested authority that fears criticism has opposed complete intellectual freedom. In earlier times a man could not harvest any crop, or choose a vocation, without official sanction. Only through centuries of courage and cost have men wrested from the social, political, and religious authorities much freedom to harvest their crops; also to create tools; choose vocations; develop social, economic, political, and other organizations; practice anesthesia and vaccination; enjoy free education; have equal opportunities for all; and inquire, think, and discuss;—all despite the thunderings of the orthodox, proper, political, or religious, that every such deviation would ruin society, wreck the state, or damn men's souls.

That any organization whose aim is to conserve and spread a doctrine of any kind should avoid giving a false picture of itself by inviting a majority of speakers who oppose it is understandable and perhaps only fair. Any organization, however, that seeks to stifle opposing views evidently fears intellectual freedom and is false to the humanity that shelters that organization.

To practice and defend intellectual freedom embodies what we may call not necessarily the contemporary but the modern spirit. As Stuart P. Sherman put it, this spirit undertakes "to accept nothing on authority, but to bring all reports to the test of experience. The modern spirit is, first of all, a free spirit open on all sides to the influx of truth, even from the past. But freedom is not its only characteristic. The modern spirit is marked, further, by an active curiosity, which grows by what it feeds upon, and goes ever inquiring for fresher and sounder information . . . . Since it seeks the best, it is also a critical spirit, constantly sifting, discriminating, rejecting, and holding fast that which is good, only till that which is better is within sight. This endless quest . . . . requires labor, requires pain, requires . . . courage; and so the modern spirit . . . is an heroic spirit. As a reward for difficulties gallantly undertaken, the gods bestow on the modern spirit a kind of eternal youth, with unfailing powers of recuperation and growth." — SENIORS —

Seniors who are participating in the Opening Centennial Convocation Thursday, may pick up their caps and gowns in the Memorial Hall basement 10 a.m. to noon and 2 to 5 p.m. today, tomorrow and Wednesday.

To the Editor:

Last Thursday's rally sponsored by the Amherst League of Women Voters was an excellent chance to hear some (though unfortunately not all) of the state and local candidates. Those who were able to attend came away with much to think about. But no matter how enthusiastic you may become during this month's campaign if you are not registered you will be unable to vote. It is estimated that only 20% of the age 21-and-over students on this campus are registered voters. The deadline is 10 P.M. October 5th, time enough if you go home Friday afternoon. This Senate contest is one of the most important in the nation and, if Thursday night was any indication, promises to be one of the most exciting as well. So don't lose your chance to participate. Register this week.

Food For Thought

Dear Editor:

One of the advantages of eating in the Dining Commons which is not found in the other dining halls is that we enjoy mixed company. However, there are some individuals on this campus to whom this advantage means nothing. The language used at the tables is disgusting. A few may think it is extremely funny to see a group of girls one by one leave the table with menacing glances at a group of boys who are well versed in their linguistic arts. I do not. It is very embarrassing to be sitting with a girl in the midst of this talk especially when the offenders are your friends. A fine impression you make on her by showing her the friends you keep.

I hope this letter will make its mark, not only in the Dining Commons, but in all facets of campus life whether it be on the way to class, in the Hatch, or in any other place where there is mixed company.

A Crab On Grass

To the Editor,

This letter is being written to express my feelings about the deplorable conditions of the cinder parking lot and the surrounding grass, actually I should call it a field. The exteriors of County Circle Dormitories are degrading enough to the University without adding the unkept grass. More of our outside visitors see this part of the campus than some other well-kept areas since it is used for parking cars belonging to football fans. I think that something should be done to remedy this situation immediately. We should not let University of Connecticut fans see this 'field' in its present condition—the way University of Maine fans saw it last week.

Director Mahnken Announces New Cast For Nov. Production Of Oedipus Rex

Cast for the University Theatre's November production of Oedipus Rex has been announced by Harry Mahnken, director for the upcoming production.

Tryouts were casual readings from the script in informal classroom surroundings, said Mahnken. There was little acting as such, as the readings were given cold.

The basis of selection, he said was the quality of the performers' "untrained reading—that is, their ability to make sense out of the text, their ability to read it as lines and not as literature."

The cast and their parts include: Frank Powers as Oedipus, Sheila Ferrini as Jocasta, Dave Manley as Creon, Tom Kerrigan as Tiresias, Robert Landrey as the Priest, Joseph Collins as the First Messenger, Robert Mastrodomenico as the Second Messenger, Saul Gliserman as the Herdsman, and Alden Blodgett as A Boy. The parts of Antigone and Ismene will be played by children, as yet uncast.

The chorus will include Ann Meltzer, Bev DeMarco, Paula Norton, Jean Roanowicz, June Trailman, Edna Colcord, Nancy Adams, Kate Treadwell and Alice Delaney.

LIGHT AGGIE ELEVEN HOLDS DARTMOUTH TEAM TO SMALL SCORE OF 27 TO 7

First Football Score Against Dartmouth in Ten Years by M. A. C.

The following is the report of the 1919 UMass-Dartmouth game. (See Friday's Collegian for the pregame analysis.) As you can see the 1919 team did not fare much better than the 1962 edition of the Redmen.

M.A.C. lost to Dartmouth 27 to 7 last Saturday in a well-fought game at Hanover, in which Aggie crossed the Green goal line for the first time in ten years, and made the first score against Dartmouth on her home field since before the war. Dartmouth's line far outweighed the Aggie line, but failed to make consistent gains on center plunges, most of the Green gains being made on tackle plays and end runs. Pond scored Aggie's one touchdown after four spectacular line plunges in which the ball was carried only 2 yards in the four downs.

Aggie won the toss, Dartmouth kicking to Aggie's five yard line, where Dartmouth received the ball from a fumble and sent it over the line for a touchdown, by a series of tackle plays, end runs, and straight line plunges. Here the weight of the Dartmouth team showed to better advantage than at any other time during the game.

Pond caught the second kickoff and ran to our 20 yard line where he was tackled and later made a three yard gain through center only to lose the ball on an intercepted forward pass. Eckberg of Dartmouth broke through the line with the stolen ball, but was laid low in nearly a clear field by one of Whittle's pretty tackles. Aggie then held Dartmouth to short gains on several line plunges until she recovered the ball on one of Dartmouth's unsuccessful attempts to make a gain. Pond kicked the ball to the 55 yard line, where Cannell of Dartmouth caught it and made a run through a broken field to our 15 yard line. Aggie then regained the ball, and Dartmouth was penalized 10 yards. Pond kicked to the 40 yard line where Aggie soon regained the ball by intercepting a forward. Pond again kicked and the ball was stopped on the 45 yard line. The Green then found it hard fighting and just made their distance on the fourth down. Holbrook made a touchdown after a hard fight near the Aggie line, making the score 14 to 0. A couple of minutes later the first half ended.

The second half brought our men out even more determined than ever to hold the Green line and "carry it to 'em." Dartmouth kicked to our 15 yard line, and Pond kicked back to the 40 yard line. M.A.C. again recovered the ball only to have Dartmouth score on a blocked kick.

Aggie's turn then came to score, and the ball went over the line on a series of brilliant forwards caught by Grayson and a hard fight at the end. Pond kicked off to the 10 yard line where M.A.C. was penalized 5 yards for being off side. Aggie thus got the ball and kicked along the ground to the 45 yard line. Grayson recovered the ball on an intercepted forward, and made a 35 and a 15 yard gain on forwards which were a feature of the game. Dartmouth was then penalized 5 yards, bringing the ball to her two yard line, where Aggie pushed it over, against stubborn resistance on the fourth down. Lent then kicked a goal and the score stood 21 to 7.

Pond was put out of the game soon after Aggie's score, and the M.A.C. line began to show the result of a hard fight. The Dartmouth line, renewed by substitutions, made one more touchdown, but failed to score a kicked goal, closing the game with the score 27 to 7.

Pond at quarter was Aggie's outstanding star, though forced to leave the game from injuries in the last quarter. The Aggies showed stubborn resistance to the heavier line of Dartmouth and showed considerable ability at forward passes. Grayson at right end deserves considerable credit for his work. Goodwin at center also did some fine work against men who far outweighed him. Other men who deserve mention are King for his fine tackling and line play, Whittle for tackling, Lent for his line plunges, and Holmes for play against a hard opposition.

Eckberg and Holbrook were the stars for the Green team, both figuring conspicuously in their line attacks. Dartmouth failed to make any successful forward passes, although several were attempted.

The Aggie team was well supported on the bleachers, and the sixty-five or seventy students who were there to cheer the team on deserve credit for their loyal support. Such a showing as that so far away from home shows that the old Aggie spirit is still with us.

Reflections of Telstar

Remember the picture above? It flashed across your television screen on a hot night last July. Perhaps you remember that it originated from France. And that it reached the U. S. via Telstar, the world's first private enterprise communications satellite.

Since that summer night, the Bell System's Telstar has relayed electronic signals of many types—television broadcasts, telephone calls, news photographs, and others.

But there's one Telstar reflection you might have missed. Look into the faces of the Bell System people below and you'll see it. It is the reflection of Telstar's success that glowed brightly on the faces of all who shared in the project.

Their engineering, administrative and operations skills created Telstar and are bringing its benefits down out of the clouds to your living room.

These Bell System people, through their talented, dedicated efforts, make your phone service still better, more economical, and more useful.

The reflections of Telstar are many.

Redmen Scalped By Powerful Dartmouth Indians

Teams Exchange Field Goals Then Green Explodes; Wins 27-3

by STEVE HEWEY '63, Associate Sports Editor

The University of Massachusetts broke out of its frustrated ground game long enough to tie Dartmouth College, 3-3, as time ran out in the first half, but then suffered a fatal relapse at the start of the third quarter as the fast-moving Dartmouth squad struck for a trio of touchdowns and a field goal to emerge victorious in its season opener 27-3. To the 8500 fans on hand at Memorial Stadium in Hanover, N.H., the Redmen appeared to be finally getting its offensive machine fired up when a fumble on the kickoff and a quick Dartmouth score opened the floodgates and the Redmen fires were drowned.

Dartmouth itself, with All-Ivy QB Bill King at the controls, was frustrated on several occasions, within the UM 25-yard line before Bill Wellstead was called upon to use his talents, and boot a field goal from the UM 19 early in the second quarter. King had passed and run and halfback Tom Spangenberg had cut through the Redmen defenses with impunity but the Green could not score until they decided to let Wellstead take a crack at the uprights.

The first two times UMass had the ball they had to kick on third down after finding the fast Green line a tough nut to crack. A fumble by Dartmouth and a recovery by John Kozaka gave the Redmen a first and ten on the Green 33 about midway through the second quarter, but once again the offense stalled as the Redmen backs were thrown for losses and Dartmouth took over on its 31. Bill King passed and ran the ball up to his own 47 but Dartmouth had to punt on a 4th and 4. Sam Lussier gathered in the ball on the 10 and ran it up to the 27. Lussier then carried to the 28 for 1 yard. On the following play QB Jerry Whelchel dropped back, looked downfield and triggered a 63 yard pass to Loren Flagg who was dropped on the Dartmouth 9 yard line. George Pleau came in with one second showing on the clock and lifted a 27 field goal from the Green 27 to knot the game at 3-3.

The second half kickoff held the key to the UM loss. Sam Lussier, back on his own 5, had the ball drop from his fingers into the endzone. After retrieving it and moving it out to the 8 he was greeted by a half dozen Darmouth tacklers who knocked the ball loose from his grip. Two plays later King swept around right end on a keeper and "Toe" Wellstead added the extra point. Shortly thereafter King and Co. were moving again and after passes to Spangenberg and Left End Charlie Greer, King let Wellstead boot his second 3-pointer of the afternoon, this one from the 19 to build the Green lead to 13-3.

Dartmouth's quarterback and captain Bill King called the plays for the Big Green through most of Saturday's action.

Early in the fourth quarter Dartmouth went 70 yards in 17 carries with halfback Gary Wilson scoring from the 5. The last score of the game came about 5 minutes later when a Dartmouth linebacker intercepted a Schroeder pass on the UM 45 and raced to the 19. Second string QB Dana Kelly, subbing for King, took it over on a quarterback sneak five plays later.

UMass came close on several occasions to changing the complexion of the ball game. Loren Flagg almost grabbed a King pass on the UM goal line. Had he held on he could have trotted down the sideline all alone. Ken Kezer took off with a third period kickoff and only an ankle grab by Bill King him from racing for the TD.

Sideline Slants

Dartmouth QB Bill King, 4th ranking QB nationally in total yardage last year, completed 11 of 16 passes Saturday for 133 yards and he picked up 38 yards in 8 carries . . . Sam Lussier was virtually immobile against the Green defenses. In 6 attempts Sam managed only 16 yards . . . UM halfback Phil DeRose looked well Saturday afternoon in picking up 18 yards in two tries . . . U.R.I. pulled an upset win over the U. of Maine squad, 14-7 . . . Other Yan Con teams fared thusly: Vermont handled R.P.I., 82-6 (Ouch!) and Yale had to come from behind to top UConn, 18-14. New Hampshire beat Colby, 18-14 . . . Next Redmen foe: Bucknell.

Dartmouth halfback Tom Spangenberg (23) is stymied in his running attempt by Redmen end John Hudson (84).

The Big Green's Gary Wilson (24) tries to break away from Paul Majeski's (80) tackle but is nevertheless thrown for a loss by the Redmen end.

Music Of Songwriter Loesser Is Reviewed

Frank Loesser, writer of the musical comedy "Guys and Dolls" to be presented by the UMass Operetta Guild, was born on Manhattan's Upper West Side on June 29, 1910, of musical stock.

After school and during the depression, Loesser wrestled with a succession of jobs. In his spare time he wrote songs, acts, sketchers, and radio scripts. He partnered with William Schumann in selling songs to vaudeville and nightclub performers. Since that time Loesser has turned out approximately 1500 songs, with at least thirty appearing on the Hit Parade.

He is also winner of the Academy Award for his song, "Baby It's Cold Outside." Some of the songs he composed while in uniform, like "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition," "Rodger Young," and "What Do You Do in the Infantry," have become part of the national tradition.

The first success in Loesser's book of hits was "The Moon of Manakoora" (1937) which he wrote for Dorothy Lamour in the picture "Hurricane."

He has made notable contributions to more than 100 motion pictures; perhaps his best-known original motion picture score is "Hans Christian Andersen."

"Guys and Dolls" came in November, 1950. It ran for 1200 performances. Its hit songs, which the Guild will present on October 11, 12, 13, and 14, include "A Bushel and a Peck," "Guys and Dolls," "If I were a Bell," "I'll Know," "I've Never Been in Love Before," "My Time of Day," "More I cannot Wish You," and "Sit Down You're Rockin' the Boat."

"The Most Happy Fella" opened at the Imperial Theatre in May, 1956, for 676 performances. It, too, was a hit and had us all singing, "Standing on the Corner," "Big D," "Joey, Joey, Joey," and "Warm All Over."

Currently he is represented on Broadway by the hit musical, "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," a show which gained unanimous critical acclaim and won the Pulitzer Prize.

have the maturity and sensibility to adopt a serious approach to the part," said Mahnken about the casting for the Theatre's four planned presentations.

"Acting," he said, "is a solid practical effort to produce a given effect upon an audience and cannot be attempted in a flighty, every-which-way manner."

Distinguished Visitors Comm. Promotes Outstanding Events

At its inception in the school year 1959-60, the UMass Distinguished Visitors' Program was hailed by Time and New Republic for its originality and purposefulness, as the first organization of its kind in any American institution of higher education.

Following its avowed purpose "to attract to our campus . . . distinguished and eminent personages or provide enriching educational and cultural experiences," the Program early brought to UMass such speakers as Eleanor Roosevelt, Bennett Cerf, poet Ogden Nash and Composer Aaron Copland.

Student Supported

The DVP is supported by a $3 tax from each student, appropriated through the Student Senate. Besides its programming duties, the Program also offers to needy students, short-term loans of up to $300 with low interest rates. The Program also contributes to the National Defense Loan Program, whereby the University provides $1 for every $9 the Federal Government supplies for student loans.

This year's Program committee is to be comprised of 22 members, including four student Senate representatives, four Class representatives, nine students representing the University's three major divisions—humanities, social sciences, and physio-natural sciences,—and Administration representative Gilbert Woodside, Board of Trustees representative John W. Haigis, Jr., and three faculty members serving in an advisory capacity.

Already members of this year's committee are Chairman Lloyd David, Treasurer Lee Ann Mansell, Secretary Mrs. Eleanor Freisem, Programming Chairman Karen Canfield, Betsy Robicheau, Charles Kessler, James Medeiros, Catherine O'Connell, Provost Woodside and Mr. Haigis.

Remaining positions will be assigned to applicants some time this week. A Program spokesman said that interviews would be held early this week with applicants, and final decisions made within several days.

According to Program Chairman David, the DVP hopes "to surpass its past achievements during this coming year."

And this may prove a task. Last year alone, the Program brought to campus such personalities as noted scientist Dr. Wehrner Von Braun and publisher-humorist Bennett Cerf. Von Braun's address was broadcast on the Educational Radio Network all down the Eastern Seaboard.

First Offering This Year: "Under Milkwood"

The DVP's first offering this year will be the October 9 presentation of Dylan Thomas' "Under Milkwood", to be performed by the original cast from New York's well-known Circle-in-the-Square Theater.

Also on the agenda in future months will be appearances by Carlos Romulo, former president of the UN General Assembly; Eric Sevareid, CBS news commentator; and comedian-pianist Henry Scott.

Having found that UMass students, in the past, have had to be turned away from programs because of space limitations the DVP is inaugurating a new ticket plan this year for all its events, whereby students may reserve seats for themselves well in advance of the program.

Major Effort: Centennial Presentation

The Program's major effort this year will be its centennial program. The keynote speaker has not yet been chosen, but already planned is a discussion between Congresswoman Edith Green, chairman of the House Education Committee, and Selig Harrison, editor of New Republic, on "Student Market: Is the Dollar Shaping our Curriculum?"

The speakers will attempt to discern whether the purpose of a higher education is to enable one to earn more money in later life or to make one a better person.

In future years, as the campus expands, said Chairman David, DVP also hopes to expand in the breadth and scope of its programs. Presently, many "Distinguished Visitors" to the campus have paramount interest only to a relatively small segment of the student body. With this in mind, the DVP will attempt to plan more comprehensive programs that will interest all students, no matter what their school or major field, said David.

Program Aimed At Student

The Distinguished Visitors Program is an example of what cooperation between the student body, faculty and administration can do, but its main concern is with the student. As Chairman David said, "The Distinguished Visitors Program is supported by a student tax and programmed to student interest. It is up to them to take advantage of it."

Major Edward A. Bamber, the new Assistant Professor of Air Science and Executive Officer, was transferred here from Orley Field, Paris, France. During WWII, Major Bamber was a B-25 pilot in the South Pacific.

In 1950 he was assigned to a tactical support unit in Korea where he served for 22 months before returning to the U.S. The Major completed degree requirements and was graduated from U.N.H. in 1958, before being reassigned to Paris, France.

Capt. Robert W. Gailey, the new Assistant Professor of Air Science and Assistant Commandant of Cadets, was a Distinguished Military Graduate from U.N.H. and received his regular commission in 1957. His career has included tours of duty at Ladd and Eielson A.F.B. in Fairbanks, Alaska, the Pentagon, and an air craft and radar site in Washington State.

Tickets Now Available For "Under Milkwood"

by RUSSELL MURPHY '65

The Theodore Mann — Jose Quintero Production of the comedy-drama "Under Milkwood" will be arriving on the UMass campus after an appearance in Albany, N.Y., Monday. All is part of a scheduled three-week tour organized by the Circle-in-the-Square of which Mr. Mann and Mr. Quintero are co-producers.

The play is to be presented here next Tuesday evening at 8 p.m.

"Under Milkwood," telling of life and love in a Welsh seacoast village, first appeared on Broadway two years ago. Receiving favorable reviews, it had been selected by Mann and Quintero in recognition of their own 10th anniversary as theatrical collaborators.

After closing on Broadway, it re-appeared early last year in the repertoire of the off-Broadway theater, Circle-in-the-Square. It continued playing there until the recent tour was organized.

Most of Original Cast To Appear

The play will be presented here with most of the original cast. However, Thomas Brennan, associate director of the Williamstown Summer Theater, will be the narrator during the tour and is new to the company.

The team of Mann and Quintero have produced a good number of plays both on and off Broadway. Mr. Mann, who studied law in college, and Mr. Quintero, who prepared for a career in medicine, first joined forces in a summer theater venture at Woodstock, N.Y. Success there led them to try their hand in New York City.

Thus far the two have produced such plays as "Long Day's Journey into Night," "Our Town," "Summer and Smoke," "The Girl on the Via Flaminia," and "The Iceman Cometh." Both they and these productions have received several awards, among them the Pulitzer Prize, the Newspaper Guild's Page One Award, the Variety Award, the Vernon Rice Memorial Award, and the Lola D'Annunzio Award.

The two producers have also ventured out on their own. Mr. Quintero has directed for the Metropolitan Opera Co., the New York City Center, and the "Festival of Two Worlds" in Spoleto, Italy. Mr. Mann is co-founder with Alexander Schneider of the Christmas Eve Concert at Carnegie Hall and the Washington Square Concerts held summers in New York City. He also directed "A Taste of Honey" this summer at Williamstown.

Lloyd David '63, chairman of the Distinguished Visitors Program, notes that "Under Milkwood" is but the first of a number of excellent offerings to be brought to the UMass campus by the organization. The Program is supported by a student tax and is intended to bring distinguished personages or other such cultural ventures to the University.

The team of Mann and Quintero first appeared on Broadway with the 1950 musical fantasy, "Dark of the Moon," winner of four awards. They are currently producing two cycles of plays by Thornton Wilder entitled "The Seven Ages of Man" and "The Seven Deadly Sins."

Tickets for students for the upcoming presentation of Dylan Thomas' Under Milkwood, will be given out today through Friday from 10 a.m. to noon and from 2 to 4 p.m. in the ticket booth of the S.U. lobby.

Convocation Officially Opens Centennial Year Celebration

The first major UMass Centennial event will take place at 3 p.m. on the spacious lawn east of the S.U. tomorrow. Open to the general public, the convocation is expected to draw an audience of thousands from the student body, parents, alumni, trustees, faculty, administration, and friends of the University.

The honor of officially opening centennial proceedings will go to James T. Nicholson, member of the Class of 1916 and Centennial Chairman. Mr. Nicholson was for many years executive vice-president of the American Red Cross.

Official greetings from the Commonwealth will be given by Governor John A. Volpe.

Governor Volpe to Attend

Presiding over the colorful exercises will be Dr. John W. Lederle, 15th President of the University. Dr. Frank L. Boyden, Headmaster of Deerfield Academy and Chairman of the University's Board of Trustees, will give the address of welcome.

"Challenge to Greatness" is the title of the main address, to be given by John J. McCloy, chairman of the General Advisory Committee on Disarmament and distinguished international diplomat, lawyer, banker and leader in education.

President Lederle will present honorary degrees to Mr. McCloy and the presidents of the three neighboring institutions. Mr. McCloy will receive a Doctor of Laws degree. Doctor of Humane Letters degrees will be presented to Richard Glenn Gettell, President of Mount Holyoke College; Thomas Corwin Mendenhall, President of Smith College; Calvin Hastings Plimpton, President of Amherst College.

Award To Be Given

A highlight of the centennial event will be the first annual award to a faculty member as the Distinguished Teacher of the Year. The presentation will be made by Dr. Gilbert L. Woodside, Provost of the University.

Student members of the academic procession will be Gordon N. Oakes, President of the Centennial Class, from Clarksburg; Donald Cournoyer, President of the Student Senate from Southbridge; John Gounaris, Senior Class Centennial Chairman from Medford; and Betsy Robicheau, Student Senate Vice-President from Wellfleet. Other seniors will not participate in the procession, but will be shown to reserved seats, close to the front.

In case of inclement weather the convocation will be held inside the Ballroom.

Northampton Project To Hold Orientation

The Northampton Project will resume this year with an orientation meeting at 7 p.m. October 4 at Northampton State Hospital.

The Project is a massive effort to get every available volunteer resource the region affords into the hospital, working with the patients, in order to study the effect this increased contact will have on recoveries.

Volunteers from the four colleges of this area, plus A.I.C. and Springfield, work together in a special program for college students. The hospital personnel, realizing that most students are not free during the day, have arranged volunteer programs for them in the evening.

All types of programs are available to interested students, including remotivation, psychodrama, recreation and entertainment. Each one of these programs will be explained at the orientation meeting, and meeting times will be arranged.

Student volunteers will work on the wards with the patients, but are not expected to do anything in the way of maintenance, which is done by ward attendants.

Committees Organized For Winter Carnival

About 200 members of the Junior class signed up for membership on committees for the 1963 Winter Carnival at a meeting of the Class of '64 yesterday at 11 a.m. in Bartlett Auditorium.

Winter Carni Publicity Chairman Steve Kingsley said, "Since this is the Centennial year, the Carni is expected to include a variety of new and interesting activities and exhibits. The Committee has already begun formulating plans for what is predicted to be one of the most colorful weekends in Winter Carni history."

Chosen at the meeting as new class advisor was Clarence B. Shelnutt, who will work with '64 officers Jim Medeiros, President; Betty Mercer, Secretary; and Carol Esonis, Treasurer.

Committee Chairmen and their committees are: Bev Bothello and Jim Norton, Activities; Bonnie Hunter and Jack Nevers, Ball Committee; Margaret Walters and Art Collins, Weekend Committee; Courtney Brickman, Concert Committee; Merry Arnold and Steve Kingsley, Publicity Committee.

The Winter Carnival is an annual event sponsored by the Junior Class and will be held this year on February 8, 9, and 10.

TOO MUCH PRESSURE

One week ago this campus witnessed a demonstration that has been termed everything from a riot to a big joke and lots of fun. We will not argue with those who consider this "demonstration" a lot of fun; we can not argue with immaturity.

We have been both praised and condemned for suggesting that the eight people caught by the campus police should receive disciplinary action. When we made this suggestion we realized full well that restrictions on students were one major cause of the "demonstration."

We do not imply that the administration or faculty are following students around with cat-o-nine-tails, but we do recognize that there are several restrictions on student activities.

The physical limits of dormitory rooms, seven o'clock curfews for freshmen, required ROTC, lack of well-organized mixed social activities—all of these are restrictions which may or may not be minor in themselves, but which when added together add up to something much more serious.

We feel that the University has neglected to ease the social pressures on students as it forges ahead on its physical and academic development. Some sort of organized and orderly release for these pressures should be considered. This, however, in no way constitutes an excuse for the eight people in question. The fact that they are only eight of over two thousand in no way makes them less guilty.

It must be realized that even though most of the two thousand were doing nothing more than standing around, the audience that these onlookers create is an incentive for the more malicious in the group to go on "to bigger and better things."

Some of the women in Brooks Dormitory are certainly not helping the situation by hanging out the windows and yelling just as loud as the men. To say that they are helping to incite the crowds below is an understatement.

The other major cause of the "demonstration" was the locality of Brooks Dormitory. Placing a woman's dorm in the middle of a men's complex is inviting trouble, but we must face the fact that for this year at least Brooks will remain a woman's dorm.

Realization by both men and women that just standing around and yelling is as much a part of a mob as the stone throwers will help solve the problem. Release of social and academic pressures in an orderly manner will also help.

Spring day did have its good points.

FOUR COLLEGE CALENDAR

To the Editor:

With the rapidly increasing scope of the Four College Program, it becomes necessary to point out an obstacle which could bring this worthy effort to a premature ending.

Because of the different yearly calendars of the schools involved, it is difficult indeed to prepare a Four College class schedule which does not conflict with a vacation period at one or more of the four schools.

It is with utmost sincerity that I request the University administration to take this reminder into consideration when arranging future years' calendars.

Sincerely,
Bob Brauer '64

Letters to the Editor

Put More In Thy Purse

To the Editor:

May I make a plea in your pages for wider, more thoughtful reading and support of The Literary Magazine? As that student-periodical has become more distinguished, now comparing more than favorably with the Amherst College magazine, for instance, your representatives in their Congress assembled are curiously withdrawing support from it. Not four, but three issues a year—they have said; now, two . . . as though they were bent on some final countdown. But before we all go LUNAtic together, let us consider what The Literary Magazine is worth on (and—horizontally—off) this campus.

It is a very valuable vehicle for intelligent, imaginative, and critical student expression. For those of you who write and employ the graphic arts with distinction—an increasing number, less and less apologetic or clique-ish—this magazine offers an opportunity to get a more accurate sense of how your individual expressions are being received by others—a very important experience for fuller participation in ANY cultural dialogue. But should individual/public dialogue cease, OUR culture will have died.

Thus, equally important, for those of you who want to read and see with open ears and eyes, this magazine offers in every issue a valuable opportunity to triangulate on yourselves and your milieu through engagement with several other articulate consciousnesses, each with his own way of addressing himself to experience. The Literary Magazine provides the faculty, administration, staff, community, et al. the same opportunity, and let us hope more will be permitted to avail themselves of it.

There is, further, no reason on earth (as there may be on LUNA) why even-better-than-Hemingways-and-Eliots-and-Klees should not begin famous careers in The Literary Magazine. I know already two writers who have been heartened to further their craft and their reception remarkably since 1958 because they began exactly here.

I have, alas, forgotten who won the rugby match or who repaired the bridge at London in 1600, but I remember almost every line of "Hamlet." What—tease your Senators with it—are we opening our eyes and ears to, these days at the University? I say, give yourselves every chance—and thus give me a chance—to read and see in handsome print the best of your own writers and graphic artists as often as possible. Put money in thy purse. Bring one less bomb-designer to flex his muscles on the stage in the Ballroom, one less, for my sake, and instead let me read in handsome type what the world of one girl poet might then look like to her. Educate me.

Yours gratefully,
Robert G. Tucker
Assistant Professor of English

MALE AND FEMALE

To the Editor:

I am sick and tired of being disturbed once a week by the riots at Brooks dorm. I am forced to drop book and pencil and rush down the hill in order to prevent myself from being labeled an apathetic student.

Whose stupid idea was it to put girls in Brooks dormitory anyway? Whoever it was I recommend their reading Male and Female by Margaret Mead.

The least the girls could do is to refrain from throwing their "undies" out of the windows.

When will this campus grow up?

Indignant Student

ARE YOU KIDDING?

To the Editor:

Why do people write to the editor? No one ever heeds the letters. It appears that recent letters are put in only to fill up space.

Jack Singer

That's why yours is in, we needed four lines to fill up this space. —Ed.

A PAT ON THE BACK

To the Editor:

I would like to pay tribute to the staff of radio station WMUA. When I came to the University in September of 1959 the programming on WMUA consisted of nine-tenths rock-'n-roll supplemented by one-tenth part stale news.

Today WMUA is reflecting the mature tastes of a college population. The programming is balanced for all musical tastes, and several non-musical programs have been introduced. The station is truly becoming an educational communications medium.

I am particularly pleased to hear that language broadcasts have been arranged for the benefit of the entire Connecticut Valley as well as the campus in general.

The University can certainly be proud of WMUA.

Murray Lincoln To Speak At Agriculture Convocation

Entirely student sponsored and headlining one of UMass' most prominent and successful alumni as speaker, a College of Agriculture Centennial Convocation will be held Thursday, October 25 at 11 a.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

Dr. Murray D. Lincoln of Columbus, Ohio, an animal husbandry alumnus of Massachusetts Agricultural College with the class of '14, the president of CARE the first 12 years of its operation, a member of the Advisory Council to the Peace Corps, chairman of the Food for Peace task force, and insurance executive, is the speaker.

The convocation is open to all students, faculty and the public. It is part of the university's year-long centennial observance to be officially launched on October 4 with a public Opening Convocation.

Alpha Zeta, national honorary agricultural fraternity, and STOSO, Stockbridge School service organization, are co-sponsoring the event. Student co-chairmen are Charles Brown, food science and technology, '63; and Rone Medeiros, SS food management, '63. Brown is chancellor of the Massachusetts Chapter of Alpha Zeta, and Medeiros is president of STOSO and the Stockbridge Class of '63.

Edward G. Parsons, agricultural economics, '63, will preside at the convocation as speaker chairman, student committee for the centennial convocation. Following Dr. Lincoln's address, scholarship awards will be presented.

Alpha Zeta plans to confer an honorary membership upon Dr. Lincoln at a Wednesday night meeting prior to the convocation.

Eight New Senators Elected

by RUTH KOBS '64

UMass went to the polls yesterday to elect new fraternity, sorority, and commuter senators.

In the race for Commuter senator, four were elected to represent commuters including a write-in who won with eight votes.

All newly elected senators are asked to report tonight to the Council Chambers at 7 p.m. to be sworn in.

The senators elected from the fraternities are Don Cournoyer (incumbent), Steve Gray (incumbent), and David Clancy.

The commuters elected as their senators Maurice G. Perry, Michael Buckman, Richard Boyden, and William Donovan.

Elected as senator to represent the sororities was Joan Werner.

The Co-chairmen of the Senate Elections Committee, Fred Thurberg and Rosemary Seward, declared that the "new blood" will be good for the Senate.

C.A. To Sponsor Weekly Services

A series of weekly Fireside Vesper Services will begin this evening at 9:30 in Memorial Hall, sponsored by the Christian Association.

The services are open to the general campus, and are specifically held in a central location for easy accessibility to the entire student body. They will run for no longer than one-half an hour, and provide an opportunity for quiet worship and meditation.

Freshman women may request a housemother's excuse to attend the services.

Phi Eta Sigma Tutoring Continues This Semester

A Phi Eta Sigma spokesman has announced the honor society's tutoring schedule for the current semester.

This year Phi Eta Sigma will be assisted in its tutoring activities by Alpha Lambda Delta, the freshman Women's honor society.

Tutoring will begin next week except for Math 29, which will begin the week of October 15th. All rooms are located in the West Wing of Machmer.

The schedule follows:

Botany 1, Mon., W-15 from 7 to 8 p.m., and Tues., W-14 from 7 to 8 p.m.; Chem. 1, Thurs., W-16 from 7 to 8 p.m.; Chem. 3, Wed., W-36 from 7 to 8 p.m.; and Eng. 1, Fri., W-14 from 7 to 8 p.m.

Also, German 1, Mon., W-16 from 8 to 9 p.m.; Geol. 1, Wed., W-36 from 8 to 9 p.m.; Hist. 5, Wed., W-15 from 7 to 8 p.m.; Math 5, Wed., W-14 from 7 to 8 p.m.; Math 29, Mon., W-16 from 7 to 8 p.m.; M.E. 1, Mon., W-14 from 7 to 8 p.m.; Physics 5, Wed., W-14 from 8 to 9 p.m.; Psych. 1, Mon., W-36 from 7 to 8 p.m.; Zool. 1, Tues., W-16 from 7 to 8 p.m.

Computer Scheduling System At UMass Considered "An Unqualified Success"

by JOAN ST. LAURENT '66

According to the University Scheduling Officer Hills Skillings, the results of the computer scheduling system used for the first time this September at the University were "an unqualified success."

Skillings said an advantage of this computer program is the better and more efficient use of faculty time. Instead of having 14 to 15 scheduling office staff devoting all their time to scheduling, they can be better used as student advisors and counselors. More important though, the machines assign the maximum amount of students to each classroom. Thus with greater use of classroom space more students can be accepted into the college.

Four objectives of the computer program are to avoid time conflicts in courses, allow necessary free time when authorized by the Dean of Students, equalize the number of courses per day, and produce classes of a reasonable size.

This program still allows the student a certain amount of freedom in choosing a course and professor.

Four years of planning were necessary before the program could be tried. Since March of this year four full scale trial tests have been run with successful results. The few mistakes made in the September schedules were human errors rather than the computer's fault.

The ultimate objective of computerized scheduling is more efficient use of the facilities of the University, which this Fall is offering 700 different courses in 1700 different sections to 6200 students.

Finding combinations of times, rooms, teachers and students which will result in the most effective use of teaching talent and building space and give students practical schedules is a problem more efficiently handled by computers than humans, say authorities on the subject.

Using IBM machines for scheduling is a new concept in college administration. UMass, along with Purdue University, is pioneering the way with many other colleges beginning to take up the example.

This new program is a little more expensive than the old system, though the actual computer time is only about 10 cents per student.

The Data Processing unit located in South College not only is used for scheduling but for payrolls, class rosters and inventory work.

Dr. Wm. McEwen Slated To Deliver Chemistry Lecture

Dr. William E. McEwen, recently appointed head of the UMass Chemistry Department, will speak to students and faculty at 8 p.m. tonight in Peters Auditorium, Chemistry Club officials have announced.

Freshmen are especially urged to attend this event, they said.

A club spokesman said this would be "an opportunity to meet the chemistry department and to gain insight into one of the many facets of chemistry." Dr. McEwen's topic will be "Valence States You Don't Hear About in Freshman Chemistry."

Freshman women may obtain permission to attend from their house mothers. The lecture is preceded by a business meeting at 7:30 and is followed by a refreshment period.

Registration For Adult Ed. Classes To Be Held Wed.

Registration will be held tonight at Amherst Regional High School for those who wish to enroll in the 1962-63. Adult Education Program.

Included among the courses will be instructions in beginning sewing, advanced sewing, beginning hooked rugs, advanced hooked rugs, and braided rugs.

Classes in decorated ware, screen process printing, handcrafted gifts and decorations and advanced leathercraft, woodworking for men, furniture refinishing, and chair caning are also offered.

Beginning typing, intermediate typing, basic English, modern mathematics, and Americanization will also be taught.

In the foreign language department, there will be classes in beginning French, intermediate French, beginning Spanish, advanced Spanish, Russian and German.

A registration fee for all courses will be collected at the first meeting and class materials will be provided by the students themselves.

Speaking Of Sports

by BARRY BROOKS '63

Bucknell University's campus lies at the end of the broad Buffalo Valley, the last stamping grounds of the American Bison in the east. At one time at least 10,000 roamed the reaches of this valley. The last buffalo in this section is believed to have been shot in 1800 about two miles from Bucknell's Memorial Stadium. This weekend the wandering Redman Tribe will treat Lewisburg residents to their first Bison hunt in 162 years. Bucknell and Massachusetts, two teams listed as leading contenders for their respective conference championships, will meet for the first time on Saturday afternoon.

For the second week in a row UMass must face a conference favorite. Last week it was Dartmouth of the Ivies; this week Bucknell of the Middle Atlantic Conference. Rutgers having vacated the MAC, leaves the Bisons as pre-season favorites to wear the crown.

In the last three years the Bisons have led the MAC in passing and defense, a combination that earned Bucknell the Lambert Cup, symbol of small-college supremacy in the East, in 1960. In the past two seasons the Bisons have posted 7-2 and 6-3 records respectively.

Rutgers, with All-American Alex Kroll, was the only team to score more than two touchdowns against the Bisons in the last two years.

Already Bucknell has edged out its first two wins of the season by beating Gettysburg and Temple, each by one point in strong second half performances.

Like the Redman squad, the Bisons are a young team. Sophomores comprise half the squad (24). Bucknell has only one experienced back, junior half-back Mike Connell, besides their quarterbacks.

Coach Bob Odell uses a two-team system of play. Like many college teams, Bucknell attempts to use one unit for seven and one half minutes a quarter and then play the second unit for the last half of each period.

The Bison offense is centered around a strong passing attack. They will throw that ball—"in fact will throw it up to 30 times every game." The sparkplug is Ron Giordano, a little 5'8, 175 pound southpaw with a strong arm. Giordano has hit his target 21 times out of 30 so far this season.

Bucknell operates out of a Wing-T, sometimes switching to an unbalanced line with a lonely end and a man in motion.

YanCon Highlights

In the only conference action last Saturday Rhody downed Maine 14-7. YanCon patsy Vermont whipped R.P.I. 82-6. UConn struggled with Yale, only to wind up on the short side of an 18-14 final. New Hampshire beat Colby 18-14 in the final minute of play.

UMass Harriers Outrun Coast Guard Academy

VARSITY

by JAMES RYAN '65

Aided by Bob Brouillet's brilliant individual performance, the Redmen cross country team defeated the Coast Guard Academy Saturday by a score of 19-40. Brouillet set a new home course record when he finished first in a time of 24:27.4, breaking by 1.1 seconds the old record of 24:28.5 set by senior Dave Balch in 1960. Bob finished the 4.6 mile course 32.6 seconds ahead of the second place finisher, teammate Jim Wrynn, who also ran an outstanding race.

The squad took eight of the first eleven places in a demonstration of power and depth. Coast Guard's Dennis Brady finished first for his team and third in the race. Following him were Bob Pendleton, running exceptionally well in his first race in a UMass uniform, and sophomore Tom Panke, running his first varsity race. Other UMass harriers in their order of finish were Bob Ramsay, Dick Blomstrom, Dave Balch, Ken O'Brien, John Lavoie, and Gene Colburn.

Balch, Blomstrom, and O'Brien are all expected to move up as the season progresses and add more depth, an essential feature of a good cross country team.

Coach Footrick was highly pleased with the results of his opening meet, and has high hopes for next Saturday's meet with the University of Maine at Orono. This meet should be very close, as both of these YanCon members have strong teams.

by GENE COLBURN '64

Due to an administrative mix-up the Coast Guard Academy failed to bring along its freshmen team to the UMass campus, allowing the Little Redmen to win by default. However, those frosh who were hoping to get away without a workout were in for a surprise. Coach Cobb seldom misses an opportunity to give the boys a good workout, and Saturday was no exception.

After quickly conferring with the coach from the Academy, the frosh found themselves running in the varsity race. Although they were not to count in the actual scoring of the meet, Mr. Cobb wanted to see how the frosh would do in a 5 mile run. Their response was excellent.

Bob Molvan continued to lead the freshmen, as he finished well up in the first 10 varsity finishers. Dave Sullivan, Clayton Berry, and Don Campfield also did very well. Carl Lopes, John Hill, John Scharban, Ron Oakland, and Don Cheney rounded out the freshmen who ran Saturday.

The performance of the frosh is even more amazing when it is realized that they have been training for 3 mile races, not 5 mile races. Their performance on Saturday was indicative of two things. Not only are they shaping up to be the best freshman team ever, but also, they are going to be a big help to the varsity next year. The next meet for the freshmen will be at home against Springfield on Oct. 9.

Thanks

Director of Athletics Warren McGuirk wishes to express, in behalf of the athletic department, appreciation for the fine support given the Redmen by the UMass Student Body at Dartmouth.

THE IFC SCENE

by JOHN CARR '64

The I.F.C. football competition started its second week on Monday evening with a full schedule of games on tap. At seven o'clock, TEP took on ASP, while at the other end of the field, SAE faced once beaten ZN. The second set of games saw TKE against KS, and PSD battling QTV.

SAE got off to a fast start with Kenny Fallon scoring first on a pass from Tony Kazukonis. De Paolo added the extra point and SAE led 7-0. In the second half, SAE picked up two more T.D.s, and the final score was 19-0.

TEP, with Davidow throwing and Gordon hauling in his passes for three touchdowns, easily defeated ASP 19-0. Al Forman made one of his infrequent appearances at quarterback and completed a pass to Bill Martin for the only extra point of the contest. Charlie Gordon was outstanding for the Teppers as his three catches were all of the outstanding variety.

Later in the evening, QTV showed too much all around power for PSD to cope with and rolled up a 34-0 victory. Knutsin and Meunir, with two touchdowns apiece, led the scoring for QTV.

The final game of the night pitted two previously undefeated teams against each other. KS marched right up the field the first time it had the ball; Crain pitched to Hughes for the initial score, and John Harrington made a diving catch for the point after. The remainder of the contest went much the same way as Crain threw four touchdown passes and scored once himself. The final tally was KS 34-TKE 6. The fine showing made by KS marks them as the team to beat in their league and maybe in the entire IFC.

UM Soccer Begins Sat.

by DAVE PODBROS '65

This Saturday, the UMass varsity soccer team begins its first official game of the season. Their opponents will be last year's New England Championship winners, Williams College. Last year's UMass squad compiled a record of 3 wins, 6 losses and one tie. It is expected this record will be greatly improved upon. Coach Larry Briggs says that this squad is "as good as last year" and maybe better.

The spark of this year's team will probably be Captain Richard Repeta, who last year was named to the All New England squad. Other members of the squad are Garsyo at right half, Clinton at left half, Paleocianus at right wing, Aksioncyzk at right inside, Dick Leete at left inside, Bob Chenery at center forward, Astaldi at left outside, and Abdul Samma in almost any position. The three possible goalies: Phillips, McDevitt, and Conlin.

The schedule this year is the same as last year except for the addition of Army. Williams is as strong as last year and will undoubtedly be a tough contender. Trinity is better and so is Amherst. Tufts, Coast Guard, and W.P.I. have about the same caliber teams. UConn and Rhode Island are questionable. As for Army, the new addition, Coach Briggs says, "Army is always good."

This year's squad has more depth and more experience than last year's, and will hopefully have a better season.

UMass Grad Student Wins Essay Contest

SEVA SUD

Miss Seva Sud, graduate student in the UMass government department, has been awarded first place in an essay competition, sponsored by the American Studies Association. Topic of her paper was "The Failure of Underdeveloped Countries."

Miss Sud, who has received master's degrees from University of Delhi and from Smith, is currently working toward a doctorate in goverment.

She will read her paper at the American Historical Conference to be held in December at Chicago.

According to Miss Sud, the general conditions in all underdeveloped countries lie on "poverty, illiteracy, over-population, untampered resources, and lack of capital."

"The solution of these problems lies in a mixed economy, industrialization side by side with handicrafts, means of production owned by the government as weil as privately."

She said that, "in the case of India, the West should be liberal in its attitudes of help because basically, there are many factors of similarity between India and the U.S., including colonialism under British rule, struggle for freedom, respect to all democratic principles of liberty, equality and freedom."

NOTICES

NAIAD TRYOUTS

Naiads will hold tryouts Wednesday, October 3 and Thursday, October 4, from 5 to 6 p.m. in the women's Physical Ed. building.

INTERNATIONAL WEEKEND COMMITTEE

The International Weekend Committee will hold its first meeting Wednesday, October 3, in the Nantucket Room of the Student Union at 8 p.m. All who are interested are invited to attend.

INFIRMARY HOURS

Students are reminded of the hours during which the Infirmary Outpatient Department is open:

Week-days 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Saturdays 8 a.m. to 12 noon

Care at other times is available for emergencies only. Visiting hours are from 7 to 8 p.m. daily.

ABSENTEE BALLOTS

Absentee ballots for the November elections may be obtained by those registered voters who are living more than thirty miles from their homes. Contact the Clerk of Courts in your hometown for the necessary form.

BOOK AVAILABLE SOON

The University of Massachusetts: A History of One Hundred Years, a 250 page centennial history of UMass written by Professor Harold W. Cary of the History Department, will be available on campus shortly before the Thanksgiving recess. Students holding paid book orders will receive their copies at this time.

NEW SENATORS

The newly elected student senators will be sworn in at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the council chamber of the S.U. All members of the student body are invited to attend.

FRESHMAN NOMINATION PAPERS

Nomination papers for Freshman class officers are now available in the R.S.O. office. They are to be completed and returned to the R.S.O. office by October 8 at 4 p.m.

International Club To Hold First Meeting

Abdul Samma has announced an initial meeting of the International Club to be held Friday at 8 p.m. in the Council Chambers of the SU to formulate plans for the year.

American students, as well as foreign students at the University, he said, are urged to attend.

Election of officers for the current year will be the first order of business on the agenda, which will also include planning a U.N. Week program and working on a Club constitution.

Samma said the Club this year hopes to expand its activities programming and to take on a larger membership than previously.

Students Rally And Poll On "Ole Miss" Situation

Massachusetts Schools Vary In Poll Response

by AUDREY RAYNER '63

A student poll taken at several Massachusetts colleges and universities recently revealed that a majority of the campus crowd in the area is opposed to severe academic action for the University of Mississippi in the light of the violent political upheavals at the enrollment of Negro student James Meredith.

A cross-section of UMass students, who were asked: "Are you in favor of removing accreditation from the University of Mississippi?", were surprisingly divided in responses and opinions. In contrast to other Massachusetts schools, which were decidedly against removal of accreditation, the UMass poll revealed a 50-50 split and many reasons to back up decisions.

Joe Bradley '64, was "in favor of removing accreditation as the situation stands now, but I'd like to see something more objective. Lowering accreditation is not going to shake those responsible out of their rockbound bigotry."

Mary Roche, also a junior, was opposed to removing accreditation "for the sake of those students who don't have anything to do with the problem."

A senior, Lester Neale, said, "I certainly do favor removal, no holds barred. The University of Mississippi is not acting like an academic institution."

Several students felt that the academic standing of the University was completely unrelated to its political actions. Others pointed out that removal of accreditation would be entirely unfair to seniors who were not active participants in the rioting.

Another few UMass-ers blamed the affair on the administrators of the state, particularly Governor Ross R. Barnett, stating that the students should not be "punished" for the actions of state officials.

In other Massachusetts colleges, an overwhelming majority of students was opposed to the removal of accreditation. The following institutions were opposed by the corresponding percentages:

Boston College 80%
Northeastern Univ. 100%
Bates College 80%
Suffolk University 75%

According to Tom Conroy, spokesman for the Northeastern weekly newspaper, which acted as clearing-house for the poll, other schools in the Boston area conducted individual actions concerning the Mississippi situation.

Boston University, according to Conroy, sent a telegram of encouragement and backing signed by 1400 students, including chaplains of the school, to Meredith.

Harvard University, which had formed a Liberal Union with Radcliffe on the evening of the rioting on the Mississippi campus, began a campaign of wear-

1100 Students Hold Rally In Springfield

by JOE BRADLEY '64

Springfield—"We are here to pay tribute to the principle of human dignity", Dr. Hans Spiegel, of the Springfield College faculty, told over 1100 students at a rally last night at the Memorial Field House at Springfield College.

Dr. Spiegel told students of 11 Massachusetts colleges and universities, including a delegation from UMass, "There is only one man in the world—his name is All Men. There is only one student in the world—James Meredith—and he is All Men," citing Carl Sandburg.

D'Aimy Bailey, expelled from Baton Rouge for non-violent demonstration, told the crowd, "The issue is not James Meredith. The issue is man's inhumanity and injustice to man."

Northern Student Movement Executive Secretary Peter Countryman, formerly of Yale, stated, "The question is not what we can do, but how long it will take."

"We're a long way from the South. Whether you join us or not, we will be in the North and South fighting for human dignity, for we know, if we don't, our lives are worth nothing," Countryman said.

Nazis Distribute Literature

The Nazi Party distributed literature on cars parked around the Field House in protest of the Meredith rally. Four men and one woman were seen in the process of distributing the literature and their automobile registration number was secured by Springfield College campus policemen.

S.C. Christian Association President Ronald Evans led the attendants in a moment of silent prayer for Meredith, and delivered the benediction.

According to Miss Gerry Smidt, Editor-in-Chief of the Springfield Student, "The rally was successful in outlining the direction in which Northern students can contribute to the success of the Southern students' civil rights issue."

The rally was sponsored by the Springfield College Student Council.

McCloy, Nicholson Praise Land-Grants; Express Promise For UMass Future

by ANN MILLER '64

"We do not wish to celebrate something which is over, finished, completed," said University Centennial Chairman James Thomas Nicholson at yesterday's Opening Centennial Convocation at 3 p.m. on the east lawn of the S.U. Some 2500 persons attended the celebrations.

In delivering the speech formally opening UMass' Centennial celebrations, Nicholson, a member of the Class of 1916, said, "We believe our efforts will be more productive as we contribute to the building of a . . . university ever growing in service to the Commonwealth, the people and the nation."

Delivering the keynote address was John J. McCloy, who stressed that land grant colleges were "as well-equipped as any" to meet the challenge of the future.

McCloy, chairman of President Kennedy's General Advisory Committee on Disarmament and former president of the World Bank, said that "no matter what the form, there is no good education without good teaching." He expressed hope that "we will hear less in the future of the teaching burden . . . great teachers are at least as rare and as valuable as great researchers."

Frank Boyden, Chairman of the University's Board of Trustees, welcomed those attending the convocation, calling UMass a university "whose beginnings were humble" and citing its aims as "an idea and an ideal."

John McCloy, Chairman of President Kennedy's General Advisory Committee on Disarmament, presents the main address at the Centennial Convocation.

After the formal opening, delivered by Nicholson, Governor John Volpe expressed greetings from the Commonwealth to those present at the convocation.

Following Volpe's and McCloy's addresses, President Lederle awarded honorary degrees to McCloy, Mount Holyoke College President Richard G. Gettell, Smith President Thomas C. Mendenhall and Amherst President Calvin H. Plimpton.

Provost Gilbert Woodside presented Physics Professor William W. Ross an award for "Distinguished Teacher of the Year."

The invocation was delivered by Rabbi Louis Ruchames. The University Chorale sang the chorus from Handel's Solomon and a benediction.

'66 Candidates Will Speak To Freshmen

Frosh candidates for class offices will have the opportunity to tell fellow Freshmen what they think.

Ritchie Weinberg, chairman of the Class of '65 Elections committee, has announced that public speeches will be given by all Freshman candidates for class offices who have filed nomination papers.

The event at 4 p.m. Tuesday, October 9, will take place in the Council Chambers of the S.U., and is open to the public.

Dave Podbros, spokesman for the Class of '65 Publicity Committee, said the event will give Freshmen the opportunity to meet, hear and speak with the candidates, helping voters then to decide wisely how to mark their ballots at the polls.

He pointed out the necessity of such an arrangement was even greater now that election rules outlawing campaign posters will be enforced on all candidates.

He urged all Freshmen to attend the meeting, cited as "a step forward" in University election procedures.

35 New Senators Sworn Into Office Wed. Night

Some 35 new senators were sworn into office at Wednesday evening's meeting of the Student Senate.

Senator Betsy Robicheau, vice president pro tem, briefed the new members on senate duties, calling on the new Senators to act as liaison between the faculty, administration and student body, make student government rules and handle all finances of the student tax funds.

Senate rules were suspended to enable Sheri Krausnick of Springfield College, representative of the National Student Association, to invite UMass to send a delegation to an organized rally for James Meredith at Springfield last night.

Meredith was this week the center of an integration riot at the University of Mississippi.

The Senate voted to send an official delegation, headed by Senator Marilyn Singer, to attend and report on the rally, sponsored by the Springfield College Student Council.

The Senate passed bill S2, setting up an Ad Hoc committee to promote and publicize absentee voting by University students. Chairman is Senator Steve Hewey ('63 Wheeler).

Services Committee reported on a meeting with Dean Field and Dining Commons management. Issues discussed were the possibility of having commuter lunches at noon, the starting of late breakfasts and the feasability of converting Greenough and Butterfield Halls into co-ed dining halls.

The results of the dorm elections for senator were announced by Elections Committee co-chairmen Fred Thurberg and Rosemary Seward.

In the women's dorms, Maida Hurwitz, Abigail Adams; Susan Davis and Patricia Ramah, Arnold; Lee Ann Mansell, Crabtree; Joan Labuzoski (incumbent), Dwight; Susan Bello, Hamlin; Marge Pitoniak, Johnson; Susan Hajjar, Knowlton.

Also, Delly Matthews (incumbent), Leach; Wendy Hall, Lewis; Ginny Mallison, Mary Lyon; and Karen Reilly (incumbent), Thatcher were elected senators. There was a tie at Brooks between Ann Gillvan and Mary Jane Murray. A rerun will be held at a future time.

Elected from the men's dorms were Frank Laski and Don Tracy, Baker; Jim Watson, Wheeler; Don Crasco, Greenough; Richard Buck (incumbent), Suffolk.

Also, Jon Fife, Richard Potter; and William Young, Van Meter;

"OBSERVE AND REPORT"

This year's Student Senate ended its first meeting with a most pathetic spectacle. Three students journeyed here from Springfield College Wednesday night to address the Senate that it might send an official delegation to a rally held there last night. This was not the type of rally that we are used to—no cheerleaders, no band. It was, rather, a group of students representing Amherst, Smith, Mt. Holyoke, and many other colleges, gathered to discuss and give their support to James Meredith's attempt to exercise his right of free choice. This was what the Senate was asked to do.

But from the start, the motion that would have sent a delegation indicating our support of the rally's aim was opposed. Chief opposition came from Senator Dick Buck, a man who could teach Goldwater some things about conservatism. At first he contented himself with asking whether the delegation would have any power to vote at the rally. He was informed that the delegation was to be a symbol of the student body's support of Meredith, and nothing more. However, Buck felt that this was not enough. He submitted an amendment that would send the delegation to "observe and report." In plain language, the student body would not support the aims of the rally, but rather would sit on the sidelines as observers. Unfortunately, Buck's motion passed.

The decision showed what has been evident for many years. There are few organizations on campus, and this is especially true of the Senate, that wish to be associated with any controversial measure. It, I believe, is a throwback to the old Massachusetts provincialism of the last century. Until the Senate realizes that all issues are not cut and dried, until they as the voice of the student body, realize that there are principles other than those concerned with student money, this august body will continue to drift in the doldrums. Distinction is often born in controversy, the fighters are remembered, the fence-sitters forgotten. —E.M.

ASTERISK —

A Footnote To Contemporary Propaganda

by

M. PALTER '63 and P. THEROUX '63

Recent events in Oxford, Mississippi, have evoked much self-righteous condemnation among students in the North. Unable or unwilling to comprehend the underlying causes of racial strife, the raucous cries of bigot and racist ring through our publications. This view has been reflected in a recent editorial which expressed "amazement" with the "popular support given to him (Gov. Barnett) by many of the students of the University of Mississippi." Reasoning that this "intellectual segment" of the population should not have been prone to violent reaction, the editorial asks (in what must be termed a sarcastically rhetorical manner):

"Are they (the students) thinking? Are they questioning?" Thus, we are to presuppose (1) that these students do in fact represent an "intellectual segment of that state's population," and (2) that if they were "thinking" and "questioning," they would not have reacted as they did.

Familiarity with the intellectual standards of the university in question suffices to answer the first part. As to the second, one could suggest that many "thinking" and "questioning" people have accepted racist doctrines throughout history. Indeed we have lived through the situation in Nazi Germany. And should we not mention the Apartheid in South Africa?

We have thus evaded the central issue here. We have refused to admit that "intellectual segments" may accept quite beastly social doctrines. This refusal has been reflected in our harangues which have, as a consequence, lacked moral substance. Indeed, President Kennedy's speech during the riots lacked this substance. Admittedly, the President was in a difficult situation. While seeking to pacify the South and the mobs, he knew that a reasonably strong statement was necessary. Although we would admit that the President had no choice but to chastise the people of Oxford on legal grounds, the tone of his speech was nevertheless disconcerting. Moral assertion succumbed to the "laws over men" theory. The honest approach would have been to follow this up with a major address in which the President would state that, in fact, laws should not determine the ultimate action of men; that this action is to be determined rather by conscience. Although we all recognize this fact, the danger lies in not asserting it from time to time, especially in the United States.

It is important to remember that the good Nazi was one who implicitly followed the laws of his rulers!

To tell the Southerner that he is wrong because he does not respect a court interpretation of a law is to speak to a stone-wall. This is not to say that laws and interpretations of laws are not to be enforced. Obviously, society could not function otherwise. Yet, the attitude of the Southerner will never be changed by laws or Supreme Court interpretations of these laws.

The correct course is to establish the proper situation in which this attitude could change. This situation should be one of integration and economic equality of the Negro. These are the necessary prerequisites. Then, and only then, will race hatred dissipate. One must always assume that in the proper situation the basic humanity of people will assert itself. This humanity can never be enforced but must always be asserted. Negativistic and frequently antagonistic attitudes toward the Southerner must be dismissed and replaced with what we should like to call constructive saber-rattling.

— LETTERS TO THE EDITOR —

Indignant To Indignant

Dear Indignant Student,

So you are sick and tired of being disturbed by the riots at Brooks dorm. Well, the girls of Brooks are sick and tired of being treated as prison inmates in their own home.

Putting girls into Brooks was not a stupid idea, but a matter of necessity. It was made necessary by the boys. As you can see, they have many new dorms while the girls have none. Therefore, the girls were put into Brooks. The boys' forcing us into this dorm, with its crude internal conditions, was bad enough without them forcing us to be locked in it.

Please tell me—who forced you to rush down the hill? Were you clouted over the head and carried? I don't think so.

You claim you do not want to be labeled as an apathetic student. According to "Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary," apathetic is defined as "lacking normal feeling or interest." By this do you mean to say that the half of the boys on campus that did not show up at the riot are abnormal? If so, how could you spend the most important time of your life on such a queer campus?

No girl at Brooks has thrown her "undies" out of the window. This has been known to happen at the Quad, but it most certainly did not happen at Brooks. We make it a habit of wearing ours.

In answer to your question, "When will this campus grow up?" I in turn ask of you, "When will you grow up?" When will you stay in your room, pencil in hand, reading Male and Female by Margaret Mead, and leave Brooks alone?

An Indignant Brooks Girl

SPINELESS

To the Editor in answer to "The Indignant Student":

The girls at Brooks dorm are sick and tired of hearing and reading the snide remarks concerning our conduct during the recent riots.

Let me clarify one glaring and unjust error made by Mr. Indignant. The girls at Brooks dorm did not throw anything out of their windows. We did not incite the riot—the boys in the surrounding dorms did, when they heard of our fire drill.

I think that the author of that letter is typical of most spineless people. He did not have the character to admit he contributed to the riot himself, or that he was wrong to do so.

As for being apathetic, just who is he trying to kid? He took part in the riot, and most assuredly, loved every minute of it.

No wonder he's "indignant," he had to blame someone for that uncompleted assignment.

Sandra Tisei '66
Brooks Dormitory

LADYLIKE MANNER

To the Editor:

I have just finished reading the two articles concerning Brooks dorm and I am shocked at the attitudes taken by the authors of these articles. Being a resident of Brooks myself, I know for a fact that all the girls have behaved themselves in a lady-like and respectable manner.

We in Brooks have even greater reason to be dissatisfied because of the unusual conditions in our dorm. We have no study area, reception or rec rooms, and our dorm is certainly not the most livable one on campus. Yet we have overcome these obstacles among ourselves and certainly have not needed to resort to yelling or throwing things out windows to arouse the boys.

These demonstrations may or may not continue in the future, but I can assure you of the Collegian and also the "indignant student" that Brooks House has not and will not take part in them.

Carol Stefanik

NATIONAL DISGRACE

To the Editor,

The recent actions of his Excellency Ross R. Barnett, governor of the sovereign state of Mississippi, and the students of the University of Mississippi have brought disgrace upon the entire nation. What must the world think of our country—a country which boasts about its equality—especially the newly formed nations of Africa?

I think that the entire student body should make a formal protest against the undemocratic actions of the prejudiced people of Mississippi.

Their actions are a mockery of democracy and should not go without being punished or protested.

Let us show by our protest that we of the University of Massachusetts are supporters of democracy in ALL its aspects and that we will not tolerate any violations of our nation's basic beliefs.

Yours truly,
Ron Kelcourse '66

Senior Students Participate In Honors Research Field

Independent research in their major field will be an important part of the 1962-63 year for 10 seniors in the College of Agriculture.

These students are participating in the Senior Honors Program designed to give highly qualified students time and opportunity for careful exploration of some significant question, problem or theme.

Under the close personal direction of an advisor, each will study, write a thesis and present an oral defense of it.

Three credits will be given for each semester of honors work completed. If by the excellence of his work, the senior satisfies all the requirements of his department and of the Honors Council, he is awarded honors in the field of his specialization upon graduation.

Agricultural students enrolled in the Honors Program include: Larry T. Arnold of Rehoboth, food management; John E. Biello of Somerset, wildlife management; Arthur C. Costonis of Amherst, plant pathology; Jean A. Gawalt of Hopkinton, wildlife management; Thomas P. Leavitt of Gardner, forestry; Alfred Lima of Fall River, landscape architecture; Edward Parsons of Northfield, agricultural economics; Henry C. Perkins of Lawrence, forestry; John W. Riesen of Haverhill, dairy and animal science; and Terrence Robinson of Rowayton, Conn., landscape architecture.

The university's Senior Honors Program has grown in the past three years from 31 students in 16 departments and four Colleges to this year's enrollment of about 90 students in 30 departments and six Colleges.

Symposium To Be Held October 17

An inter-disciplinary symposium on the "Renaissance. The Problem of Definition" will be conducted at 8 p.m. Wednesday, October 17, in Bartlett 325, the UMass department of English has announced.

Professor Paul F. Norton, Head of the University's department of art; Professor Vincent Ilardi of the department of history; and Dr. Melvin H. Wolf of the department of English will constitute a panel.

Singing Duo Make Debut During Class

An innovation in the UMass classroom was presented last Friday when Betsy Robicheau and Pat Valiton, both seniors, sang a duet in Robert Tucker's 17th Century Poetry class.

The class, which had been studying Elizabethan poetry, was asked for volunteers to sing a love poem, "Doe you not know" a "song for three voices", written and arranged by one Thomas Morley in 1593.

The two seniors approached Mr. Tucker after class and said they'd try it. Nevertheless, it was somewhat of a surprise to the class at the beginning of the next meeting, to see the girls sitting on the teacher's desk, songbook in hand.

Although only two-thirds of the intended voice power, the girls did a good job, according to the consensus of class opinion. Miss Robicheau sang alto; Miss Valiton, soprano. Mr. Tucker had politely refused their request for accompaniment with the tenor section.

To the apparent delight of the class, the girls sang the song twice, once at the beginning of the hour, and again a few minutes before the end.

Comments by the girls? "We'll bet the poet never planned it like this."

"Guys And Dolls" Opens Thursday At Bowker

Curtain will go up next Thursday at 8:15 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium on the Operetta Guild's production of "Guys and Dolls," one of the most engrossing and colorful musicals ever produced by O.G.

Choreography and musical numbers staged by the Guild's professional choreographer. Wayne Lamb, illustrate the choreographic abilities of both Lamb and his young troupe of dancers. Eight women and nearly a dozen men have rehearsed nightly for the past three weeks.

Sets have been designed by Timothy Donnelly '65, with a style indicative of his own originality. Donnelly's technical crew has worked long to complete the original designs. Scenic design is complimented by lighting design by Mrs. Ann B. Payne. Mrs. Payne has worked in lighting departments on other shows for the Operetta Guild and for Roister-Doisters.

Production costs for "Guys and Dolls" are somewhat higher than those for last year's Oklahoma— a fact accounted for in various areas.

A 32-page souvenir program entitled "In the Guild Tradition" will be given each person attending "Guys and Dolls." This program is a pictorial history of the Operetta Guild.

New Newman Club Center Ready Soon

News of the soon-to-be-completed Newman Club Center has been issued this week by Newman officials.

The completion of the Center will mean permanent residence for Chaplain Father Power and Assistant Chaplain Father Quigley.

Religious activities offered by the Center will include daily dialogue Masses and confessions, lenten services, and Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

The building will contain, in addition to a library, two classrooms for doctrine classes, studying, discussion groups, and seminars.

Socially, the Newman Club Center will offer a snack bar, game room, ballroom, and lounge.

The Newman Club membership drive will continue through October 11. Dormitory representatives are now circulating letters, schedules of events and membership tickets.

Baker Men Elect Officers In True Democratic Spirit

Residents of Baker House recently elected their new House Council and four dorm officers: Steve Klyce, president; Bruce Bonner, vice-president and social chairman; Dick Campbell, treasurer and athletic chairman; and Kenneth Moon, secretary.

For the first time in its history, Baker held a political discussion period during which senatorial aspirants from Baker delivered three to five minute speeches and answered questions concerning their qualifications and platforms.

"Baker House is looking forward to an energetic and successful year," said Moon. Kicking off the social calendar will be an inter-dorm dance with Arnold tonight while a Baker Homecoming Dance will be staged in the dorm rec-room Saturday night, October 13.

Geologist Hough To Discuss Prehistoric Great Lakes

Dr. Jack Luin Hough, professor of geology at the University of Illinois, will discuss the "Prehistoric Great Lakes of North America" at a Sigma Xi national lecture to be held at UMass Monday.

The lecture, jointly sponsored by the University and Amherst College, will be held in the Justin Morrill Science Center at the University at 8 p.m. The talk is open to the public without charge.

Dr. Hough, a native of Illinois, became interested in the Great Lakes as a youth through camping, nature studies and activities along the southern and eastern shores of Lake Michigan. Prof. Hough attended the University of Chicago, where he obtained his B.S., M.S., and Ph.D. degrees. He has been a professor of geology at Illinois since 1950.

Dr. Hough served in World War II with the Navy Bureau of Ordnance, Research and Development Division, and with the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution.

He was also an oceanographer and submarine geologist on the U.S. Navy Antarctic Expedition of 1946 and 1947. In the fall of 1947 he joined the staff of the University of Illinois in the department of geology. There, he began research which led to the writing of the book "Geology of the Great Lakes" for which he received the Geological Society of America Kirk Bryan Award.

History Club Is Organized

There was an organizational meeting of the History Club Wednesday evening in the Nantucket Room of the S.U.

A history department spokesman said the Club is being organized "for those who are history majors, who are planning on becoming history majors, or who are generally interested in historical matters."

UMass Students Challenging? —New Doctor Thinks So

by IRIS LOFARO '66

"UMass students are challenging individuals to any doctor," stated Dr. Samuel Joseph Hunter, the newest addition at the University's Infirmary staff. "Where else but in scenic, historical Amherst can one find a group of students so dedicated to a common goal — learning plus pleasure."

A Phi Beta Kappa graduate in biology from Johns Hopkins in 1951, Dr. Hunter does not advocate the "strict academic college life." Instead he emphasizes the fact that students should be versatile and "participate in some extra-curricular activity through which they can expand their friendships and interests." Dr. Hunter played piano while he was in college and he still enjoys "hitting the keys" for relaxation.

After having studied general diagnostics in Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minnesota, and serving two years on the medical staff of the United States Army at Sandia Base Army Hospital, Albuquerque, New Mexico, why did Dr. Hunter break his affiliation wtih Eastern Ohio doctors to start anew in a compact college infirmary situated in a small New England town?

DR. SAMUEL HUNTER

Why did this 1954 Yale Medical School graduate who had completed his internship in Wayne County Michigan Hospital feel that his association with UMass students would be a "stimulating and rewarding experience" for him?

Did it have anything to do with the fact that Mrs. Hunter, the former Lind Lindley, a 1955 graduate nurse from UConn, was a native of New England? Or was it because Dr. Hunter was an "ardent admirer of N.E. medicine" and "desired to become a part of this medical center"?

"It was a combination of both," replied the doctor, "but most of all it was my wish to be considered an active participant in the life of college students. For years my wife and I have discussed the possibility of my being appointed to such a position and, when this opening in Amherst arose, we eagerly accepted."

Dr. Robert W. Gage, Director of Health at the University, expressed his desire that UMass students "get to know Dr. Hunter."

Residing at 37 Ridge Crest Road in Amherst, he and his wife have four children—Christopher, six; Timothy, five; Matthew, three; and Alice, eleven months.

Panhellenic Council Grows; Plans Active Greek Year

The Panhellenic Council at the University of Massachusetts was enlarged this year by four representatives from the two new sororities. Iota Gamma Upsilon and Sigma Sigma Sigma have plunged into the Centennial year.

At Pan-hel the sororities meet on common ground to discuss, define, and extend the Greeks' part in campus life. The Council has put into action several activities planned at the close of last year.

To raise money for its scholarships given at Honors Convocation, the Council will sponsor its traditional mum sale at Homecoming. Each flower will bear the traditional school-color ribbons, and will add one dollar to the scholarship fund.

Working in conjunction with the I.F.C., Panhellenic will sponsor a carnival for its part in the week long project of many campus organizations to commemorate the founding of the United Nations. Each sorority will set up a booth which will bear the theme of a member nation of the U. N., and each booth will run a game of skill to be played by those atttending the carnival. The campus is invited to participate by playing games and helping to raise money for the Pilot Farm and School Project in Nigeria.

This carnival is to be held on Friday, October 26th simultaneously with the rally dance. If the weather is fair, the affair will take place outside of the Student Union. Because of the purpose of this project and its very nature, the sororities have agreed to display no signs or insignia of their house. This undertaking is the first of this type and will undoubtedly set a precedent for future philanthropic work through the unity of Panhellenic.

Specific plans for Freshman Rush have been under discussion since last year. First semester rush will begin immediately after Thanksgiving vacation and will last for a week. Round Robins will provide a brief chance for freshmen to experience the flavor of sorority life.

CHI OMEGA

The first chapter, Psi, of the National Fraternity of Chi Omega was founded on April 5, 1895 at the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville. Iota Beta here at the University was founded in 1940, having been Lambda Delta Mu since 1930. To commemorate our national founding, 79,371 Chi Omegas all over the country wear the colors—cardinal and straw—on October 5 and April 5. "In appreciation of Chi Omega's founding and as a symbol of its devotion to the human struggle for enlightenment", a Greek amphitheater was built at the University of Arkansas.

Chi Omega was organized as truly national. At the time of its founding, Northern women's fraternities rejected Southern colleges and universities. Chi Omega did not reject any area of the country and today there are 132 chapters. Fundamentals of Chi Omega center around friendship.

Throughout the years of its existence, Chi Omega has had several distinct accomplishments. It was the first fraternity to organize social services as a definite policy, the first fraternity to organize and maintain an executive office, the first to have conventions for the pprpose of good fellowship and the first to give a gift such as the Greek Theatre.

The record interprets the quality of Chi Omega both in the area of intangibles and in the area of accomplishments—friendship, foresight, and integrity.

Dorm News

MARY LYON HOUSE

Mary Lyon House recently held its elections for this year. Lois Myers was elected dorm treasurer and corridor treasurers were chosen on each floor. Beth Peterson and Jane Bemis were elected for Inter-dorm Council. Linda Carlson was chosen as Collegian representative.

Elaine Rosoff, elected dorm social chairman, has already started plans for this year's social activities with promises of a party for Homecoming-float workers. Her committee of corridor representatives includes: Linda Lapeza, Deedee Bolton, Suzie Callahan, Peggy McDonald, Eileen Boisjolie, Joan Ramm, and Emily Eldred.

Mary Lyon is also pleased to have among its girls Rebecca Bartness from Albuquerque, New Mexico. Becky is an exchange student from the University of New Mexico. Margaret Fiske, also from Mary Lyon, has gone to U. of New Mexico for this semester.

Carol Pacquette was chosen as nominee for Homecoming Queen.

THATCHER HOUSE

The senior girls of Thatcher would like to thank Mrs. Ogletree for the tea held in their honor. The seniors new to Thatcher this year were able to meet their fellow classmates.

Thatcher's social committee has planned a spaghetti supper for all who are interested. It will be held on Sunday, Oct. 7, 5-6:30, price 50c.

Our appreciation is extended to the campus police who came to the rescue of two girls locked in their rooms for several hours on Friday night.

Thatcher's officers for the coming year are: Mickey Shea, Social Chairman; Joanne Murphy, W.A.A. Representative; Jeanna Young, Treasurer; Jackie David and Kitty McGrath, Interdormitory Council Representatives; and Sally French, Freshman Social Chairman.

Thanks go out to Jane Abbiati for her hard work and effort as Song Chairman. You did a fine job, Jane.

Congratulations to Carol Ann Russell who was selected as a finalist for Homecoming Queen.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

Kappa Alpha Theta, founded in 1870, is the oldest women's greek letter fraternity. In 1943, Phi Zeta, a local UMass sorority, began the Gamma Eta chapter. In 1946 Theta adopted the Institute of Logopedics as its main

SORORITY NEWS

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

Better late than never, we would like to thank the Lambda Chi's for a marvelous exchange supper.

Last week, the sisters enjoyed entertaining the Deans of Women, Miss Curtis and Mrs. Gordon, at dinner.

There has been a new and welcome addition to our house—"a bicycle built for two." Needless to say, it's a very popular vehicle, so you can plan on seeing it often around campus. You can be equally certain that the two giggling riders will be Alpha Chi's.

IOTA GAMMA UPSILON

The sisters of Iota Gamma Upsilon would like to thank the brothers of Phi Mu Delta for an enjoyable exchange supper last Wednesday.

Also, we wish to remind the Phi Mu Rockettes of the I.O.U. from I.G.U.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA

First of all, a warm "welcome back" to all of the sisters at Kappa and best wishes for the coming year.

We are all getting very excited about our new house. The architects, Mr. and Mrs. Schmidz, were on campus last Wednesday. After seeing the plans and pictures, we are anxiously looking forward to living in the house next year.

A sincere thanks is extended to the brothers of Phi Sigma Kappa for the great exchange supper they had for us on September 26th. We are looking forward to the exchanges with Alpha Epsilon Pi and Chi Omega this week.

The sisters at Kappa are very proud of Carol Esonis who has been recently selected as one of the Home Coming Queen finalists, and also of Anne Richards who was tapped for Revelers.

LAMBDA DELTA PHI

Lambda Phi is proud to announce the election of two of their sisters, Betsy Walker and Marilyn Whitney, both class of '63, to Phi Kappa Phi.

The sisters are happy to have Mary Agnes Pelton '62, back in the House after she spent a week in Cooley Dickinson Hospital following an appendectomy. She returned just in time to share a most enjoyable exchange supper with SAE. We would like to extend our thanks to all the brothers for a most pleasant evening.

Mrs. John Fenton, and Miss Mary Kay Heath (Lambda Phi, '62) are our new advisors for the year.

We extend our congratulations to Sandra Max '64, on her intiation. Welcome Sandi!

PI BETA PHI

The Pi Phi's welcomed twelve new sisters initiated on Sunday, September 30. The initiates are: Lucille Francescom, Patricia Hall, Gail Benvie, Patricia Gully, Meredith Halstead, Sharon Hanahan, Diana Mick, Gretchen Nelson, Kathleen Osterberg, Judy Seddon, Patricia Simmons, and Donna Titus.

At the beginning of the year, the Pi Phi's welcomed their new housemother, Mrs. Hugh Cheyne. The sisters hope that she will be very happy with us. A welcoming tea is being held Sunday for her at the chapter house.

The Pi Phi's are also delighted with the new living room which was completely redecorated during the summer.

The sisters are all very busy with plans for the Float Parade and the IFC-PanHel Carnival, and they are looking forward to a wonderful year.

SIGMA KAPPA

The sisters of Sigma Kappa want to thank Zeta Nu for the wonderful exchange supper. We really had a great time.

Congratulations go to SK's three Phi Kappa Phi's, Rose Mary Kirchner, Marie Mortimer and Carol Tarr.

Sigma Kappa is very proud of Joan Werner who is the new sorority senator and Wendy Hall who is the new senator from Lewis.

Congratulations also go to Barbara Cushing who was elected chairman of the Student Union Governing Board.

Elaine Carlson and Rose Mary Kirchner have been elected by the Program Council of the Student Union to attend the New England Conference of Student Unions at the University of Maine this weekend. Congratulations!

—NOTICE—

Fraternity, sorority, and dorm news should be left in the box for Sandi Giordano in the Collegian office on Wednesday by noon.

Fusia's Line-up Changes Will Aid UMass In Bucknell Battle

by STEVE HEWEY '63

The University of Massachusetts, smarting from its 27-3 loss to Dartmouth College last Saturday, will attempt to get back on the winning path this weekend when it meets Bucknell University of Lewisburg, Pa. This meeting will be the first in the history of both schools.

For the third week in a row the Redmen will have to face a team that is considered to be a strong contender in its respective league. In its season opener UMass disposed of Maine, a team rated at the time as a contender for YanCon honors, and in Dartmouth last week, the Redmen were facing a top Ivy League foe. Tomorrow's UMass opponent is picked for honors in the Middle Atlantic Conference.

The Bucknell squad, known to its followers as the "Bisons," comes into tomorrow's contest boasting a slate of 2 wins and no losses. The Bisons' own victories were over Gettysburg (21-0) and over Temple (15-14). In both games they had to come from behind in the second half to score the winning points. In fact, Gettysburg at one time during the game led 21-0.

Both Coach Vic Fusia of Massachusetts and Coach Bob Odell of Bucknell will assign starting chores to three sophomores. UMass will have Jerry Whelchel calling signals. Peter Pietz will be at guard once again and John Hudson will be rewarded for his fine play against Dartmouth by being given the nod at end. Bucknell's three first year men are Bob Brown at tackle, Hal Riley at halfback and Bob Haering, defensive specialist at fullback.

Bucknell has a fine quarterback in Senior Ron Giordano. In two games Ron has tossed 32 passes and has completed 21 for 305 yards and two touchdowns. However in the running department Tackle Bob Burke and Guard John Kozaka have recovered from their early season injuries and will join the rest of the Redmen forward wall tomorrow as UMass clashes with Bucknell.

Giordano doesn't fare as well. In 15 carries he has a total of minus 14 yards in net rushing.

UMass's brilliant soph quarterback Jerry Whelchel goes into tomorrow's contest with a fine overall offensive record. He has completed 9 for 19 in the air and has gained 41 yards on the ground.

For the Redmen, this has been a week of rugged practice sessions and drills. Disappointed at his team's showing against Dartmouth last week, Fusia has been stressing blocking and tackling in this week's workouts. He wants to see a more improved team effort on both offense and defense on the field against the Bisons. The rugged play in the Dartmouth contest did not hurt the physical condition of the UM eleven. Jack Kozaka, Matt Collins, and Bob Burke all got into action this past week after being sidelined for the first two games. Their return to the Redmen line in improved condition should strengthen the forward wall.

The UMass offense has Fusia somewhat apprehensive. Against Dartmouth it was thwarted time and time again by the fast-moving Big Green line. Declared Fusia, "We've got to straighten out our line play and blocking on offense or we're going to be in trouble against Bucknell and Connecticut the next two weeks." Halfback Sam Lussier, held to only 16 yards last week in 6 carries, also drew comment from the Redmen coach. "Sam Lussier didn't play his usual game at Dartmouth and if he is not back to his normal running habits Saturday we could be in trouble." The performance of Phil DeRose last week, 18 yards in two carries, and the punt returns of Ken Kezer could possibly mean added duties for these two in the UMass backfield.

The average weight in the starting backfields for both teams is just under 180 pounds. But up front the Redmen go 206 from end to end compared to Bucknell's average of about 200 pounds.

Bucknell, incidentally, goes into tomorrow's encounter behind Delaware in the polling for the Lambert Cup, symbolic of supremacy in small college football in the East.

Lil' Redmen Counting On What's Up Front

by ALAN J. RICE '66

The varsity football season reaches the three week mark tomorrow, but working equally as hard is the freshman squad under the direction of Fred Glatz in preparation for the season opener against the Manlius School on October 13.

This year's squad has a heavier line than the varsity and is potentially the best Massachusetts freshman team in a long time, but Coach Glatz and his staff have an extreme handicap which will greatly affect the performance of the team. Because of the full academic schedules of all the freshmen, practice sessions are limited to only three a week of which many of the team are able to attend only one or two since the workouts run from 3:30 to 6:00. In addition Glatz has very little time to spend with his boys since his duties as varsity end coach and scout are time consuming.

The men most responsible for the training of the team are Donald Johnson, physical education instructor in the Amherst School Dept. and last year's frosh coach, and three members of last year's varsity who are completing work toward their degrees, Dave Harrington, Jim Hickman, and Mike Salem. They have a squad of 59 boys remaining from the 78 who started in practice three weeks ago with which to equal or improve last year's 3-2 record. The Redmen Papooses downed Springfield, Boston University, and New Hampshire and lost to Connecticut and Brewster Prep. This season Manlius and Holy Cross replace B.U. and Springfield on the slate.

As previously mentioned the average weight of the forward wall is heavier than that of the varsity, and two of the key men up front were on the Brewster squad that tromped the Redmen last year. Left end Milt Moran tips the scales at 230 and his teammate of last year, Bob Meers, will hold down the other end spot at a weight of 200 even. Tackles Jim Pfersich and Fred Hupprich are also bruisers, both guards registering over 190. Rod Brooks, captain of Ayer High last year and the most outstanding lineman in the Lawrence-Lowell All-Star game, and John Frangipane are the leading candidates for that position right now. The leading center candidates are Jim Kuczynski and Ed Toner.

The backfield shapes up as having Bob Taylor at quarterback, Dave Kelley at fullback, and Bob Hillson and Don Eaton at the half slots. Taylor was an All-Scholastic pitcher for Eastern Mass. Class A champs at Somerville High and he also hurled for the Somerville Legion team which represented Mass. in the regional playoffs. Kelley is the son of Alva Kelley, former head football coach at Colgate University. Another candidate for quarterback is Rich Cain who led the state in TD passes thrown last fall. Steve Terbovich, Bob Carney, Dave Valeri, Bob Ellis, Sarunas Garsys, Ed Cody, Dave Corna, and Lou Zangrilli are also backfield members.

INTRAMURALS

by DICK FURASH '66

Three of the five intramural leagues got underway Tuesday night with Baker playing Van Meter and Brett vs. Hills South, in class "A"; Butterfield vs. Greenough in class "B"; and Gorman B vs. Middlesex, in the mixed league.

James Koldis scored Baker's only touchdown, while Tom McMahon tallied with a safety for Van Meter, as Baker defeated Van Meter, 6-2.

Gorman B, Greenough, and Brett each held their opponents scoreless, as three shutouts were registered. Gorman B racked up 15 points over Middlesex, with Bom Umbra catching a pass and returning an interception for touchdowns. A safety and an extra point on a flat pass to Lewis accounted for the other three Gorman "B" points.

Ed Driscoll had a good night for Greenough, scoring fourteen points on two T.D.'s and two extra points, while Richard Renner and Tom Ryan each scored touchdowns to make the final score, Greenough 26 Butterfield 0.

The men from Brett easily handled a strong-running Hills South team, 24-0. Steve Harrington accounted for all the points by running for a touchdown and passing for three others to Al Campbell, James Goodwin, and Roy Papalia.

Redmen Booters To Take Field Against Williams Sat.

by DAVE PEDBROS '65

Tomorrow the UMass Varsity Soccer team travels to Williamstown to take on the New England Intercollegiate Soccer League champions. Last year Williams defeated UMass 6 to 0, and with eighteen lettermen on the Williams squad, it appears as if the Redmen have their work cut out for them.

Williams has back intact a fine halfback line of captain John O'Donnell, Bob Watkins, and John Hohly along with a good, experienced goalie, Gordie Prichett. Last year Williams only allowed a total of six goals to the opposition.

Another asset to Williams chances for a good season this year will be Coach Clarence Chaffee who will be coaching his fourteenth Williams varsity squad. A 1924 graduate of Brown University, where he lettered in football, basketball, and tennis, he came to Williams in 1937 and has been coaching teams in three sports since that year except for duty in World War Two. In 1959, his soccer, squash, and tennis teams made an unprecedented sweep of Little Three titles. About this year Coach Chaffee says, "Barring injuries, Williams will have a good season: the boys are good soccer players; they have excellent spirit; and they are eager."

However, Williams will still have to beat UMass Saturday. In four scrimmages Coach Briggs has seen that the squad's depth has improved over that of last year's. Bob Chenery, at center forward, and Astaldi at left outside, will both be men to watch. Also a strong possibility will be Phillips at goalie. Therefore, UMass could very well have a soccer squad that shows a marked improvement over last year. The spirit of the team is better and with the newly acquired depth Williams will have to play hard to defeat the Redmen booters.

The first home contest for the varsity squad will be this coming Wednesday, October 10 when UMass plays host to Trinity College. Game time is 3:00.

Vermont Faces Maine; UNH vs. R.I. Tomorrow

Two games are scheduled in Yankee Conference activity this Saturday with the University of Vermont, playing its first season as a full-time participant in football, making its debut as it entertains the University of Maine at Burlington.

Previously, the Catamounts limited their conference participation to games with Maine and Rhode Island but this year have added New Hampshire and Massachusetts. Conference rules require that a team play four conference opponents to be eligible for the Bean Pot, symbolic of the YanCon title.

It is not expected, however, that the Vermonters will be a serious threat to the crown this year but, cast in the spoilers' role, could go a long way toward determining the eventual winner.

In other conference action, the University of New Hampshire Wildcats, always a threat under Coach Clarence "Chief" Boston, also will embark on their conference commitments when they meet the Rams of Rhode Island at Durham.

The two co-favorities for the crown will be up against strong opponents.

charity. Each year thousands of children and adults are helped through speech therapy. Aside from the national philanthropy, Gamma Eta also aids the Navaho Indians. Funds are raised through various activities such as the annual slave auction. Here pledges are "sold" to the highest bidder for such tasks as car washing and waitressing.

Like the other Greeks on campus, each Christmas a party is given with a fraternity for the underprivileged children in the vicinity. Santa Claus arrives with gifts for the children made and contributed by the sisters and fraternity brothers.

Theta's aim is for high ideals in all endeavors, and sisters are encouraged to use their abilities to capacity. Scholarships and loans are available to outstanding sisters. Campus activities play an integral part in the life of every sister.

LAMBDA DELTA PHI

Lambda Delta Phi was founded in June, 1961, at the University of Massachusetts. Of the four charter chapters, Phi Delta Nu, a local on this campus for twelve years, was host to the convention and is now Alpha Chapter. Beta is at the Univ. of Rhode Island, Gamma at the Univ. of Minnesota, and Delta is at Boston Univ.

The initial national meeting grew out of the desire of the sisters of Phi Delta Nu to join with other college women who shared their belief in the intrinsic worth of the individual. Thus the five aims, as stated in the national constitution, are: 1. To provide an opportunity for women of all races, religions, and cultural backgrounds to live, work, and maintain social rela-

by JAMES RYAN '65

Coach Bill Footrick's cross country team will journey to Orono, Maine tomorrow for a tri-meet with Maine and Northeastern. This will be the first inter-conference meet of the season for both Maine and UMass, and will probably be one of the toughest for both schools. The independent, Northeastern, appears to be outclassed by the two YanCon schools, and last Saturday was beaten by UNH 21-35.

Coach Ed Styrna of Maine, always optimistic, feels that his 1962 team could be one of his best. He announced that his varsity unit, which last year lost to the Redmen 29-37 in the same tri-meet, should be as strong as or stronger than last year's team.

The Redmen, after an opening win against Coast Guard last Saturday, realize this meet will be tough, and are up for it. Making the trip to Orono will be all the men who placed in this meet last year plus some outstanding sophomores, led by Tom Panke. The veterans are led by Bob Brouillet, winner of last year's meet as a sophomore. Coach Footrick, with high hopes for another winning season, has had the boys running all week on a flat course, similar to Maine's. Although senior Bob Avery is out of action with bad legs, the team looks strong, and the meet should be very close.

by JOHN CARR '64

Four games were played in the I.F.C. Wednesday night. Seven o'clock competition saw BKP battling TC while LCA faced ATG. At eight o'clock, undefeated PMD and SPE took on AEPi and PSK respectively.

Last year's fraternity champions, TC, appear headed for the top of the league as they squeaked out a narrow 12-6 victory over a strong BKP team. The red shirts of TC crossed the goal line first when Jeff Wheeler snared a Dick Farrell pass early in the contest. BKP came right back as Tom Astaldi intercepted a pass and returned it forty yards for a touchdown. The score stood knotted at 6-6 until Farrell, fading back almost to his own end zone, spotted Wheeler and hit him with a forty yard aerial for the final six points of game.

LCA rolled up the biggest score of the season, upending ATG 40-6. Don Moore totalled nineteen points, with three touchdowns and an extra point. Charlie Lapier was close behind Moore with thirteen points; Steve Shea ran the offense well at quarterback.

Art Doherty scored three touchdowns in the second round of games to help lead SPE to a 21-6 victory over PSK. Chick Mitchell made one of the longest runs of the year as he grabbed off a desperation toss by the quarterback and scampered fifty yards for the lone PSK score. With the exception of this one penetration, the defense of SPE was great.

PMD remained in the ranks of the unbeaten by turning back AEPi 12-0. PMD, witth Fletcher and Covalucci leading the charge, gained repeatedly around the ends. After a scoreless first half, Ed Durfer and Bob Fletcher scored touchdowns on passes from Pat Daher. Pi looked good in a losing cause, but they just couldn't get their offense going against PMD's big line.

ing "Meredith armbands". However, said Conroy, this action was a "flop", and was discontinued after a few days.

According to a contact with the "Mississippian", newspaper of the University of Mississippi, a faculty member there whose name was not disclosed, said, "possibly about 90%" of the "Ole Miss" faculty were "in favor of Meredith's case."

Committees Materials Requested

Harold W. Watts, director of the University program office, has announced that the program office of the Student Activities is in the process of building working files that can be used by student committees.

It is suggested by him that all special and ad hoc committees turn over their working files and materials, at the termination of their committee assignments, to the University Program Office in the Student Activities Office of the Student Union in order that this information may continue to be available to all members of the University.

This would not, of course, apply to confidential or personal materials.

"Cooperation will be of inestimable value to future classes of the University who frequently unnecessarily have to start from scratch," said Watts.

Tickets for the upcoming presentation of Dylan Thomas' "Under Milkwood" will be given out Friday, Monday and Tuesday, October 5, 8, and 9 from 10 a.m. to noon and from 2 to 4 p.m. in the ticket booth of the S.U. lobby.

International Club Urges Membership

"The International Club needs American students," said Marc Cheren, spokesman for the Club.

"The opportunity to help orientate UMass foreign students, undergraduate and graduate, is compounded with the privilege of a cultural exchange among people from different nations, with different customs," he said.

In a statement urging Americans to join the organization, Cheren announced that the initial meeting of the International Club will be held tonight at 8 p.m. in the Council Chambers of the S.U.

NOTICES

BOOK AVAILABLE SOON
The University of Massachusetts: A History of One Hundred Years, a 250 page centennial history of UMass written by Professor Harold W. Cary of the History Department, will be available on campus shortly before the Thanksgiving recess. Students holding paid book orders will receive their copies at this time.

FRESHMAN NOMINATION PAPERS
Nomination papers for Freshman class officers are now available in the R.S.O. office. They are to be completed and returned to the R.S.O. office by October 8 at 4 p.m.

INFIRMARY HOURS
Students are reminded of the hours during which the Infirmary Outpatient Department is open:
Week-days 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Saturdays 8 a.m. to 12 noon
Care at other times is available for emergencies only. Visiting hours are from 7 to 8 p.m. daily.

FREE MOVIE
The UMass Christian Association will show a full length movie Friday evening at 7:30 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium. There will a ten minute discussion following the showing of On the Waterfront with Marlon Brando.

OPERETTA GUILD
All people interested in working on sets for "Guys and Dolls" are asked to meet in Bowker Auditorium this Saturday at 1 p.m.

LIBRARY
The Library has announced that there are no longer any job positions to be filled by students.

The name of the sisterhood was selected to represent the ideal of "Living Democracy through Friendship." The sorority colors are aquamarine and gold; the flower is the gold chrysanthemum. The sister pin, black and gold, was designed in the shape of an open door on which is a golden star with a pearl at its center.

At the second national convention, again held on this campus, in June, 1962, a crest was designed, a pledge manual compiled, and a newsletter established. At this meeting Nancy Ohara, a sophomore at Long Beach State Teachers College in Calif., was pledged by Beta Chapter. Nancy is now organizing Epsilon Chapter in Long Beach, Calif.

Redmen Topple Bucknell Bisons In Closing Seconds

White Presents Paper At Lisbon Conference

A UMass faculty member and a nationally-recognized authority on blast effects was in Lisbon, Portugal, last week to address an international engineering conference.

Dr. Merit P. White, Commonwealth head of the civil engineering department at the University, presented a paper to his colleagues at the conference, dealing with the use of computers in civil engineering.

Scheduled for October 1 through last Friday, the conference was held at the Portuguese National Civil Engineering Laboratory in Lisbon. Dr. White's paper, "Response of Stiffened Plating to Sudden Uniform Pressure," describes research done recently at the University.

Assisting Dr. White with the preparation of the paper were assistant professor Frederick J. Dzialo, assistant professor Denton B. Harris, Mr. Albert Chen and Mr. Winston Yau, all members of the University's civil engineering staff.

Dr. White, a native of Whately, Mass., has been with the University since 1948.

He graduated from Dartmouth College in 1930, received a civil engineering degree the following year from the Thayer School of Civil Engineering and was awarded his Master's and Ph.D. degrees at the California Institute of Technology.

Dr. White has served as a bomb-damage analyst for a strategic bomb survey in Germany following World War II, as an observer at Eniwetok Atoll atom-bomb tests, as a committee chairman with the Massachusetts civil defense organization and as an official with the American Society of Civil Engineers.

In addition, Dr. White has done research at Harvard University and the California Institute of Technology. During World War II, he performed war research at Princeton.

I.F.C. Rushing Convocation Acquaints Frosh With Frats

Freshmen attended the first I.F.C. Rushing Convocation held last week in the S.U. Ballroom. Various aspects of the fraternity system were discussed by Deans Field and Hopkins.

by DICK LEGRAND '63

Freshmen had their first opportunity to become acquainted with the UMass fraternity system Tuesday evening at the I.F.C. Rushing Convocation held in the Student Union Ballroom.

IFC Rushing Chairman, Jim Bradley, welcomed the freshmen who attended and introduced guest speakers Dean William Field and Dean Robert Hopkins, the officers of the IFC, and Mr. George Rogers, the Fraternity Manager. Each fraternity was represented by its President and IFC Representative.

Dean Field, in a brief address to those present, told of the administration's support of the fraternity system, and described some benefits of the system. He said a fraternity ". . . offers experience which you can't get any other way."

Dean Hopkins further explained the administration's view toward fraternities. He told those present the main reason for attending the University was to obtain an education, and study was not to be neglected. Hopkins cautioned those present against adopting what he termed "sophomoronic" attitudes.

After the talks the freshmen had the opportunity to ask any questions they had concerning Greek life which were answered by house representatives. Coffee and donuts were served, and the evening was brought to a close with the showing of the IFC film.

UMass Campus Goes Wild At Victory; 300 Brave Rain To Welcome Team Home

by DICK BRESCIANI
Special To The Collegian

UMass quarterback Jerry Whelchel fired a desperation 20-yard touchdown pass to halfback Loren Flagg with two seconds remaining Saturday to pull the Redmen from the brink of a frustrating defeat to the heights of a scintillating, spectacular triumph over previously undefeated Bucknell University, 21-20.

The actual winning point came when senior George Pleau split the uprights with a perfect kick to give UMass its second win of the season. Previously the Redmen had seen a 14-0 lead melt away as the Bucknell aerial attack struck for three touchdowns in the final 20 minutes.

But Whelchel's amazing clutch pass, as he was being dragged to the ground by three Bucknell linemen, found Flagg all alone in the left corner of the end zone and UMass had one of its greatest football victories in many years.

There were many Redmen heroes. Flagg, who scored all three touchdowns, on passes of 48 and 20 yards and a blazing 88 yard kickoff return, was also the game's leading rusher with 50 yards on just five carries plus a stellar defensive effort.

Whelchel, the cool, poised quarterback, who completed 10 of 17 passes for 161 yards and two touchdowns, ran well and was strong defensively. Co-capt. Paul Majeski who caught three passes and was a tower of defensive strength. Sam Lussier caught four passes and intercepted two more.

FANS GREET REDMEN

Redmen rooters, their spirits undampened by the pouring rain, gathered in front of the Men's Physical Education Building late Saturday evening to welcome the victorious Redmen team back to campus after a long and tiresome journey from Bucknell. The crowd began arriving shortly after eleven anticipating a twelve o'clock arrival by the team. However, when it was announced that the Redmen would not be pulling in until about one o'clock part of the crowd left, but the remainder (about three hundred people), spurred on by a spirited section of the Redmen Marching Band and assurances on the part of Dean Field that he would try to extend women's curfew for the evening, stood in the rain or huddled in cars until the team arrived and were given the reception they richly deserved.

Dr. Lederle To Keynote Conference

President Lederle will give the keynote address at the 36th annual conference of the Eastern College Personnel Officers Association at the Whiteface Inn at Lake Placid, New York, on Monday.

The Conference, held from October 7 to 10, brings together the Placement Directors of the New England, New York, and New Jersey colleges and Personnel Managers from industrial concerns. The 500 attendees will be welcomed by Robert J. Morrissey, Director of Placement & Financial Aid Services at the University, who is the current President of the Association.

Miss Carolyn Hawes, Placement Officer for Women at the University, will also attend to hear the talks and discussions concerning placement problems of today.

With the theme "Getting to the Top", major discussion will

New Dept. Head Favorably Compares Chem. Program

by DAVE NAYLOR '64

Dr. William McEwen, new head of the chemistry department, said in an interview recently that "the undergraduate chemistry program at UMass compares favorably with that of any college or university in the United States.

"But," he went on, "the graduate program needs expansion." Dr. McEwen pointed out that there are, at present, about 70 graduate students in chemistry.

Dr. McEwen comes to UMass from the University of Kansas, where he began as an assistant professor of chemistry in 1947. Between 1952 and 1957 he served as visiting professor of chemistry at the University of Illinois.

He received his B.S. and M.S. from Columbia University and then spent a year in the Army at Oak Ridge Laboratories in Tennessee. After serving his "hitch" in the Army, Dr. McEwen returned to Columbia, where he earned his Ph.D.

Dr. McEwen has a long list of achievements to his credit. He has published approximately 75 research papers in various journals, has co-authored two textbooks and one laboratory manual on organic chemistry, and has made two speaking tours on behalf of the American Chemical Society.

Dr. McEwen believes that the research facilities at the University must be enlarged. "This must be done to stay abreast of the University's plans of expansion and growth," he said. "UMass has great potential, and I think that it will soon take its place next to the 'giant' state universities of the midwest and far west."

New head of the Chemistry Department, Dr. William McEwen.

ON PICKLES AND THE PRESS

Cartoon by John Chase, 1962-63 President of the Association of American Editorial Cartoonists and cartoonist for the New Orleans States-Item

This week is National Pickle Week. Well, not really, but there IS such a week. You can bet that this week is National Something Week, because everybody has one, wants one, or is planning one. In one way it's a good thing, because the concentrated campaigns which these occasions bring about often serve to remind us how indispensable some of the services we really take for granted are.

We in the publishing profession are going to have our day, too. Next week, October 14-20, is National Newspaper Week. We have a lot of fun with National Weeks. Perhaps this is because there are so many of them that we can very easily lose track of just what we are honoring. But to every American with a public conscience, this week should and will have a very deep and real significance.

There's a little experiment you might perform sometime if you have any doubt at all about the value or nature of the free press in our country today. Just once, try to get along without a newspaper. The next time you need some information about current events or require help in understanding some question of importance, try and get help without referring to a newspaper or someone who has derived his information from the press. The point of the experiment will take care of itself.

There are some who will decry writing such as this. They will say that we are reenforcing points unnecessarily; that we are stating that which is already general knowledge. But there is no reason why we can not or should not "toot our own horn" once in a year. A quick look at the above cartoon will very quickly serve to justify our message. We of the United States Press are not alone in the service of providing information to an eager public, but we are unique in the manner in which we do it: and this point can be so easily forgotten.

The newspapers of the United States hold a sacred trust. We who publish in good conscience are aware of this trust, and once in a while we feel the public should be made aware of the fact that we hold it and are trying to discharge it properly. —Vern Pero

A New Unity Of Spirit

Saturday saw a surge of spirit(s) such as this campus has rarely seen. There were less than ten seconds remaining in the UMass-Bucknell game with the Redmen behind 20-14. At this point the team rallied and scored a touchdown and point after to win the game 21-20. In doing so, the team showed that they had reached a new peak in school spirit—a type of spirit that can overcome any odds and defeat any foes. They had done their job and it was a job well done!

Now let's get on to a new kind of spirit, one that I as a student was glad to see and proud to take part in. It began with a small announcement by the WMUA sportscaster that it would be great if the students would show their enthusiasm and appreciation to the Redmen for a job well done by greeting them on their return to campus.

Three students, a cheerleader, Maroon Key, and an I.F.C. representative, thought that it was a great idea and decided to get the ball rolling. Almost every fraternity, sorority and dormitory was called and asked to announce a "Welcome Home" rally at 11:45. In addition, WMUA was contacted and asked to announce that a rally would be held and that the cooperation of the student body as a whole was needed to make this a success. A poster and general intercom announcement was made at the Student Union. What had started out as a minute suggestion had now snowballed into a campus-wide bombshell.

If the Redmen had arrived back on campus at 11:45 as originally hoped for, they would have been greeted by almost a thousand drenched, but still wildly enthusiastic students. Unfortunately, the team was delayed and most of the students had to return to their respective dorms because of curfew and inclement weather after waiting in the downpour for well over an hour.

One enthusiastic student had brought a megaphone to lead the cheering. One well-remembered phrase was "The Redmen didn't quit on us with 10 seconds to go and we're not going to quit on them!"

With curfew time less than 10 minutes away, the group as a whole made a special petition to an especially likeable guy who was there for the same reason as the student body. This was a very important moment because on it rested the success or failure of the rally. Dean Field's reply to the girls who wanted to stay (and also their escorts) was, "I'm going to stay until the team gets here, and I'd like you to stay with me!" He arranged for the girls to sign a list (first time many of them ever made the Dean's list) which gave them the extra time to wait for our team.

At 1:30 a physically exhausted team pulled into Curry Hicks parking lot where they were greeted by an equally exhausted, but still enthusiastic crowd of Redmen supporters, and members of the Redmen Marching Band. Coach Fusia in his usual, modest way attributed the victory to the spirit of the team and said it was their victory. He and the team seemed extremely pleased (and a little shocked) at the enthusiasm generated by the victory, and rightly so.

True spirit and traditions have to have a real start somewhere. Saturday night, I believe that we witnessed the spark of a new era at UMass. The Administration, the Greeks, and the Independents bonded together in a unified display of school spirit, an auspicious beginning for this, our Centennial Year. LET'S BEAT UCONN!!! —B.K.P.

— LETTERS TO THE EDITOR —

Dear Messrs. Palter and Theroux, Concerning Last Friday's Asterisk:
Three points of criticism:

1. You stated that, ". . . laws should not determine the ultimate action of men; that this action is to be determined rather by conscience." But conscience is learned culture speaking to you. What culture is directing the Southern conscience?

2. At the risk of misinterpreting your parallel of the government of Nazi Germany with our own, we ask if you suggest that our laws were constructed as arbitrarily as those of Nazi Germany. Were not our laws, in fact, based on conscience?

3. Finally, you suggested that the proper situation would be to provide the Negro with economic equality and integration. However, it is a known sociological fact that, as the economic status of the minority group rises, so rises the hostility of the dominant group. In view of this, how can the "proper situation" be achieved if the Southerners are to be governed only by their own consciences?

We have two suggestions for this problem:

1. The Constitutional laws concerning equality can be repealed, leaving the situation entirely to the Southern conscience.

or 2. The Federal Government can cease enforcing laws by threats alone. When they start activating their constitutional convictions then we shall have at least a beginning.

FOR WHOM THE BELLS ...?

What bells are these that so sporadically in the distance, ring disruption of my studies —
Yea, late at night I heard them—once at one a.m. In midday too, they toll—a prayer only to be silenced by an unseen hand. At 5:00 their mournful knell—of Auld Lang Syne—once more disrails my thoughts.

—What is this new policy on bell ringing? The practice was applauded last year at Christmastime, but methinks the praise has gone to someone's head—or belfry. In season the evening ringing of the bells was enjoyable—I waited outdoors at 5 p.m. to hear it. Then they rang for football games; now they ring constantly, or at least often and irregularly.

The newness and pleasure are fading—I say save the bells for those special times of year, and save the Lord's Prayer—at least twice stopped in the middle—for more reverent occasions than muddy afternoons when we are dashing to our classes. —Axel

AFTERMATH

To the Editor:

On the evening of September 26 this campus witnessed what has been termed a riot and a steam outlet, depending on one's viewpoint. Last Tuesday another such gathering, sparked by a group of innocently singing girls, was stopped before it left the area of the catalyst, Brooks Dormitory. The outcome of the first was that eight students were "disciplined". Does anyone know whether someone was punished for Tuesday's action?

I am not against discipline of rioters per se. Everyone knows the awful potential in even a cheerful bit of horseplay in large groups. Witness the snowball fight at Yale a few years ago. What I do disagree with is the method of punishment and the manner of choosing the "examples" to the rest of us. Incidentally, what happened to those examples? Are they examples if no one knows of them?

The only way to prevent someone from some action is to convince him that he will be caught if he does that action. Early Colonial paper bills promised death to counterfeiters, who freely counterfeited the promise too. Students who thought of joining Tuesday's action had a 1,992 to 2,000 chance of getting away with it (official statistics).

If the odds of escape were substantially slimmer, the punishment would not have to be nearly as great as presently effective. How many people would risk starting a riot if they knew they would probably be caught and given probation? How many would trade a second demonstration for a forced vacation? Would you?

The location of Brooks Dormitory may not be a wise one, surrounded by students of little restraint and lots of energy, but it could be a good place as well as a safe one if each potential rioter could plan on probation at the end of the evening; it will be neither safe nor sane until there is no longer the threat of riots; until each student can be assured of punishment for those riots.

Morris To Discuss Indonesian Problems

Dr. Bruce Morris, professor of economics at UMass, will talk on "The Problems of Indonesia" at a program tomorrow evening at 8 p.m. in the Worcester Room of the SU. The talk will be sponsored by the University Economics Association.

Dr. Morris has recently returned to this campus after a two year absence, teaching at the University of Jogjakarta in Indonesia. He taught courses in labor relations, economic development and statistics there under a Ford Foundation project administered through the University of Wisconsin.

Dr. Morris came to UMass in 1948 from Amherst College.

WHAT TO WEAR TILL THE DOCTOR COMES

Now that you have enrolled and paid your fees and bought your books and found your way around campus and learned to hate your roommate, it is time to turn to the most important aspect of college life. I refer, of course, to clothes.

What does Dame Fashion decree for the coming school year? (Incidentally, Dame Fashion is not, as many people believe, a fictitious character. She was a real Englishwoman who lived in Elizabethan times and, indeed, England is forever in her debt. During the invasion of the Spanish Armada, Dame Fashion—not yet a Dame but a mere, unlettered country lass named Moll Flanders—during the invasion, I say, of the Spanish Armada, this dauntless girl stood on the white cliffs of Dover and turned the tide of battle by rallying the drooping morale of the British fleet with this stirring poem of her own composition:

Don't be gutless,
Men of Britain.
Swing your cutlass,
We ain't quittin'.

Smash the Spanish,
Sink their boats,
Make 'em vanish,
Like a horse makes oats.

For Good Queen Bess,
Dear sirs, you gotta
Make a mess
Of that Armada.

You won't fail!
Knock 'em flat!
Then we'll drink ale
And stuff like that.

In 1589 She Invented the laying hen

As a reward for these inspirational verses Queen Elizabeth dubbed her a Dame, made her Poet Laureate, and gave her the Western Hemisphere except Duluth. But this was not the extent of Dame Fashion's service to Queen and country. In 1589 she invented the laying hen, and she was awarded a lifetime pass to Chavez Ravine. But she was not to end her days in glory. In 1591, alas, she was arrested for overtime jousting and imprisoned for thirty years in a butt of malmsey. This later became known as Guy Fawkes Day.)

But I digress. Let us get back to campus fashions. Certain to be the rage again this year is the cardigan (which, curiously enough, was named after Lord Cardigan, who commanded the English fleet against the Spanish Armada. The sweater is only one product of this remarkable Briton's imagination. He also invented the glottal stop, the gerund, and the eyelid, without which winking, as we know it today, would not be possible).

But I digress. The cardigan, I say, will be back, which is, I believe, cause for rejoicing. Why? Because the cardigan has nice big pockets in which to carry your Marlboro Cigarettes—and that, good friends, is ample reason for celebration as all of you will agree who have enjoyed Marlboro's fine, comfortable, mellow flavor and Marlboro's filter. So why don't you slip into your cardigan and hie yourself to your tobacconist for some good Marlboros? They come in soft pack or flip-top box. Cardigans come in pink for girls and blue for boys. © 1962 Max Shulman

Cardigans or pullovers—it's a matter of taste . . . And so is Marlboro a matter of taste—the best taste that can possibly be achieved by experienced growers and blenders—by science, diligence, and tender loving care. Try a pack.

Conference To Be Held In November

New dimensions in the role of the volunteer will be the topic of a conference to be held at UMass, November 14-16.

The conference entitled 'The Volunteer in Today's Culture" is open to the professional staff and volunteers of all associations, agencies and groups which function with the volunteer in both program and service.

Among the facets of volunteerism to be emphasized are: changing patterns in society which bring new needs and opportunities for the volunteer; needs for broader representation of society in volunteer groups; and experimental programs of volunteerism developing in Massachusetts and in other states.

Some of the outstanding speakers and resource persons will be: Marion K. Sanders, associate editor of Harper's Magazine; David L. Sills, Bureau of Applied Social Research, Columbia University; James J. Tattersall, director of training, American National Red Cross; and Edward V. Pope, Federal Extension Service specialist in child development and human relations.

The conference is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service, the university and the Sears Roebuck Foundation.

Literary Magazine Announces Board

The new editorial board of the University's former Literary Magazine has voted to retitle the publication Caesura.

At a recent meeting of the board, a series of changes designed to improve the circulation and reading interest of the magazine were unanimously approved. The changes include a new approach to art work and material from students, a new magazine layout, and new methods of advertisement.

Another recent innovation of the board has been the addition of a separate art board to judge and compile student art pieces.

Board members Hinda Katz and Gerald Goldman were elected chairmen of the student interest campaign. Named in charge of advertising were Associate Editor Deidre Consolati, and board members Steve Orlen and Barry Craine. Named to the art board were William Shumway and Joseph Eagan.

In charge of other activities are Editor Richard Tower and board members Dick Parry, William Parry, Paul Theroux, Charles Dean and Ann Meltzer.

Harold McCarthy, faculty member in English, is advisor.

Harriers Nip Maine In Tri-Meet; Brouillet Smashes Orono Record

by JIM RYAN '65

A terrific team effort, combined with two brilliant individual efforts, gave the University of Massachusetts cross country team a well-deserved win over Yan Con rival Maine and independent Northeastern Saturday on a rain-soaked course in Orono, Maine. The Redmen nipped the Maine harriers 27-31, while Northeastern finished far behind with 73 points.

Bobby Brouillet, showing even better form than last year, wiped out the existing course record at Orono, finishing in a time of 20:25. "Digger" broke the old mark, 21:28, by 63 seconds without even being pushed, and while running on a very slippery course. The old record was held by Mike Kimball, considered to be a very good runner while he was at Maine.

The astounding fact was that not only Brouillet broke the old record, but the first four finishers all broke the record. Jim Wrynn, again showing outstanding form, finished second in a time of 21:05. Running nip and tuck with Ellis and Heinrick of Maine up to the last 300 yards, Wrynn sprinted across the finish line three seconds ahead of Ellis. Heinrick was fourth, and completed the quartet of record breakers.

The team as a whole showed considerable improvement over last week. Bob Pendleton finished fifth, Dave Balch, moving up with every race, finished seventh, and soph Tom Panke was twelfth to make a total of 27 points for the Redmen. Other UMass finishers in order were Ken O'Brien, Dick Blomstrom, Bob Ramsay, Gene Colburn, and John Lavoie.

To show just how close the race was, Maine took 3rd, 4th, 6th, 8th, and 10th places to the Redmen's 1st, 2nd, 5th, 7th, and 12th. Maine has a strong, tight team, which should be a threat to the Redmen in the Yan Con meet next month. The next meet for Coach Footrick's team will be this Friday, Oct. 12, vs. Boston University and Connecticut at Franklin Park in Boston. After their showing against Maine, the Redmen should do very well in this meet.

Frosh Trackmen Entertain Springfield Here Tuesday

by GENE COLBURN '64

The freshman cross-country team will make its belated debut here on Tuesday against the Springfield freshmen at 4 p.m. The Little Redmen won their first meet by default when the Coast Guard Academy freshmen did not show up for their scheduled meet on September 28.

Coach Cobb feels that the frosh should win, but that they could be very hard-pressed because of the loss of Dave Sullivan. Sullivan, a Malden product, hurt himself Friday and is expected to be out of action for about a month. This could seriously hurt the Harriers' hopes of doing well this year. Clayton Berry and Bob Larson have shown considerable improvement in practice, and it is hoped that they will help fill the vacancy created by the loss of Sullivan. If everyone on the team runs as well as expected this could still be the best freshman team Coach Cobb has ever had.

by AL RICE '66

There is no question in the minds of those who heard the Redmen defeat Bucknell Saturday that it was the wildest, most surprising ball game that has taken place in a long time. But there were a few other shockers across the country. No doubt the biggest was the 9-7 win by UCLA over Ohio State, the top ranked team in the nation, and the pre-season pick for the mythical national championship. The Bruins led by a touchdown after one period, but by the halftime Ohio State had scored and added the extra point for a 7-6 lead. With one minute and thirty-five seconds left sophomore Larry Zeno booted a 24 yard field goal for the Bruins' win. Before the game UCLA was rated 52nd.

Another upset of mild proportion was the Louisiana State win over Georgia Tech. Both are ranked in the top ten, so the LSU 10-7 win wasn't a great upset, though the Bayou Bengals were slight underdogs. LSU halfback Jerry Stovall, generally considered as one of this year's All-American half backs, ran 98 yards with a kickoff return and Lynn Amadee kicked a field goal for the Louisiana scoring.

Glynn Griffing broke Charlie Conerly's record at Ole Miss by firing four touchdown passes in leading the Rebels to a 40-7 rout of Houston in a game played at Jackson, Miss., for well known reasons. Air Force Academy, led by quarterback Terry Isaacson, continued to fly high with a 25-20 win over Southern Methodist. The Falcons' field general threw one touchdown pass and could be a threat to George Mira and Sonny Gibbs as All-American quarterback.

This week was regarded by the experts as the final test of west coast football after many poor performances against rivals from the East and Midwest in the past few years. Not only did UCLA meet the challenge in fine fashion but USC and the University of California did too. Southern Cal downed favored Iowa 7-0, and California, with a team not highly regarded, came within two points of beating Pitt, 26-24. Pittsburgh quarterback Jim Traficant completed only four passes, but three went for scores and it was a little too much for the Golden Bears to handle. The Trojans scored early and then held on to the lead that Iowa couldn't catch up to, since they lost five fumbles to the Los Angeles squad.

On the New England front, Boston University helped West Virginia keep their defensive streak of not being scored upon. BU became the third team in a row to fail to cross the Mountaineers' goal line, losing 7-0. Boston College won its third in a row (something BC hasn't done in a long time) by shutting out Virginia Military 18-0. The difference has been a good quarterback in Jack Concannon, who went into the game ninth in the country in total offense. Boston's other two teams were considerably less successful. Harvard lost 14-12 in an upset at Cornell, and Northeastern was upset at Bates by a 28-0 score. The difference for Cornell was two extra points kicked by Pete Gogolak, a Hungarian born soccer star. Fumbles and an interception return for a touchdown by guard Howard Vandersea gave Bates an early lead that was never in trouble.

The Huskies of the University of Connecticut staged a considerable upset at Storrs when they beat Rutgers 15-9. The Scarlet Knights went undefeated last year while the UConns had won only two of their last ten, but they capitalized on two costly Rutgers penalties in a 66 yard drive to notch the winning touchdown on a dive by Tony Magaletta. Connecticut provides the opposition here at Alumni Field in the homecoming game next Saturday and they are going to be itching to avenge the 31-13 humiliation the Redmen gave them last year.

BUCKNELL FILMS

Films of last Saturday's UMass-Bucknell game will be shown one night this week. Check the bulletin board in the S.U. lobby and Wednesday's Collegian for the night and time of showing.

Flagg Scores 3 TD's; Two Via Whelchel Aerials

And then there were the Redmen linemen, sophomore tackle Bob Burke, Co-Capt. Tom Kirby, sophomore end John Hudson, tackle Paul Graham, guards John Kozaka, Bob Tedoldi and soph Pete Pietz, all of whom were outstanding.

The Redmen started quickly. UMass' Hal Ryder kicked off to start the game, and three plays later Bob Burke captured a Bison fumble on the Bucknell 48. On the first play Whelchel tossed a 48-yard bomb to Flagg, who caught the ball and fell into the end zone. Pleau added the first of his three perfect extra points and UMass led, 7-0.

Bucknell then dominated most of the first period, but had two drives thwarted, first when Lussier intercepted a pass on the UM eight, and later when a fourth-down pass by Norm Garrity fell incomplete. The second period turned into a punting duel between John Schroeder and the Bison's Mike Connell with neither team threatening.

Dave Reitze opened the second half by kicking deep to Flagg, who caught the ball at the 12, broke toward the Redmen wedge, cut back to the left sideline and easily outraced the last Bucknell defender, tackle Bob Brown, for a sparkling 88-yard score. Pleau's kick made it 14-0.

Thus for the third straight week Bucknell found itself trailing in the early minutes of the second half. And following past scripts the Bisons began to move upfield. It appeared UMass was too strong defensively, however, when Bucknell was stopped inches short of a first down on the UMass 45, but Ken Kezer then fumbled the ball back to the Bisons.

Led by the always-dangerous lefty Ron Giordano, Bucknell drove upfield and finally scored on a fourth-down, four yard pass from Giordano to end Rene Clements with five minutes left in the period. Giordano rolled out on the conversion attempt but was smothered by Redmen end Hudson, and UMass took a 14-6 lead into the final quarter.

Flagg broke away for runs of 13 and 31 yards midway in the period but then the Redmen drive stalled and Bucknell took over on its own 27 with five minutes left. A key fourth down pass from Giordano to end Phil Morgan was good for 15 yards with 3:30 remaining. Following a great defensive play by Whelchel, Giordano connected successively with halfback Charlie Thomas, end Dick Tyrell and Thomas again to put the ball on the UMass 23 with 2:30 to go.

Five plays later Giordano hit Clements in the end zone with an eight yard lob. The crafty qb then passed to Connell for the extra points and with 1:15 left the game was tied, 14-14. UMass got a break on the kickoff when Reitze tried an onside boot but just nudged the ball one yard and the Redmen had a first down on the Bucknell 42.

An offensive holding penalty moved UMass back but Whelchel teamed up with Majeski on pass plays of 10 and 11 yards to give the Redmen a third and one on the 32. Jerry's next pass was intercepted by Tyrell with 1:08 remaining. In three plays Bucknell scored with a startling suddenness as Giordano passed 36 yards to Thomas, ran for 10 and then passed the final seven to Tyrell. Reitze's attempted extra-point kick was wide to the right, but Bucknell had seemingly made its third straight winning comeback.

Although only 45 seconds remained, someone forgot to tell the Redmen they were supposed to lose. Kezer ran the kickoff back 18 yards to the UMass 33. Majeski then made the catch of the day with a diving, juggling grasp of a Whelchel aerial that was good for 23 yards.

Following an incomplete pass, Jerry hit Hudson with a bullet and UMass found itself with a first down at the Bucknell 20 with 15 seconds left. The clock slowly ticked away as Jerry twice threw incompletes to Kezer.

Then came the big play. Flagg, flanked to the left, broke straight downfield. Whelchel dropped back, but was grabbed by Bucknell's Clements. Amazingly Jerry kept his feet, and just as two more Bucknell linemen dove on him, somehow threw long and accurately to Flagg who was all alone. Loren clapped his hands and jumped up and down with glee at the falling spheroid which he clutched in his arms as the Redmen bench, coaching staff and radio commentator Jim Trelease went into a frenzy of joy.

In the locker room following the game, Head Coach Vic Fusia was full of praise for the Redmen. "It was a great and courageous effort by the whole team," Fusia stated. "The boys were tired in those final minutes and could have given up after Bucknell came from behind. But they showed their spirit and determination and fought to the finish."

FLAG(G) DAY

Loren Flagg catches winning touchdown in end zone as Bison defenders arrive too late. The pass came with only seconds remaining in the game.

Loren Flagg races 88 yards down the sidelines returning the opening kickoff of the second half for the Redmens' second score of the afternoon.

Rushed hard, but still getting the ball off, Jerry Whelchel passes complete to halfback Sam Lussier (insert) for a Redmen first down during the third period.

Mann And Quintero To Present Dylan Thomas' "Under Milkwood"

by RUSSELL MURPHY '66

When the theater gains, law and medicine lose out. So it has appeared in countless biographies of theatrical people who had originally been intended for law or medicine. So it has again appeared in the persons of Theodore Mann and Jose Quintero, the producers of the Distinguished Visitors Program's first offering, Dylan Thomas' comedy-drama, "Under Milkwood," to be presented tomorrow evening at 8 p.m. in the S.U. ballroom.

Mr. Mann was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., where he attended New York University and Brooklyn Law School. Although he graduated from law school and passed his bar examination, he decided to take a year to read "the Russian novelists and to spend the time at Carmel, Cal.," in deference to entering his father's law firm.

THEODORE MANN

In the course of that year he received a letter from an acquaintance, Jose Quintero, asking Mann to join him in a summer theater venture at Woodstock, N. Y. Mr. Mann accepted and this led to $300 and the beginning of a twelve year partnership.

Mr. Quintero, a native of Panama, attended the University of California where he studied medicine. A course in remedial English, however, led to an interest in the theater. It was then a short road from California to Woodstock, N. Y., and his Broadway collaboration with Theodore Mann.

The team of Mann and Quintero have produced such plays as "Long Day's Journey into Night," "Our Town," "The Girl on the Via Flaminia," "Summer and Smoke," and "The Iceman Cometh." These plays have received such recognition as the Pulitzer Prize, the Vernon Rice Memorial Award, and the Lola D'Annunzio Award.

While working well as collaborators, both men have established names for themselves in their own rights. Mr. Quintero has directed productions for the Metropolitan Opera Co., the New York City Center, and the "Festival of Two Worlds" in Spoleto, Italy. Mr. Mann is co-founder with Alexander Schneider of the Christmas Eve Concert at Carnegie Hall and of the free Washington Square Concerts held summers in New York.

JOSE QUINTERO

The first New York production of Mann and Quintero was the 1950 musical fantasy, "Dark of the Moon," winner of four awards. They are currently producing two cycles of plays by Thornton Wilder entitled "The Seven Ages of Man" and "The Seven Deadly Sins."

Operetta Guild Presents "Guys & Dolls" Thursday

"Guys and Dolls," is, says critic Louis Untermeyer, "an operatic jamboree, Verdi in terms of Times Square."

Its heroes are Damon Runyon's heroes—safe-blowers, hard-boiled (but sentimental) sports, beer barons, crap shooters, horse-players, gangsters and slangsters of Manhattan-on-the-subway. Runyon's understanding of New Yorkers and of the New Yorkese was seized upon by the creators of "Guys and Dolls" and made into a glittering innovation, the universe of the underworld.

Plot From Damon Runyon

The plot centers about a little-known Runyon story, "The Idyll of Sarah Brown," but is enriched by a horde of Runyon's typical Broadway characters: Nathan Detroit, Sky Masterson, Big Jule, Benny Southstree, Harry the Horse, and Nicely-Nicely Johnson. All of them are gamblers; the action concerns them, their girls, and their troubles.

There are two love stories, equally wacky. The first involves the mercurial Nathan Detroit (Paul Cwiklik), a small but hot-shot operator, proprietor of "The Oldest Established Permanent Floating Crap Game in New York." Detroit is definitely, if irregularly, devoted to Miss Adelaide (Jeanne Cronje), a night club canary.

Marriage Or Craps

They have been engaged for fourteen years, but their nuptials have been continually postponed because of Nathan's sudden need to dash off to the Saratoga race track, superintend a particularly feverish crap game, and disappear in other mysterious ways, as are recounted in "Adelaide's Lament."

The other romance concerns Sky Masterson (Herbert Mongue), a big-time, free-living, free-loving plunger and Sarah Brown (Diane Fairfield), a Salvation Army lass, head of the gallant but run-down Save-a-Soul Mission. Complications ensue, but the course of true love inevitably finds its way.

The script of "Guys and Dolls" is complemented by Frank Loesser's lyrics and music.

"I don't know who, but someone pulled the plug out of the Campus Pond."

A Dry Campus? A Dry Pond!

What did they do to the Campus Pond? They drained the water and poisoned the fish—that's what they did.

Head of Grounds George Mellen said the pond was drained yesterday by University Maintenance personnel mainly to see if the dam underneath the sidewalk, through which water leaves the pond, was plugged.

It wasn't.

To drain the pond the gates controlling water entry, located underneath the sidewalk north of the S.U. in back of the statue of Metawampe, were closed.

The Campus Pond takes drainage water from all Amherst streets this side of the town center and from a brook located at Wildwood Cemetery in the vicinity of Butterfield Dorm.

Litter was cleared from shores around the pond while it was empty, and the fish—mostly small Pond Shiners—were poisoned by personnel of the State Fisheries and Game Department.

Mr. Mellon said that fish in other ponds in the area, including Hadley Pond and Puffer's Pond, had been poisoned some time ago by the Department and the ponds were to be stocked with game fish. Unless Campus Pond fish had been killed, he said, some could have flowed into the other water spots in the area.

The pond should be filled, he said, by Friday.

Frosh Candidates Launch Campaigns

by JACKIE BEAUVAIS '66 and ELAINE CORIS '66

Twenty-six nominees for freshman class offices addressed a gathering of approximately 200 freshmen yesterday at 4 p.m. in the Senate Chambers.

The purpose of the two-minute talks was to acquaint members of the class of '66 with prospective class officers in preparation for tomorrow's primary at which two nominees will be chosen as run-off candidates for each office.

Senator Leverett Saltonstall Salutes UMass Centennial

Massachusetts Leverett Saltonstall in Washington last week congratulated UMass on the centennial of its founding for "its tradition of spreading knowledge into new groups in new ways."

He pointed out that the University's student body had grown from some 30 students in 1863 to 7,000 today with an increase to 10,000 anticipated within the next decade, and cited its Four College Cooperation Program carried on in conjunction with Amherst, Mt. Holyoke and Smith, its founding of Hokkaido University in Japan, and its classes for industrial employees as examples of outstanding contributions to education and to public service.

Applications Available For Absentee Ballots

Post card applications for Absentee Ballots will be available free of charge to all those members of the University community who are registered voters of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and who wish to vote in the November 6 elections, Student Senator Steve Hewey, Chairman of the Ad-Hoc committee on Absentee Voting, has announced.

Applications may be obtained from the RSO office on the second floor of the S.U. After filling out the necessary information on the back of the card, the card must be mailed to the Town or City Clerk of the town or city in which applicants are registered voters.

The Clerk will forward an absentee ballot along with instructions as to the use of the ballot. The Committee on Absentee Ballots is making arrangements to provide free notary service, since absentee ballots must be notarized in order to be valid.

The Committee was set up following its approval at last Wednesday's meeting of the Student Senate.

The bill (S-1) reads as follows: "Moved that the Student Senate approve the formation of an Ad-Hoc Committee on Absentee Voting. The purposes of this Committee being to encourage and aid, by any available means, members of the University community in voting in the forthcoming State and U.S. Congressional elections.

"The format of the committee shall be at the discretion of the President of the Student Senate but shall consist of at least two Senators. This committee shall expire on Nov. 20, 1962, and shall report its activities to the Senate the following day in accordance with the By-laws."

International Club Elects Officers

Approximately 100 members attended the annual meeting of the International Student Club last Friday evening, which was highlighted by the election of new officers: President, Russy D. Sumariwalla, India, candidate for PhD. in Government; Vice President, Don Moore, USA; and Treasurer, Nabil N. Yousef, UAR.

Other newly elected officers include: Joint Secretaries, Barbara Quay, USA and Anita M. Imhoof, Switzerland; while members of the Executive Committee of Five are: Dr. Denys J. Voaden, Great Britain; Mare Chere, USA; Shree Prasad, India; Susan Nash, USA; and Linda Muldoon, USA.

Activities planned by the Executive Council for the coming year include monthly documentary film shows from different countries, debates, talks, discussion groups, sports, games, and hikes.

In addition, distinguished guests will be invited to speak on matters of current interest, while facilities will also be available to those interested in learning ballroom dancing.

Also on the year's calendar are international folk-dancing,

Old Dogs And New Tricks

In fall a young man's fancy turns to politics. The natural beauty of the season will soon be marred by hundreds of posters, leaflets, and other assorted junk all begging the voter to suport a particular candidate.

No effort is made towards a real campaign. No babies are kissed, no hands are shook, and no stumping occurs—just a big mess of trash saying "vote for me."

Take heart all ye who know there is a more intelligent method for selecting candidates. We hope that old dogs can learn new tricks because the class of '66 has given the upper classes something to think about.

The freshman class conducted a well attended political meeting at which time all candidates for freshman class officers were given the opportunity to speak to the voters.

Not a bad idea! —N.C.A.

Deviation From The Format

We thank the Distinguished Visitors Program Committee for bringing to us the Circle-In-The-Square Players.

We were pleased to note that this committee saw fit to depart from its former format of presenting speakers only. There most certainly is a place for the performing arts here at the University, and the Distinguished Visitors Committee should not have to exclude such groups.

Progress By Day

The University is moving toward progress. Too bad we will lose our way at night.

We are speaking of the notable absence of street lights on the lower campus area and on some parts of "the hill." When walking at night one often has to grope his way, nose to the ground, to avoid falling into one of the numerous pits, sandtraps or marshes located around and about.

It is not unreasonable to ask for adequate lighting. May we have adequate lighting?

—Metawampe

A Review

UNDER MILKWOOD

Some 850 persons attended a performance last night of Dylan Thomas' Under Milkwood, presented by the Circle-in-the-Square Players of New York City and sponsored by the UMass Distinguished Visitors Program. Some 850 persons, we think, must laud as we do a poignantly expressive performance of a wittily powerful and movingly dramatic work.

Ten players lived a day of life in a little Welsh fishing village on a 40 foot stage. A town like any other—quaint as Nantucket Village and profane as Peyton Place—with a melting-pot population, was portrayed by two narrators and eight actors before a responsive audience.

Dylan Thomas masters the English language as if it were a yoyo, and molds it to his uses as a youngster models clay.

This work, Under Milkwood, comes out a mixture of Our Town and How Green Was My Valley. The vibrant language of the townspeople blurts out life like Count Basie doing One O'Clock Jump.

From portrayal of the school children to the town whore to the corner gossips to the innocent parson, the Mann-Quintero production last night did a darn good job.

The first thing that strikes the anticipant eye of the audience is the bare and shabby stage setings augmented by the grays and blacks and grayish blues and greens of the costuming. Stage settings included seven wooden seats on a bare stage. At the rear and almost filling the length of the stage, was a three-tiered wooden platform.

The effect of the simplicity of sets and conservative dress was neutralizing. It gave the center of the stage to its rightful owners —the actors and the action.

In case we haven't mentioned it, the players were superb. Their emotions, their affectations, their physical expressions and contortions in a production that put the spotlight on dialogue and acting were magnificent.

The characters ran the gamut. There was Lord Cut Glass who had "66 clocks, one for each year of his loony age"; Miss Myfanwy Price and Mog Edwards who lived "at the top and sea ends of the town," and wrote each other letters of desire at night; Mae Rose Cottage who's "17 and never been kissed—ho ho!!"; Mary Ann Sailors who loves life and is 85 years, three months and one day old; Mrs. Pugh, "sweet as a razor," and Mr. Pugh who, charmingly hopeful, reads his mail order book, "Lives of the Great Poisoners," and serves tea to Mrs. Pugh in the morning muttering wistfully under his breath "here's your arsenic, dear."

The play opens just before dawn with the live sleeping and the dead awakening, and all throughout entwines the living and the dead, the past and present, those sleeping and those awake.

Theodore Mann, Jose Quintero and the Circle-in-the-Square Players are to be praised for their work and the UMass Distinguished Visitors Program committee are to be given a vote of thanks from an awed University community.

ODE TO A LEAF

HI!

— LETTERS TO THE EDITOR —

Why The Bell Tolls

To the Editor:

Who is this being, this odious being, called Axel? Who is he to say that the golden pealing of the church bells bothers him? Who is he to say that these melodious strains of the Lord's Prayer, of America the Beautiful, and Ole Lang Syne should be relegated to obscurity except for special occasions?

How many of us truly contemplate the wisdom and glory of the Lord, and thank Him for all He does for us? As we walk across this beautiful rustic campus of ours to the Union, and at the same time hear the sweet strains of the Lord's Prayer as they premeate the air, should we not say thanks to Him for everything instead of asking why the #$0 it is being played now?

In the evening, with our studies over and all the fears and concerns of the coming day before us, is it not comforting and refreshing to hear these chimes; to know that there is hope for the coming day? to know that we are not facing alone our trials and tribulations?

Lew & ED "66"

Indignant Eater

To the Editor:

Isn't there something that we can do about the injustice of the Commons?

When we paid for our meal tickets this past summer we were not told that it did not include holidays. The ticket reads, "Entitled to five-day meal privilege from Sept. 10, 1962 to Jan. 22, 1963," it does not mention any exceptions!

Last year we were served on holidays, why is it different this year? If it were due to a Blue Law that closed the Commons completely we might not be so angered, but why should we have to pay twice for these meals?

Many, many students on this campus buy weekend meal tickets and have just enough extra money to "get by", now they are faced with four extra meals to buy this weekend that they did not count on. This ticket reads, "Entitled to two-day meal privilege from Sept. 15, 1962 to Jan. 20, 1963". This includes Saturday breakfast and lunch, Sunday dinner and supper and there are no exceptions listed on this ticket either. Are we to expect more short notice surprises this year?

To top this off Friday and Sunday suppers that are normally served are not being served this weekend.

If this were a long weekend for everyone it would be one thing, but I, like many students, have to attend two classes on Sat.

When you multiply the large number of students by the extra $3.49 that we are expected to spend, and then add the amount that we have paid for Friday and Sunday supper, you realize that someone is making quite a profit. Who is it?

An irate and broke student,
Marilyn Gates '65

Not so, reader Gates. No one is making a profit on the meals since the cost was not included in the original semester bill.

Advance notice was posted in all dining areas that holiday meals would be on a "cash and carry basis."

4 To 2 To 3 From 3

To the Editor:

With reference to Professor Tucker's letter, which made a plea for financial support of the Literary Magazine, I would like to clarify a few points in the matter.

Prof. Tucker was under the impression that the Senate had cut the number of issues of the magazine from four to two issues per year. The fact is that last year there were only three issues, and that for the coming year there will also be three issues.

When comparing this year's budget with that of last year, we find it was cut from $4,013 to $3,346. This doesn't mean that the number of issues per year has been reduced, rather that the number of copies has been reduced in each issue from 5800 copies for last year to 4600 copies for the 1962-63 year. This, I would presume, is due to the fact that there are many students who feel that the magazine is a waste of money. (I disagree, but everyone has his own view.)

Consequently, both Prof. Tucker and I will be able to "Read in handsome type what the world of one girl poet might look to her."

Ban The Murals

To the Editor:

The so-called murals that adorn the walls of the Hatch are cold and crude representations of the past, present, and tradition of this university. The artist lacked the feeling and emotion necessary to paint a mural worthy of exemplifying the tradition and heritage of the University of Massachusetts. From this standpoint the murals are artistically vulgar, and are a direct insult to the student body which is expected to be proud of this trash which is upon the walls of one of the university's finest show pieces. These are the works of one who has not experienced and lived through the Soph-Frosh rope pull or any of the happy and sad afternoons spent at Alumni Field watching our athletic teams. The murals neither exemplify or instill the feeling of the university's tradition in anyone.

Tradition is the spirit and greatness of the past that lives within the students and faculty of this university. The emotional surge of tradition can not and will not be aroused by attempted works of art such as these.

In our so-called strides forward for a bigger and better tomorrow for the youth of Massachusetts, the administration has lost sight of the tradition of this campus. Thus upperclassmen and freshmen alike have an acute lack of spirit. This spirit can be renewed with winning athletic teams, the renewal of the rope pull—which is so pitifully portrayed in one of the murals—and spring day. Someone or group has erred to the approximate tune of $1,500 for these murals. Now in the centennial year is the time to start revitalizing campus spirit and tradition, but with art, buildings, courses, instructors, and emotional experiences of which we can be proud.

WMUA Broadcasts Game Of The Week

A new program on WMUA will be broadcast every Sunday night from 7:30 to 8:00 p.m. entitled, "The Game of the Week." This sports program will feature a taped play by play description of an important intramural football clash between two teams which played the previous week.

Wednesday, Oct. 10, at 7:00 p.m. the T.E.P. vs. Q.T.V. football game will be taped on Alumni Field by Bob Healy of the WMUA sports staff. It promises to be an interesting game. Q.T.V. has had two wins and no losses in league competition, beating B.K.P. 19-2 and P.S.D. 34-0; while T.E.P. has had two wins and one loss, beating A.S.P. 25-0, and P.S.D. 18-0, and losing to T.C. by a score of 19-4.

Listen in to WMUA at 7:30 p.m. this Sunday, Oct. 14, and every Sunday night from now on for "The Game of the Week."

THE IFC SCENE

by JOHN CARR '64

The third week of I.F.C. competition got underway on Monday evening with two perennial powers facing each other. KS and SAE battled at seven o'clock. Beginning at the same time was the game between SPE and PSD. The eight o'clock tussles saw ZN against LCA while BKP took on ASP.

KS showed a powerful defense to go with its strong offense as it blanked last year's league champions SAE, 27-0. For the winners, Crane once again was a standout at quarterback as he scored one touchdown himself and passed to Schmoyer, Harrington, and Hughes for other tallies. This demonstration of strength kept KS in the unbeaten ranks and should serve notice to the other teams in the I.F.C. that the only way to get to the championship is to get by KS.

SPE also remained undefeated as they rolled over PSD by a 33-0 score. MacLeod and Doherty, with two touchdowns apiece, paved the way for the victors. Bill Gianoulis also aided the SPE cause, catching passes for a touchdown and an extra point.

ZN got into the winning habit at eight o'clock by keeping LCA on the short end of a 13-6 decision. The combination of Kelleher to Landry clicked twice for the winners, while a Shea to Moore pass accounted for the LCA score. ZN picked a good game to break out their Black and gold uniforms.

The last game of the night saw BKP edging out a 18-6 win over a determined ASP contingent. Reid, Robbins, and Sobel scored for BKP while Southard crossed the goal line for ASP.

OFF TACKLE SLANTS

by HERB COWLES '65

Well, the National Football League has completed its fourth week of football and everything is going according to form. Green Bay is the undefeated leader of the Western Division, Milt Plum has proven he can still choke (11 completions out of 24 attempts for a mere 92 yards, plus an interception in the last two minutes which set up Hornung's winning field goal), Unitas and the Baltimore Colts have been both brilliant and abysmal, and of course the Washington Redskins are the undefeated leader of the Eastern Conference. As was expected, Washington's fine veteran team which boasts six rookies, eight two year men, and six three-year men, is easily outdistancing the rest of the league. After an opening 35-35 tie with Dallas, Washington has taken the warpath with successive wins over Cleveland, St. Louis, and Los Angeles.

On a more serious note, the Redskins, as everyone knows, were actually picked for last place by most of the experts and were expected to continue in their role as the biggest joke in the NFL since Lee Grosscup. The 1962 edition of the Redskins (formerly Paleskins — segregation and all that), have blended an amazing combination of youth (the squad averages less than 25 yrs. of age) and brilliant trading, with the professional quarterbacking of sophomore Norm Snead to mold what might become the biggest surprise in N.F.L. history. Snead, the 6'4" wonder from Wake Forest, has handled himself with all the finesse of a veteran, topping off his fine start with a first rate job of play-calling in last week's 20-14 victory over the Rams.

About those trades! The Redskin front office pulled off some dubious ones which were bravely criticized by anyone who even knew the names of the players involved. First the draft rights to Heissman Trophy winner Ernie Davis were traded to Cleveland for Brownie first draft choice Leroy Jackson and veteran halfback Bobby Mitchell. While Jackson is still finding his way around, Mitchell is the hottest thing in the League with seven touchdowns in his first four games. In other important trades Jim Schraeder went to Philadelphia for halfback Billy Barnes, and offensive guard Ray Lemek was shipped to Pittsburgh in exchange for guard John Nisby. Thus, because the offense has received a needed lift, the defense, which now gets more rest per game, has come on strong after the first game, and although they have given up 61 points in their last three games, they have consistently come up with the big play.

In closing, I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate myself (nobody else will) on realizing the amazing potential of the Redkins. Everyone picked the 'Skins for last but I was not trapped into this folly of the uninitiated — on second thought, maybe picking them for next to last wasn't such a bright idea either.

Sen. Saltonstall ...

back to the founding of the land-grant colleges as a milestone of tremendous significance.

"This was a giant step towards the realization of the democratic ideal of equality of educational opportunity for all.

"I am pleased to learn that in spite of the continuing expansion of the University of Massachusetts, only about 1/3 of the University's $20 million annual budget comes from Federal and State grants. The huge $65 million building program of the past decade, under a program of self-liquidation through gifts and students' fees, will be accomplished for the State at no cost to the taxpayer. It will be quite an achievement.

The Massachusetts legislator noted that despite the efforts of the University and other outstanding universities, and despite important advances in making a higher education available to all deserving Americans, much remains to be done.

Pressure Increases

He said that with an expanding college-age population and the encouragement of all qualified high school graduates to pursue some form of an advanced education, the pressures on our colleges and universities are increased.

These pressures present a serious challenge to the nation's institutions of higher learning, which the University is endeavoring to meet with far-sighted and imaginative programs.

Senator Saltonstall said that "because of the University of Massachusetts and institutions like it the democratic ideal is nearer reality today. Surely I speak on behalf of the Senate in extending congratulations to the University of Massachusetts and expressing confidence that its second hundred years will be as meaningful as its first."

Student Centennial Chairman Announces New Appointment

John Gounaris, general chairman of the Student Centennial Program, has announced the appointment of Kim Wallace '64 as chairman of the Student Publicity Committee for the centennial. Viola Albertson '64 was appointed sub-chairman and Roy Blitzer Collegian liason.

The main function of the committee, said Wallace, is to publicize all centennial events on the UMass campus through posters, oil cloth signs, Collegian articles, and other facilities. It is also responsible for complete off-campus coverage of student events, such as the Centennial Parade and the Centennial Showcase of Stars to be held in May.

Cora Wittum '66 Represents UMass On New Committee

Cora Whittum '66 has been named to represent UMass on the newly-formed Intercollegiate Committee for The Springfield Symphony, it was announced this week.

The purpose of the committee is to bring about a closer, continuous relationship between the only entirely professional symphony orchestra in the area and the college students in the greater Springfield community.

Student and faculty representatives on the committee will handle the special student discount season tickets to the Symphony series and will help publicize symphony events through the Springfield newspapers, thereby providing committee representatives an opportunity to write for professional publications as well as campus newspapers.

Pianist Lorin Hollander opens the Symphony season October 23 in Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 2.

Soccer Teams Fare Poorly; Williams And UConn Victors

VARSITY

by Dave Podbros '65

Last Saturday afternoon the UMass varsity bootmen lost their first match of the season to a fast and aggressive Williams squad. For UMass the starting team was Phillips at goal, Dick Repeta, who scored the only goal for the University, and Graves at the fullback slots. At halfback were Clinton, McDevitt, and Conlin; and in the front line were Astaldi, Leete, Chenery, Aksioneyzk, and Paleocrasus.

Williams scored early in the game, but before long Repeta, who played excellently, tied the score. Williams scored again and at the end of the half the score was Williams 2, UMass 1. However, in the third quarter the Redmen's defense fell apart; they let in three Williams scores. The game ended this way, Williams 5, UMass 1.

Against the New England champs, according to Coach Larry Briggs, UMass "played up to their capabilities," and lost a well played match.

The team hopefully will have better results against today's opponent, Trinity. Game time is 3:00 p.m.

Speaking Of Sports

by BARRY BROOKS '63

The UConn Huskies will open their 1962 Yankee Conference campaign before a Homecoming crowd here this Saturday. This game might very well determine the YanCon champ, since defending champion Maine has all but been eliminated with two losses already registered. Last year the Fusiamen saddened a Homecoming crowd at Storrs by handing the UConns a 31-13 setback.

Both UMass and UConn turned in fine performances this past Saturday in out-of-conference action. Connecticut upset the 1961 MAC champ, Rutgers, 15-9, while the Redmen were busy beating the Bisons, this year's MAC pre-season selection.

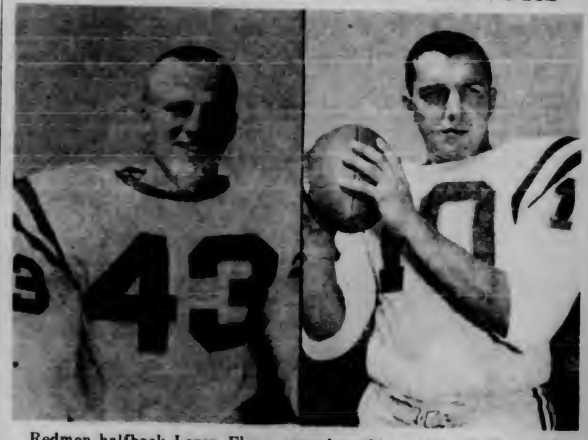
UConn Coach Bob Ingalls announced that the seniors on his squad have named Tony Magaletta, senior halfback from Yonkers, N.Y., and Gerry White, senior halfback from Haverhill, Mass., to act as this week's co-captains.

HOW ABOUT THAT . . . John Hudson looking like a sophomoric Paul Majeski with his defensive hustling against the Bisons . . . Former Pennsylvanians Vic Fusia and Ted Schmidt promising to take out Massachusetts citizenship papers after last Saturday's win . . . The list of fine performances in last Saturday's upset must also include John Kozaka and Dick Warren . . .

ODDS AND ENDS . . . Loren "Loppy" Flagg received the ECAC halfback of the week award, and Jerry Whelchel was selected as the ECAC's outstanding sophomore of the week . . . John "Bumps" Bamberry ('62) complimented George Pleau's fine performance after the game . . . Other Redmen followers at Lewisburg included Jerry Whelchel's dad, and Mr. and Mrs. Pietz and son who flew in from Boston. . . . The University of Texas is rated as the number one major college football team in the latest ratings. Last week's leader, Ohio State, slipped out of the top 10 to 12th place on the basis of its 9-7 upset by U.C.L.A. . . . Backfield Coach Jack Delaney was still looking for his luggage at 1:30 A.M. Saturday morning. .

The sports world was saddened this past weekend when it was announced that Heissman Trophy winner Ernie Davis had leukemia . . . The Boston University Terriers are winless in three attempts thus far and must still face Army, UMass and Boston College among others . . . Syracuse is a 7½ point favorite over the Boston College Eagles this Saturday . . . Penn. State is a seven-point pick over Army.

RECIPIENTS OF ECAC HONORS



Redmen halfback Loren Flagg named to this week's All East and his teammate quarterback Jerry Whelchel named as the ECAC's choice for sophomore of the week.

Folksinging Hoot Held For Hughes

"Tonight, we are going to have some quiet and some militant folksinging," thus Andy Leider began the Sing Out for Hughes concert sponsored by the Hughes Town Committee of Amherst.

Mitch Greenhill and Jackie Washington gave a program of folk music to an audience of fifty college students at the Amherst Regional High School on Friday night.

The folk process of music is the adaptation of a song that has no known author, explained the performers. The song becomes easy to sing and to hear.

"Terrible thing happened to me this morning; I was late for class, the marshal didn't show up in time," declared Jackie Washington, a Negro.

The concert lasted two hours. A folksinging hoot followed the program with many students performing.

B.C. Law School Boasts Several UMass Alumni

Eight freshmen at the Boston College Law School are recent graduates of UMass, Dean Robert F. Drinan, S. J. of B.C. Law School has announced.

They are: Howard J. Alperin, Robert E. Burns, Sidney P. Feldman, Barry Ravech, Brian Saltus, William Shaevel, George Shea, and Malcolm Trachtenberg.

Alumni of UMass have continued to distinguished themselves in the senior class at the B.C. Law School. Richard Gaberman is the Editor-in-Chief of the Boston College Industrial & Commercial Law Review; Michael Spitz is a member of the Editorial Staff of the Review; and John Walkey is Editor-in-Chief of the School newspaper, Sui Juris.

UMass Agriculture Division Has Enrollment Increase

With UMass boasting the largest enrollment in its 100-year history—7,500 students—its agricultural division can point to a fifth straight year of enrollment increase.

Unofficial figures this week show slightly more than 900 students enrolled in the College of Agriculture's four-year, Stockbridge School and graduate programs.

This total represents about a 30% increase over the enrollment "low" of 700 students in 1957, says Associate Dean of Agriculture Fred P. Jeffrey.

Making up this 900 enrollment figure are about 340 four-year students, 450 Stockbridge and 116 graduate students.

The swing to scientific and business oriented courses from farm production-type courses is apparent in the majors chosen by this year's freshmen, reports Dean Jeffrey. Most popular with four-year students are fisheries biology and wildlife management, forestry, landscape architecture and food science and technology.

Two-year freshmen favor animal science, arboriculture, park management, and food management.

Capitalizing on a UMass mistake, Connecticut was able to score late in the first period. With goalie Richard Gustafson turning in a fine performance, the UMass booters kept the pressure on until inside-right Bruce MacKecknie scored on a penalty kick early in the third period to even the game.

Tied at the end of the fourth period, the game went into overtime. The UConn booters tallied late in the run-over period for a winning score of 2-1.

"Senate Will Roll" Cournoyer Warns

by AUDREY RAYNER '63

"The Senate will roll or heads will roll," said Student Senate President Donald C. Cournoyer in his acceptance speech at Wednesday night's Senate meeting.

Cournoyer, Vice President Betsy Robicheau and Secretary Dolores Matthews, pro tempore officers, were unanimously re-elected.

Jon Fife, newly elected senator from Van Meter, ran unopposed for Senate Treasurer.

Qualifying his remarks, President Cournoyer said that "any person, senator or non-senator on a senate committee, who does not fulfill his duty to the Senate, does not belong in its organization."

"When I was nominated last spring for President pro tempore, my platform was based on raising the prestige of the Student Senate," said Cournoyer, "and I have worked to uphold this promise.

"This unanimously cast ballot is important because it indicates that the Student Senate is behind its officers, setting a precedent over past Senates, which have not always shown this unity," he said.

In the regular Senate business of the evening, rules were suspended to make the Senate a committee of the whole, to act on measures from the Finance Committee, headed by Senator Fife, who took the chair to introduce the motions.

Finance Measures Passed

The three Finance Committee motions were passed, allowing the Flying Club a loan of three thousand dollars to purchase a new airplane; appropriating thirty-two dollars to WMUA for a portable telephone, four outlet plugs, and a line running from the S.U. to the radio station for "better coverage of Centennial events to be held in the Union"; and granting a category change to the Collegian for two new cameras.

Under new business, the Senate passed an appropriation of ninety-two dollars to WMUA, for the purpose of paying telephone bills.

Senator Joan Labuzowski, chairman of the Activities Committee, brought up two constitutions, those of the Edwards Fellowship, and the Stockbridge Service Organization. Both were passed.

Four new Senators were sworn in by Gerry Anderson, Chief Justice of Men's Judiciary. They were: Ann Gillvan '64, Brooks; Virginia Mallison '65, Mary Lyons; Phil Howard '64, Mills;

Class Rings To Be Sold For Juniors

Class rings for Juniors will go on sale Monday Oct. 15 at the University Store. The store will have on display all samples of '64 rings which are available in ruby and garnet colors as well as plain or facet stones.

Prices for the rings will range from $28 to $52 and a $10 deposit is required. The ring dealer, Herf-Jones of Newark, N.J., has promised delivery of the early orders within six weeks.

It is hoped that a large percentage of the class of '64 will find it possible to carry on years of University tradition by wearing class rings.

Juniors as well as members of the class of '63 may place their orders starting Monday from 10 to 4:30 p.m., except Saturday when they will be on sale from 2 to 4 p.m.

Pan-Hel, IFC Will Sponsor Balloon Sale

Balloons will be sold by the PanHellenic Council and the Interfraternity Council tonight along the float parade route and tomorrow at the Homecoming game.

Proceeds of the sale are to be placed in the Goodell Library Reserve Book Fund.

The helium-filled balloons, a tradition at Homecoming football games, are to be released at UMass' first touchdown.

The balloon sale is one of several events this semester to be sponsored by Pan-Hel and IFC.

Centennial Homecoming To Be Largest In UMass' History

The largest turn-out of alumni in the history of the University of Massachusetts is expected for this year's Centennial Homecoming activities beginning tonight.

Highlights of the homecoming weekend include a special Friday night float parade and the football game on Saturday pitting the University's Redmen against the Huskies of the University of Connecticut in a crucial Yankee Conference contest.

More than 50 floats, built by students from the University's fraternities, sororities and dormitories, will provide high color as they travel through Amherst streets Friday evening. Historical scenes and symbolic designs on the centennial theme will be featured in the parade, beginning at 6 p.m.

Queen Crowned at Rally

Following the parade University students will take part in a rally at which the Homecoming Queen will be crowned by Robert D. Gordon of Lincoln, President of the Associate Alumni.

At 8:30 p.m. on Friday the curtain will rise on the University's Operetta Guild performance of Frank Loesser's "Guys and Dolls." The performance will be repeated Saturday evening at 8:15 p.m.

A tailgate picnic for parents, students, alumni and friends of the University will be held at 11 a.m. on Saturday in the parking lot near Alumni Field. At the game the University Marching Band and Precisionettes will perform before the crowd, and the Queen and her court will be presented during half-time activities.

Returning alumni will inspect a newly renovated Memorial Hall,

Construction will soon be started on four new seven-story dormitories, which are scheduled to open for occupancy in September of 1963. Designed as flexible co-ed living quarters, the separate units will be equipped to house either men or women depending on the need of the particular year. Located in the northeast section of the campus, the high rise dorms, which will have elevators and study rooms on each floor, will quarter thirteen hundred students. In addition, a new Dining Commons for the fall of 1964, is now on the planning boards.

Subscriptions Available For Yahoo

"Yahoo, since it was originated in 1955, has established a tradition of fine campus humor", haid a Yahoo spokesman recently.

"Just as those cute animals—the yahoos—in Gulliver's Travels made a habit of hitting the spot, so Yahoo has aimed and pleased, hitting almost every aspect of campus life," he said.

Yahoo, this year under new editorial guidance, claims to have bigger and better things.

For the first time the magazine is being offered to alumni. To celebrate this innovation, its first issue will be dedicated to the Alumni.

The Homecoming Issue will be given to each alumnus who buys a one dollar subscription for Yahoo's publications in the 1962-63 academic year. As a bonus, a back issue of Yahoo will also be given to each subscriber. Subscriptions will be on sale in the lobby of the S.U. and at the Homecoming football game.

The Yahoo staff also offers a free subscription for every Yahoo not in Yahoo files. Old copies should be mailed or brought to Box 106, RSO, S.U. If the copy sent is on file, it or a more recent back issue (if the sender wishes) will be mailed back.

On the 87th Congress: "The world would be a poor place in which to live had this Congress done nothing, had it listened to those who would have us stand still, had it voted with those who were blindly opposed to every new step and idea." —President John F. Kennedy.

From Our Dusty Morgue

Hundreds of Alumni will be returning to the University this weekend. Many of them will not recognize the campus, but we are sure that all will recall some of the historic events we re-present from the dusty files of the Collegian morgue.

From the October 11th, 1910, Collegian (then the College Signal): "In the mass meeting held last Wednesday night the student body showed its disuability of maintaining the old custom concerning the ringing of the chapel bell." Things haven't changed too much since then . . .

From the October 13th, 1914, Collegian: "Friday the closing day of the M.A.C. fraternity rushing season for the fall of 1914, found about 80 of the entering class pledging in the nine fraternities . . ."

From the October 16th, 1917, Collegian: "Starting on the first lap of epoch making existence, College was officially opened by President Butterfield . . . In closing, all were urged to remain in college (war year) as far as possible and to co-operate with the faculty in making these days 'sublime to be living in'." And from that same issue: "Harry Lydiard '17, paid a short visit to Amherst last week—a flying visit so called. He was one of a party of six who landed from the balloon America II . . . . They were three hours making the fly and were once lost in the clouds overhanging the mountains."

From the October 15th issue we present an advertisement of "best" movie of the day: "Wm. S. Hart and Juanita Hansen in 'The Poppy Girl's Husband'—A wonderfully human story of San Francisco crooks . . . Don't miss it—it's different. It's a treat." (You won't have to miss it either—it's on TV tonight.)

From the October 8th, 1924, Collegian: "The Goessmann Chemistry Laboratory, newest of the buildings on the college campus, erected at a cost of $300,000, was dedicated last Friday . . . ." And also from that same issue: "The ordinary placid waters of campus pond were turned into a rolling sea last Saturday when four members of the freshman class entered the pond via the aerial route with the assistance of four husky sophomores. The occasion was the first pond party of the year." (For modern day version of this story, see page 1 of the Wednesday, October 10, 1962, Collegian.)

Just so the faculty won't feel left out, here's an item from the "Faculty Notes" as it appeared in the October 16th, 1930, Collegian: "Miss Hamlin and Miss Knowlton spent last weekend climbing Haystack Mountain in Wilmington, Vermont. 'Tillie' Tucker accompanied the party."

As we progress through the years we find that there's still lots of humor in stale news. Case in point—the October 11th, 1957 issue: "Diving out of the glare of lamps, flights of hornets raided Van Meter corridors at 2:00 a.m. yesterday and buzzed late-studying frosh.

"Ten students from the 2nd floor and seven from the 3rd rallied to the defense of the 4th against the invaders, and after first inflicting several wounds on the over-zealous gunners, the hornets beat a hasty retreat to their nests."

And now from the October 12, 1962, issue of the Centennial Year Massachusetts Collegian this last note: Welcome home, Alumni.

Letters to the Editor

Have No Fear

To the Editor and the Student Body:

We have been working on the problem, have no fear. We could put them in Fernald Hall where they would look more appropriate. They might even make excellent back drops for future Roister-Doister plays. We could use them to fill up some of the holes on campus and write the whole thing off to experience. We could, perhaps, wait a few years and hope the smoke will stain them beyond recognition. We could take down these "so-called Murals" in the Hatch and replace them with more accurate portrayals of a progressive, energetic institute of higher learning.

Are we to believe that these murals will, in the future, denote a progression of academic improvements or will they show only how archaic and how lacking in taste our centennial student was?

"Thank You, APO"

In its article on Tuesday's Freshman Forum, the Collegian failed to give credit to the organization responsible for setting up such a marvelous project. I wish to thank APO, National Service Fraternity, for the wonderful job they did. APO designed, organized and moderated the forum. I feel an injustice was done when they were not given credit for this project. So, I say, "Thank-you very much, APO."

Phil Main, '66

Serious or Sick?

To Lew and Ed:

I am still trying to determine if your letter in the October 10th Collegian was a sick attempt at humor or if you were really serious.

If it's the latter then I ask you why you aren't studying in a religious seminary?

If it's the former, then you both are sick. I would hardly call God a laughing matter. The bells of Old Chapel do not give golden tones, nor are they the type of bells which issue melodious strains.

I'm not saying that the melodies played from the tower should be reserved for special occasions, but I object strongly to their being massacred every day.

A Non Tone-Deaf Student

Mud Slinging

To the Editor:

I'm glad to see that for a brief moment the Collegian has put a bit of humor on its front page. It is irrelevant that the person posing in that ridiculous situation looks like a complete idiot. It's amazing how you could get anyone to do something as stupid as that, but if he doesn't mind there is no reason why we should.

My only question is, did he arise from the bog, or did he descend into it? M.T.

It's not so amazing. Someone had to pull the stopper out of the pond so we could get the thing cleaned out.—Ed.

I always wondered what was at the bottom of campus pond, and now I know. It's the editorial editor digging up some more mud. D.P.E.

A New Generation

To the Editor:

As a senior at the University I have seen three generations of football teams under three different coaches. I have also seen three generations of football fans, but I have never seen anything like the spirit and enthusiasm displayed this year.

I feel that this year the team has the potential of going "all the way"—it's the best UMass team I've ever seen.

I know that I'll be out there rooting for the Redmen this Saturday, and I know that thousands of my fellows will be too. K.N. '63

To the Editor:

On behalf of myself and many other students I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank head Coach Vic Fusia for taking time out from what I'm sure is a very busy schedule to come to the Student Union Wednesday evening and show us the films of last week's Redmen victory over Bucknell. This is clear indication that no matter how great the spirit of the students may be, it will certainly always be matched by the players and coaching staff of the Redmen football team.

Let's all keep the Redmen fighting spirit up.

A REVIEW

"GUYS AND DOLLS"

by JUDY DICKSTEIN

The first note of a long brassy overture sounded, and the Operetta Guild's production of Guys and Dolls began. And of both guys and dolls there were plenty: Adelaide and the girls of the Hot Box chorus, Sarah Brown and the entire staff of the Save-A-Soul Mission, Nathan Detroit and his multitude of mobsters, plus a variety of others. Such a large cast increased the difficulty of the already-elaborate production, yet the cast managed to pull through the opening night remarkably well. In the first act, the members of the cast obviously had first-night jitters, and voices cracked or failed to carry, dancers were out of step, and stage hands appeared before the audience much too frequently. However, the second act was much more competent. The players had become more comfortable in their roles, and the performance was nothing less than delightful: voices swelled confidently, scenes changed more smoothly, choreography improved, and the orchestra sounded less brassy. At the end, and several times earlier, the audience burst into loud spontaneous applause; indeed, the performers were fortunate to have such a receptive audience.

Yet not all flaws could be blamed on first-night-fever. The scenery was incomplete in places, and decidedly inartistic in others; only the mission scenes and the sewer scene stood out as competently done.

Three cheers go to the make-up crew, which did quite a professional job, as well as to the wardrobe crew. Costumes were generally attractive, the outstanding example being the dancers' outfits in the "Bushel and a Peck" routine.

Choreography, although done professionally, was lacking in variety or precision of execution in about half of the numbers, mostly in the first act. Nonetheless, the well-choreographed numbers more than made up for the others. The highlight was the dance by the male chorus in the second act of the underground scene. Especially praiseworthy were the performances of Robert Stewart, feature dancer in several numbers.

The acting, on the whole—while far from professional—was polished and emphatic; particularly in the beginning, many of the performers were guilty of overacting, and nearly all slipped into the error of dropping character as soon as the lights went off, at which time they could still be observed by the audience, due to the poor lighting conditions in the auditorium. Of the four leads—Paul A. Cwiklik (Nathan Detroit), Jeanne Cronje (Adelaide), Diane Fairfield (Sarah Brown), and Herbert Mongue, Jr. (Sky Masterson)—Mr. Cwiklik's voice came across poorly, while Miss Cronje was outstandingly personable (despite her failure at the difficult task of counterfeiting a Brooklyn accent!)

The leads were somewhat overshadowed at points by the character actors, some of the best being Jane Abbiati (General Cartwright), Jack Singer (Big Jule), and Ernest Bilodeau (Nicely-Nicely). However, Stephen P. Daly (Arvide Abernathy) merited a special hand by being the most convincing actor and by far the best voice of all the soloists.

Then there was one more little matter: after intermission the conductor, for some absurd reason, violated the entire mood of the play by first announcing a deletion in the list of musicians and then cowing the entire audience into singing—of all things!—"When Twilight Shadows Deepen," the Centennial song. (Words were printed in the program.)

Despite this, the production was generally a competent one. Like an old wine, however, I trust that it will improve with time. Be certain to see Guys and Dolls tonight or tomorrow night.

Newman Club Audience Hears Guest Chaplain

by IRIS LOFARO '66

"The liturgy has not been lived by Catholic people as a whole because it is not completely understood," said Father Joseph Collins, Catholic Chaplain at Harvard in his address on "Living the Liturgy" to Newman Club members on Wednesday evening in the Dining Commons.

In his talk Father Collins stressed the importance of "active participation as a primary and indispensable source of true Christian religion. We must not be mute, silent spectators, but rather worshipers of God through active participation in Christ's Church."

The liturgy, as described by Pope Pius XII in an encyclical document published in 1947, consists of "worship the Church renders to God through Christ." The liturgy is composed of the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, the Seven Sacraments, all the Sacramentals, and the Divine Office read daily by each priest.

Father Collins went on to say that "by following the Mass we will be given the power to learn what God wants us to know and the laws He wants us to live by." In this way we have a "tremendous opportunity to worship God."

Before concluding his speech, Father Collins suggested each Catholic obtain a copy of the "Mystical Body of Christ", an encyclical document published in 1943 by Pope Pius XII, and "What Is This Participation", a pamphlet by Mary Perkins Ryan. "The principles set forth in these documents", he said, "are invaluable for teaching Catholics the importance of daily 'Living the Liturgy'."

University Women Hold Tasting Tea

Samples of food and favorite recipes will be available at Tasting Tea Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. in the S.U., to be sponsored by the University Women.

Proceeds of the Tea will be used to aid 118 foreign students attending the University.

One of the projects of the University Women is cooperating with the University's Foreign Student Committee. Some of the work done by the University Women's committee acting in this capacity are orientation programs and entertainment arrangements.

The committee, under Mrs. Robert Gage and Mrs. Wendell King, distributes to foreign students booklets containing information on local merchants and community services.

Chairman of the Tasting Tea event is Mrs. John Hanson.

UM Home Economists Host To Greater Boston Colleges

by HELGA HENSON '66

Students from UMass, Regis College, Simmons College and Framingham State Teachers College attended a meeting of the College Clubs section of the Massachusetts Home Economics Association in Skinner Auditorium.

UMass Dean of Home Economics Marion Niederpreum gave the welcoming address at the request of Association President Raija Nuppola.

A brief business meeting followed at which UMass Junior Joyce Blum was chosen State nominee for the national chairmanship of the Home Economics College Sections.

Following the business meeting Dr. Helen S. Mitchell talked about her one year stay in Japan at which time she assisted in starting a School of Home Economics in Hokkaido University. Dr. Mitchell, a noted nutritionist and former dean of the University's School of Home Economics, illustrated her lecture with slides.

Dr. Richard Howard, an Arnold Professor of Botany at Harvard University, spoke on "A Botanist in Your Grocery Store" after dinner in the S.U.

Pall Mall Presents~ GIRL WATCHER'S GUIDE

BATON-TWIRLING HIGH-STEPPER

CAMPUS TYPE I

The High-Stepper is an ideal choice for Campus Type #1 for two reasons. First, she is a fairly common species—and second, she is easy to identify.

Just as the bird-watching beginner should concentrate on the Robin, Sparrow and Cardinal before moving on to more exotic species, the girl watching beginner should master the observation and identification of types such as the High-Stepper before progressing to rarer (and usually more difficult to identify) types.

As in all fine arts, the mastery of fundamentals is the key to girl watching success. This mastery of fundamentals is just as important in the art of cigarette making. Taste Pall Mall and see what we mean!

Pall Mall's natural mildness is so good to your taste!

So smooth, so satisfying, so downright smokeable!

UNIVERSITY HONOR'S LIST FOR SPRING SEMESTER 1962

UNIVERSITY HONORS LIST
Spring Semester, Year 1962

At the beginning of each semester the Registrar posts a list of those students who during the previous semester made a grade point average of 3.0 or higher. Three groups are recognized as follows:

First Honors	3.8 or higher
Second Honors	3.4 to 3.7 inclusive
Third Honors	3.0 to 3.3 inclusive

The following Honors List is for the classes of 1962, 1963, 1964, 1965 and 1966 as of August 27, 1962.

SORORITY NEWS

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

All the Alpha Chi's are eagerly looking forward to the annual visit of our Province President, Mrs. John E. Shaffer, next Monday through Thursday. Mrs. Shaffer, an Alpha Chi initiate at Syracuse University, was an advisor to her own college group and vice-president of the Syracuse alumnae chapter, Upsilon Upsilon, before she assumed the duties of Province President. The girls will certainly be telling her all about our new house which is the only topic of conversation around Alpha Chi since we entertained our architect and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Chornyak, for dinner last Monday night.

Thank you, TKE's, for a wonderful exchange supper. After hearing glowing reports from our well-fed sisters, we're sorry that all of us didn't eat at your house.

Last Sunday, we initiated and welcomed three new sisters—Maureen Lyons, Carol Chapman and Judy Winn. However, this initiation left us without a single pledge. Looking on the bright side, though, we won't have to worry about pledge raids—for awhile.

"Congrats" to Carolyn Howarth and Linda Vander Werf on their recent selection to the Distinguished Visitors Program.

Supper last Tuesday night was very enjoyable for all of us, due to the charming company of Dean and Mrs. Field.

LAMBDA DELTA PHI

Lambda Phi has a new advisor; she is Barbara Drake, class of '61.

The sisters have elected Maddie Marsella '63, as senior Pan-Hellenic representative in the absence of Maddie Zurretti, who will be doing her field work in Physical Education in Natick, Mass.

Dolores Matthews, '63, has been re-elected to the Senate by the women of Leach House. She is also serving on the Distinguished Visitors Program committee.

SIGMA DELTA TAU

Things are still rather hectic at 409, with many of the sisters finding it difficult to adjust to campus living after some exciting summer vacations. Janet Louis spent her vacation visiting the states of our own beautiful country, while Honey Gold enjoyed a fantastic trip in Europe. All the girls have been reliving these wonderful trips with us.

The Sig Delt's are more than proud of our cheer-leader Pam Chace who has been chosen as a finalist for Homecoming Queen.

The sisters would like to thank the brothers of Lambda Chi and Sig Ep for two marvelous exchange suppers. We are looking forward to the coming visit of our Regional advisor, Mrs. Cassell, who will arrive in time to enjoy the coming Homecoming festivities with us.

We were all very happy to repledge Harriet Fiengold.

SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA

Caught up in the spirit of the new school year, the Tri Sigmas are hard at work with plans and action as we take our place in the Greek world.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank the brothers of Phi Mu Delta for a most enjoyable exchange supper which they held for us on October 3. We certainly hope to be able to return their hospitality soon.

The Tri Sigma float for the Homecoming parade is progressing very well. The girls have put much time and effort into costumes and the float.

After Homecoming Weekend the Tri Sigmas will direct all their attention to planning for Round Robins, theme parties, and all the other functions of the rushing season.

Pinnings

Linda Willis, AXO, to Ken Baker, PiDP, Fitchburg State College.

Engagements

Maxine Levenson, SDT, to Donald, Romo, B. U. Law School.

Rochelle Simons, SDT, to Mel Nelson of New York City.

FRATERNITY PROFILES

QTV

On May 12, 1869 six members of the class of 1872 concentrated in a north-west corner of Old South College to found a new fraternity with the Latin initials, Q.T.V.

It lost no time expressing itself and during the 1870's and '80's there were chapters formed at several other schools, some of which included the universities of Maine, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, and Worcester Polytechnical Institute.

In 1899, however, after financial problems and disagreement concerning the rate of expansion, the chapters broke with the 'mother house' at Mass. Agricultural College. The chapters were absorbed into various Greek-letter fraternities, while Q.T.V. at 'Aggie' continued on as a local.

Q.T.V. has had its share of illustrious alumni, for instance, James Paige, founder of Paige Laboratories, and Walter M. Dickinson, for whom Dickinson Hall is named.

Now, as we look back on what is nearly a century of tradition, we take pride in our fraternity. We have attained high standing in I.F.C. competition and, with forty-plus active members, our Brethren include at present the presidents of the Junior and Senior classes.

We value our local status, with its degree of freedom (somewhat qualified, lately) and it is to the future of this tradition that we look. By 1969, we hope to have a new house and we will begin another century of the 'glory that is Q.T.V.'

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

Massachusetts Kappa Chapter of SAE was founded on this campus in 1937 and opened this fall for the twenty-fifth time under the able direction of President Parker Fallon.

We are very happy to welcome back Mrs. Eva Chatel of Northampton for the second year as our housemother.

SAE is well represented on the varsity football team this fall as has always been the case. We have fifteen members on the team including co-captains Tom Kirby and Paul Majeski.

We have been proud of our teams in interfraternity competition. The I.F.C. cup will be our goal again this year.

Plans for Homecoming weekend include a post-game buffet for alumni, followed by a party for alumni and brothers.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

Sigma Phi Epsilon was founded on November 1, 1901 at Richmond College, Richmond, Virginia. Since that date the brotherhood has grown to include nearly 60,000 Sig Eps. Forty-two states are represented by the 152 chapters throughout the country.

Mass. Alpha chapter of Sigma Epsilon was founded at the University of Massachusetts on April 27, 1912. Since that time the local chapter has grown and with it has grown a dedicated body of Sig Ep alumni who made it possible for a $125,000 addition in 1961.

This fall the brothers were happy to greet their new housemother, Mrs. Palmer. A tea held on September 27 in her honor allowed members of the University community to meet our charming hostess.

Sig Ep is now engaged in many fall activities including preparation for the homecoming float parade. The brotherhood is anxiously awaiting the opportunity to open Sig Ep's red door to greet the class of 1966 on November 3.

TAU KAPPA EPSILON

Tau Kappa Epsilon is one of the youngest fraternities on campus, yet in a few years it has risen to prominence in all phases of fraternity life. TKE was founded on this campus as Delta Sigma Chi in 1952. In 1956 DSC joined with TKE, the largest national fraternity, and became its Epsilon chapter.

TKE has been an outstanding competitor in fraternity athletics. The house has also placed with the winners in the other Greek activities, and the brothers are proud to possess so many trophies and loving cups.

Currently there are fifty-eight active brothers, twenty-four of whom live at the house at 401 N. Pleasant St.

TKE is now planning for the future and it is hoped that we will have a new house soon. The alumni and advisory board have been working diligently to obtain land and funds for this project. With the spirit and ambition of the brothers supporting this, we feel that these plans will soon become reality.

SORORITY PROFILE

PI BETA PHI

Pi Beta Phi's cornerstone was laid by twelve young women at Monmouth College, Monmouth, Illinois on April 28, 1867. This number has increased to seventy thousand college women who have since been initiated into 106 national chapters of Pi Phi.

Massachusetts Beta Chapter had its beginning on this campus as the local sorority, Alpha Lambda Mu, on October 26, 1930. This small sorority started by five girls grew quickly and became very active on campus. Their first contact with the national Pi Beta Phi came in 1941, and on March 4, 1944 Alpha Lambda Mu was established as Mass. Beta Chapter of Pi Beta Phi.

Early in its history Pi Phi members added a new dimension to the sorority system because of their desire to be of service to humanity. The Settlement School they established led the way to Greek philanthropy. The school, located in Gatlinburg, Tennessee, has provided for the past fifty years an education through high school level for the Tennessee mountaineers of the Little Pigeon River area. Together with the people of Gatlinburg, Pi Phi has worked through the years to enrich minds, heal bodies, and develop native talent.

As a local philanthropic project, Pi Phi has adopted a young Greek girl through the Foster Parents' Plan. Each week a dif-

Undefeated Harriers Face B.U. And UConn

by JIM RYAN '65

Coach Bill Footrick's cross-country team journeys to Franklin Park in Boston today for a 3:30 p.m. tri-meet with the University of Connecticut and Boston University. The Redmen have won their first two meets, the latest victory coming over Yan Con rival Maine and Northeastern University in a tri-meet held last Saturday at Orono. Connecticut and B.U. both figure to be weaker than the strong Maine team, which the Redmen nipped by a margin of four points. UMass should come out of the meet still sporting their undefeated record.

Due to improved individual performances by such dependable veterans as Dave Balch, Ken O'Brien, and Dick Blomstrom, and the consistent showings of Bob Brouillet, Jim Wrynn, and Bob Pendleton, the Redmen as a team are getting stronger with every meet.

Brouillet has made two fantastic showings in his first two meets. He not only won them, but set course records in both. At home, against Coast Guard, he broke the record by 1.1 seconds. Then he went to Maine, and easily smashed the Orono records by 63 seconds. Jim Wrynn finished second to Brouillet in both meets. Finishing third for the Redmen, junior Bob Pendleton, who did not run last year, has been startling the opposition with good running. Co-captain Dave Balch looked very impressive last time out, and should be even better next time. Co-captain Dick Blomstrom and Ken O'Brien, two very dependable men, will be looking to move up on Friday.

Add to these veterans sophs Tom Panke and Bob Ramsay, and the Redmen present an array of talent which should be too powerful for B.U. and UConn.

Glatz Takes Powerful Frosh Team To Manlius For Debut

by ALAN RICE '66

The UMass freshman football open their season tomorrow under the direction of a new coach against a new opponent, the Manlius School of Manlius, New York. Varsity end coach Fred Glatz in the limited time he has had with the squad, has molded what looks like it could be the best Redmen frosh squad in years. Manlius is a new addition to the schedule and, as a result, little is known of the Red Knights, except that they are a passing club and use the conventional wing T as the basis of their offense.

A creation of Manlius Coach Whitey Anderson is a series of plays off his wing T run by what he calls a sidesaddle quarterback. His quarterback positions himself closer to the strong side guard instead of directly behind center, but it is unlikely the Redmen will see the new formation often.

The Redmen line up is a well balanced club with a good supply of running backs plus a good passer in Bob Taylor. The line averages 209 pounds which is heavier than the Manlius forward wall. The big men up front for Mass are Milt Morin, 230, left end; Fred Hupprich, 225, left tackle; Rod Brooks, 195, left guard; Jim Kuczynski, 200, center; John Frangipane, 190, right guard; Jim Pfersich, 225, right tackle; and Bob Meers, 200, right end.

Joining Taylor in the starting backfield will be Dave Kelley at fullback, and Bob Ellis and Bob Hillson at the halfback slots. All are swifties and capable receivers.

To venture a guess as to how they will fare against the Red Knights is hard to say since the actual strength of the Manlius team is unknown, and the Redmen have not yet had any game experience while Manlius played Bordentown and the Cortland Junior Varsity. Manlius last year had a 3-4 record while Mass had a 3-2 mark.

UMass Bootmen Upset Trinity College Club, 4-2

by DAVE PODBROS

In a well played game, led by Stam Paleocrasus, the UMass varsity soccer team defeated Trinity College, Wednesday, by a score of 4 to 2. Trinity, playing the first game of their season came to UMass confident of a win. And after Dave Thompkins of Trinity scored first in the opening minutes of the game, it seemed as if this confidence was justified. However, before the half ended Stam Paleocrasus had come through with an important goal tying the score and raising the hopes of the UMass bootmen.

Throughout the beginning of the second half, UMass played exceptionally good defense thwarting several close Trinity attempts to score. Finally Dick Leete on a penalty shot raised the score to 2 for UMass. The finishing touches of the game came when Paleocrasus booted the ball into Trinity's fullback, who rebounded it into Trinity's net for another UMass score. This deflated almost all Trinity hopes and the rest of the game was played by tired men.

In the fourth quarter Bob Chenery of UMass scored a beautiful goal, heading it into the Trinity net. Mark Johnson of Trinity was the last to score ending the game with the final score UMass 4, Trinity 2.

The next game is tomorrow, here, at 10:00 a.m., against Connecticut.

Huskies Aiming To Spoil Homecoming Celebration

by STEVE HEWEY '63

Hundreds of old grads will return to the campus of the University of Massachusetts this weekend to partake of the numerous festivities that characterize a UM Homecoming Weekend. There will be meetings between old classmates, tours of the Campus and new buildings, the crowning of the Homecoming Queen, and the float parade. But foremost in the interests of the returning alumni will be the Homecoming football contest between UM's own Redmen and the Huskies of the University of Connecticut, to be played tomorrow at Alumni Field.

There will be grads there that remember only the days when their Alma Mater was a small-time school. Now they return to see its big-time counterpart. And there will be those grads there tomorrow who will cry for revenge for the 31-0 drubbing UConn gave UM in the Homecoming game in 1960.

This UConn team, fired up over its 15-9 upset win over Rutgers last Saturday, comes to Amherst cast in the role of the Homecoming Day spoilers. For the past two years the visiting team has marred the other's Homecoming game by defeating the home team by lopsided scores. In 1960 the Huskies rolled 31-0 at Amherst. Last year at Storrs the Redmen romped, 31-13. Theoretically, then, UConn should win. But Whelchel, Flagg, and Co. have ideas to the contrary.

Last Saturday these gentlemen shocked Bucknell fans and astounded a radio-bound UM audience by combining grid talents to snatch victory from the Bisons in the last seconds of play, the final score UM 21, Bucknell 20. Tommorrow they go to work on UConn.

For UConn the Redmen loom as the toughest opponent on its 1962 schedule. And to win the Yankee Conference title a win over UMass is a virtual must for the Huskies. This is UConn's first Conference encounter of the season. The Redmen already own one Yan Con decision, a 10-0 blanking of Maine several weeks ago. The only loss suffered by Massachusetts was to Dartmouth, 27-3. The same afternoon the Redmen bowed to the Big Green, UConn was turned back by its in-state rival, Yale, 18-14.

Coach Bob Ingalls of the Huskies will field a starting lineup tomorrow boasting of an interior line averaging 222 lbs. UMass goes 213 from tackle. Both squads are expected to place three Sophs in the starting elevens. For the Redmen Jerry Whelchel, last week voted Sophomore of the Week by the ECAC, will go at QB. Peter Pietz at the guard slot and end John Hudson are the other first year men. The three Soph UConn starters will probably be Lou Aceto calling the signals, Dick Kuper at guard and Nick Rossetti at left end.

In comparing the individual talents of tomorrow's starting quarterbacks we see that Whelchel of UM has completed 19 of 36 passes for 295 yds. and 2 TD's. UConn's Aceto in two games is 10 for 19 via the air for 99 yds. On the ground Whelchel has carried 25 times for 52 yds. and 2.1 average gain per try. Aceto in 12 tries has picked up only 9 yds. The leading ground gainer for the Redmen is Loren Flagg, named to the ECAC squad this week for his superb work vs. Bucknell. Flagg has a 4.5 average on 63 yds. in 14 attempts. Flagg also leads UM receivers with 131 yards and 2 TD's on 3 receptions.

Halfback Tony Magaletta is pacing the UConn rushing statistics with 75 yds. in 9 attempts for an average of 8.3 yds. a carry. In the receiving department, Sophomore end Nick Rossetti has snared three for a total of 105 yards and one TD.

BAKER'S DOZEN

by NEIL BAKER '66

It's a big weekend for the Yan Con as we find all six teams in action. It is commonly understood by most sane individuals that nobody—but NObody—beats Maine on their happy hunting grounds. I hope nobody told Coach Clarence Boston's New Hampshire Wildcats that, 'cause that's exactly what they're going to do. The improved Rhody team should hand Vermont its second Conference loss, while Coach Fusia's Redmen will need to depend on a second consecutive explosive offense to beat UConn. The Huskies to date have a creditable 18-14 loss to Yale and a 15-9 upset victory over Rutgers.

Amherst, with quarterback Mark Hallam chucking, is an easy victor over Bowdoin, still looking for its first victory. Harvard will be no match for Holy Cross at the Stadium, while Dartmouth won't find the pickin's so easy, but should still be able to handle the Bruins from Brown.

The big game for New Englanders this weekend will take place in Syracuse where Jim Millers' Eagles will meet Ben Schwartzwalders Orangemen in a real test for Boston College. The Eagles have three victories this season, the last an 18-0 victory over Virginia Military. Played on a sloppy field, the Eagles ran up 370 yards total offense (280 rushing) to VMI's 110, and out first-downed the Keydets 14 to 5. Fullback Harry "Thump" Crump, flashy quarterback Jack Concannon, sticky-handed Art Graham, and the big defensive line have really sparked B.C. But Oh!, those penalties. The Eagles were assessed 90 yards for various unlawful procedures last week, and last week, etc. Them can hurt ya. If BC can run and pass as well as it has this year, and if the defensive wall can hold up, the sweet scent of victory will prevail in the Eagles' camp. But this won't happen. Syracuse has too fine a running game and as good a defense. The scales tip ever so lightly to Syracuse, no matter how carefully you weigh the Eagles' ever-increasing penalties: it looks like Syracuse by four paltry points.

Nationally: It's too bad the B.U. Terriers have to travel 1200 miles for their first victory in four starts over George Washington U. in the nation's capitol . . . Navy's class is too much for Cornell . . . After opening the season with two wins, last week's 17-7 loss to Michigan will dampen Army's hopes of upsetting Penn State. It's the Nittany Lions by a TD . . . The see-saw battle between Ohio State and Alabama is over; but the tide has found a new playmate in Texas. The Crimson Tide and Longhorn national ratings for this coming week will depend greatly on how well they smash their opponents, Houston and Oklahoma, respectively . . . The LUS-Georgia Mira game (sometimes referred to as the University of Miami) is a contrast of style. Miami's Marvelous Mira's passing against the Tigers' ground game. LSU has All-Southeast left halfback Jerry Stovell (405 yards for a 6.2 average) to carry their game. The LSU anti-aerialcraft game should control the Hurricanes to all but an autumn breeze while running them ragged.

Summary

1. UNH over Maine
2. URI over UVM
3. UMass over UConn
4. Amherst over Bowdoin
5. Holy Cross over Harvard
6. Dartmouth over Brown
7. Syracuse over B.C.
8. B.U. over George Washington
9. Navy over Cornell
10. Penn State over Army
11. Alabama over Houston
12. Texas over Oklahoma
13. LSU over Miami

UM Profs To Present Own Poems At Jones

Prof. Stanley Koehler and UMass Centennial Lecturer in English, Robin Skelton, will deliver readings of their poetry at the year's first program of poetry reading at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Jones Library, sponsored by the Amherst Art Center. The event is open to the public.

Both poets are with the English faculty at the University.

Prof. Koehler matriculated at Harvard and Princeton and has taught at Oklahoma State, Kansas University and Yale.

Mr. Skelton, on leave from his full lectureship at Manchester University to be Centennial Lecturer here, matriculated at Cambridge and Leeds Universities and has read at Oxford, Cambridge and Liverpool Universities.

Prof. Koehler has instructed in poetry at the Chautauqua Institution and was director of its Writer's Workshop this past summer. A co-editor of poetry on the staff of The Massachusetts Review, he edited the "A Gathering for William Carlos Williams" in last Winter's issue.

Mr. Skelton has been writing, editing, publishing and encouraging other poets and painters since his undergraduate days. Having founded "The Peterloo Group" in 1957, he wrote in 1960 the constitution of "The Manchester Institute of Contemporary Arts".

Readers have seen Koehler's poems in the Massachusetts, Sewanee and Yale Reviews, in Poetry and Voices, and in the anthologies, Amherst Poets 1959 and New Poems by American Poets #2.

Skelton has had five books of his own poems published, the most recent being The Dark Window. His poems have appeared in leading British periodicals.

MEN'S JUDICIARY

Disciplinary Actions Taken By Judiciary

by BRUCE ALBRO '64

The following is the first in a series of three articles explaining the workings of the Men's Judiciary Board. The articles will be written by members of the Judiciary qualified to write authoritatively on the various subjects chosen for the series.

Dean of Men Robert Hopkins announced recently that four students have been suspended from the University in connection with the recent disorder in residence areas. In addition to the four suspensions, three students have been denied continued residence in the University residence halls, and one student has been placed on disciplinary probation.

It is to be emphasized that there is involved here more than a loss of time in the continuation of academic pursuits for the four students suspended from the University. Since no refunds are made to students who are removed from residence halls or from the University as the result of disciplinary action, seven of the eight students involved here have not only misbehaved, but have also thrown away sizeable sums of either their own or their parents' money.

One of the channels through which such actions are taken is the Men's Judiciary—the judicial branch of our Student Government as provided for in the Student Government Constitution. The Judiciary Board is composed of seven men: three seniors, three juniors, and one sophomore.

These members are chosen by the judiciary body and members of the Student Senate under the direction of the Men's Affairs committee of the Senate. All of the applicants are well screened and undergo extensive interviews before the final selections are made. Although most of the cases handled by this body are of a disciplinary nature, the General Court, Men's and Women's Judiciaries combined, has the power to pass on acts voted by the Senate.

Disciplinary cases are referred to Men's Judiciary through the office of the Dean of Men. The Dean may send cases directly to the board or students may appeal actions taken by the Dean

Walter Stahl To Speak On German Democracy

Dr. Walter Stahl, international relations expert, author and lecturer, will speak here Tuesday afternoon at 4 p.m., on "Is German Democracy Safe?".

Dr. Stahl, who will be presented by the University's Government Department, will deliver his talk in the Middlesex Room of the SU.

Dr. Stahl studied law at the Universities of Munich and Geneva, obtaining his Doctor of Law degree in 1938 from the University of Berlin. He saw service with the German Army during World War II, and was captured by the Americans in 1943. He spent three years in a prisoner-of-war camp in this country.

Dr. Stahl, who speaks English fluently, passed his bar examination at Duesseldorf in 1949, and served as Deputy, then Secretary General of the German Council of the European Movement until 1952. Since that time he has been Executive Director of the Atlantic-Bridge, the German counterpart of the American Council on Germany.

He has been Executive Director of the Atlantica, an organization for the promotion of the Atlantic Cooperation, the German section of the Atlantic Institute in Paris.

He is also editor of "Meet Germany," "German Social Science Digest," and "Education for Democracy in West Germany." He is also the publisher of the "Bridge," an illustrated monthly for Americans stationed in Germany.

Mr. O'Hare is first in a series of speakers to be sponsored by the Association.

The talk is open to the public. Association officials have urged all interested to attend.

Personalities Rule Politics, Says Former GOP Leader

by MARCIA ANN VOIKOS '63

"Massachusetts politics is dominated by strong personalities and weak," said Meade Alcorn, former Republican National Committee Chairman. "Massachusetts is a 'unique' state because political parties are subordinate to personal influence and personal organizations which don't operate in the traditional political sense."

Professor of Practical Politics at UMass

Mr. Alcorn, visiting instructor of the UMass Government Department, is teaching a course in practical politics under an annual program sponsored by the Ford Foundation. He is a graduate of Suffield Academy and a Phi Beta Kappa from Dartmouth College. He received his LLB from Yale Law School and has been practicing law in Hartford since 1933.

"I became interested in politics through student activities," said Mr. Alcorn, who organized and headed the Yale Republican Club. He continued his political interests further when he was elected to the Suffield Republican Town Committee, serving as its chairman for 15 years. In 1935, he was appointed to a non-political position as Assistant State Attorney and served in that capacity for seven years.

The Connecticut legislature was the next step in Meade Alcorn's political career. He was elected for two terms, becoming Majority Leader in 1941 and then serving as House Speaker.

A defeat by a 3000 vote margin kept him from being elected Lt. Governor on a ticket headed by Governor Shannon in 1948 when Democratic forces swept the state and Chester Bowles emerged victorious as Governor.

Headed 'Citizens For Eisenhower'

The next rail on the political ladder was Mr. Alcorn's election to the State Committee and his delegation to the National Convention for the Wilkie and Dewey campaigns. Moreover, he was one of the few men in the country who organized and headed the Citizens for Eisenhower Committee in 1952. The purpose of the committee was to elect delegates to the Chicago Convention where Mr. Alcorn was floor manager for Eisenhower.

"It was a bitter pre-convention campaign," he exclaimed. "We got 21 of the 22 delegates —the Taft forces got only one."

Gage Urges Total Flu Protection

Student response to the University Health Service's offer of influenza inoculations has declined.

University Health Director, Dr. Robert Gage said, "More faculty have taken advantage of the program than students. Two weeks ago when the program was begun, we handled nearly 500 people. Last week the total was much lower."

Dr. Gage said that the inoculations will continue for at least another month. This is necessary in order to give everyone a chance to receive both shots of the series, which must be placed a month apart. Those who had the series last year, need only one booster this year.

Inoculations will be given only at the following times: Wednesdays from 2:00 to 4:00 p.m. Thursdays from 1:00 to 3:00 p.m. There will be a charge of 50 cents for students and one dollar for University employees and student wives.

Review a la Runyon

by NEAL ANDELMAN

"Guys And Dolls"

The Operetta Guild's "Guys and Dolls" is a play such as makes the eyes bulge and the ears ring. There were plenty of guys and real beautiful dolls. They hoofed and crooned through a zany story which has proven itself on the Great White Way of Runyonland.

Miss Adelaide (Ruth Cronje) is a doll such that most guys in the fair town of Broadway would wish to have much truck with. She is a character who shines like Nicely-Nicely Johnson's (Ernest Bilodeau) eyes when they chance to spot a piece of Mindy's cheesecake.

Sarah Brown (Diane Fairfield) is a daffy doll such that works in the mission business. She is wishing to save the souls of the sinners along Broadway (of which there are a great number) and is aided by a sinner such as even Broadway seldom sees, Sky Masterson (Herbert Mongue, Jr.). Both of these characters are such that even a scribe like Waldo Winchester must take notice and give praise (and for Waldo Winchester, a character well known to one and all, this is a very rare thing indeed).

Arvide Abernathy (Stephen Daly) is also in the mission business. He is beating on the bass drum to attract attention for Miss Sarah (which is the way most mission dodges get attention). He is a most convincing old guy, and 8 would get you 5 that Arvide is not really an actor, but an old mission worker who has come out of retirement.

Nathan Detroit (Paul Cwiklik) is a character such that he is known to every well heeled shooter around and about as the operator of the "oldest established, permanent floating crap game in New York." He is also known to one and all as being a character who comes across when his marker is due; for guys and dolls such as who watched Nathan in action—his marker was due.

Rusty Charlie (David Bachmann), Benny Southstreet (David McQueston), Liver Lips Louie (Richard Boyden), and other characters of Broadway really looked like regular citizens of that fair city. Big Julie (Jack Singer) is a character such that he has enough sugar cured ham in him to give a fine performance and then serve himself up on a platter after the final curtain with big red apple in his mouth.

The General (Jane Abbiati) was a real five star job; the drunk (David Finn) must have violated the dry campus rules of our fair campus to be that convincing, and the policeman (Norman Deane) was fuzz all the way.

The hoofers in the Hotbox were real dolls, and featured hoofers Anne Cohen, Ronald Julius and Robert Stuart did a one hundred per cent job.

The orchestra, maestroed by Doric Alviani, was very good, even for our fair campus which is known around and about for good music.

It's an old adage in 'show biz' that an audience and not the critics decide how good a show really is. When reviewing the performance of "Guys and Dolls" it is sufficient to say that they brought the house down.

More Food For Thought

To the Editor:

The letter to you in Wednesday's paper by Marilyn Gates caused a good number of us to start thinking on the subject of Friday's Dining Hall deal.

The undersigned looked into all the sources of information available to us, the University of Massachusetts Handbook for 1962-1963, The Undergraduae Catalogue of the University for '62-'63, and the semester bill dated due August 31, 1962. Not one of these sources tells what days the regular meal ticket will be honored. On page 38 of the Handbook under Financial Information, squeezed into a corner under Board at College Dining Halls, are the words, "5 day plan available at $330." In a footnote of the Catalogue, page 20; "5-day plan available ..." These are the only places where we are told how many days we will be fed on the regular tickets. The student, then has no guarantee that he will be fed on any given day other than these two accidental mentions. Evidently Marilyn Gates, you and the rest of us may expect more of these "short notice surprises."

"A weekend meal ticket will be furnished providing for Saturday breakfast and lunch, and Sunday dinner and supper (holiday weekends included)." So states the fall semester bill. If one should wish, and had no Saturday classes, he could call this a holiday weekend; otherwise it is a normal weekend for us. If specifically assured of paid meals, why are these meals now refused?

According to the editor's comment, the cost of Friday's meals was not included in the semester bill. Why was the "advance notice" delayed until October 8? Is the University trying to hide something from us?

ENOUGH TO BURN YOU UP

To the Editor:

Last Friday night the student body once more observed a fabulous display of ignorance in the technique of building a fire on the part of the ever-friendly Maroon Keys. After watching the traditional float parade and being whipped into a frenzy by the cheerleaders, all eyes turned to Metawampee, who lit the bonfire. To everyone's surprise the bonfire flared up successfully and gave all promises of being one of the best in years. However, as you probably know, it turned out to be a "dud", and another example of the stubborness of the Maroon Keys. Although at the time the Keys are still refusing any profitable suggestions, would someone please convince them that there are better ways of building bonfires.

Ya-Hoo Review

A GOOD MANY PROBLEMS

This year's Ya-Hoo staff had a good many problems to overcome: lack of time, material, personnel, and talent. Unfortunately these handicaps proved a little bit too much of a problem for the eager, but for the most part, inexperienced Ya-Hoos.

We have been informed that despite its title, "Mass Hysteria" was not meant to be funny. This was very fortunate.

The "Homecoming Schedule" was meant to be funny. This was very unfortunate.

In their eagerness to please the campus the Ya-Hoo staff initiated a new feature, "Ask the Feege." Oh how we laughed at the stale jokes. Oh how we chuckled at the elephant's eye high corn. Oh! Oh!

There were saving graces, however. Certain cartoons by Holton and Abe were not only humorous, but were also in good taste. The outstanding feature of the magazine was (and rightly so) the excellent photography by Stan Patz. Of course we must give credit where it's due. Miss Esonis is certainly one of the most delightful Ya-Hoo queens we've ever seen.

The article entitled "Why Little Red Riding Hood has Fleas in Her Beard" was a masterpiece of wasted space. Written in the authentic pseudo language of the hipsters, the article lays bare the real story of Little Red and the Woodman who are eaten by the wolf when the former two "fall down laughing over this tired old gag." We applaud the wolf's actions, for it signals the end of the article.

The Dan's Gulf ad (which features a gas station rest room that closely resembles a Mad Magazine pizza) was a choice bit of Americana. It is amusing that the advertisements are more humorous than the humor.

Congratulations to the Ya-Hoo staff for doing a truly Lilliputian job.

Office Hours

To the Editor:

Why did the Collegian print that the Treasurer's Office would be open until 5:00 p.m. when in reality it is still open only until 3:30 p.m.? It is hard enough for students to get to the Treasurer's Office with its present inconvenient hours without being misled by such a statement.

Deborah Selig '64

We'll check into it. —Ed.

Gilding The Guild

To the Editor:

In my four years of residence on this campus I have witnessed many productions presented by various University theatre groups. I have never attended a show which I found more enjoyable or entertaining than the Operetta Guild's recent production of "Guys and Dolls."

After viewing Saturday evening's performance I found Miss Dickstein's review to be entirely too critical and at points absurd. I hope that those who did not see the show will talk to others who have seen it, and will not rely on Miss Dickstein's opening night review.

All those concerned with the show should and must be commended. I hope that in the future the Operetta Guild will be able to maintain the high standards they have set for themselves in this their first production of the year.

And The Lord Said ...

To the Editor:

I read with interest the Collegian editorial concerning the poor lighting on campus, and I agree with you one-hundred percent.

On a co-educational campus whose administration deems it necessary to arm its law enforcement officers with revolvers it seems tragicomical that the lighting facilities are so poor that they set the stage for possible assaults and muggings.

As of now I consider myself lucky that such an event has not happened to me.

Let there be light! O.D.G.

Amherst Community Chest To Conduct Annual Drive

The Amherst Community Chest will conduct its annual fund drive during the week of October 22 with a budget of $29,000.

Through this single early solicitation, the Chest provides financial support to its ten member organizations, which now include the Amherst Boys Club, Amherst Girls Club, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Anderson, and the Children's Aid Society.

Cooley-Dickinson Hospital, the Mental Health Clinic, the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and the Hampshire County Red Cross are also members.

According to UMass President John W. Lederle, "the Community Chest gives every one of us the chance to give a 'lift-up' to those less fortunate. It is also a way of insuring the operation of community activities, with which we are all concerned. I am asking that each and every one employed by the University support the Community Chest. This is an excellent way of keeping Amherst a fine place to live and work."

Little Redmen Surge In Second Half To Beat Manlius 16-12

A weak first half attack proved to be only a temporary ailment for the University of Massachusetts Freshman football squad Saturday because after holding onto the short end of a 12-2 score at the halftime intermission, Bob Taylor threw two scoring passes in the third quarter to give the Little Redmen a 16-12 win over the Manlius School.

UMass had to punt every time they had the ball in the first two quarters except in the closing moments when their drive was stopped by the clock. The beginning of the second half didn't look any more optimistic for the Redmen as they fumbled away a good chance at the Manlius 39 yard line. The breaks started falling the other way a few minutes later however, when Rod Brooks pounced on a loose ball after Bob Pantanella knocked it free with a bruising tackle on Bill Gietzendanner.

Four plays later Mass had a score on the board due to their own offensive ability. A pass to Bob Ellis lost yardage on the first play and Pantanella dropped a Taylor heave which would have resulted in a twenty yard gain, but Taylor broke through the line for a 21 yard scamper into Manlius territory and followed it up with a touchdown pass to Ellis that the top notch receiver snared at the 15. Taylor pulled the deficit to only two points with a conversion pass to Milt Morin in the end zone. The Manlius defensive unit defended the corners and left the center clear where Morin was ready and waiting.

The first Redmen scoring came as a gift of the Red Knights who were forced to punt on second down from their own two where a punt by Morin rolled dead. John Hayden went into punt formation near the back of the end zone but the snap from center went two feet over his head and out of play for a safety; a two pointer for the Redmen who were already behind by a touchdown.

Manlius received Mass' first punt and drove 55 yards to their first score mainly on the ground, but a pass from Rolf Stegmann to Captain Townsend Clarke accounted for a key first down that kept the drive alive on a third and ten situation. Stegmann went over from the one after his sweep around end good enough for ten yards and his block allowing John Chisera to gain another ten on a sweep put the ball almost on the Redmen's goal line. The try for the point failed.

The Red Knights added to their advantage in the same manner midway through the second quarter after taking a punt at the Mass 40-yard stripe and marching the distance in eight plays. Once again it was the end sweeps which chalked up the yardage. Rudy Veruto ground out most of the yardage and then climaxed the series of plays with a sweep around his right side behind the blocking of the whole Manlius backfield which went for 11 yards and the second score. Again the try for the kick went astray.

Following the second Manlius score, UMass came to life briefly when Taylor completed four passes in a row for three first downs, but the threat ended when the clock ran out with the Redmen on the Manlius 32 yard marker.

After Mass scored their first touchdown in the second half it didn't take long to tack up one more on the board. The Redmen forced a Manlius punt when they held the Red Knights to five yards and an incompleted pass in the three downs following Ellis' score. Don Eaton returned the kick to the Knights' 44 and a run by Dave Kelley and a pass to Morin for 14 yards pushed down to the 20 yard line of Manlius. Taylor hauled back and lofted a high, floating pass that Bob Meers grabbed at the five and carried over for the score putting the Redmen in the lead.

After that, Manlius had the ball three times and managed two first downs but could not penetrate the tough Mass line for enough yardage to get a sustained drive underway.

In three Manlius attempts during that time only once did they look like they might start something. Chisera ran for nine and Stegmann galloped around his left end for 16, but Mass held for no gain on a first down play and Morin who was the star on defense the whole game made a clutch fingertip save of a pass thrown by Stegmann. Had he not deflected it, there could have been a long gainer for the Red Knights. As it was Mass took over on downs one play later and ran out the clock.

COLLEGE ROUNDUP

by AL RICE '66

Today should be a busy day for the football experts around the country who are trying to figure out the national ratings after the topsy-turvy action Saturday. The third and ninth teams were victims of surprise upsets, and the top two teams had unusually poor performances in winning. The top big shocks befell Penn State who lost to Army 9-6 and Purdue which lost to Miami of Ohio by a 10-7 score. Up at Michie Stadium at West Point, Cammy Lewis threw a third down 15 yard pass to Dick Peterson for the winning Army touchdown after one of the Chinese Bandits snatched off a stray Penn State pass. Earlier Dick Heydt booted a field goal for the Cadets. In the other major upset Bob Jencks scored all ten Miami points with a touchdown pass from Ernie Kellerman, a conversion, and a 31 yard field goal, which raises his season scoring total to 39 points. Jencks was also fifth in the nation in total receptions before the game with 15. Ron DiGravio connected with Forrest Farmer for a Purdue score in the first period to take an early lead, but Miami got a touchdown in the second quarter which closed the scoring. Neither teams could cross the goal line in the second half.

Coming much closer to home, the Yankee Conference race seems pretty well locked up. The Redmen are 2-0 with 3 games remaining against the weaker clubs, and Connecticut has lost once in the same number of starts. Maine, the defending champs have turned chumps and have lost to Mass, Rhode Island, and New Hampshire while beating Vermont by three points. New Hampshire and Rhode Island played to a tie themselves last week, and the other clubs have succeeded in knocking each other off so only the Redmen are in really good shape for the title. Vermont beat Rhode Island Saturday after losing to Maine, and New Hampshire has the tie against its record.

Dartmouth, the only team to beat UMass has continued the winning ways with a 41-0 rout over Brown. The Indians have now scored 85 points compared to the three tallied by their rivals. Those three came on George Pleau's second period field goal after the long Jerry Whelchel-Loren Flagg pass with almost no time left in the half.

Two other teams remained in the unbeaten ranks, both by rather close margins. West Virginia topped Pittsburgh for their fourth in a row by a 15-8 score. Paul Martha of Pitts scored on a 34 yard run for the first scoring by Mountaineer opposition this season. Texas remained near the top, but just by a whisker as they were almost upset by Oklahoma. Tony Crosby, a shoeless kicker, booted a second period field goal that was the difference for the Longhorns. The supposedly invincible Alabama Crimson Tide barely eked out a 14-3 over Houston which lost last week 40-8 to Mississippi. Bama came from behind to win on a recovered punt in the end zone. Maryland continued unbeaten thanks to Dick Shiner who accounted for three touchdowns in a 31-13 victory over winless North Carolina, and Wisconsin had no trouble in downing Notre Dame 17-8.

Varsity Bootmen Toppled By UConn, Frosh Win

VARSITY

by Dave Podbros '65

Saturday was a happy day for UMass football fans but it was a sad one for Redmen soccer rooters as they saw their team go down in defeat to a strong UConn squad in a 10 a.m. tilt.

Bob Chenery was the only UMass bootmen who managed to break through the Husky defense, but Stam Paleocrasus and Dick Repeta turned in their usually good performances.

FRESHMEN

by Scott Freedland '66

Led by Mike Zaurotny the UMass freshmen soccer team defeated Stockbridge, Thursday by a score of 2 to 0.

Controlling the game from the opening moments the frosh compensated for Stockbridge's size advantage playing effective and aggressive ball. Zaurotny scored the first goal for the frosh early in the first period on a penalty kick, and the second goal on a pass from the corner late in the second period.

Forced by a two to nothing deficit and the Redmen's tight ball handling, Stockbridge put the pressure on during the last half of the game but was unable to score.

The freshmen soccer team's next game is Wednesday, here, at 3:00 p.m. against Hopkins Academy.

Lussier Leads Redmen To 16-6 Win Over UConn

Toughest YanCon Rival Put On Ice

by STEVE HEWEY '63, Associate Sports Editor

Sparked by the galloping antics of senior right halfback Sam Lussier, the University of Massachusetts delighted a sun-baked Homecoming crowd of more than 10,000 by cutting down its Yankee Conference arch-rival, the University of Connecticut, 16-6 in a game played Saturday afternoon at Alumni Field. Those who were there saw Sam gobble up huge chunks of yardage all afternoon as the boy wearing jersey number 20 collected 175 yards in 26 carries for a modern ground gaining record by a UMass ball carrier.

After taking the opening kickoff the Redmen rolled with five straight first downs all the way to the UConn 13 yard stripe. Here on second down Jerry Whelchel fired to end Paul Majeski in the end zone for what fans thought to be a TD. The officials had thoughts to the contrary and ruled the reception out of bounds. On the next play Lussier plowed to the seven to set up the first UMass scoring play. On fourth and two George Pleau trotted in and sliced the uprights for a 23 yard field goal.

The Husky offense, moving with a bigger line, could not seem to get started at all in the first half. And the UConn's were also hampered by the fact that the Redmen who were usually rolling had a monopoly on the ball for the first thirty minutes of play.

At the start of the second half, however, the visitors put together their only successful ground march of the day, ending in a six yard scoring pass-play from QB Lou Aceto to Jim Bell. Their three point lead was short lived as the Redmen went right back up the field on a 70 yard campaign to paydirt. The highlight of this march was a 35 yard romp by Lussier on a third and nine situation.

Then Jerry Whelchel rolled out, faked the run, and tossed to Dick Warren who was dropped on the UConn 12 yard stripe. From this point Lussier and Whelchel divided the carrying chores and moved the ball down to the two. From the two Whelchel faked to a man running left while he kept the ball himself, picked up a pair of blocks and raced in from the right for the TD. Pleau added the tenth UMass point.

With the situation third and nine, and with the Husky secondary deployed for pass defense, Redmen quarterback Jerry Whelchel smartly called for a rushing play. The Redmen line gladly complied and opened a hole wide enough to allow right halfback Sam Lussier to make good for 35 yards.

The Huskies then went to the airways in an attempt to recover the lead. They never did. Leo Biron put an end to a Doug Gaffney pass by snatching it from the air and racing to the UConn 47. From here Whelchel directed the second unit Redmen backfield of Art Perdigao, Ken and Phil DeRose en route to the final score of the afternoon. Ken Kezer ended the eight play drive by diving through a huge gap the Redmen line had opened up in the UConn forward wall.

Desperation drove the UConn's to go to the air again in hopes of another score. But the UMass line stepped up its pursuit of Aceto who was nailed three times in a row behind the line while glancing for a downfield receiver. Aceto found out well that Paul Majeski's specialty on defense is smothering a quarterback. Any hope the Huskies had in adding more points was dissolved when guard Pete Pletz intercepted a UConn pass on the UMass ten late in the fourth quarter.

Sam Lussier tries unsuccessfully to plow his way into the end-zone. The heavy Husky line stopped two UMass long drives within the 15 yard line.

Saturday's win over Connecticut gives UMass the best shot at the Conference title it has had in years. The Redmen now stand 2-0 in YanCon play while UConn is 0-1. The Huskies also play one less league game than the Redmen. Overall UM is 3 and 1; UConn is 1 and 2 . . . Jerry Whelchel's three completions in six throws vs. Connecticut gives him a 22 for 39 record for 4 games . . . The story of Saturday's UMass win is summarized well in two pairs of statistics. First downs: UMass-18, Conn-9; Rushing yardage: Mass. 291 (Lussier 175), Conn. 47. Last year's 31-13 win over UConn combined with yesterday's victory marks the first time since 1934 and 1935 that UMass has beaten Connecticut twice in a row.

Redmen's Kenny Kezer (21) dives through a gap in the UConn line for the final score of the afternoon. As throughout the entire game the UMass line opened holes where the Huskies thought it couldn't be done.

Looking like a panel taken off an ancient Roman frieze, Sam Lussier finds himself entangled in the arms of UConn left guard Dick Kupec. Quarterback Lou Aceto lies on the ground while another Husky arrives to add to Sam's troubles.

B.U. And UConn Bow To Redmen Harriers

by JIM RYAN '65

Coach Bill Footrick's cross-country team won its third straight meet last Friday by defeating UConn and BU in a tri-meet held at Franklin Park in Boston. The harriers were led, also for the third meet in a row, by the 1-2 finish of Bob Brouillet and Jim Wrynn. UMass finished with 24 points, while Connecticut was second with 37 points and Boston University was third with 75 points.

Brouillet probably would have set his third straight course record, had he not inadvertently taken a wrong turn on the course. In doing so he was followed by all of the other runners and, instead of running the original 4.1 mile course, they ran 4.3 miles.

"Digger" went on to win anyway in a time of 20:17. Jim Wrynn was second in 20:54. Preceded by three Connecticut men, the next seven out of eight finishers were from UMass. Bob Pendleton, finishing sixth, was followed in order by Dave Balch, Bob Ramsay, a B.U. man, Tom Panke, Dick Blomstrom, Ken O'Brien and Gene Colburn.

By taking nine of the first thirteen places UMass again showed excellent team strength. Co-captain Dave Balch, finishing seventh, and sophomore Bob Ramsay, finishing eighth, are showing consistent improvement in every race. Coach Footrick looks at this improvement as a necessity with big meets vs. Harvard, Army, and N.Y.U.

Basketball

All those interested in trying out for the varsity basketball team are requested to report to Coach Matt Zunic at the first practice session Monday, Oct. 15, at 6:30 p.m. on the Cage floor.

There will be a meeting for all those interested in varsity hockey in Room 10 of the Physical Education building October 18 at 5:00 p.m.

Department Of Air Science Offers Flight Instruction

Major Bamber is shown instructing the Flight Instruction Program cadets in a navigation problem. On completion of the course, the cadets will receive their private pilot's license. The new program represents a definite advance in the AFROTC at the University.

The Department of Air Science has inaugurated a new Flight Instruction Program this year designed to provide flight instruction and flight eperience for Air Science 4 Cadets who are academically and physically qualified to receive such instruction.

The instruction consists of two phases, completion of which will result in the cadet's receiving his private pilot's license entitling him to fly most light planes.

The ground phase familiarizes the cadet with standard navigation procedures, radio operation, and weather conditions. The flying phase is given at Turners Falls Airport and consists of 36½ hours of flying at government expense under the instruction of the airport flying school. Instruction and solo flying are done in both the Aeronca 7AC and the Cessna 150.

Mount Holyoke Will Reorganize Education Course Requirements

A shift from five to four subjects per semester and a reorganization of the courses to fulfill the general education requirement represent the major changes of the curriculum revision which will go into effect in September, 1963, at Mount Holyoke College.

"The impact of the revolution in secondary school teaching" according to President Richard Glenn Gettell, is partially responsible for this new trend. Flexibility has been the aim in this reorganization to meet the needs of the individual students who vary in their high school preparation.

As a result of this revision students will be able to fulfill their general education requirements within three semesters. Intensive semester courses will seek to present the individual with what "the intelligent person should know."

These classes will not attempt to cover the whole field but instead will present representative problems in the field, the methods of work in this particular discipline, and the type of conclusions one can make from a study of such materials.

That "more breadth and more depth" will be gained during the first two years has been suggested by President Gettell. A girl will be expected to approach the election of courses in terms of what she has done in high school. As Academic Dean Meribeth E. Cameron points out, the new program will be able to fit a girl's past experience, her present needs, and her future activities.

Flexibility during the first two years does not represent the only reason for the curriculum revision. Stopping what Dean Cameron calls "the rat race," students will be able to concentrate more intensely and not as superficially. A chance to work more independently and efficently will be provided, Dean Cameron notes. "By having to concentrate on fewer subjects at one time, the student will have to shift gears less often and can make more effective use of her time."

Liberal Arts Panel To Hold Discussion About Renaissance

An inter-disciplinary symposium on "The Renaissance: The Problem of Definition" will be conducted at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Bartlett 325.

Prof. Paul F. Norton, head of the University's Department of Art; Prof. Vincent Ilardi, Head of the UMass Department of History, and Dr. Melvin H. Wolf of the UMass Department of English will constitute a panel.

Brief presentations from each of the panel members will be followed by a question period and general discussion.

All interested faculty and students are invited to attend.

Disciplinary Actions...

to the Judiciary on presentation of new evidence. A student being tried by the Judiciary is being tried by his peers since all of the members of the board are also members of the student body.

Thus, the Judiciary has two obligations: it is obliged to uphold the standards of the University as stated by the administration; it also is obliged to uphold students' rights. All decisions of the board are subject to the final approval of the Dean of Men who rarely falls to uphold these descisions. All actions taken by the Judiciary may be appealed to the University Discipline Board upon petition.

With the University growing as quickly as it is, and with the task of administration growing proportionately larger, it seems appropriate to ask if this one body of seven men will be able, in the future, to handle the increasing number of cases that will be coming before the court system as it now stands.

Mr. Alcorn was elected to the National Committee in 1953 and accepted its Vice-Chairmanship in 1955. He then became Chairman of Arrangements and organized events and activities at the 1956 National Convention at the Cow Palace in San Francisco.

Chicago was the scene of the 1960 Convention, where Mr. Alcorn worked closely with Mr. Nixon to get him nominated.

Doesn't Use Text in Course

Today Mr. Alcorn serves in a non-partisan capacity as a consultant to CBS on election coverage and is active on the Advisory Committee to Connecticut Republicans.

"I've never taught a course before in my life," declared Mr. Alcorn. "In my Practical Politics course, I didn't set up a list of standard textbooks. I want to give the students the benefits of my own political experience and background. I want them to be able to interpret and evaluate the political events of the day whether they are going into politics or not."

The operation of the course is primarily in the hands of the students in the form of panel discussions and questioning periods to apply what political facts they accumulate from day to day.

To Future Politicians— "Identify With a Party"

"To the future politician, the best advice I can give is to first identify yourself with a political party," said Mr. Alcorn. "You've got to make a choice—you can't get anywhere in politics as an independent. You've got to operate through the medium of a party."

Long-term political success, according to Mr. Alcorn, is the result of a solid foundation at the local level—starting with the hometown unit.

"On the other hand," he asserted, "there are many people in politics who emerge as 'political factors' without going through the necessary training period. In other words, there are some people in the 'inner circle' who don't know a thing about politics—they're just 'used' for one purpose."

Mr. Alcorn will be giving a series of three lectures at dates to be announced.

Professor Silver To Express Views On Lionel Trilling

Professor Arnold Silver, Assistant Professor in the English Department, will speak on Lionel Trilling as Critic on Tuesday, October 16, at 8 p.m. in the Student Union.

A student of Lionel Trilling, Professor Silver received his Ph.D. at Columbia University. This spring he edited The Family Letters of Samuel Butler, published in England and in the United States. After receiving favorable notices in England, the book is now being reviewed in this country.

The lecture is second in a series of four presented by the Bnai B'rith Hillel Foundation on "Modern Jewish Writers." Everyone is invited to attend free of charge.

MEN'S JUDICIARY

Area Judiciary Founded As Lower Court System

by LEONARD K. CHAREST '65

The following is the second in a series of three articles explaining the workings of the Men's Judiciary Board.

The increasing number of cases coming before the board of Men's Judiciary due to the continuing influx of students at the University has caused the administration and the judicial branch of the student government to mutually seek a solution toward alleviating the burden with which the seven-man board is faced.

Thus the establishment of a lower court system—Area Judiciary—to consider violations of dormitory and University regulations within the general dormitory area has been initiated. The court will consist of one representative from each dormitory, presided over by a member of Men's Judiciary.

Guided by the member of Men's Judiciary in policy and procedure, the Area Judiciary is to have no restrictions placed on the corrective action which may be taken; but it is hoped that more physical rather than probation-type action will be used. Example—assisting the custodian for a given number of hours. If the administered disciplinary action fails to achieve its purpose, the person involved may be referred to Men's Judiciary.

The only requirement for student eligibility is that he be resident in the dormitory which he is to represent. Interested persons may sign up on a roster

Pops Concert With Fiedler Presented Sunday In Cage

Arthur Fiedler will conduct a Pops Concert at 8 p.m., Sunday, at the Cage with the New Haven Symphony of 70 men, sponsored by the University Concert Association.

JEROME LOWENTHAL

The celebrated Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, is Mr. Music to millions, and in his hometown of Boston, Arthur Fiedler is almost an institution. His unique personality, his flair and style have conspired to make him, over the years, a familiar feature of Boston where each spring since 1930, he has inaugurated the Boston Pops season.

The New Haven Symphony Orchestra for many years presented concerts in the Yale Bowl to audiences of 15,000 and more, and it was on one of these concerts that Mr. Fiedler first conducted this group in August of 1948. So this collaboration is not a "first".

Three concerts in this particular series are scheduled. The first in New Haven on Friday evening, October 19th in Woolsey Hall on the eve of Yale's Cornell weekend. The next night at the University of Connecticut in Storrs at the Jorgensen Auditorium on the occasion of the installation of their new President, Homer D. Babbidge, Jr.

The selections for Sunday evening will include: Rakoczy March by Berlioz, Copland's Outdoor Overture, excerpts from Khachaturian's Gayne Suite ending with the Sabre Dance, and excerpts from Bernstein's West Side Story.

Guest pianist for the evening will be Jerome Lowenthal, who will present a piano solo of Gershwin's Concerto in F.

Students are expected to dress appropriately for the concert.

The New Haven Orchestra has been in continuous operation and during the 69 years of its existence has had six conductors.

The orchestra's season is in excess of 30 concerts and it has taken an active lead in the presentation of modern and classical music.

Frosh Go To Polls Tomorrow

Final elections for freshman class officers will be held tomorrow in the Student Union lobby from 8:15 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Candidates for president of the class of '66 are Michael Brogan and Bernard Dallas, while Linnie Butts and Milton Morin will compete for the vice-presidency.

Faith Leavitt and Susan Swanson are the two finalists for secretary. Voters will have a choice among Carol Atwood, Didi Bolton, and write-in candidate Dick Wimberly for treasurer.

Yesterday Alpha Phi Omega, a national service fraternity, sponsored the second freshman forum in the S.U. Ballroom for the purpose of acquainting members of the class of '66 with the candidates and their platforms. The moderator-manager for this event was David Mathieson.

In an impromptu discussion period that followed, both presidential candidates gave their whole-hearted support to a proposed interdorm council, which would help to unite students and solve campus problems.

All candidates stressed the importance of keeping '66 spirit and offered proposals for more frosh class activities.

Tomorrow, at the same time and place, the class of '64 will elect a vice president and one senator-at-large. Candidates are: Ray Kodzis, Vice-president, and David Mathieson and Trudy Mahoney, senator-at-large.

Index Staffers Give Advice On Senior Class Photographs

Within the next few weeks the faces of senior men and women will be frozen in time for the pages of the 1963 Index.

A radical departure for this year's Index photos concerns the women: Drapes will be worn. The reasoning behind drapes is that uniformity of dress will be achieved, and emphasis will be on the face.

Also, draping allows the photographer to retouch the photo to bring out the best of a girl's facial features.

It goes without saying that the men should have haircuts, but a word is necessary about dress. Dark, solid jackets, white shirts, and dark ties provide a sharp contrast that emphasizes the all important face.

A sitting fee of $2.50 must be paid at the time of the sitting which will be in the Norfolk room of the S.U. The women will put on the drapes there.

The post card which was filled out at registration will be sent to you several days before the sitting as a reminder of your day and time of sitting.

ROTH SAYS UMASS PROGRESSIVE

New Assistant Dean Likes Job

by RICHARD BUSH '63

In a recent interview William Roth, new Assistant Dean of Men, said he has found the University of Massachusetts "very progressive and it is enlightening to me to view student and administrative changes in methods of teaching."

Roth received his B.S. and Master's in Education degrees from Springfield College. After graduation he served as a lieutenant in the Marine Corps and was stationed at Quantico, Virginia. Previous to his position here Roth was Assistant Dean of Students at the State University of New York in Plattsburg, New York.

Roth said that he has always been interested in working with students. He said that he feels his present position affords him "an opportunity to compare a large university to a small university."

"The students seem enthusiastic," he said, "and especially the freshman class." Concerning the freshmen and fraternities Mr. Roth said, "I feel the freshmen should not be permitted to pledge the first semester. I think it will have a definite effect in their academic work and even a direct effect on the individual student."

Mr. Roth said that "the fraternity does not have time to screen and select students who would probably most benefit the fraternities."

Tartuffe Auditions Next Tues.

Auditions for Moliere's Tartuffe, the second in the series of University Theatre plays, will be held Tuesday, October 23, from 4 to 5:30 p.m. and Wednesday and Thursday, October 24 and 25, at 7:30 p.m., in Bartlett Hall, room 119.

Cosmo Catalano, director of the play, has stated that this play, considered one of the best Moliere wrote, "tells of the unmasking of the arch hypocrite, Tartuffe". He further emphasized that the play contains many excellent comic roles for both men and women.

Mr. Catalano, who has had many years of professional experience in such fine theatres as Cain Park Civic Theatre, Penn Playhouse, and Ohio Valley Summer Theatre, received his Master of Fine Arts degree from Yale University in 1953. Before coming to the University he was Assistant Professor of Dramatic Art at Ohio University.

Confident that participation in this production will be a unique and exciting experience, the director urged all who were interested in the theatre to come to the auditions. Tartuffe, which has 13 acting roles, will be performed in Bowker Auditorium on December 7 and 8.

The first production of the current season, Oedipus Rex, will be performed November 2 and 3 in the Student Union Ballroom. Season tickets for the entire series of four plays are still available in the speech office in Bartlett Hall.

Actions Beget Reactions

Recently a cry has been raised in reference to the Senate Election Committee's seemingly slipshod ways. Now we must point out a past action. In the recent freshman elections names were arranged alphabetically on the ballots—this contrary to the random arrangement that should be observed.

A search of the Senate Constitutions found no mention of a deadline for protest of such a mistake. Therefore, the legality of the freshman elections could be questioned; and the fact that any such question can be raised seems poor.

The error, now brought to light, should pass as a lesson to the Committee in the planning of Thursday's elections. Thus we look forward to a smoothly run election day, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 18th.

A Footnote To Contemporary Propaganda

by

M. PALTER '63 and P. THEROUX '63

PART I

The vacillation with which the Kennedy Administration has acted toward Cuba is a serious cause for concern. Last week, James Crow, Editor of the Mississippi Review suggested that a special C.I.A. team be sent to Cuba in order to expedite the assassination of Castro, Fidel Castro. However, this plan is being held up by Senator Bleating who last week called for the total annihilation of the island nation through either nuclear or chemical warfare. This brought an immediate and rather bitter reaction from the Miami Chamber of Commerce.

There was also the fear that the contamination of the island would cause a significant influx of Cubans to the United States. (It was assumed that a few would survive.) Lieutenant Mayor Shallow-Johns of Triple-Kay Mississippi asserted that the resultant intermarriage would seriously affect the racial balance of his state.

The overall problem was discussed at the Southern Senators' Conference. Senator Westwater suggested that the displaced Cubans be sent to South Africa "where I have a friend who will take care of them." Senator Bull said "Da only gud Cuban issa day-id one." He went on to explain that as long as Cubans remained alive they would be susceptible to alien ideologies. Senator Brightfellow, who had been sleeping while all this was going on, arose and said that everything he had heard was nonsense (which was in itself nonsense because he hadn't heard a thing!) and "everybody otta mosey on home." So everybody mosied on home after the traditional prayer for the Supreme Court which was recorded and sent to Justice Black in a white envelope.

Meanwhile, Ty Claspy, a member of "Laugh," a student political organization, and editor of its organ, "The National Laugh," warned of a Cuban invasion of the United States. He also stated that subversive activity on the part of Cuban undercover agents and dupes had increased, especially in Newburgh, New York, where they had been "the real force behind the water-fluoridation campaign." Mr. Claspy said that he had notified the House Committee on Un-American Activities but had been told that the committee was busy in Salem, Massachusetts, trying to ascertain the reasons behind the abnormally high sale of old brooms in the local shopping center. Unable to secure press coverage of his charges (with the exception of his own paper) he sent a letter to every intellectual in the United States, challenging them (each or all at once) to a debate on the question. He received one reply (which was one more than he had ever gotten) saying: "I would have been quite happy to discuss the thing with you, but you see there's a foreign film playing and . . . . Thanks anyhow." The fact that he had been stood up because of a foreign film irritated Mr. Claspy. In fact, it more than irritated him.

Finally, as a last resort, Claspy issued a memorandum to all "Laughs" urging them to arm themselves and form into small battalions. Throughout the northeast these orders were quickly and efficiently carried out. Just yesterday, in fact, it was reported that small groups of these "Laughs" attired in brown shirts and berets decorated with olive branches, had overthrown R.O.T.C. establishments at 17 universities!

— LETTERS TO THE EDITOR —

To the Editor:

We of the Peace Corps Volunteers wish to extend an invitation to the students of the University, to drop in at the Farley House and get acquainted with us.

As you probably know, a contingent of Peace Corps Trainees has converged on your campus for a ten week stay. We have about sixty Trainees representing many fine colleges and universities across the country, and then again as many states. We have outstanding athletes from the west and east, farmers from Maine, and bricklayers from Kentucky. We are in training as skilled technicians, coaches and teachers, for projects that will take us to West Africa, and the countries of Senegal, Niger, and the Ivory Coast. We are, we feel, a very congenial bunch, and we would like to get acquainted with your fine New England hospitality, as we have already fallen in love with your beautiful countryside. As in most male groups this size we have the usual amount of tall tale artists, so drop in and swap us a few of your best stories.

Peace Corps Volunteers

To the Editor:

The Art Department has received numerous questions and complaints from members of both the faculty and students concerning the new murals in the Hatch. As members of that Department we wish to advise all interested persons that, although we understand the logic of assuming we were consulted about the matter, we in fact were not.

To the Editor:

I wish to challenge my opponent Bernard Dallas to an open discussion of his policies and his qualifications against those of my own. Subject to his acceptance the discussion will be held in the Middlesex Room of the Student Union at 8:00 Wednesday evening, and will be open to the public.

Michael Brogan

To the Student Body through Senate President Cournoyer:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the students at the University of Massachusetts for their support at the Meredith Rally. The Rally has been termed a huge success and could not have been without the support of the individual schools.

I realize that the University of Massachusetts is not a member school of the National Student Association; however, I would like to thank you sincerely for taking an interest in the situation at the Rally and the discussion period following. I would like to encourage setting up a situation where others might learn and understand the situation before all of us as college students.

Thank you again for the participation of your students at the Rally.

To the Editor:

Here at our university spirit and sportsmanship are, at present, in a high state, but I wish hostmanship were equally as eminent. It seemed a disguisting shame to see the UConn Band and fans seated in a section distinctly labeled "Visiting Students" located in the southeast corner of the field between the end zone and twenty yard line.

Several weeks ago when UMass played Dartmouth the visiting Redmen had choice reserved seats. Of course, here it was homecoming and twenty minutes before game time all tickets had been sold. It was indeed a turn-away crowd of loyal students, parents, and alumni. But is this any reason to disregard our guests? Those loyal enough to their team to travel from Storrs to Amherst, and especially the Husky Band, should have had a visiting student section of desirable location.

How about it? From now on let us, as hosts, treat our guests with respect.

HYPERBROBDINGNAGIAN

To the Editor:

It seems to me that the Collegian staff has enough to do to develop its own paper without criticizing the efforts of Ya-Hoo.

Journalistic errors in "Review a la Runyon" were so abundant that Neal Andelman's cup truly "runneth over." Starting off every other paragraph with "such that" shows either a lack of quality among the contributing writers, or a lack of intelligence on the part of the proofreader. Either case deems it inadvisable to criticize another publication.

Then, the mere fact that the reviewer of Ya-Hoo enjoyed parts of the magazine shows that it wasn't a total loss; and I'm sure that others enjoyed with equal fervor the other parts. There is, of course, the danger of outdated jokes in any such magazine, but I know that I would rather receive Ya-Hoo three times a week than a certain other publication.

I extend my heartiest approval of this issue and suggest that it become the mandatory training manual of all those on the Collegian staff in the hope that some of its sense of humor might be absorbed. I was getting awfully tired of reading what seems like a paper written by some local Sunday School class and supported by the local clergy.

David Gillespie

To the Editor:

It would seem that some people on this campus get burned up very easily without knowing or caring to know the whole story.

With regard to the Maroon Key bonfire of last Friday evening, we would like to inform the student body of some of the behind-the-scenes efforts that went into making this "dud."

1. The lumber bought was seasoned lumber at extra cost.
2. The inside of the bonfire was half-filled with paper soaked in kerosene.
3. The sudden downpour drenched the wood and paper, after which the bonfire was again soaked with kerosene.
4. Due to muddy conditions, no chairs were set up for the band. When the band saw that there were no chairs set up for them at the rally, they dispersed, taking their Metawampee with them.
5. The Metawampee you referred to was Bill Wilkinson, President of the Maroon Keys. Bill, because of his desire to keep the tradition of having the bonfire lit by Metawampee, donned some warpaint and took over Metawampee's responsibility.
6. As a result of this effort, Bill, unused to this duty, received a second degree burn on his hand.

We hope you now realize the circumstances, and appreciate the efforts of the Maroon Keys to keep up a tradition on this campus.

A.P.O. Parade and Rally Committee

To the Editor:

I noted with mingled feelings of anger and amusement the cloudy clarification of Professor Tucker's letter by Senator Crasco. It is in regard to Mr. Crasco's half-stated facts that I shall attempt my own clarification of the matter.

While he was correct in his statement of the Literary Magazine's budget cut, Mr. Crasco neglected to mention the increase in the size of the student body and that consequently a diminished percentage of students will receive copies of the Literary Magazine (now Caesura) this year. With the constant increase in the number of students, there is an accompanying rise in the number of people on campus interested in creative expression, but one of the main outlets, the Literary Magazine, has been shrunk.

When it was suggested that the magazine be given funds enabling it to print larger individual issues compatible with the amount of quality material received, the Senate suggested that if the size of the issues were larger there should be only two issues per year.

You state as one of your facts, Senator Crasco, "that there are many students who feel that the magazine is a waste of money." (That you are not one of them, you've hastened to assure us.) Then let me ask if the Student Senate is included in this group of intellectually indifferent students? It would seem so, for they are the group which cut the magazine's budget. Or is it just that the Senate is reflecting the sentiments of an anti-art faction in the student body? If this is so, then how am I to account for the increase in the Fine Arts Council's budget from $2,500 last year to $29,665 this year? (Realizing that this new budget includes funds for the University Bands and the Concert Association there still remains an increase of almost $4,000.) Do you mean to tell me that there aren't any students who consider chamber music and personal appearances of operatic baritones on campus a waste of money? Can you by any stretch of your obviously elastic imagination tell me that students who supposedly consider the Literary Magazine a waste of money will be receptive to the Paganini String Quartet when they appear on campus?

Mr. Crasco, is it too much to expect that perhaps the Literary Magazine might be allowed to grow with the University?

Here are your "facts," Mr. Crasco. Chew on them! If you're half the senator that you should be, you'll spit them out in the face of the Student Senate.

To the Editor:

After reading the latest issue of Ya-Hoo I consulted my dictionary for a definition of the word "humor."

The first definition read, "Originally any fluid or juice of an animal . . . . any of the four cardinal humors . . . . blood, phlegm, yellow bile and black bile."

The definition of bile read, "A bitter yellow-brown fluid . . . . found in the gall bladder . . . . discharged into the duodenum . . .".

Happily I closed the dictionary, satisfied that Webster's definition of Ya-Hoo was at least in the right tract.

For all jazz fans at the University the key words this semester are organization and progress. WMUA, the campus radio voice, has re-organized and intensified its presentation of jazz programs for the new year. WMUA's Director of Jazz Programming, Ron Engel, has recruited a fine staff to prepare and present the very finest and latest in jazz for your listening enjoyment. On Monday nights at 10 p.m., Brew Harding steps into the spotlight with the cooler sounds.

Tuesday evening, same time and place, Dick Carroll is your host. Come Wednesday, Ron Engel lends his inimitable brand of wit and commentary to the proceedings, and on Thursday night Ed DeRosa communicates much of the feeling of pleasure which this great musical idiom presents to him. There's a brief break, but then by Sunday night, The Sounds of Jazz return when Bruce Schiff arrives on the scene with the kick-off show for the new week.

If you like jazz, or want to learn more about it, support these fellows in their effort to bring you more of the finest jazz around.

UMass Grad Student Receives Fellowship

Frederick T. Counter of Lowell, a graduate student in the Institute of Agricultural and Industrial Microbiology at UMass, is the recipient of a President's Fellowship awarded by the American Society for Microbiology.

His fellowship was awarded in connection with doctoral research he is doing and enabled him to spend four weeks in September at the McArdle Memorial Laboratory for Cancer Research at the University of Wisconsin.

While there, Counter familiarized himself with new techniques developed by Dr. H. M. Temin for the study of Rous sarcoma. Sarcoma is a cancer made up of embryonal connective tissue and the area of Counter's present research. He previously was a member of a College of Agriculture scientific team investigating diseases of the leucosis complex in poultry, similar in many ways to human leukemia, but of no danger to man.

Counter received his B.S. degree in pharmacy from the Massachusetts School of Pharmacy in Boston, and his Master's degree in microbiology at the same institution.

Leete And Chenery Spark Soccer Win

by DAVE PODBROS '65

The UMass varsity soccer team, sparked by Dick Leete and Bob Chenery, compensated for its loss Saturday against UConn, by defeating a spirited Worcester Polytechnic Institute team yesterday by a score of 5 to 2.

Bob Chenery scored early in the first quarter to begin the victory over a highly overrated, though game, Worcester team. As the second quarter began, so did the remarkable offensive playing of Dick Leete. Charging the Worcester goal, he broke through the defense to score. Then Bob Chenery, not to be outdone, scored on a fantastic rebound shot from the corner. However, spirits still undampened, the Worcester squad came back to score, leaving the score at half-time: UMass 3, WPI 1.

The second half began with an illegal obstruction penalty called against UMass. Worcester, however, muffed their chance to score on this indirect penalty shot, and Dick Leete took advantage by leading an offensive charge and scoring. As if having nothing better to do, Leete, a little while later, scored again, raising the score to UMass 5, WPI 1.

The fourth quarter saw a change in goalies for Worcester plus a partial substitution of the UMass second team. Worcester scored later in the quarter to end the game's scoring.

UMass looked good in this game, playing a team that romped over Clark University. A wind and an overwhelming amount of Worcester substitutions, probably due to tiredness, were also detrimental to WPI's game. However, neither the wind nor substitutions can explain away the fine playing of Dick Leete and Bob Chenery.

The next game is at Rhode Island, Saturday, October 20, at 12 o'clock.

Lil' Harriers Scare Off Opponents?

by GENE COLBURN '64

If nothing else, the freshmen cross-country team will probably set at least one record this year. In 2 out of 3 meets this season, the frosh have won by default. This may seem like an easy way to pick up victories, but it hurts the team because they will be missing the competition needed to get into top shape. On Sept. 29 the Coast Guard Academy defaulted by not bringing its freshmen. The Little Redmen had more luck against Springfield.

This meet was held on Oct. 7, and UMass won by the score of 22-37. This was the first actual race for the freshmen and they responded well. Bob Molver led almost all the way, and won in the time of 14:26.9. This is only 9 seconds off the course record. Clayton Berry made a gallant effort to beat out Wells from Springfield, but Wells proved to be too strong. The rest of the team gave the leaders strong backing. Bob Larson, Carl Lopes, and Don Campfield helped to split up the net 2 Springfield finishers. Close behind these boys were John Sherborn, John Hill, Don Oakland, Don Cheney, and Jim Collins.

On Fri., Oct. 12, the freshmen journeyed to Boston to run in a tri-meet with B. U. and UConn.

Speaking Of Sports

by BARRY BROOKS '63

Last year's losers are seldom this year's winners. Thats the outlook for next Saturday when the Redmen meet the Rhode Island Rams before a Homecoming crowd at Kingston, Rhode Island at 2:00 p.m.

Coach John Chironna has seen better days at Little Rhody. There are few Ram linemen big enough to "bump" with the UMass forward wall. Vic Mancini has been the only Rhody back to perform with any degree of consistency. Last Saturday, Rhode Island bowed 21-12 to Yankee Conference newcomer, Vermont. Mancini scored both TD's on passes from QB Mike Pariseau.

Sophomore quarterbacks across the nation continued to perform well this past weekend ... Archie Roberts, Columbia's sensational QB from Holyoke, Mass., passed and ran his team to a 14-10 upset victory over Yale ... UMass' Jerry Whelchel amazed a capacity Homecoming Day crowd of alumni and students with his running and passing ability ... Wally Mahle led the Orangemen of Syracuse to a 12-0 victory over the highflying Eagles of Boston College ... Roger Staubach came off the bench Saturday to direct Navy on six touchdown drives and a 41-0 win over Cornell.

ODDS AND ENDS ... Tony Crosby, who place kicks with only a sock on his right foot, booted a 26 yard field goal for Texas. He also booted one over the end zone on a kickoff ... No opponent has been able to cross the Dartmouth goal line thus far; George Pleau's field goal is the only score against the probable Ivy League winner. The true test will come this Saturday when the Holy Cross Crusaders invade the Hanover campus.

Yesterday marked the end of the 1962 baseball season and the opening of the 1962-63 basketball campaign. The Los Angeles Lakers played the opening game of the NBA season last night against the Detroit Pistons in the first half of a twin bill at Madison Sq. Garden. The Chicago Zephyrs (alias Chicago Packers) met the New York Knicks in the night-cap. Locally, Coach Matt Zunic, last year's New England Coach of the Year, welcomed back his squad at the first practice session last Monday.

Still Kicking

Those making the 125 mile drive to Kingston on Saturday will be able to purchase student tickets at the Men's Physical Education building upon presentation of their UMass I.D. for $1.00. The kick-off is at 2 p.m.; WMUA will broadcast the game "live" beginning at 1:55 ... Coach Fusia and his staff have done a fine job thus far with a squad comprised of 60% sophomores.

THE IFC SCENE

by JOHN CARR '64

Monday night action in the I.F.C. football competition was the closest since the season started. At seven o'clock, TEP beat BKP and SAE tipped over LCA. Later in the evening, QTV lost to SPE and PMD was stopped by KS. All of the games were decided by twelve points or less.

TEP piled up the biggest margin of victory as it shut out BKP 12-0. Salamoff got the scoring underway as he intercepted a BKP pass and ran it back forty yards for a touchdown. In the second half, Gordon hit Martin with a short pass and Martin scampered fifty yards for the tally. TEP was strong on defense, as the line continually broke through to stop the BKP quarterback. Jerry Kramer played brilliantly in the line for TEP; twice in a row he caught the ball carrier behind the line.

Charlie Lapier scored on the first series of downs for LCA, and that was the last time the goal line was crossed until "Boomer" Bernier scored for SAE in the last few minutes. Bernier also added the conversion as SAE went on to defeat LCA 7-6.

Later in the evening, QTV and SPE played almost evenly. SPE scored the only points of the game when Tenczar carried a pass into the end zone. The defense was terrific on both sides. It was a well played game.

The last game saw undefeated KS scored first on a pass from Crane to Hughes with Higgins adding the extra point. That ended the first half scoring. Corey caught a Crane pass in the early part of the second period for a touchdown. Ed Durfer made a great catch of Pat Daher's pass for PMD's only touchdown. Chunky center, Bill Millis scored the extra point. KS, however, remained unbeaten and should finish out its league action in the same manner.

Zunic Rebuilds Squad Around Bernard And Twitchell

by JEFF DAVIDOW '65

The baseball season officially ended yesterday, the hockey season has just begun, and the football season is in full swing; but let's not forget about basketball. UMass doesn't start its hoop season 'till December 1, but Coach Matt Zunic and his championship basketball squad have already started practicing.

Last year the Redmen hoopsters were elevated to major college NCAA standing, and the slate of opponents that Zunic's men will face this year is worthy of their new status. The schedule, which is by far the toughest the basketball team has ever had to deal with, includes such major Eastern hoop powers as St. John's, Providence, Holy Cross and Canisius.

The seniorless basketball squad that UMass will field this winter will have at its head one of the finest coaches in the East.

Matt Zunic came to the University from B.U. for the 1959-60 season. While at the Hub school, his Terrier basketball teams won the Greater Boston Conference Title five straight years, capturing the crown over the heads of Boston College and Harvard, among others. In 1958-59, the first year Zunic was voted New England Coach of the Year, his B.U. team was chosen to play in the Eastern NCAA tourney.

The man with the red socks came to UMass for the 1959-60 season and in three short years he has raised our basketball status from that of just another New England state school, to one of major nationwide importance. Zunic's first steps in the right direction were taken in his freshman and sophomore seasons when he took his Redmen club to the Springfield College tournament and came home with two big and beautiful winner's trophies, which he proudly displays on his desk. His next step came last year when he brought the Yankee Conference basketball title to UMass, were he hopes it will remain for many years to come.

In addition to capturing titles for the school, Zunic has copped a few for himself. For his work with last year's YanCon champs, he was again voted New England Coach of the Year, making it twice in four years that he has received this honor. Another honor came Zunic's way this year when the Converse Company picked him as one of the six college coaches to write an article for their Converse Basketball Yearbook, which is distributed to all high school and college basketball coaches in the country. Other coaches who joined Zunic on the pages of the yearbook included Horace McKinney of Wake Forest (whose club won the Atlantic Coast Conference), and Tom Blackburn, whose Dayton team won the N.I.T. That's pretty high company; but Zunic fits right in.

The 1962-63 edition of the Redmen basketball team is far different from last year's championship squad. Gone are Fohlin, LaPier, Black, Leslie, and Mole, but some familiar names like Pete Bernard and Rodger Twitchell are still around. Zunic will have to rebuild around these two junior co-captains who led the club in scoring last year, Twitchell racking up 498 points and Bernard 296.

It is a rarity when a varsity squad does not have a senior on its roster, but this is the case with the Redmen. Zunic is, however, optimistic about the forthcoming season. He realizes that his boys are relatively inexperienced and may have a tough time getting started, but once they've gained the self-assurance their ball playing will undoubtedly improve.

In any conversation with Coach Zunic he'll dwell long and hard on the subject of campus support. He sincerely hopes that the UMass student spirit which has been tapped during the present football season will continue to flow when the basketball team takes the court. In other words, Zunic considers student spirit a big factor in whether this year's squad will be able to match last year's record.

Zunic has to face many of the same problems that another fairly well known coach on campus, a fellow by the name of Fusia, had to face—a dearth of returning lettermen. Only Bernard and Twitchell received letters last year, and a large percentage of sophomores on the squad—(at least two-thirds) will be first year varsity men. Zunic only hopes his problems will resolve themselves as well as Fusia's did. One day while talking about the number of sophomores on his squad Zunic was jokingly asked if he'd like a sophomore like Whelchel. "Hell," he replied, "I'll take another sophomore like Twitchell."

RODGER TWITCHELL PETE BERNARD

Two junior co-captains who Coach Matt Zunic is depending on to spark the Redmen basketball team to another YanCon crown.

In addition to Pete Bernard and Rodger Twitchell, Zunic will have three other juniors; Danny Laakso, Mike Johnson and Elliott Gventer. Laakso, who was hampered last year by a bad instep, should help the squad with his dead-eye shooting. Mike Johnson (in addition to growing another inch this summer to bring his height to 6'7") worked out on his own and has greatly improved. The other junior on the squad, Elliott Gventer, has also improved. Coach Zunic compared Elliott with one of last year's stars, Charlie Fohlin. Zunic pointed out that both boys make up for their lack of natural talent with fantastic drive and desire.

Among the most promising of the sophomore prospects from last year's 13-1 freshmen squad are Charlie O'Rourke, Clarence Hill, Charlie Kingston, John Yates, John Reynolds, Eldon Goodhue, Tom Grazulis, and Jim Garro. Jim Painten, star of the freshmen squad of two years ago, is back in school and should add considerably to the team. Another soph Zunic has hopes for is veteran Paul Fleming, 6'6", 210 pounds.

However, B.U. entered only 1 freshman, and UConn had only 3; so, the little Redmen won once again by default. A race was run anyway, and UMass captured the first five places. This served as an indicator that the freshmen are beginning to turn into a really solid team. Against Springfield there was a 75 second spread between the first and the fifth UMass finisher. Against BU and UConn, there was only 40 seconds.

All those interested in trying out for the freshman basketball team are requested to report at the first practice session Monday, Oct. 22 at 4:00 P.M. on the Cage floor.

Max Morath Will Entertain Saturday With Ragtime Music, Humor, Lore

The happy sounds of ragtime will fill the air in the S.U. Ballroom when Max Morath, one of the country's leading exponents of this music of turn-of-the-century America, performs Saturday at 8:30 p.m. Admission will be free of charge.

Denverite Morath, at a battered upright piano and dressed in a 1908 suit, will be singing and playing the best of America's ragtime lore, discoursing along the way with humor and satire on the personalities, fads and customs of those forgotten years. Dubbed the "ideal spokesman" for ragtime by Variety magazine, Morath admits that ragtime and the happy, optimistic years from which it sprang have him completely captivated. Though he was born in 1926, a full generation away from the early ragtime years, he devotes all his time to the study and performance of this rollicking music of a younger America.

Morath is author and performer of the TV series "The Ragtime Era." These twelve half-hour programs, which tell the story of the music and the personalities of America's ragtime years, have reached an estimated 30,000,000 viewers on educational and commercial channels the country over.

HAPPINESS CAN'T BUY MONEY

Can education bring happiness?

This is a question that in recent years has caused much lively debate and several hundred stabbings among American college professors. Some contend that if a student's intellect is sufficiently aroused, happiness will automatically follow. Others say that to concentrate on the intellect and ignore the rest of the personality can only lead to misery.

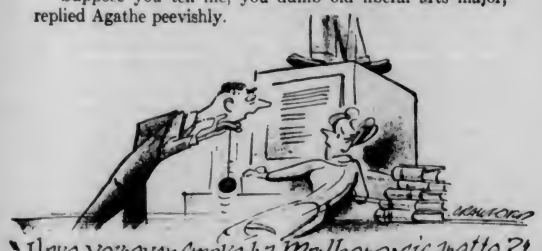
I myself favor the second view, and I offer in evidence the well-known case of Agathe Fusco.

Agathe, a forestry major, never got anything less than a straight "A", was awarded her B.T. (Bachelor of Trees) in only two years, her M.S.B. (Master of Sap and Bark) in only three, and her D.B.C. (Doctor of Blight and Cutworms) in only four.

Academic glory was hers. Her intellect was the envy of every intellect fan on campus. But was she happy? The answer, alas, was no. Agathe—she knew not why—was miserable, so miserable, in fact, that one day while walking across campus, she was suddenly so overcome with melancholy that she flang herself, weeping, upon the statue of the Founder.

By and by a liberal arts major named R. Twinkle Plenty came by with his yoyo. He noted Agathe's condition. "How come you're so unhappy, hey?" said R. Twinkle.

"Suppose you tell me, you dumb old liberal arts major," replied Agathe peevishly.



"All right, I will," said R. Twinkle. "You are unhappy for two reasons. First, because you have been so busy stuffing your intellect that you have gone and starved your psyche. I've got nothing against learning, mind you, but a person oughtn't to neglect the pleasant, gentle amenities of life—the fun things. Have you, for instance, ever been to a dance?"

Agathe shook her head.

"Have you ever watched a sunset? Written a poem? Smoked a Marlboro Cigarette?"

Agathe shook her head.

"Well, we'll fix that right now!" said R. Twinkle and gave her a Marlboro and struck a match.

She puffed, and then for the first time in twelve or fifteen years, she smiled. "Wow!" she cried. "Marlboros are a fun thing! What flavor! What filter! What pack or box! What a lot to like! From now on I will smoke Marlboros, and never have another unhappy day!"

"Hold!" said R. Twinkle. "Marlboros alone will not solve your problem—only half of it. Remember I said there were two things making you unhappy?"

"Oh, yeah," said Agathe. "What's the other one?"

"How long have you had that bear trap on your foot?" said R. Twinkle.

"I stepped on it during a field trip in my freshman year," said Agathe. "I keep meaning to have it taken off."

"Allow me," said R. Twinkle and removed it.

"Land sakes, what a relief!" said Agathe, now totally happy, and took R. Twinkle's hand and led him to a Marlboro vendor's and then to a justice of the peace.

Today Agathe is a perfectly fulfilled woman, both intellectwise and personalitywise. She lives in a darling split-level house with R. Twinkle and their 17 children, and she still keeps busy in the forestry game. Only last month, in fact, she became Consultant on Sawdust to the American Butchers Guild, she was named an Honorary Sequoia by the park commissioner of Las Vegas, and she published a best-selling book called I was a Slippery Elm for the FBI.

ASIS Anounces Jobs In Europe For Next Summer

"Earn, travel, learn" declares the American Student Information Service, the only authorized official organization placing American students in summer jobs in Europe on a large scale, which this year offers over three thousand summer jobs in Europe for college students.

Job openings for the summer of 1963 include work in factories, construction crews, offices, farms, resorts, and also child care and camp counseling positions.

Located throughout the European countries, the jobs offer opportunities to meet Europeans and develop a speaking knowledge of a European language.

Top wages are $175 for the highest paying positions in Germany while jobs in Spain include only room and board.

In addition to the job with its financial benefits, a European tour, an album of language records, a student pass allowing student discounts throughout Europe, and complete health and accident insurance will also be provided.

In celebration of its sixth anniversary, the ASIS will award travel grants and cash scholarships from $10 to $175 to the first one thousand applicants.

Students interested in learning more about the European summer job opportunities should contact the Placement office.

MEN'S JUDICIARY

Judiciary Seeks Associate Justices

The following is the last in a series of three articles explaining the workings of the Men's Judiciary Board. The articles are written by members of the Judiciary qualified to write authoritatively on the various subjects chosen for the series.

by DONALD T. TEPPER '63

Every democracy has a judicial branch, the purpose of which is to enforce the laws of the particular society and to protect the rights of its citizens. We at the University have such a judicial department in the Men's Judiciary.

The recent establishment of two area judiciaries — one in dorm area I and one in dorm area II—necessitates the selection of eleven new associate justices.

The eleven chosen associate justices will work closely with the already established Men's Judiciary.

What kind of men are needed to act as justices? This is a job for men with alert, inquiring, and deductive minds. Needed are men who have a sincere interest in the students who may be before him and who will work hard to see that justice prevails.

No previous experience is necessary to be eligible.

Persons interested in becoming candidates for the postion of area court justice should take note of the following timetable:

Oct. 19 to Oct. 23: Any interested person may sign up with the head of residence in his respective dormitory.

Oct. 23 to Oct. 24: Selection of five final candidates by the House Council.

Oct. 24 to Oct. 26: Final selection of one justice from each dorm by a panel consisting of

Undergrads Campaign For Hughes

Where initial UMass student participation in the Stuart Hughes for Senator campaign had been minimal, said a spokesman for the student group, University students working for Hughes have increased fivefold in the past few weeks.

He said this was partially due to the proximity of the final elections and the progress Hughes' forces have made on his behalf.

For several weeks, UMass students have been engaged in a leafletting campaign for the senatorial candidate. Coordinated by Prof. Ronald McHafney of the University Math Department, the campaign has been aimed at Holyoke and Springfield areas and other parts of Western Massachusetts.

Student political groups supporting Hughes, such as Synthesis and Young Independents, have merged to set up a single campaign organization.

Lederle Reminds ECPO Delegates Of Education's Public Obligations

Addressing the annual conference of Eastern College Personnel Officers held recently at Lake Placid, N.Y., UMass President John W. Lederle urged conference delegates to take up the challenge of directing more students into public service.

Stresses Obligations

Pointing out that "colleges and universities received substantial public support and encouragement," Lederle underscored educational institutions' obligations to the public and to public service.

Lederle said that in contrast to private enterprise, public employment is rarely considered by students as a first choice.

As a helpful step in remedying this situation, Lederle recommended that college placement officers and governmental agencies—federal, state and local—work to develop incentives toward public service among college and university students.

In his address Lederle also cited "the greatly increasing trend for more and more of our undergraduates to continue on into graduate study," saying that the trend presents a challenge and may require "a measure of readjustment in the vocational guidance function of the placement officer."

Broad Outlook Urged

Lederle urged the placement officials to broaden their outlook on counselling "to include an assessment of whether or not further study may be appropriate, both from the standpoint of the student and that of social and national needs."

In a major part of Dr. Lederle's speech, he called upon the E.C.P.O. conferees to work more on the alumni placement aspects of their professions.

Because of the changing nature of our society, said Lederle, "the productive stages of a lifespan are no longer single blocks of time, but discrete, periodic spans as well."

Important Task

Giving as an example of this phenomenon the college- or university-trained mother whose children have grown up and left home, Lederle told the conference delegates that they should accept the responsibility of "bringing our human productive resources to bear in an effective manner," saying that placement offices should serve as a key unit in this process.

Lederle was introduced at the meeting by Robert J. Morrissey, UMass director of Placement and Financial Aid Services and president of E.C.P.O.

Singer Pete Seeger To Appear At October 28 Folk Concert

Folk singer-guitarist Pete Seeger will appear here in a concert sponsored by the Pioneer Valley Folklore Association, four college organization comprised of members from the University, Mount Holyoke, Amherst and Smith.

Concert In WPE

The concert, at 2:30 Oct. 28 in the University's Women's Physical Education Building, is one of several events to be presented the week of October 21-28 by seven University organizations for United Nations Week celebrations.

Seeger's repertoire of several thousand songs includes not only vivid descriptions of Americana, industrial ballads, Negro spirituals, union songs, frontier ballads and children's verses, but songs from many lands in many languages.

Ability to play a recorder, a 12-string guitar and a long-neck banjo, plus an interest in the genesis and development of folk songs, rate Seeger as a great folk singer and not just a singer of folk songs.

He was born in New York City, May 3, 1919, of musical parents. He took up the ukelele when he was eight, and played tenor banjo in a school jazz band.

In 1935, when visiting a square dance festival, Seeger felt the pleasure of sharing in communal music.

PETE SEEGER

Served in South Pacific

From this point he spent his time doing research on folk music, travelling around the mountain-valley people with his banjo, and finally communicating his music to servicemen in World War II, when he served with the Army Special Services in the South Pacific.

After serving in the Army, Seeger gave concerts for a number of years, and in 1950 organized the Weavers folk song group where he remained until 1957.

Proceeds of the Seeger concert and other United Nations Week events at the University will go toward tools and necessary equipment for support of a UNESCO pilot farm and agricultural school in Dahomey, Africa.

Announced purpose of the program is "to stimulate campus and public consideration of world problems and to insure our involvement in them (a) through discussion of the United Nations and world problems, (b) through additional United Napilot farm and agricultural school in Dahomey and (c) through additional United Nations projects in support of the United Nations theme."

Tickets may be obtained at the box office or at the UN week box office in the S.U. lobby.

Senate Committee Announces Results Of Class Elections

The results of yesterday's election as announced by the Senate Elections Committee are Bernie Dallas, Frosh president; Milton Morin, vice-president; Susan Swanson, secretary; and Carol Atwood, treasurer.

The class of '64 elected Raymond Kodzis vice-president and Dave Mathieson senator-at-large.

School Of Ed. Sponsoring Conference

The UMass School of Education will sponsor a conference tomorrow, for teachers of mathematics in public, private, and parochial schools throughout the Commonwealth.

Major speaker at the conference, to be held in the Education Building, will be Dr. W. W. Sawyer of Wesleyan University, international authority on mathematics education and author of several books on the subject.

Dr. Sawyer, who has taught in his native England, in New Zealand and in this country, will speak on "Priorities in Mathematical Education."

Sectional meetings are scheduled for teachers of elementary

EXTENDS INVITATION TO UNIVERSITY

Amherst's Knight Addresses Student Senate

The Student Senate suspended the rules at Wednesday evening's meeting in order to allow Harry Knight, representative of the Amherst College Student Council, to take the floor.

In his address to the UMass Senate, Knight invited the university to participate in a co-operative academic venture with Amherst, Smith and Mt. Holyoke Colleges.

Students who wish to take courses not offered at UMass will have access to a file of information on courses which have been selected by student committees at the other schools.

The files will include a description of the class, professor and credit information.

Senate President Don Cournoyer '63 instructed the Curriculum Committee, headed by Senator Bob Brauer '64, to establish a committee which will take charge of setting up the program.

In the regular business of the meeting, Senator Jon Fife '64, Senate treasurer and head of the Finance Committee, took the chair.

The Senate, acting as a committee of the whole, voted to allow the Debating Society a category change of one hundred dollars for an honorarium for senatorial candidate H. Stuart Hughes, who will present a non-political address during United Nations week, held from October 21-28.

Under Committee Reports, Senator Steve Hewey '63, chairman of Services Committee, said that he had spoken with George Mellen, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, about several complaints of poor road, sidewalk, and lighting conditions on campus. According to Hewey, Mellen stated that a lack of funds and manpower in the Maintenance Department was responsible for the conditions, which could not be corrected until more money is allotted to the department.

All old business and new business on the agenda was tabled until next week, because of a coffee hour being held in the Colonial Lounge to acquaint the new Senators with each other and with several members of the administration.

FOUR COLLEGE FILE

Four College co-operation took a big step forward Wednesday when a member of the Amherst College Student Council appeared before the Senate to present a plan for a four college file program. The plan, now under study by Senator Bob Brauer's Curriculum Committee, would set up a running file of courses available to the students of the four colleges. It would give a description of the course written by one who had taken it. To further enable the student to ascertain the coverage, it would give the name of the individual who compiled the description.

We feel that such a file would be a vast improvement over the cursory description given by college catalogues. It would enable the student to be truly aware of the course's scope. As one professor at Amherst has said of students from other schools: "they are not aware of the opportunities open." This is, to say the least, an understatement.

Since no opposition can be seen for such an advantageous plan, the only enemy we have is time. Amherst, Smith, and Mt. Holyoke have already started on their file. We hope that under the leadership of Senator Brauer, the University will have this file in use for second semester. E.M.

TAKE A LONG WALK...

We wonder if the administration is thinking about the ten minute break between classes in relation to the ever expanding campus.

The walk from the education building to Bartlett Hall takes far longer than the time allotted, and several other long walks can be cited that take at least ten miuntes or more. With winter approaching and snow on the ground the situation will become still worse.

Perhaps one might say that present conditions are "livable," but what about the not too distant future when academic buildings and dormitories are spread out at even greater distances? We sincerely hope that this matter is being considered by those who work on the "Master Plan."

— LETTERS TO THE EDITOR —

ON RUSHING RUSHING

To the Editor:

In Wednesday's Collegian, the new Assistant Dean of Men, Mr. Roth, was quoted as saying that he did not believe that freshmen should be permitted to pledge fraternities during the first semester.

This statement appears to be in conflict with the position of his superior, Dean Robert S. Hopkins, who has supported first semester rushing.

Apparently Mr. Roth has formed opinions about fraternities, without having had an opportunity to see if his value judgments are correct. He has never been a member of a social fraternity, nor had he ever been employed at an institution that has social fraternities until he came to UMass this summer.

Most colleges conclude their rushing before classes begin—without any serious repercussions. His statement that a "fraternity does not have the time to screen and select students who would probably most benefit the fraternities," is completely without basis since the rushing period has not changed in length of time, although it has been moved up a semester. Mr. Roth's statement that first semester pledging will have "even a direct effect on the individual student", makes no sense. What kind of an effect will it have?

I think that if Mr. Roth examines the national studies and literature on fraternities, he will find that there seems to be no correlation between poor academic work and first semester pledging.

In conclusion, it would seem that the new assistant dean should get his facts straight before presenting them publicly. It would be a shame if his disparagement of the fraternity system should hurt the new rushing plans which have been set up by the I.F.C. with the approval and backing of the administration.

Redmen Reservations

To the Editor:

While the University of Massachusetts was playing host to the University of Connecticut last Saturday, some of our ushers were privately playing host, reserving a student section for members of their fraternity. Three rows of bleachers were held open for one of the so-called "better" houses on campus at the expense of other university students (at least three UMass couples) who were forced to move from this area.

Since when do fraternities dictate the seating arrangement at football games? Is the maroon UM arm band a symbol for the flagrant disregard of the feelings and equal privileges of those not properly designated by the appropriate pin?

Everyone likes to sit near their friends at a game, and the practice of saving one or two places is accepted universally. This large scale reservation of seats is a different matter. The honorary ushering jobs could be and should be filled by men with the capacity for honorable responsibility, regardless of their brotherhood affiliation.

Two GDI's

Fable For Exam Time

Once there was a student who said, "I don't give a — penny, or something —
If every man in college says
I ought to cram.

I am going to do my work each day,
Absorb my daily lore:
And then not frantically bone
two or three days before.

Then a few hours, just to review,
And I will know it all.
It is not necessary to give midnight oil a call."

And so, while others boned and groaned, calmly he went his way,
And every night at ten o'clock
serenely hit the hay.

He just reviewed — he never tried feverishly his stuff to cram;
He went with his mind untired, serene,
And — failed in his exam!

MORAL

The good old ways are very good
Based on experience deep and wide:
Teachers and books say otherwise —
We let our conscience be our guide!

PRESIDENT'S APPRECIATION

To the Editor:

May I extend my heartiest congratulations to all members of the campus community whose combined efforts made the Homecoming Weekend a rewarding and memorable occasion.

The spirit and enthusiasm of the student body throughout the weekend marked a new high in the finest tradition of the University. The splendid competitive performance of the football team in their victory over the University of Connecticut and the successful efforts of the men of the cross country team were high points in the areas of athletic endeavor. The Operetta Guild made their own contribution to the success of the weekend with their delightful performance of "Guys and Dolls."

My appreciation goes to these organizations and to all others who added to the effectiveness of this refreshing change of pace in the ongoing academic life of the University.

Sincerely yours,
John W. Lederle
President

Humor? or Humor

To the Editor:

Regarding the latest issue of Ya-Hoo: Wasted.
N.T.

To the Editor:

With the issue of the new Ya-Hoo, I find the UMass campus a much more enjoyable place. I am glad to know that someone has come up with a magazine that fills the "vacuum" with its humor, photos and sarcasm. Especially the sarcasm, which makes some very interesting points.

I believe that the whole student body (at least the male members) would like to see more of Ya-Hoo throughout the year.

I have but one question. Is there a translation for the article on page nine? I think the women might be able to use one.

F.E.B.

Moot on Murals

To the Editor:

Reading between the lines of the Art Department's recent defensive letter to the editor (and other letters from students, in part, taking Art courses) one might conclude that the Art World feels greatly threatened by the murals recently placed in the Union. These murals are colorful and carefully done and are providing a great deal of pleasure for, I'm sure, a majority of the members of the University community. They are commissioned and finished and enjoyed by many . . . what does it benefit the University for members of the Department to criticize the murals vociferously in the classroom and to publicly "wash its hands of the affair" and sniff superciliously?

Several years ago I enjoyed an exhibit of black and white daubings by one member of that Department which stirred up great controversy on campus and in town. In this case I liked that member's work quite well, while another member of the same Department confessed he thought the works "terrible art." This past year, two men from the Art Department, this time "consulted about the matter," selected for the President's Office a yellow, tan, and cream colored splotchwork in a natural wood frame and mounted it on yellowish pine paneling with which it so blended that the net effect was that of a brush cleaned out on an unpainted wall. This was Art, they said. Others disagree.

Though we don't all teach art we have eyes, we react to colors and shapes, and we may enjoy a painting or a piece of sculpture even without knowing whether it conforms to the "approved" style or technique of the times. I would not appreciate a mural showing Mssrs. Stockbridge and Clark in purple and orange cubism—but perhaps others would. Why don't we abandon the Great Mural Controversy by saying "some like 'em and some don't." Basta.

Keep The Lumber Dry

To the Editor:

If the students' money is being spent for seasoned lumber at extra cost, why has no one thought of purchasing a piece of canvass to keep the lumber dry? The initial cost would be justified by the fact that the canvass could be used repeatedly to prevent "dud" bonfires caused by the wet lumber.

Sincerely,
Carol Kline '64

Is There?

To the Editor:

I fail to see why this University insists on assigning advisors to students who don't know how to advise. I mean no personal reflection on any advisor, but some of them simply have no training in this field. Isn't there a better way?

Democracy Firmly Entrenched In Germany, Reports Dr. Stahl

by RUSSELL MURPHY '66

"Totalitarianism is the great danger of our time."

Such was the keynote of the lecture, "Is German Democracy Safe?", given by Dr. Walter Stahl, international relations expert, author, and lecturer, in the Middlesex Room of the S.U. Tuesday afternoon. The lecture was first of a series sponsored by the UMass government department.

Pointing out that no people can be entirely condemned as bellicose and immoral, he said that Hitler's rise to power in the 'thirties was in the main due to a lack of education in democracy on the part of the German people. He noted the same is true of all totalitarian states, such as Russia and China.

"The Germans have learned their lesson," Dr. Stahl stated, pointing out that the guilt of the Germans for the crimes of World War 2 and the present firm entrenchment of democracy in Germany greatly discourage the hopes of anyone ever to lead Germany into totalitarianism again. "There is no longer room for nationalism or omnipotence" in the life-and-death struggle with Communism.

Germany Becoming Rooted In Democracy

By means of public-opinion poll figures, sociological survey results, and the evidence of the popular support for the Adenauer regime's policies of pro-Westernism and anti-militarism, Dr. Stahl attempted to prove that the German is becoming more and more rooted in Democracy. He noted that "old ways" still exist and Germany is not as much a democracy as America, but this will be remedied as the younger generations come into their own.

In a question-and-answer period following the lecture, Dr. Stahl reiterated the stands of the Bundes-republic in regard to alliances with the West, the Berlin question, nuclear power for Germany, and questions on the crimes against the Jews.

Dr. Stahl is currently on an American lecture tour, having begun in San Francisco Sept. 27. He noted his enthusiasm with this section of America.

"It is the most beautiful part of the United States I have seen," he said at the very outset of the lecture.

Interdorm Council Elected Plans Candy Sale For U.N.

Officers for the 1962-1963 Women's Interdormitory Council were elected at the October 11 meeting of the council. They are: Ruth Feinberg, president; Ruth Ames, vice president; Sheila Armstrong, secretary, and Cookie Smith, treasurer.

Plans were announced for council participation in the October 21-28 United Nations Week celebration in the form of a women's dormitory candy sale during that week. Proceeds from the sale and from other scheduled functions will be used to promote a UNESCO project in Dahomey.

Retiring president, Kay Reagan, stressed the importance of 100% women's dormitory participation in the council in order to enlarge the scope of the organization.

The next meeting of the council will be held on Thursday, October 18, in the recreation room of Arnold House.

DORMITORY NEWS

BROOKS

The fact that Brooks dormitory is still unfinished has in no way hampered the spirit and enthusiasm of the girls. Almost 100 girls attended nightly rehearsals for the Interdorm sing and thus placed third with their rendition of Blue Tango.

On Friday, October 13, Brooks was again a winner, placing second in the annual Homecoming Float Parade, with their float entitled "Freeze U Conn."

Patricia Jones, class of '66, has been nominated by Zeta Nu fraternity for Honorary Colonel of this year's Military Ball. Congratulations, Pat.

On Friday night, October 19, Brooks and her neighbor, Brett House, will hold a mix from 8 to 11:30 at Brett.

DWIGHT

The residents of Dwight would like to congratulate the deserving winners of the Homecoming Float Parade.

At the beginning of the semester, dorm officers were elected as follows: Social Chairman;

SORORITY NEWS

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

Gerri Walukvich and Pam Salvati, the co-chairmen for our float, certainly deserve many thanks for their fine work, which brought us a third place in the Homecoming Parade.

Speaking of Homecoming, it certainly was great to see all the Alpha Chi "alums" who spent the weekend with us.

This week, we entertained our Province President, Mrs. John E. Shaffer, who visits annually to help coordinate the chapter, to point out any weak spots in our program, and to aid the officers and sisters. We all enjoyed her company and welcomed her suggestions and interest.

Last Thursday evening the house rocked with laughter when we had a "suppressed desires" dinner. Even the cook and houseboys got into the act, and everyone had such a good time, we're hoping we can have another soon.

IOTA GAMMA UPSILON

On Wednesday, October 3, 1962, Iota Gamma Upsilon held its Inaugural Tea in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union. It was well attended by members of the administration, housemothers and fraternity, sorority, and dormitory representatives.

The sisters thank sincerely all those who attended.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

We are happy to welcome Lee Carrell back from Florida State after her semester there as an exchange student, and Jane Buckley who spent the summer abroad. They both had a marvelous time. Congratulations to our new housemanager Joan McNiff. She's doing a fine job with the help of assistant manager Lee Carrell. We are all very pleased with the new addition to the house.

Congratulations to Joanne Solitario who was recently elected captain of Precisionettes, and to Jan LaFlamme on her initiation last Wednesday.

The Theta football team has been busy warming up for the game with the help of Coaches Don McKeag, Bob Ellis, Tony Lincoln, and Jack Madden. Good luck!

Best wishes to Bev Botelho, Val Smith and Barbie Murphy on their engagements, and to Joan McNiff on her recent pinning.

LAMBDA DELTA PHI

The sisters of Lambda Phi were pleased to have Mrs. Alvord Churchhill, Head of Residence for Arnold House, as their dinner guest Wednesday evening.

For nominee for Mili Ball Queen the sisters have chosen Bernice Conlon '63. Sandi Giordano will serve as Lambda Phi's representative to the Greek committee for the Index.

PI BETA

Activity is the word around the Pi Phi Chapter House as the fall activities are in full swing. Two weeks ago we were honored to have Dean Curtis and Mrs. Gonon pour at a welcoming tea for our new housemother, Mrs. Cheyne.

The sisters would like to thank Phi Mu Delta for a very enjoyable exchange supper last week.

We are all very proud of Carol McDonough who has just been elected to Phi Kappa Phi, Scholastic Honor Society.

The Pi Phi's are now preparing for a visit from the National Officers next week.

SIGMA KAPPA

Sigma Kappa wants to thank TKE and Theta Chi for the wonderful exchange suppers. A really great time was had by all the sisters.

Congratluations go to Mary Pat Carroll and Marie Mortimer. Mary Pat was nominated for Legislature Provides Appropriations For New State Medical School At UMass

During the closing days of the legislative session, the General Court enacted, and the Governor finally signed a bill establishing a State Medical School at UMass.

The act added two ex-officii members (the Commissioners of Public Health and of Mental Health) and three new appointive members, none of whom may be affiliated with a private medical school. The appointive members are nominated by the Governor with the approval of the Governor's Council.

The act specifies that the school shall be maintained so as to comply with standards approved by national medical associations for accreditation. The trustees may cooperate with federal and other agencies for constructing, financing and operating the school.

A dean, under the President, will have responsibility for carrying out Trustee policy governing the school. The Medical School budget shall be submitted separately from the budget for other parts of the University.

An appropriation of $100,000 was passed for plans for the construction of the Medical School.

The construction will be under the jurisdiction of the State Division of Building Construction, inasmuch as the recent self-management act did not change the existing system of state controls over state building programs.

Another $100,000 was appropriated for employing a dean and ancillary personnel for the purpose of formulating curriculum and program of the School, for consulting services required to select a site, and for necessary supplies, furnishings and equipment.

The Trustees have directed the President to formulate specifications for the deanship and to exercise prudent dispatch in undertaking the selection of the dean.

Foreign Film Schedule Begins Nov. 4 In S.U.

The Student Union Program Office has announced the list of twelve selected foreign films to be presented this year. The films and dates of presentation are as follows.

The series will start Sunday, November 4, with "Windfall in Athens." Written and directed by Michael Cacoyannis, the stars are Helle Lambetti, Dimitri Hern, Marguerite Georgiou, and George Pappas. It is a comedy about two adversaries for a winning lottery ticket who become infatuated with each other during their struggles in this warm and good humored drama. The film will be will be sung in German and English subtitles.

German Films To Be Shown

"The Marriage of Figaro" will be presented Sunday, November 11. It is based on Mozart's famous opera with its charming plot and lyrical score beautifully sung by outstanding artists. It will be sung in German with English subtitles.

On Sunday, November 18, "The Rest is Silence" will be shown. This modern version of the "Hamlet" story is an intriguing Freudian drama set in contemporary West Germany. The dialogue will be in German with English subtitles.

"Rosemary" will be shown Sunday, November 25. It is a satirical revelation of upper strata life based on the murder of a prostitute who was paid to spy on top West German businessmen, with frequent musical asides in the style of German political cabarets. The dialogue is in German with English subtitles.

On Sunday, December 2, "The Devil's Daughter" will be shown. This modern Seneca's tragedy "Phaedra" takes its local color from the Mediterranean shores of Spain where it was filmed. Emma Penella, winner of Spain's "best actress" award, plays Estrella, who marries an older man so that she can seduce his son. The dialogue is in Spanish with English subtitles.

Chinese Documentary Will Be Shown

On Sunday, December 9, the film "The New China" will be shown. This documentary is the first full-length color film about the Chinese People's Republic to be shown in this country. It is an integrated study of contrasts between the old and new China in regard to industry, agriculture, and political and social changes. This film will be narrated in English.

"Girl with a Suitcase" will be presented on Sunday, January 6. A relationship between two people develops into love and becomes the main theme, only to end in tragedy. Throughout, director Zurlini has avoided cliche and the pattern of the obvious. The dialogue is in Italian with English subtitles.

Story of Modern Japan Featured

On Sunday, January 13, "The Phantom Horse," will be shown. In total opposition to the other Japanese popular films, this unveils a story of modern day Japan. English subtitles are given with the Japanese dialogue.

On Sunday, January 20, "The Young Have No Time" will be shown. The author-director shows with remarkable frankness what happens when the children of the well-to-do middle class are overindulged by their parents in compensation for the lack of love and security at home. The dialogue is in Danish with English subtitles.

Italian Opera To Be Sung

"La Traviata", will be shown Sunday, March 3. The opera is sung in its original Italian with the action followed by an English commentary.

"Eve Wants To Sleep", will be shown Sunday, March 10. A charming, flippant combination of comedy, satire and fantasy, wonderfully funny in itself, but even more interesting by the fact it was produced in Poland where comedy in cinema has been almost totally lacking. The dialogue is in Polish with English subtitles.

Last Film March 17

On Sunday, March 17, the film "Tomorrow Is Too Late" will be shown. Dealing with the inflammable subject of the awakening of the sex instinct of young people, this film is thought-provoking and dramatically powerful. It was produced in Italy and dubbed in English.

All of these films will be shown in the Student Union, at 7 p.m., on Sundays. Admission will be charged.

Brouillet Vs. Keefe As UMass Harriers Meet Central Conn.

by JIM RYAN '65

This Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, the undefeated UMass Harriers, led by Bob Brouillet, will host the Central Connecticut State College cross country team with their brilliant star Jim Keefe. UMass should have little trouble in defeating Central Conn., but the main feature of this meet will be a meeting of two of the top cross country men in New England.

Jim Keefe, last year's New England Intercollegiate Athletic Association champion, has the distinction of never having lost in collegiate cross country competition. Last year, because he was ineligible to compete in the I.C. 4A's, as his school is not a member of that association, Keefe entered and won both the Eastern Intercollegiate Athletic Association meet in Boston, and the N.A.I.A. championship meet in Omaha, Nebraska.

UMass' Bob Brouillet, undefeated this year, will be seeking his first victory over Keefe. Last year, as a sophomore, "Digger" finished third to Keefe in the N.E.I.C.A.A. meet. Although he was outstanding last year, Bob has improved considerably this season. He seemed stronger and faster than in the preceding meet, in each of the three meets he has won this season. But Keefe is a tremendous competitor, and Brouillet will have to be at his very best to beat him.

Coach Footrick hopes for a really strong team performance Saturday, as this contest will be the final one before the Harvard meet.

Those UMass fans who aren't making the trip to Kingston and who wish to see the undefeated UMass team in action, plus what should undoubtedly be one of the great individual duels ever seen at UMass, should be at the Women's Physical Education Building Saturday afternoon at the two o'clock starting time.

Intramural Standings

Theta Chi is leading the IFC League "A" with a 5-0 record. However, it is closely followed by Sig Ep with four wins and no losses.

In IFC League "B" action, Kappa Sig is undefeated with four wins to their credit, while TKE with the same number of wins but one loss, holds the second place spot.

The dormitory standings show that in Dorm League "A" Gorman is ahead of all other opposition with a two and zero record.

In Dorm League "B" Greenough heads the slate with two wins, no losses.

BAKER'S DOZEN

by NEIL BAKER '66

For the second straight week, all YanCon teams are clashing with each other; Maine is at UConn, Vermont at UNH, and the Redmen invade URI.

Maine has already played four conference games, winning one, thus the UConn Huskies will face their last Yankee foe of the season. UConn should hand the Bears their fourth conference loss in this, the Huskies' homecoming game. URI, also celebrating Homecoming, won't be so lucky with the UMass Redmen running all over them. New Hampshire, fresh from a win over Maine, should keep their unbeaten (tied once) season intact when they meet the Catamounts from Vermont.

In other New England games: Amherst, winner of 10 of their last 11, will run and pass the Coast Guard silly . . . B.C. lost a little morale last week on their 12-zip encounter with Syracuse, and will not quite be up to the Midshipmen from Navy . . . B.U., winless in four tries, should hit the jackpot this time when they play the Spiders from Richmond Saturday evening at B.U. Field . . . The Harvard Crimson will tame Columbia's Lions, despite Columbia's sensational sophomore, Archie Roberts.

GAME OF THE WEEK

The big game this week finds Holy Cross at Dartmouth. Both teams are unbeaten and have been very impressive so far this season. Dartmouth is a very versatile team which passes and runs with equal excellence. Bill King, Dartmouth's captain and quarterback, last week completed 8 of 10 passes for 98 yards and rushed for 82 yards in six carries. The Big Green ran up a total of 267 yards rushing. Dartmouth has a capable receiver in Creelman and two bruising backs in Tom Spargenberg and Dave Lawson. The defense sparkles, with only a field goal being scored against them in three games. Holy Cross is just as impressive with qb Pat McCarthy, halfback Tom Hennessey and elusive flanker back Al Snyder. The Crusaders racked up 270 yards total offense in beating Harvard last week. Their offense is good; their defense is good. But Dartmouth looks set to pull the upset of the week—the Big Green should take it by halfa' TD.

NATIONALLY

The Cadets are hot now and will have no trouble with Virginia Tech . . . Penn St., shocked by the treatment they received last week, should bounce back enough to take on the Orangemen from Syracuse . . . Michigan State will hand the Irish of Notre Dame their third straight loss . . . if the Spartans have their way . . . Ohio State keeps fighting back and will knock off third-ranked Northwestern . . . Kentucky won't know what hit them as Jery Stovell and LSU will make kittens out of the floundering Wildcats.

SUMMARY

1. UConn over Maine
2. UMass over URI
3. UNH over Vermont
4. Amherst over Coast Guard
5. Navy over BC
6. BU over Richmond
7. Harvard over Columbia
8. Dartmouth over Holy Cross
9. Army over Virginia Tech
10. Penn St. over Syracuse
11. Michigan St. over N D
12. Ohio St. over Northwestern
13. LSU over Kentucky

—SERVING COLLEGE MEN FOR OVER 75 YEARS—

Redmen To Face Rams Saturday For Season's Third Yan-Con Clash

The University of Rhode Island Rams, virtually eliminated from consideration in the Yankee Conference football race, will attempt to fill the role of "spoilers" this Saturday when they meet the powerful Redmen at Meade Field, in Kingston.

However, Vic Fusia and his squad plan to do a little spoiling of their own this weekend, as it will be Homecoming Day on the Kingston campus.

It is doubtful that the Rams who fell to a weak Vermont team last Saturday will be able to stop the Redmen, piloted by sophomore Jerry Whelchel, as they march up and down the URI field.

Whelchel will probably stick with the same offense that he has used in the past few games, mixing pass plays with rushes as he moves his team downfield.

Whelchel 22 For 42

In the four games that the Redmen have already played, Whelchel has connected for 22 out of the 42 passes he has attempted for a total gain of 362 yards. Sam Lussier, who will again absorb much of the running burden for the Redmen, should be able to add considerably to the total of 290 yards he has amassed this season.

The UMass line, which last week made the husky Husky line look like Swiss cheese, should again be making holes for Lussier and the rest of the Redmen backfield. Sam leads the UMass rushing brigade with an average of 5.1 yards per carry, and is followed in the yards per carry department by Loren Flagg who is averaging a solid 4.5.

When Whelchel passes this Saturday his most likely receiver will be Lussier, for in addition to leading in all of the rushing categories he tops the Redmen in the number of passes he has caught, a total of nine.

TEAM STATISTICS

UMass, although winning three of their first four games, find themselves on the short end of many of the team statistics. UMass' opponents have scored 53 points to the Redmen's 50, and have had 53 first downs to the Fusiamen's 47. In addition the Redmen have been penalized more than four times as many yards as their opponents' 252 to 62.

The Redmen are definitely a superior team than the Rams, however it will be an important weekend in Kingston and the URI squad will be really fired up. Therefore, it is necessary that a large following of Redmen rooters accompany their team to Kingston to provide student spirit and guard against a possible upset.

Those students who are making the trip may purchase their tickets in the Men's Physical Education Building, upon presentation of their ID., for one dollar.

Kickoff is at 2:00 p.m., and Jim Trelease, Barry Brooks and Bob Healy will begin their play-by-play broadcast over WMUA at 1:55.

For his outstanding performance in last Saturday's UConn game, in which he set a new UMass record by gaining 175 yards in 26 carries, Sam Lussler, the Redmen's leading rusher, was voted as one of the halfbacks on this week's major college All-East team of the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

THE IFC SCENE

by JOHN CARR '64

The scene Wednesday night saw AEPi facing ZN and PSK battling ASP. Later in the evening, PSD went against TC while TKE broke in their new shirts by beating ATG. Three of the games were good contests, but TC rolled over PSD 33-0.

At seven, ZN drew first blood by tagging the AEPi QB in his own end zone for two points. Then, Landry and Callahan scored on passes from QB Kelliher to put ZN on top to stay. Steve Forman passed to Bart Brass and Fingold added the point after for AEPi. Final score was ZN 14, AEPi 7.

With "Chick" Mitchell and Neal Cullinan running wild, PSK stopped an improved ASP club 14-12. Bill Hogan passed to this pair for all of PSK's points. Bill Oldach connected twice with John Coman for the ASP tallies. Final score: PSK 14, ASP 12.

TC's powerful team continued their undefeated string by downing PSD. Wheeler, Mole, Kelly, and Ellis accounted for the TC scores as the defense beat the offense 19-14, and totally defeated PSD 33-0. PSD tried, but they were outmanned by TC. Bruce Schlosberg played well at center for PSD.

TKE showed off their new jerseys by shutting out ATG 13-0. Charlie Noble was the big gun as he threw to Tabb and Kelley for all the scoring in the game. A good bet for the playoffs would be TC against KS if TC can get by QTV next week.

Pall Mall Presents~ GIRL WATCHER'S GUIDE

CAMPUS TYPE II

Don't let this girl's costume fool you. She's not really a mad scientist. She's a girl—a real, live girl. It's just that she has to prove something—to herself and to her family.

She has to prove that she has a brain and that, if she ever has to compete with men on their own terms, she can do it—and win. But she really doesn't want to compete with men. In her heart she wants to attract men and eventually, marry one. The girl watcher should not let this situation disturb him, however.

If the girl is watchable, she should be watched, no matter what her motives or ambitions may be. The same thing is true of a cigarette. If it's smokeable, it should be smoked—and Pall Mall is the most smokeable of all!

Pall Mall's natural mildness is so good to your taste!

So smooth, so satisfying, so downright smokeable!

and junior high grades as well as for those teaching geometry and advanced mathematics classes.

Speakers scheduled to appear in addition to Dr. Sawyer include Dean Albert W. Purvis of the School of Education and Prof. Charles Carver of the School of Engineering at the University.

At this year's conference, local mathematics teachers will present traditional and experimental ideas for teaching certain topics.

Pan-Hel Sponsors Convocation

The UMass Panhellenic Council has invited all freshman women to attend a convocation in the Women's Physical Education Building Monday at 6:30 p.m.

This convocation will provide ample opportunity to become acquainted with the sorority system in all its aspects. The program is designed to inform freshman women of the ideals, functions and purposes of the women's fraternity organization.

There will be displays presented by each sorority illustrating insignia, accomplishments, and goals.

Answering specific questions will be small group discussions led by Panhellenic representatives.

A Panhellenic Chorus composed of members of each sorority will entertain with selections from every sorority and a series of short skits will be presented to highlight the various happenings during formal rush.

Dress will be informal.

Recruitment Will Begin For Annual Campus Blood Drive

Recruiters will begin work next week for annual Campus Blood Drive.

Monday will be the kick-off date for the annual Campus Blood Drive sponsored by the Campus Religious Council in cooperation with the University Women. This year's drive is headed by Alan Savat and Mrs. Henry Korson.

This year the blood bank will receive donors for three days rather than the two days previously used because of the great response received last year from student and faculty.

Beginning Monday, recruiters will go to all individuals in all campus residences to make appointments for donations. The Bloodmobile will be on campus Nov. 13, 14 and 15.

Anyone in normal health over 18 years old is eligible to give blood. Students under 21 must have parents' permission on a form which will be sent out to parents of those students who are under 21 and wish to give blood.

Hughes ...

Purpose of the campaign here is to inform persons in this area —especially working men—of the Hughes platform.

The bulk of the campaign has been conducted on week days. Whereas activity by Smith students in the campaign has revolved around Northampton headquarters, University students work out of the S.U. in transportation provided by the group.

Reflections of Telstar

Remember the picture above? It flashed across your television screen on a hot night last July. Perhaps you remember that it originated from France. And that it reached the U. S. via Telstar, the world's first private enterprise communications satellite.

Since that summer night, the Bell System's Telstar has relayed electronic signals of many types – television broadcasts, telephone calls, news photographs, and others.

But there's one Telstar reflection you might have missed. Look into the faces of the Bell System people below and you'll see it. It is the reflection of Telstar's success that glowed brightly on the faces of all who shared in the project.

Their engineering, administrative and operations skills created Telstar and are bringing its benefits down out of the clouds to your living room.

These Bell System people, through their talented, dedicated efforts, make your phone service still better, more economical, and more useful.

The reflections of Telstar are many.

Dahomey Representative To Address UM Students

Blood Drive To Start; Insurance Plan Cited

Beginning today, recruiters will go to individuals at all campus residences to seek volunteer donors for the annual campus blood drive.

Registration cards are available at the S.U. Lobby Counter for commuters and married students.

Recruiting will conclude on arrival of the Bloodmobile on Saturday, October 27.

Each donor becomes a member of the Hampshire County Red Cross Blood Insurance Program. The provisions of this program are as follows:

1) By donating a pint of blood, a person becomes a member of the Insurance Program.

2) Membership entitles the donor and his immediate family living under one roof to any blood they may need during the next twelve months.

3) Members of the Program and their families will receive free blood without having to replace it. Non-members are required to replace pint for pint, as soon as possible.

4) Blood supplied to hospitals by the Red Cross is not charged for. Hospitals and doctors charge for administering blood.

5) When you give a pint of blood at the University, it means YOU and YOUR FAMILY are insured. Should you or a member of your family need a blood transfusion, present your insurance card at the hospital, or contact any Red Cross chapter office.

Other UN Week Guests Include Hughes, Rhode Island's Wuryberg

United Nations representative from Dahomey, Louis Ignacio-Pinto, will highlight United Nations Week celebrations being held here this week, with an address Wednesday evening in the S.U. Ballrdom on "Dahomey —An Emerging Nation".

His talk will be sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega.

United Nations Week events have been planned and organized by seven UMass organizations. Proceeds for these events will go toward a Pilot Farm and Agricultural School in Dahomey.

Harvard historian and independent candidate for the United States Senate Stuart Hughes will speak on foreign affairs tomorrow in Bowker Auditorium at 8 p.m.

The Hughes talk is being sponsored by the University's Debating Club.

Frederick Wuryberg, University of Rhode Island Government Professor, will speak Thursday at 8 p.m. in the S.U. Council Chambers on "France, DeGaulle and the United Nations." His talk will be sponsored by the Christian Association.

AID Director Edward C. Fei To Talk

Dr. Edward C. Fei, director of the research, evaluation and planning assistance staff of the Agency for International Development (AID), will discuss some of the aspects of AID Friday at 4 p.m. in the S.U.

Dr. Fei's talk will be followed by a question and answer period.

The University's Interfraternity and Panhellenic Councils are co-sponsoring a carnival Friday, featuring games from foreign countries. Proceeds of the carnival, to be held in the S.U. parking lot from 7 to 10:30 p.m. will go toward the farm project.

International Club Dance

A dance with an international motif is scheduled the evening of Saturday, Oct. 27, in the S.U. Ballroom. The event, sponsored by the University's International Club, will feature a half hour demonstration of foreign folk dances. Paul Waldron's Band will play for the dancing.

Folksinger Pete Seeger will be on hand next Sunday to give a concert at the Women's Physical Education Building. Admission will be charged. The concert is under auspices of the Pioneer Valley Folklore Society.

Throughout the week the Women's Service Organization, soon to become a chapter of the national service sorority, Gamma Sigma Sigma, will operate a United Nations sales and information counter in the S.U. lobby where tickets for the concert and the dance may be obtained.

The Women's Interdormitory Council is planning to raise money for support of several foster children through the UNESCO foster parents plan. The Council will run a candy sale during the week.

All events are open to the public.

UN Week Purposes

The UN Week Executive Committee has announced that the purpose of the celebrations is to "stimulate campus and public consideration of world problems and to insure our involvement in them (a) through discussion of the United Nations and world problems, (b) through raising funds for the Pilot Farm and Agricultural School in Dahomey (UNESCO Gift Project #319) and (c) through additional UN projects in support of the United Nations theme."

The Dahomey school was first organized in 1953 by the Young Christian Workers Organization to prove that modern tools and techniques could raise farm productivity above the subsistence level and offer new hope and a decent livelihood for a large percentage of the territory's 20,000 unemployed youth.

The school is now at an intermediate stage. Most voluntary sources of revenue have been exhausted, but the farm will not be self-supporting until 1964.

Specifically, $5000 is needed for farm machines and equipment.

Young Republicans Step Up Activities Aiding Local Office Seeking Candidates

The Young Republicans' Political Activity Committee (PAC) has stepped up its efforts on behalf of Republican officeseekers as the political campaign swings into its final few weeks.

Locally, students engaged in Ed Czuj's campaign for State Representative from Greenfield are updating voting lists and passing out literature at super markets and factories.

Future projects will include attending rallies, cider and donut receptions, making door to door visits and manning a Czuj sound truck.

Also locally, the PAC committee for Robert H. Dressel, contender for the representative of the 4th Hampshire, will be barnstorming through Ware and Granby with bumper stickers and campaign literature. Last weekend they were busy in Amherst with similar tasks.

The students working for the state-wide candidates, Volpe, Lodge, Brooke and Perry, will be working closely with the respective candidate's area coordinator.

The Volpe team has conducted several trips into neighboring towns on behalf of the Governor.

Brooke supporters were active this weekend mailing post cards to the faculty and passing out bumper stickers.

Lodge men and women put up posters and some students rode on Lodge's bus caravan as it toured nearby towns last week.

The Students for Perry spent a day with him last week as he campaigned in Northampton and Greenfield, paying visits to factories, shopping centers and radio and newspaper offices.

All groups are planning to attend the Young Republican parade in Northampton Thursday night to rally for their candidates. candidates.

Hughes Talks Tuesday On Arms Race

Stuart Hughes, Independent candidate for the United States Senate, will deliver two talks here tomorrow at 4:15 and 8 p.m. The latter address is a part of United Nations Week celebrations being held this week.

His first talk tomorrow, to be

STUDENTS, FACULTY LAY GROUNDWORK

Plans Made For 50th Annual Horticulture Show

Pictured here is the center piece from last year's Horticulture Show. Plans are now underway for this year's show, which will be here November 2-4. The theme of this year's show is "100 years of Horticulture."

At the second general meeting of the 50th Annual Horticultural Show Committee last Wednesday evening, students and faculty were assigned to committees and general planning was discussed.

The show will be held November 2, 3 and 4 in the Cage, with the theme "100 Years of Horticulture".

The show will commemorate the show's 50 years as well as the University's centennial year. Students will be admitted by I.D.

The construction of the show involves about two weeks of concentrated effort by students and staff concerned. Ten days of this time is for collecting plant materials and prefabricating structural elements during class hours and evenings.

Three days directly before the show will be for assembling material in the Cage.

Although the show is mainly sponsored by students in the horticultural phases of the College of Agriculture, students from other University disciplines will participate.

Student chairmen and their committees are: background, Thomas Duffy, S.S.A. '63 and Arthur Manthorne, S.S.A. '64; balcony, Edward Depoto, S.S.A. '63; coffee shop construction, John Brooks, S.S.A. '63; entrance, Jeff L. Hubler, S.S.A. '63 and Richard Jewell, S.S.A. '63; flower shop construction, Charles F. Naff, S.S.A. '63; main feature James R. Huse, S.S.A. '63; supplies and tools, Phillip Allessio, S.S.A. '63; student exhibits, Paul Steinkamp, graduate student in the Department of Landscape Architecture.

Horticulture Show Council Chairman is Prof. Grant B. Snyder, Head of the Department of Horticulture. Treasurer is Prof. Tom S. Hamilton, Faculty Chairman is Prof. Paul N. Procopio, General Design Chairman is Prof. Robert L. Kent Jr. and Publicity Chairman is Prof. Harold E. Mosher—all of the Department of Landscape Architecture.

Other faculty members engaged in the show are Professors Raymond H. Otto and A. Donald Caven of the Department of Landscape Architecture, Prof. Randolph A. Jester of the Department of Horticulture and Gordon S. King, Prof. of Arboriculture and Park Management.

Student Co-chairmen are Norman Bergeron, S.S.A. '63, a Floriculture major representing the Stockbridge School of Agriculture students and Robert H. McHugh, UMass '63, a Landscape Architecture major representing the College of Agriculture students.

A New Eternal Triangle

The eternal triangle has a new hypotenuse.

About 20,000 Red-Chinese troops are currently engaged in an "undeclared war" with Indian forces. If the situation should become more serious, the Russians will be forced into making a decision which will prove to be unfortunate for Russia.

The U.S.S.R. has flirted at length with the affections of neutral India, but has met with little success. On the other hand, there has been a growing rift between the brother communist nations of Red China and the Soviet Union. It is possible that Red China and India will appeal to the U.S.S.R. for aid of one form or another.

Which way will the Russians turn in this modern version of the eternal triangle?

If Pieping requests military aid from the Russians (as one brother might request from another), the latter will suffer regard less of the choice they make. To grant military aid to the Red Chinese would alienate the Indians and the neutralist bloc which India leads. If the Russians refuse the aid, the split between Peiping and Moscow will become a chasm and Russia may find a bitter enemy on its doorstep the next morning.

If India should request aid from the Soviets (probably not military aid), a similar decision ensues. To aid India would be to slap Red China; to refuse aid might be to lose the neutralists.

What if the Soviet Union sits back and does nothing? Lack of interference would probably satisfy India, but it is doubtful that the Peiping government would take kindly to this.

It has often been asserted that the most serious threat to the future of Soviet security will be the Red Chinese.

Russia will not want to disturb the delicate balance which now exists between Peiping and Moscow; it seems likely that if a choice is forced upon the Russians, they will side with the Red Chinese, thus keeping unity within the Communist camp.

For it must appear as a simple fact to Moscow's men-of-affairs that the more populous, though presently weaker Red China, would be more appreciated as an ally than an enemy. —N.C.A.

Concert At The Cage

A LIVING FOG

by NEAL ANDELMAN

Good music is like a thick fog in a slow moving breeze. It swirls, it flows, and it's alive. It doesn't matter in what direction one looks, there is only the fog.

Last night in the Cage the New Haven Symphony Orchestra, under the baton of guest conductor Arthur Fiedler, created just such a fog of good music. The music was all. It masked the basketball nets, it hid the unsightly roof, and it made one forget that he was sitting in an uncomfortable hard-backed chair. Perhaps the greatest compliment that can be given to Mr. Fiedler and the New Haven Symphony is that for an all-too-brief period of time the listener forgot that he was in the Cage.

The New Haven Symphony has depth. Conductor Fiedler drew from this depth a great deal of power, beauty, and humor.

Pianist Jerome Lowenthal was the featured artist in Gershwin's Concerto in F for Piano and Orchestra. It was an outstanding performance that was well received by the audience—both for Mr. Lowenthal's playing and the "unmistakable Gershwin sound."

The concert featured a good deal of contemporary music including selections from Bernstein's West Side Story, Copland's Outdoor Overture, Gershwin's work, and the four encores (Never on Sunday, Moon River, Mack the Knife, and Themes from TV Westerns).

It has been a common practice in recent years to turn classical music into popular pieces, but it was a pleasure to see the tables turned and hear current popular music played in the top "Pops" fashion of which Arthur Fiedler has constantly proved himself a master.

To the Concert Association we can only express our gratitude for arranging this performance, and we look forward to future presentations.

— LETTERS TO THE EDITOR —

TWO SWORDS CROSS

To the Editor:

One week ago the Unitarian minister, Jack Taylor, addressed the congregation of the Amherst Church on the subject of Bishop Weldon's appointment to the Board of Trustees of the University. The sermon covered several points, some of which I shall mention. I write this letter with hopes of restating some of the ideas Reverend Taylor set out, but in all honesty the time lapse prevents me from quoting him directly or perhaps from even paraphrasing him correctly. I therefore willingly accept the responsibility for any mistaken statement.

The Bishop's appointment to the board of a state institution is to my way of thinking a violation of the principle of the separation of church and state. This school is supported by public funds, and the idea of any cleric sitting as a trustee, I find a distasteful violation. I should think that even the most liberal of politicians should see this point. The appointment made by a former Governor of his wife, was a political insult at best, but our present Governor's move is certainly a glaring constitutional error.

The appointment was made late in the academic year, when the campus was involved in finals. To suggest that this was deliberately timed would be a bit unfair. Nevertheless, the appointment was made with no recognition by any communicative media other than two or three lines in a few newspapers and a Collegian editorial. The possibilities of the appointment becoming "big press" should have been great; strangely though, it was bypassed.

What effects us more directly, is the fact that the Bishop has taken his position on the Board. We have no hopes of his being removed, nor of his resigning. We must meet the challenge of his appointment.

What is this challenge? First, is the constitutional issue, but aside from court action there are few alternatives, if any, that remain to us as students. Second, is the academic issue. Bishop Weldon is a devout Catholic, and as a Catholic and a clergyman, it is his duty to spread and uphold the dogma of his church. This necessitates the eschewal of undesirable literature, movies, and the like. It would logically follow then, that somewhere in a University there is taught some item which is contrary to the dogma of the church—whether it is evolution, some aspect of history, philosophy, or government—I think it highly unlikely that the Bishop could thumb our catalogue without suggesting some additions or changes.

I am not anti-Catholic, but I am anti-anti-intellectualism. Intellectualism suggests the right to probe, explore, and question any diety, being, philosophy, and scientific or historical fact. This is a necessity—this is the heart of academic freedom. I hope that the Bishop respects this freedom.

As Reverend Taylor suggests, the action remaining to us is to observe. All of us, faculty and students, must be alert to any curricula changes, to any statement issued by Bishop Weldon, to any movement made to hamper our academic freedom. We do not want intellectual censorship.

In the future, I hope that any appointments made to the Board of Trustees take into consideration not only short-term political ingratiations, but also long term academic accountability.

CAESURA ... A Long Pause

To the Editor:

Unless I am mistaken, a caesura is a relatively long pause in the meter of a poem characterized by its emptiness. For example, in the line "Sing a song of sixpence | pocketful of rye," the caesura occurs between pence and pocket, and, in itself, is of no interest whatever.

Based upon past and regretable performances of the old Literary Magazine, I think it is safe to say that there is a great deal of justification for this year's title change. But however apt a title Caesura is, it merely reveals the fact that this year's editorial board has chosen not only to continue, but also sanction, those policies and attitudes which have served to make the Literary Magazine the most unpopular student puplication on campus.

Cut That Out

To the Editor:

For weeks now the first few minutes of my German class have been interupted by the playiing of the chapel bells—most aggravating. Now I am not a religious sceptic, and I am not pink, but I don't think students should have to put up with this during their classes every day. One of two alternatives should be met out of fairness to the students—either cut that out or change class hours from twelve o'clock to some quieter time of day. That's the least that can be done.

Charles W. Roundy '64

To the Editor:

I was shocked to learn that the Fine Art's Council's tremendous budget increased at the same time that organizations like Caesura were suffering cuts in their budgets. I, for one, would rather read a short story than listen to the New Haven Symphony; yet I don't see why I couldn't do both if I wanted to.

What I am wondering is how does the Senate learn what the students' opinions on these mattes are? Supposedly the senators are our representatives, yet many students doesn't even know who their senators are, and the senators rarely come around asking for our opinions (or to even make themselves known). With no accurate knowledge of student sentiment, what justification, then, did last year's Budget Committee have for their eminently unequitable action?

P.B. '65

Out To Lunch

To the Editor:

I am sure that at one time or another all of us, while studying for an exam, have come across a problem and wanted to go to a professor for extra help. So we bale up books and papers, cross the campus, and climb the stairs—to be faced by a locked door.

If a professor must be away during his scheduled office hours, why can't he leave a notice stating the time of his return or suggesting some other time when he will be in—preferably before the exam in question.

Deborah Chapin, '64

The World's Wrong — You're Right

To the Editor:

When I read the "Fable for Exam Time" in Wednesday's Collegian, I must admit that for the first time I was in complete agreement with the Collegian.

I don't know how many times I have been told that the best way to study for an exam is to keep up with the daily work, review notes on a regular basis, and then go to a movie the night before an exam. This seems to be the best way to learn new material, and to retain it for a period of longer than 48 hours, but considering the exams that I have taken at this University I conclude that the above method just will not work. The examinations, for the most part, are dedicated to picayune points that can only be learned by "cramming." These points are senseless to commit to memory except that you need them to pass tests.

I don't think I'm wrong — the system is. G.O. '63

Mademoiselle Contest To Offer Excellent Opportunities For Talented College Women

Mademoiselle magazine is again offering women students a chance to participate in its annual College Board Competition, Art Contest, and College Fiction Contest.

The College Board Competition is designed for young women with talent in writing, art, fashion, promotion, merchandising, or advertising. Undergraduates qualify for College Board membership by submitting an entry which shows ability in one of these areas. They are then eligible to submit a second entry to compete for the top prize, one of twenty Guest Editorships. Chances are improved if the College Board members answer questionnaires sent out by the magazine and submit additional work.

Next June, the twenty-fifth annual group of Guest Editors will be brought to New York, round-trip transportation paid, to help edit Mlle's August college issue. They share offices with Mlle's regular editors, read and write copy, and receive a thorough introduction to New York's fashion, publishing, and business worlds.

The College Fiction Contest offers $500 each and publication in Mademoiselle to the two winners. Entrants may submit one or more original stories of any length, with fictitious characters and situations, to avoid disqualification. Identification of each page with name and school is necessary, and other information pertinent to college status and campus and home address must accompany each story.

In the Art Contest, samples of original work may be sent in, with size limited to 8½ by 11 inches. Each sample must be identified with a name or number and the name and school of the entrant. The two Art Contest winners illustrate the two winning stories for publication in the magazine and receive $500 each for their work.

The deadline for the first assignment in the College Board Competition is November 30, 1962. Deadline for both the Art and the College Fiction contests is March 1, 1963.

All entries should be addressed to the particular contest in which the entrant wishes to be entered, in care of Mademoiselle, 420 Lexington Avenue, New York 17, N.Y. No work will be returned unless accompanied by a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

HIGH TEST, LOW TEST, NO TEST

Just the other night I was saying to the little woman, "Do you think the importance of tests in American colleges is being overemphasized?" (The little woman, incidentally, is not, as you might think, my wife. My wife is far from a little woman. She is, in fact, almost seven feet high and heavily muscled. She is a full-blooded Chiricahua Apache and holds the world's hammer-throw record. The little woman I referred to is someone we found crouching under the sofa when we moved into our apartment several years ago, and there she has remained ever since. She never speaks, except to make a kind of guttural clicking sound when she is hungry. Actually, she is not too much fun to have around, but with my wife away at track meets most of the time, at least it gives me somebody to talk to.)

But I digress. "Do you think the importance of tests in American colleges is being overemphasized?" I said the other night to the little woman, and then I said, "Yes, Max, I do think the importance of tests in American colleges is being overemphasized." (As I have explained, the little woman does not speak, so when we have conversations, I am forced to do both parts.)

To get back to tests—sure, they're important, but let's not allow them to get too important. There are, after all, many qualities and talents that simply can't be measured by quizzes. Is it right to penalize a gifted student whose gifts don't happen to be of the academic variety? Like, for instance, Gregor Sigafoos?

Gregor, a freshman at the New Hampshire College of Tanning and Belles Lettres, has never passed a single test; yet all who know him agree that he is studded with talent like a ham with cloves. He can, for example, sleep standing up. He can do a perfect imitation of a scarlet tanager. (I don't mean just do the bird calls; I mean he can fly South in the winter.) He can pick up B-B's with his toes. He can say "Toy boat" three times fast. He can build a rude telephone out of two empty Marlboro packs and 100 yards of butcher's twine. (Of all his impressive accomplishments, this last is the one Gregor likes to do best—not building the telephone, but emptying the Marlboro packs. Gregor doesn't just dump the Marlboros out of the pack. He smokes them one at a time—settling back, getting comfortable, savoring each tasty puff. As Gregor often says with a winsome smile, "By George, the makers of Marlboro took their time finding this fine flavor, this great filter, and by George, I'm going to take my time enjoying 'em!")

Well, sir, there you have Gregor Sigafoos—artist, humanist, philosopher, Marlboro smoker, and freshman since 1939. Will the world—so desperately in need of talent—ever benefit from Gregor's great gifts? Alas, no. He is in college to stay.

But even more tragic for mankind is the case of Anna Livia Plurabelle. Anna Livia, a classmate of Gregor's, had no talent, no gifts, no brains, no personality. All she had was a knack for taking tests. She would cram like crazy before a test, always get a perfect score, and then promptly forget everything she had learned. Naturally, she graduated with highest honors and degrees by the dozen, but the sad fact is that she left college no more educated, no more prepared to cope with the world, than when she entered. Today, a broken woman, she crouches under my sofa.

© 1962 Max Shulman

And speaking of tests, we makers of Marlboro put our cigarette through an impressive number before we send it to the market. But ultimately, there is only one test that counts: Do YOU like it? We think you will.

Mass. FFA Boy Wins Award For Farming Program

For the first time in the state's history, a Massachusetts FFA boy has won a regional award for his supervised farming program in vocational agriculture.

He is 17-year-old Joseph Santos, one of three regional prize-winners (North Atlantic) to receive $200 for outstanding work done in crop farming at the 35th annual Future Farmers of America national convention, being held in Kansas City, Mo.

The son and partner of Mr. and Mrs. John Santos, Joseph won for his intensive production of vegetables and ornamental plants on their 30-acre farm.

The Santoses have four greenhouses for raising vegetable plants and flowers. From them they turn out annually about 10,000 boxes of vegetable plants, 2,000 dozen flowers, and 2,500 chrysanthemums. Cabbage, lettuce, tomatoes, sweet corn and Indian corn are grown on 26 acres of land.

Besides providing much of the labor and management for the farm, Joseph has built two power weed sprayers and a dump bed for the farm truck, and assembled a motorized duster for applying insecticides. A sidelight to his farming program is his annual chore of making four or five thousand flats for seeding vegetables and flowers in the greenhouses.

BRIDGE NOTES

by PROF. HAROLD SMART

A Howell movement was played at last Wednesday's meeting of the University's Bridge Club. Shea and Fontaine were first, Smart and Blum second and Spencer and Burrel third.

The following hand was dealt at a game in the Lodge and is submitted by senior Frank Higginbotham for your interest. For those who like technical hands, he calls it an example of "strip and end play". The bidding is also his but with my comments. Dealer South vulnerability not stated:

North
S J, x, x, x, x,
H A, J
D K, 10, x
C A, K, J

West	East
S x	S x x
H K x x x	H Q 10 x x x
D Q x x x	D J x x
C Q 10 x x	C x x x

South
S A, K, Q, x, x
H x, x
D A, 9, x
C x, x, x

The bidding is as follows:

N	E	S	W
—	—	1S	P
2c(1)	P	2s(2)	P
4NT(3)	P	5H	P
6s(4)	P	P	P

(1) This is a strong hand—17 card count—but jump bids as used by many are deceptive and shut out partnership information. I like Frank's temporizing bid. A new suit being forcing for one round is perfectly safe and lets the bidder get more information therefore.

(2) The simple rebid shows a rebiddable spade suit and minimum values. A 2NT would have shown a very weak opening bid, etc.

So now (3) 4NT is a natural and the response showed two aces and if he had asked for kings he would have found one and would have known that the slam depended on two finesses.

Those who would not bid this slam are also right. Here we have the bugaboo of bridge players, old-man-distribution. The declarer's hands match exactly. Consequently the only way to win is to finesse the club immediately, then four rounds on trumps, then two diamonds.

Now if the discards show that there is still a heart control he leads his last trump to "end-play" the opposition. Then put them in with the diamond and they will give him the other tricks.

Lost & Found

LOST: A chemistry lab notebook, purple and orange, was taken by mistake from rm. 54 in Goessmann Lab early this week. Please return to the S.U. Lobby counter or to Jeffrey Faxon.

LOST: A blue University library book, Evolution of the Species, by Charles Darwin, was taken by mistake. Please return to Diane Tovet in Hamlin House, or to Morrill Library.

LOST: A tan Lady Buxton key case was lost either in Bartlett or the S.U. on Tuesday, October 16. The case contains six keys, and they are urgently needed. Please return to Karen Plante, Thatcher.

LOST: A pair of glasses with broken frames was lost sometime over Homecoming Weekend. Please contact Richard Caproni, 414 Gorman.

LOST: A K and E slide rule with a carrying case was lost sometime within the last two weeks. My name is on the inside of the case. A reward is offered. This is urgently needed. Please return to William Ring, 236 Van Meter.

LOST: A dark green raincoat with a light green lining was taken by mistake from rm. 54 Goessmann on October 5. Please return to William Ring, 236 Van Meter.

LOST A Math 29 book was left in Bartlett 208 on Wednesday, October 10. Reward offered. Please contact Lawrence Kleman, 268 Hills South.

LOST: A notebook was taken by mistake in the Hatch. Please return to M. Shacat, 417 Van Meter.

LOST: Brown leather clutch bag from S.U. Lobby coatroom at the dance Friday night. Return to Patricia Reed, Knowlton.

TAKEN: Would the person who stole my wallet and the watch that was with it, from the cage, at least have the common decency to return or mail the watch to me along with the papers and things in the wallet. The watch is irreplaceable in that it was given to my brother by my father who passed away just this summer. Your consideration will be greatly appreciated.

LOST: Saturday at the 8 a.m. gym class, one watch, one Medford High School Ring and one dark tan wallet. Will the holder of above articles please notify R. Russo, 111 Van Meter, as soon as possible.

Prof. J. Frandsen Of Dairy Industry Dept. Dies At 85

Prof. J. H. Frandsen, 85, emeritus head of the dairy industry department at the University of Massachusetts, died recently at Massachusetts General Hospital.

A pioneer worker in dairy science and education, he served as head of the dairy department at UMass from 1926 to 1947, when he retired. He had made his home in Amherst and Orlando, Fla.

Throughout his career Prof. Frandsen campaigned to safeguard the purity of milk supplies, to encourage the use of dairy products and to improve the income of dairy farmers. After his academic retirement, he edited and published two technical books in the dairy field.

Born in 1877 on a farm near Story City, Iowa, the son of Danish immigrant settlers, he was graduated from Iowa State College in 1902 and received his master's degree there in 1904. He headed the dairy husbandry department at the University of Nebraska for 10 years and was dairy editor and counselor of the Capper Farm Publications in the middle west.

He was president of the American Dairy Science Association in 1913-14; founded the Journal of Dairy Science and was its editor from 1916-1928. He received the association's Distinguished Service Award in 1940 and the Alumni Merit Award from Iowa State University in 1950.

Harriers Trounce Central Conn., Brouillet Finishes Behind Keefe

by JIM RYAN '65

Despite a tremendous individual performance by Central Connecticut's Jim Keefe, the UMass cross country team easily defeated the visiting team by a score of 16-43 here last Saturday. Keefe retained his distinction of never losing in collegiate competition as he outran Bobby Brouillet of UMass in an individual dual, and broke the latter's course record by 18 seconds, finishing the 4.6 mile course in a time of 24:09.1. Broillet had established the old record of 24:27.4 earlier this season vs. Coast Guard.

Bob Brouillet and teammate Dave Balch finished eight seconds apart as they placed second and third, respectively, behind Central Conn's Jim Keefe.

But one man cannot carry a team in cross country competition, as was proven by the Redmen who took the next nine places behind Keefe. Although UMass times were slower than expected, the boys put on quite a show of team strength for the home fans. Brouillet finished second in a comparatively slow time, for him, of 25:02. Finishing third, only 8 seconds behind Bob, was co-captain Dave Balch, making his finest showing of the season thus far. Following Dave were, in order, Jim Wrynn, Bob Pendleton, co-captain Dick Blomstrom, Ken O'Brien, Bill Young, Tom Panke, and Bob Ramsay.

The highlight of the meet was the battle between Keefe and Brouillet. "Digger" took the early lead, with Keefe right on his heels, and kept the lead until just before the two-mile mark when Keefe passed him. Keefe, showing exceptional speed, then continued to lengthen his lead and crossed the finish line well ahead of Brouillet. But "Digger" put up a great fight in what was apparently an off day, as indicated by comparison of his past times and his time Saturday. It must also be remembered that Keefe is the number one cross country man in New England. "Digger" will get another crack at the Central Conn. in the New England Championship's in November.

The next meet for the Redmen will be with Harvard University Tuesday afternoon at Franklin Park in Boston. Harvard is always tough, and last year was one of the few teams to defeat UMass. Many of the boys who will be running for the Redmen Tuesday, except for the sophomores, ran in last year's meet, and the whole squad will undoubtedly be up for this important meet.

COLLEGE ROUNDUP

by AL RICE '66

For the first week of the collegiate season, all the major clubs emerged winners with no upsets listed on the schedule. The number one team Texas came within about thirty seconds of losing, however, as the Arkansas Razorbacks scored an early field goal and held the lead until the Longhorns crossed the goal line with less than one minute of play left. It was Arkansas' first loss of the season.

Among the undefeated teams still remaining is Alabama, Nebraska, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Southern California, Auburn, Wyoming, and the Big Ten leader, Northwestern. The Wildcats allowed two Ohio State scores in the opening period, one on a 90 yard return of the opening kickoff by Bob Klein, but Northwestern scored the winning touchdown with five minutes remaining and the Wildcats defense took over from there. OSU had averaged 353.3 yards a game rushing to lead the nation and Northwestern held the passing leadership, but the passing won out. With two losses, Ohio State has almost no chance left of being among the top ten when the season closes.

Four second period touchdowns led Wisconsin to a 42-14 rout of the Iowa Hawkeyes on the passing of Ron Vanderkelen, who threw for 18 completions and 202 yards. The big man in the scoring column was Ron Smith, a first year halfback, who crossed the Iowa goal line three times.

Since Texas came so close to losing, there is a good chance Alabama will take over the number one rating. Both teams have an identical 5-0 record, but sophomore quarterback Joe Namath sparked the Crimson Tide to a much more impressive victory than Texas achieved. Alabama scored a 27-7 triumph over the Tennessee "Volunteers", the last team in the nation to remain with the old single wing formation. The tough 'Bama defenses wouldn't allow tailback Mallon Faircloth any noticeable yardage while their own field general was rolling it up via the air waves.

On the other side of the country, Southern Cal's All-America end candidate Hal Bedsole had a big day with two long touchdown pass receptions in the Trojan's 32-6 tromping of the University of California. Bedsole now has five touchdowns passes for the season. He hauled down six for scores all last year as a sophomore.

Another undefeated team that UMass is very familiar with, is Dartmouth, which gave the Redmen their only loss in five starts this year. The Indians have won four, or which three were by a shutout. But Saturday's 10-0 win over Holy Cross was the toughest yet. All-east halfback Tom Spangenburg's interceptions of Pat McCarthy's passes accounted for both scores. Billy Wellstead kicked a 32 yard field goal in the second period after a Spangenburg interception, and the big halfback did the scoring himself on his second stolen pass, which he returned 96 yards in a great exhibition of running for the only touchdown of the game.

Boston College and Boston University both finished on the wrong side of the score in games played at Boston. A powerful Navy team dumped BC 26-6, and not a powerful Richmond team beat BU, who provides the opposition for UMass at Alumni Field next week. The Terriers have five losses in five games, and it isn't too likely anyone around here will be wishing them much luck in their sixth start against the Yankee Conference leaders. The only other team close to the Redmen in the conference is New Hampshire, which downed Vermont 19-6. Connecticut beat Maine, 14-6, by a touchdown late in the game on a fourth down screen pass.

SPORTS REPORT

A Year Of Decision

by JOHN GOODRICH '65

In two past articles in this paper, the National Football League has been analyzed, and now I feel that the fledgling American Football League should be given a similar treatment. This year is the year that the AFL will make or break. In its third year of existence all of the franchises should be firmly established. Commissioner Joe Foss predicted that all clubs but Oakland and Dallas would do better than break even financially. All of the clubs but Oakland and New York are drawing at least 20,000 fans when they play. This very fact leads me to believe that this league will not follow the path of the old All-America Conference, which dissolved, with the NFL taking the most lucrative franchises.

The reason for the poor financial showing of Oakland is rather obvious. Fans will not support a losing AFL team when there is a better than average NFL club just across the bay. This is the weakest franchise in the league. The only visible way to solve its problems would be to win a few games or to shift to a city like Portland, Ore., or Atlanta, Ga., where there is no NFL competition.

The Dallas problem is one of the entire league, not just Lamar Hunt's club. After the AFL Texans had been set up, the NFL moved in their own club, the Cowboys. The AFL promptly filed an anti-trust suit against the NFL which at this time is being appealed through the courts after the AFL lost. For the first two years, the Texans outdrew the Cowboys, because the AFL club advertised a tight league while the NFL attempted to cover up the constant beatings of the Cowboys by advertising the big name stars of the visiting clubs. This year both of the teams are winning, so it will be interesting to see which draws better. The possibility of one franchise transferring is not likely since both clubs have wealthy owners and backers. This apparently is the chosen battle area for the two leagues.

The league has been advertised as being balanced, and this year is no exception. In the Eastern division, the powerful Houston Oilers (4-1) lead but are getting strong competition from the Boston Patriots (3-2). The New York Titans (2-3) have twenty-two men injured and are finding the league rough. The Buffalo Bills (1-5) have lost to Houston 17-14 and beaten San Diego 35-10 in their last two games.

The Western division has really become topsy-turvy. Before the season, San Diego Chargers appeared to be an ever powerful dynasty, but they now find themselves in third place with a 2-3 record. The Denver Broncos (5-1), a poor third last year, are on top right now. The Texans (4-1) are right behind them and are a real threat. The Oakland Raiders (0-5) are well in the cellar but gave Denver problems in their last game, so they could become spoilers.

With the apparent success of the AFL, the obvious question for football fans is the possibility of a playoff between the two league champs. In five years, public interest in such a game will be so great the NFL will have to accept the challenge of the AFL. In five years the leagues will be virtually even, and such a game would fill any stadium in the country. The game is a natural and inevitable.

Redmen Wreck Rams To Ruin Rhody Homecoming

Six Score TD's In Great Team Effort

by STEVE HEWEY '63

The University of Massachusetts, scoring in every period, unleashed a powerful air and ground attack against the University of Rhode Island Saturday afternoon, burying the not-too-strong Rams, 42-8. In running up its biggest score over an opponent in seven years UM sent six different ball players across the goal line to the delight of Redmen rooters and to the dismay of the many alumni of URI that had returned for the Homecoming festivities at Kingston.

The star performers? There were many for the Redmen, who, incidentally, made URI Yan-Con victim number three. But the big man once again was halfback Sam Lussier, breaking a record he set just last week vs. UConn. Sam ran up 176 yards on the ground in 20 carries for a neat 8.8 average gain per carry. Last week he piled up 175 to establish a modern UM rushing record for one game. Jerry Whelchel, bootleg specialist par excellence, tossed two TD passes, one of them a 58-yard scoring pass to Paul Majeski. Jerry also scored one himself.

UMass kicked off to Rhode Island but Rhody could not move and had to punt, the ball being downed on the URI 44. Fullback Art Warren and halfback Sam Lussier moved it to the 34 in two plays to set the stage for the crafty Jerry Whelchel. Whelchel rolled out on the bootleg, spotted and fired to Soph end John Hudson who gathered it in on the 10 and thanks to a bonecrusher thrown by Paul Majeski at a Ram defenseman, Hudson crossed over for the score. The magic toe of George Pleau added the extra marker and the Redmen were on the way to their fourth triumph of the season.

Burke Recovers Fumble

URI could run but one play from scrimmage after the return kick and this ended in a fumbled ball alertly pounced upon by UM's Bob Burke on the Rhody 34. Whelchel mixed his plays well sending Lussier through the line for the ground gainer, screen passing to Lussier and Biron to move the ball down to the 4 for a first and goal to go. On second and three Leo Biron swept in around for the score. Pleau added the extra point and UM led 14-0.

Halfback Leo Biron picks up valuable yardage against the Rams. Biron, only a sophomore, has played surprisingly well in his first year of varsity football.

A fumble by sub-quarterback John Schroeder late in the first quarter aided URI in getting its only score of the day. Ram quarterback Greg Gutter fed halfback Gerry Crito with the ball and he scampered down the line on a 25 yard TD jaunt. Gutter passed for the 2 extra points and the Rams trailed 14-8.

In the second quarter the Fusiamen struck again. With a second and twelve situation on the Redmen 42, Whelchel hit end Paul Majeski with a pass on the Ram 35 and away Majeski went on a gallop into the endzone. Pleau's boot made it 21-8, UMass. Rhode Island made a scoring bid late in the second half but time ran out with the Rams on the UM 18.

Early in the third period Massachusetts used 14 plays to mark up TD number four. In a march that began on URI's 30 Sam Lussier carried on 9 of the 14 plays. The key play was a sweep around right end by Leo Biron down to the Rhode Island 10 to bail the Redmen out of a fourth and six situation. Two plays later Whelchel kept, rolled out to the right and vaulted over the line for the score. Once again the toe of George Pleau added the point after and UM now had a 28-8 command.

Lussier Romps

One of the finest runs turned in by Sam Lussier in his varsity career paved the way to Redmen score number five. Sam took a handoff at his own 24, broke away from a would-be shirt tackle at the 40, picked up two passengers at the 20 and dragged both of them to the 10 before the excess baggage bogged him down. On the next play he went around the left side for the score. Guess who kicked point number 35?

The sixth and final Redmen touchdown came in the fourth period on a 15-yard romp by sub-halfback Dick Lewis. The drive began when quarterback John Schroeder intercepted a Greg Gutter pass on the UM 33. Ken Kezer, Mike Ross, Phil DeRose and Lewis took turns moving the ball and they all moved well. One of the key plays in the final scoring march was a 20-yard up the middle rush by Mike Ross from the 35 to the URI 15. From here on first down Lewis took off on a sweep around the end, got beautiful blocking from deRose and Lewis and cut back inside for the score. And for the sixth consecutive time George Pleau trotted in and split the posts.

The URI attack was practically impotent with the exception of the first period scoring move from the UM 39. The only other threat by the Rams was squashed when time ran out with the ball on the Redmen 7-yard line. Tony Tetio, a tackle turned fullback, ended up as top URI ground gainer with a total of 59 yards.

The victory for the UMass forces, their fourth against one setback was truly a team production. It had to be when one considers that six different players each scored once. The Redmen line play was superb on offense and defense, opening up holes for the backfield to run through all afternoon to the tune of 315 yards on the ground. Sophomore tackle Bob Burke rates a pat on the back for his gathering in of two Rhody fumbles. Soph end John Hudson turned in a fine showing, scoring on a Whelchel pass and throwing a key block to enable Paul Majeski to score later on in the half.

Next Saturday afternoon the Boston University Terriers will be in town still seeking their first win of the year. Steve Sinko's boys are starving for a win after dropping 5 straight.

Sam Lussier straight-arms a would-be tackler at the Redmen 40 yard line on his way to a 66-yard romp to the Ram's 10 yard line. The play started on the U'Mass 24. Sam has proved to be the big offensive spark to the team this year.

Frosh, Varsity Booters Win; Play Tufts Friday

VARSITY

by Dave Podbros '65

Sparked by Dick Leete, offensively, and Dick Phillips and Dick Repeta defensively, the UMass varsity soccer team contributed their share of the spoiling of Rhode Island's homecoming weekend. The bootmen, by scoring a 4-0 victory over the Rams, have raised their record to three wins and two losses, with five games still left to play.

Dick Leete, who has played excellent soccer throughout the whole season, scored the game's first goal, with an assist from Stam Paleocrassus. In the second quarter, Leete again scored, and in the third he helped Bob Chenery add a goal. Then, to complete the third quarter properly, Redmen Tom Astaldi scored.

After ten minutes of the fourth quarter Leete suffered a sprained ankle and was forced to leave the game. Rhode Island, however, was still unable to score due to the continued outstanding defensive efforts of goalie Dick Phillips and captain Dick Repeta.

Tomorrow, the bootmen travel to Coast Guard and on Friday they go to Tufts. Wins with these schools will demonstrate the improvement of this year's squad over last year's.

FRESHMEN

by Scott Freedland '66

In preparation for next week's game against Tufts, the Freshmen soccer team played Hopkins Academy, defeating them 1-0. The only goal of the game was scored by the team's leading scorer, Mike Zaurotny.

Emphasis this week in practice is on tightening up the offensive lines led by Mike Zaurotny, Bill Borecki, and Bruce Mackechnie. Coach Leaman feels that the first defensive line with standout goalie Rick Gustavson, fullback Ray Yondo, and halfback Pat Dougherty, backed by a strong second defensive line with center-half Scott Freedland, fullbacks Henry Strap and Ron Dandy, and halfbacks Tom Lyman and Paul Ginsburg, can hold its own against Tufts Friday and upcoming opponents Amherst College and Deerfield Academy.

Basketball

All those interested in trying out for the freshman basketball team are requested to report at the first practice session Monday, Oct. 22 at 4:00 P.M. on the Cage floor.

held in the Ballroom, will deal primarily with the technical, economic and social implications of disarmament.

Hughes is a well-known advocate of long range planning to meet conversion of defense industries to peace-time production.

His talk tomorrow evening in Bowker Auditorium will deal with the arms race and averting a nuclear war.

Hughes, according to a campus spokesman, has expressed a desire not only to give his own views but to hear those of the audience.

Hughes will be the guest of honor at a banquet sponsored by the Hughes Town Committee, to be held in the S.U. Ballroom at 6 p.m.

Amherst Professor Leo Marks will be master of ceremonies for the occasion.

University Theatre's Plans For Oedipus Rex Are Well Underway

by JEAN ST. LAURENT '66

Anyone for a cup of coffee? You can get it while meeting some of the most interesting people on campus.

Bartlett Hall Is The Place

You will find this unusual meeting place at Bartlett Hall in the office of Mr. Terry Wells, where students and faculty gather with coffee-filled cups in hand and with a common interest in the University Theater.

Upon entering Wells' office you'll be greeted warmly by Wells and by another genial gentleman, Harry Mahnken. If Mahnken is in a jovial mood—and he always is — you'll be shown the scenery room where three-quarter round seating rows and a stage with a monolithic temple are being assembled for the Theater's Production of Oedipus Rex.

If you go now, you will find that the classical play is the main topic of conversation. It is the first of 16 to 20 plays to be presented by the University Theater over a period of four years. The goal of the theater is to produce a selection of plays from all the great periods of history in the theater in order to let students who encounter these plays in literature, history and classical courses see what they actually are like when acted out.

Thus, the theater allows students interested in theater productions to get experience while at the same time it academically aids students who must write papers on these topics.

An Academic Course

Wells says the University Theater is not an extra-curricular activity but an academic course in which students taking special courses may earn credits. He also states that eventually dramatics will become a major field in itself at UMass instead of a specialized part of the speech department.

Around Wells' office you will find many students who are connected with the production of Oedipus Rex. For although the faculty directs and produces the play, the students may assist a director, act in the play, or take charge of lighting, wardrobe, scenery and so on.

Practical and Fun

After sitting around for an hour with Wells, Mahnken and other staff and theater members and enjoying their conversation over a cup of coffee, you might decide that working for the University Theater would be a great way to earn credits and still have a lot of fun.

These students are not preparing to go trick-or-treating. They are members of the University Theatre's production of "Oedipus Rex," to be presented in the S.U. Ballroom November 2 and 3.

UN Week ...

"Successful completion of UN Week will insure the continuance of this self-help project and contribute to the social and economic, as well as the agricultural, development of the entire area," the committee has stated.

University organizations planning the week's events are the Inter-fraternity and Pan-hellenic Councils, International Club, Christian Association, W.S.O. and Women's Interdorm Council, Alpha Phi Omega fraternity, the University Debating Club and the iPoneer Valley Folklore Society.

Chemistry I tutoring will be held Monday, October 22, at 7 p.m. in Machmer, W-16.

Zoology tutoring will be held Monday, October 22, 7-9 p.m. in Machmer, W-37.

The Physics 5 tutoring session will be changed from Wednesday 8-9 in Machmer W-14 to Thursday 8-9 in Machmer W-14.

TALENT SHOW AUDITIONS

The Arts and Music Committee is presenting its annual Student Talent Show on November 14. Auditions will be held on October 30 from 7-9 p.m. in the Council Chambers of the S.U.

PRE-LAW STUDENTS

For all pre-law students and anyone interested, there will be meetings on Monday, Oct. 22, and Wednesday, Oct. 24, from 4-6:30 p.m. in the Hampden Room of the S.U. On Monday, Professor Kirkpatrick of the George Washington School of Law and on Wednesday, Dean Gordon of Georgetown University Law Center will be present to answer general or specific questions about a legal education and law schools. Students may drop in any time during the above periods.

STUDENT ATHLETES

The Sports Dads Association wishes to make it clear that the $2.00 charged for Dads' Day, October 27, 1962, includes a reservation to the catered smorgasbord and a ticket to the UMass-B.U. football game. Please let your folks know of this the next time you write home, and tell them that reservations must be in to the Associate Alumni office by October 23.

UMASS COMMUNITY GIVES OPINION ON CUBA

Vali Calls Blockade "Peace-Preserving"

by JEFF DAVIDOW '65

"This is not a war-provoking action but rather a peace-preserving one", said Professor Ferenc Vali of the UMass Government Department in an interview at his home yesterday. The statement was made regarding President Kennedy's move to blockade offensive weapons headed for Cuba.

Professor Vali, an expert in international law who received his Doctor Juris at the University of Budapest in 1927, pointed out that the American blockade on offensive weapons going into Cuba was not considered "belligerent" but rather "pacific".

According to international law, he said, the United States is entirely justified in its actions.

"Any sovereign nation may allow entry into their territory of any weapons they desire unless bound not to do so by previous treaties." Cuba, though suspended, is still a member of the Organization of American States, and by allowing Soviet arms into its country is acting in direct violation of the charter of the OAS, Professor Vali said.

Opposes Rio Treaty

In addition, the Cuban government is in diametric opposition to the spirit of the Rio Treaty of 1947, which pledged democratic government to the nations of the Western Hemisphere, he said.

By accepting Russian offensive weapons, he continued, the Cuban government threatens world peace and is acting in disrespect of the United Nations Charter.

Asked if the act could be considered an act of piracy, Vali said that "a state can never commit piracy, only an individual not operating under a national flag."

Regarding the President's speech and orders issued by the Pentagon, Vali said he is convinced the United States means business.

If a vessel headed for Cuban ports were sunk, Dr. Vali said he does not believe it would be provocation enough to start a third world war.

Berlin More Likely

Although Cuba is now the prime crisis area, Dr. Vali said, Berlin is more likely to cause trouble. Russia may, he said, in response to our "quarantine" on Cuba, add pressure to the West's already precarious position in the divided city.

Vali interpreted Kennedy's third point ("It shall be the policy of this nation to regard any nuclear missile launched from Cuba against any nation in the Western Hemisphere as an attack by the Soviet Union on the United States requiring a full retaliatory response upon the Soviet Union.") as proof positive Kennedy is convinced "Cuba is no longer an independent state but a puppet state of Moscow and, more imortant, the Russians have not placed control of the missiles in the hands of the Cuban government."

Vali could think of only two previous instances in which a stand was taken analagous to Kennedy's decision in point three.

First was General Douglas MacArthur's suggestion during the Korean War that Communist China and the Russian Trans-Siberian Railroad be bombed.

The second arose following the shooting down of an American pilot and U-2 plane over Russia in May of 1960. At that time the Soviet Union warned that all

Immediate Student Response Shows Support Of Kennedy

At eleven o'clock Tuesday morning the Collegian placed in the lobby of the Student Union a blackboard upon which were written the following five questions of national importance:

1. Did you listen to President Kennedy's speech Monday night?
2. Do you agree with the position he has taken?
3. Do you think the United States is ready to sink those ships which do not comply?
4. If such a sinking does occur, do you think it will lead to a global war?
5. In your opinion, where is the biggest hot-spot in the world?

The response of the student body was immediate and overwhelming. Within one hour over two hundred students had put their answers on slips of paper provided by the Collegian, and by the time the poll closed at 7:30 p.m. nearly one thousand UMass students and faculty had expressed their opinion.

Of those who did vote in the poll 93% had heard the President speak the previous evening, thus indicating that the Cuban crisis has captured and will continue to hold the minds of the UMass community.

Many people chose to elaborate on their yes or no answers; for the most part the opinions expressed seemed to indicate that they wished the President had taken these actions earlier.

There was a little more diversion of opinion on the third question, as to whether the United States was prepared to carry through with their threats against those vessels which refuse to obey the blockade. Again the University by a large margin (82%) showed their support of the President's Seven Points by indicating that they felt the United States will definitely not broach any disobedience of the "quarantine."

Whatever the outcome of the crisis may be, even the destruction of a few ships to prove a point, the campus in general has adopted an optimistic view of the situation. Only 32% of those voting answered yes to question number four, while exactly double that replied in the negative, with 4% abstaining.

Question five presented the largest possibility for discussion. The majority of people polled (476 to be exact) stated that Cuba was the world's present "hottest spot." Many seemed surprised that the question was even asked, the answer being obvious to them.

One person simply answer "Yup" to the first four questions and declared in answer to the fifth, "Don't ask stupid questions." Another replied "That is obvious—otherwise you wouldn't have had this poll."

Second in line to Cuba in the number of votes received was Berlin, indicating that the strains of the present crisis do not blot out the seemingly ever-present problems of our times.

Closely following Berlin in the new and improved standings of the world's trouble spots is the Sino-Indian border. The recent attacks of the Communist

Senate Candidate Hughes Calls Address "Contrived, Theatrical"

by JOE BRADLEY '64

H. Stuart Hughes, independent candidate for the U.S. Senate, charged Tuesday night that President Kennedy's Cuban statement over radio and TV was "a contrived and theatrical action".

Speaking before an estimated 700 at Bowker Auditorium, Hughes attacked "the President as the voice, the symbol of the nation" saying that Kennedy's statement neglected certain facts and was slanted.

"I have no confidence whatsoever in the CIA," said Hughes, and he added, "I speak to you as a former intelligence officer." Hughes served as a Lt. Col. in intelligence in the Mediterranean during World War II.

Hughes said he feared that the Cuban blockade "may escalate into thermonuclear war". He said that the proclamation of the blockade "seems in itself an act of war" aimed at toppling Castro.

Hughes stated that he was "convinced" that a large number of Cubans would not consider an attack on Cuba as an act of liberation. He said that a showdown would cause the world to draw a parallel to the action of the Russians in Hungary in 1960.

Attacking the argument that the President's action would prevent appeasement similar to the action of France and England at Munich in 1938, Hughes explained that the weapons we have today are different from those at the beginning of World War II. Thus we would not be engaged in appeasement, but would be saving humanity in general, Hughes said.

Hughes declared: "We see Communism as the most important issue in the world today." However, he said that the smaller neutral nations listed Communism as the third most important issue after avoiding war and erasing poverty. Hughes said that he believed that the neutral nations were correct.

"I think that we are particularly responsible for dragging Cuba into the Cold War", said Hughes. He contended that we failed to understand Cuba.

Hughes offered three steps to avoid a thermonuclear war over the Cuban situation:

1) The U.S. must assert the "absolute necessity" of preventing any spread of nuclear weapons. 2) The UN should send an inspection team to Cuba to make certain that U.S. intelligence is correct concerning Cuban placement of weapons. The inspection team should be "lead personally by U Thant", the Secretary General of the UN.

Hughes also advocated a face-to-face meeting between President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev "as soon as possible."

An earlier meeting scheduled for 4:15 p.m. yesterday was cancelled when a spokesman for Hughes stated that Hughes had been "on the road for 24 hours" and "must have a few hours to think about the situation."

Libe Hours Extended On Experimental Basis

Goodell Library will be operating on a new set of hours starting Saturday, October 27.

The Library will not close at 4:30 p.m. on Saturdays as it has in the past, but will now remain open until 10 p.m. for study purposes. This means that after 4:30 p.m. the fourth level will be open on a study hall basis.

Starting Sunday and continuing each week from Sunday through Thursday the Reserve Desk will be open until midnight. Reserve books, however, may still be taken out of the library after 9 p.m.

Library officials have stressed that the new hours are an experiment which will continue until the end of the first semester. If the usage during the new hours is low, then the Library will return to the original number of hours second semester.

SENIOR PICTURES

Any senior who has missed his sitting for his Index picture must make another appointment before Friday or he will not be in the yearbook. Appointments can be made in the Norfolk Room of the S.U. from 9-12 and 1-5.

BLOOD DRIVE

Blood Drive Recruiters should return filled appointment cards to the box on the lobby counter of the S.U. before Saturday. Cards should be held together by an elastic and marked with names of the dorm and recruiter.

THE NEW FRONTIER

On Monday night President Kennedy addressed the nation on the latest developments in Cuba. He has set forth a seven point program which we believe to be in the best interests of the United States and the Western Hemisphere.

1. Any ship found to be carrying "offensive weapons" to Cuba will be turned back.

2. Continued surveillance of Cuba.

3. Any nuclear weapon launched from Cuba will be regarded as an attack by the Soviet Union on the United States "requiring a full retaliatory response upon the Soviet Union."

4. Guantanamo Naval Base reinforced immediately.

5. Immediate session of the Organization of American States for appropriate action.

6. Immediate session of the United Nations Security Council to "take action against this latest Soviet threat to world peace."

7. Calls upon Khrushchev to "halt and eliminate this clandestine, reckless and provocative threat to world peace . . ."

We condone President Kennedy's actions for the following reasons:

1. The communist intervention in Cuba poses a definite threat to our hemispheric security. The construction of military installations in Cuba threatens cities and military bases on both American continents. Through Cuba can be diffused the propaganda and physical necessities for the overthrow of other Latin American nations.

2. The communist intervention in Cuba has brought European cold war tensions to Latin America. We recognize that communist parties exist in some Latin American countries, but European cold war pressures will increase the possibilities for intimidation in these nations.

3. President Kennedy's actions demonstrate his cognizance of the need for a unilateral policy on the part of the United States. Post World War II history has clearly shown us that Russia, through piecemeal aggression, seeks to ingest all non-communist nations. At some time this ingestion had to be stopped. The active intrusion of Russia into this hemisphere is that time. The United States, as the major power in this hemisphere, assumes the obligation of protecting the interests of its neighbors. Kennedy's unilateral action is a decisive measure for protecting these interests.

4. We have, to the present, maintained that an attack on any of our allies would be considered an attack on this nation requiring us to respond to the aggressor. Now this policy has been redesigned. A nuclear attack by Cuba will now result in a direct offensive against Russia by the United States. This positive ultimatum defines our position—we will not be intimidated.

Our hemispheric allies in the Organization of American States have supported our position nineteen votes to one abstention (Uruguay). We present a unified front. There shall not be any further communist inroads in this hemisphere.

Article 51 from the Charter of the United Nations

"Nothing in the present Charter shall impair the inherent right of individual or collective self-defense if an armed attack occurs against a capital member of the United Nations, until the security council has taken measures necessary to maintain international peace and security. Measures taken by Members in the exercise of this right of self defense shall be immediately reported to the Security Council and shall not in any way affect the authority and responsibility of the security council under the present capital Charter to take at any time such action as it deems necessary in order to maintain or restore international peace and security."

Keys O.K.!

To the Editor:

It's about time everyone stopped knocking the Keys! The Maroon Keys are outstanding young men specially chosen as student leaders. You would-be critics should remember the responsibilities, time, and effort involved in the performance of their duties. You can't expect 100% performance from anyone, but these men get results 99% of the time.

If the three donKEYS that are qualified authorities on the construction and preservation of bonfires are more adept in this field, they are welcome to try their luck!

Demand and Supply?

To the Editor:

I understand the logic and usefulness of having every week in the Collegian an appropriate area of the women's page devoted to pinnings and engagements. Its merits are apparent.

However, I feel there is a distinct need for an area listing de-pinnings and de-engagements. Its purposes would be twofold: first, it would let the men on campus know who's available again; second, it would prevent many situations where an attractive, popular girl would sit in on a Friday or Saturday night because everyone thought she was engaged or pinned.

Surely there are as many or more couples on campus who are breaking up as there are getting pinned or engaged, so the editor of the women's page wouldn't have any trouble obtaining and passing on the adequate information. This is one area where the Collegian can provide a great service to many men and women on our campus.

Kudos for WMUA

To the Editor:

As students at the University, we would like to thank the college radio station, WMUA, for carrying the President's address. We realize that this meant a deviation from regular programming, and we applaud the station for their sincere act of service and education to which they are dedicated. The interpretive discussion held following the conference enabled us to more fully understand and appreciate the vital import of this event. Thank you once again, WMUA.

To the Editor:

I wish to thank WMUA for their efforts in carrying the United Nations Security Council program yesterday. I also understand that they will continue to cover the United Nations today.

I realize that this represents a good deal of work for the WMUA staff, and I want to let them know I appreciate it.

NEW LIBE HOURS

We were certainly pleased to learn that the Library will begin the new hour system this weekend. We feel that the additional hours of service available to the entire University family more than justify the expense involved.

It is important to note, however, that the new hours are being tried as an experiment. If Library users do not make use of the aditional services and study hours available, then the experiment will not be continued during the second semester.

The Collegian has maintained that the University is not a five-day-a-week business, but rather that it is an educational institution operating on a 168 hour-a-week basis. It is important that Library officials have approved the new hours, for this is a sign that we are heading in the right direction.

We wish to thank Dean Field, Provost Woodside, Mr. Montgomery and other Library officials for their co-operation in this experiment. We hope that students and faculty alike will make use of the new library services. If not we will not have them at the beginning of second semester.

In Friday's Collegian we will publish a complete list of the new hours, opinions expressed in the Library Poll, and a listing of the hours when the Library is least in use so that students may avoid the peak rush hours.

Cuba: Kennedy's Myopic View

President Kennedy has said that missiles in Cuba "add to an already clear and present danger" which we daily face in the context of the Cold War. He has stated that "our own strategic missiles have never been transferred to the territory of any other nation under a cloak of secrecy and deception." He has said that the "sudden, clandestine decision to station strategic weapons for the first time outside of Soviet soil is a deliberately provocative and unjustified change in the status quo which cannot be accepted by this country."

Although we quite agree that the stationing of offensive missiles in Cuba constitutes an additional and needless irritant to international tensions, we question the legal right of the United States to unilaterally halt this process.

Although we understand the President's apprehension over the "clandestine" erection of these missile sites in Cuba, we question a point of view which condemns this action while condoning the presence of offensive first strike missile bases in Turkey upon the pretext that the latter were not erected in a clandestine manner but rather openly conceived and developed.

Although we understand the fears stimulated by the possible establishment of an unusually proximate offensive military force, we question the difference between these fears and the fears of the Cuban Government in relation to the United States' base at Guantanamo.

In a military and psychological sense, a Soviet-Cuban base within Cuba offers no greater danger than a U.S. base within Turkey, Japan, or Formosa offers to the people of the Soviet Union.

Although we understand the political rationale behind the President's plea to the people of Cuba, we believe that a knowledge of U.S. foreign policy in relation to Cuba as well as the present situation in Cuba makes this plea ludicrous and insulting to even the most casual observer.

Finally, we can not understand how the American people can on the one hand condemn the past actions of the U.S. press in relation to Cuba, while on the other accepting the present coverage as valid. Or is journalistic reform possible in so short a time?

Hence, we suggest that the government of Cuba be asked to submit to inspection by a United Nations committee for the purpose of determining the character of its military force. In turn, we suggest that the United States dismantle its offensive base in Guantanamo upon the condition that Cuba agree to military neutralization. These suggestions are the result of our conclusion that the establishment or maintenance of offensive military capabilities in both places conduces to needless antagonism and the threat of war.

Chinese on what India considers to be her territory have apparently greatly influenced the thinking of many UMass residents. The tally was 138 votes in this area received as compared to the 156 tallied by Berlin.

Many people found the world's troubles too numerous to enumerate or could not decide among three or four choices which was the "hottest spot." Still others decided that the whole situation should be approached in a humorous vein and registered such answers to the fifth question as "The world's hottest spot is the campus pond on Saturday night."

Perhaps the simple and most astute answer to the last question was turned in by a bewildered looking freshman who after long deliberation on the subject was observed writing in answer to the query as to the "hottest place" in the world a simple but affirmative "Hell."

'The fruits of victory would be ashes in our mouth'

Editor's note: The following is the text of President Kennedy's address to the nation on Monday night, October 22.

Good evening, my fellow citizens:

This Government, as promised, has maintained the closest surveillance of the Soviet military build-up on the island of Cuba.

Within the past week, unmistakable evidence has established the fact that a series of offensive missiles sites is now in preparation on that imprisoned island.

The purpose of these bases can be none other than to provide a nuclear strike capability against the Western Hemisphere.

Upon receiving the first preliminary hard information of this nature last Tuesday morning at 9 A.M., I directed that our surveillance be stepped up. And having now confirmed and completed our evaluation of the evidence and our decision on a course of action, this Government feels obliged to report this new crisis to you in full detail.

The characteristics of these new missile sites indicate two distinct types of installations. Several of them include medium range ballistic missiles, capable of carrying a nuclear warhead for a distance of more than 1,000 nautical miles. Each of these missiles, in short, is capable of striking Washington, D.C., the Panama Canal, Cape Canaveral, Mexico City, or any other city in the southeastern part of the United States, in Central America or in the Caribbean area.

Additional sites not yet completed appear to be designed for intermediate range ballistic missiles—capable of traveling more than twice as far — and thus capable of striking most of the major cities in the western hemisphere, ranging as far north as Hudson's Bay, Canada, and as far south as Lima, Peru. In addition, jet bombers, capable of carrying nuclear weapons, are now being uncrated and assembled on Cuba, while the necessary air bases are being prepared.

This urgent transformation of Cuba into an important strategic base—by the presence of these large, long-range and clearly offensive weapons of sudden mass destruction — constitutes an explicit threat to the peace and security of all the Americas, in flagrant and deliberate defiance of the Rio pact of 1947, the traditions of this nation and hemisphere, the joint resolution of the 87th Congress, the Charter of the United Nations, and my own public warnings to the Soviets on Sept. 4 and 13.

This action also contradicts the repeated assurances of Soviet spokesmen, both publicly and privately delivered, that the arms build-up in Cuba would retain its original defensive character, and that the Soviet Union had no need or desire to station stragetic missiles on the territory of any other nation.

The size of this undertaking makes clear that it had been planned some months ago. Yet only last month, after I had made clear the distinction between any introduction of ground-to-ground missiles and the existence of defensive anti-aircraft missiles, the Soviet Government publicly stated on Sept. 11 that "the armaments and military equipment sent to Cuba are designed exclusively for defensive purposes," that "there is no need for the Soviet Union to shift its weapons . . . for a retaliatory blow to any other country, for instance Cuba," and that "the Soviet Union has so powerful rockets to carry these nuclear warheads that there is no need to search for sites for them beyond the boundaries of the Soviet Union."

That statement was false.

Only last Thursday, as evidence of this rapid offensive build-up was already in my hand, Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko told me in my office that he was instructed to make it clear once again, as he said his Government had already done, the Soviet assistance to Cuba "pursued solely the purpose of contributing to the defense capabilities of Cuba," that "training by Soviet specialists of Cuban nationals in handling defensive armaments was by no means offensive," and that "if it were otherwise, the Soviet Government would never become involved in rendering such assistance."

That statement also was false.

Neither the United States of America nor the world Community of nations can tolerate deliberate deception and offensive threats on the part of any nation, large or small.

We no longer live in a world where only the actual firing of weapons represents a sufficient challenge to a nation's security to constitute a maximum peril.

Nuclear weapons are so destructive, and ballistic missiles are so swift, that any substantially increased possibility of their use or any sudden change in their development may well be regarded as a definite threat to the peace.

For many years both the Soviet Union and the United States —recognizing this fact—have deployed strategic nuclear weapons with great care, never upsetting the precarious status quo which ensured that these weapons would not be used in the absence of some vital challenge.

Our own strategic missiles have never been transferred to the territory of any other nation under a cloak of secrecy and deception; and our history—unlike that of the Soviets since World War II — demonstrates that we have no desire to dominate or conquer any other nation or impose our system upon its people.

Nevertheless, American citizens have become adjusted to living daily on the buil's eye of Soviet missiles located inside the U.S.S.R. or in submarines.

In that sense, missiles in Cuba add to an already clear and present danger — although, it should be noted, the nations of Latin America have never previously been subjected to a potential nuclear threat.

But this secret, swift and extraordinary build-up of Communist missiles—in an area well-known to have a special and historical relationship to the United States and the nations of the Western Hemisphere, in violation of Soviet assurances, and in defiance of American and hemispheric policy — this sudden, clandestine decision to station strategic weapons for the first time outside of Soviet soil—is a deliberately provocative and unjustified change in the status quo which cannot be accepted by this country, if our courage and our commitments are ever to be trusted again by either friend or foe.

The 1930's taught us a clear lesson: Aggressive conduct, if allowed to grow unchecked and unchallenged, ultimately leads to war. This nation is opposed to war. We are also true to our word.

Our unswerving objective, therefore, must be to prevent the use of these missiles against this or any other country, and to secure their withdrawal or elimination from the Western Hemisphere.

Our policy has been one of patience and restraint, as befits a peaceful and powerful nation, which leads a worldwide alliance. We have been determined not to be diverted from our central concerns by mere irritants and fanatics.

But now further action is required—and it is under way; and these actions may only be the beginning. We will not prematurely or unnecessarily risk the costs of worldwide nuclear war in which even the fruits of victory would be ashes in our mouth — but neither will we shrink from that risk at any time it must be faced.

Acting, therefore, in the defense of our own security and that of the entire Western Hemisphere, and under the authority entrusted to me by the Constitution as endorsed by the resolution of the Congress, I have directed that the following initial steps be taken immediately:

First: To halt this offensive build-up, a strict quarantine on all offensive military equipment under shipment to Cuba is being initiated. All ships of any kind bound for Cuba, from whatever nation or port, will, if found to contain cargoes of offensive weapons, be turned back. This quarantine will be extended, if needed to other types of cargo and carriers. We are not at this time, however, denying the necessities of life as the Soviet attempted to do in their Berlin blockade of 1948.

Second: I have directed the continued and increased surveillance of Cuba and its military build-up. The Foreign Ministers of the OAS in their communiqué of Oct. 6 rejected secrecy on such matters in this hemisphere. Should these offensive military preparations continue, thus increasing the threat to the hemisphere, further action will be justified. I have directed the armed forces to prepare for any eventualities; and I trust that, in the interest of both the Cuban people and the Soviet technicians at these sites, the hazards to all concerned of continuing this threat will be recognized.

Third: It shall be the policy of this nation to regard any nuclear missile launched from Cuba against any nation in the Western Hemisphere as an attack by the Soviet Union on the United States requiring a full retaliatory response upon the Soviet Union.

Fourth: As a necessary military precaution, I have reinforced our base at Guantanamo, evacuated today the dependents of our personnel there and ordered additional military units to stand by on an alert basis.

Fifth: We are calling tonight for an immediate meeting of the ... Organization of American States, to consider this threat to hemispheric security and to invoke Articles 6 and 8 of the Rio treaty in support of all necessary action. The United Nations Charter allows for regional security arrangements—and the nations of this hemisphere decided long ago against the military presence of outside powers. Our other allies around the world have also been alerted.

Sixth: Under the Charter of the United Nations, we are asking tonight that an emergency meeting of the Security council be convoked without delay to take action against this latest Soviet threat to world peace. Our resolution will call for the prompt dismantling and withdrawal of all offensive weapons in Cuba, under the supervision of UN observers, before the quarantine can be lifted.

Seventh and finally: I call upon Chairman Khrushchev to halt and eliminate this clandestine, reckless and provocative threat to world peace and to stable relations between our two nations. I call upon him further to abandon this course of world domination, and to join in an historic effort to end the perilous arms race and transform the history of man.

He has an opportunity now to move the world back from the abyss of destruction—by returning to his Government's own words that it had no need to station missiles outside its own territory, and withdrawing these weapons from Cuba—by refraining from any action which will widen or deepen the present crisis—and then by participating in a search for peaceful and permanent solutions.

The nation is prepared to present its case against this Soviet threat to peace, and our proposals for a peaceful world, at any time and in any forum—in the O.A.S., in the United Nations, or in any other meeting that could be useful — without limiting our freedom of action.

We have in the past made strenuous efforts to limit the spread of nuclear weaponss. We have proposed the elimination of all arms and military bases in a fair and effective disarmament treaty. We are prepared to discuss new proposals for the removal of tensions on both sides —including the possibilities of a genuinely independent Cuba, free to determine its own destiny. We have no wish to war with the Soviet Union — for we are a peaceful people who desire to live in peace with all other peoples.

But it is difficult to settle or even discuss these problems in an atmosphere of intimidation. That is why this latest Soviet threat—or any other threat which is made either independently or in response to our actions this week—must and will be met with determination. Any hostile move anywhere in the world against the safety of freedom of peoples to whom we are committed—including in particular the brave people of West Berlin—will be met by whatever action is needed.

Finally, I want to say a few words to the captive people of Cuba, to whom this speech is being directly carried by special radio facilities.

I speak to you as a friend, as one who knows of your deep attachment to your fatherland, as one who shares your aspirations for liberty and justice for all. And I have watched with sorrow how your nationalist revolution was betrayed — and how your fatherland fell under foreign domination.

Now your leaders are no longer Cuban leaders inspired by Cuban ideals. They are puppets and agents of an international conspiracy which has turned Cuba against your friends and neighbors in the Americas—and turned it into the first Latin-American country to become a target for nuclear war—the first Latin-American conutry to have these weapons on its soil.

These new weapons are not in your interest. They can only undermine it. But this country has no wish to cause you to suffer or to impose any system upon you. We know your lives and land are being used as pawns by those who deny you freedom.

Many times in the past, the Cuban people have risen to throw out tyrants who destroyed their liberty, and I have no doubt that most Cubans today look forward to the time when they will be truly free—free from foreign domination. Free to choose their own leaders. Free to select their own system. Free to own their own land. Free to speak and write and worship without fear or degradation. And then shall Cuba be welcomed back to the society of free nations and to the associations of this hemisphere.

My fellow citizens: Let no one doubt that this is a difficult and dangerous effort on which we have set out. No one can foresee precisely what course it will take or what costs or casualties will be incurred. Many months of sacrifice and self-discipline lie ahead —months in which both our will and our patience will be tested— months in which many threats and denunciations will keep us aware of our danger. But the greatest danger of all would be to do nothing.

The path we have chosen for the present is full of hazards, as all paths are—but it is the one most consistent with our character and courage as a nation and our commitments around the world. The cost of freedom is always high — but Americans have always paid it. And one path we shall never choose is the path of surrender or submission.

Our goal is not the victory of might but the vindication of right—not peace at the expense of freedom, but both peace and freedom, here in this hemisphere, and, we hope, around the world. God willing, that goal will be achieved.

URI Honors Students Get Extra Privileges

Students eligible for the newly-inaugurated honors program at the University of Rhode Island will have extra privileges, according to an announcement made there.

These will include voluntary class attendance, flexibility and freedom in selection of courses in any curriculum so long as basic requirements are satisfied, independent study in special problems courses, seminars, colloquia and other special groups.

Juniors and seniors who have attained a 3.0 average after completion of three semesters or an average of 3.2 after five semesters are eligible for the program.

Recommendations from a student's departmental chairman and academic dean "as to seriousness of purpose and ability for independent study" will also be required.

Commenting on the new program, Dr. Francis H. Horn, URI president, said: "It is essential to provide more challenging opportunities for the more able students while providing for the majority of students in the standard program.

"The interchange of ideas among gifted students and with faculty preceptors should stimulate intellectual maturity."

Dr. Rudin To Discuss Opera "Cosi Fan Tutte" Tomorrow

Dr. Seymour Rudin, professor of English at UMass, will discuss the origins, plot and characters of the opera "Cosi Fan Tutte" to be presented by the Amherst Community Opera.

The discussion will be supplemented by excerpts from the opera to be sung by three members of this year's cast: Dorothy Feldman, professor of English at UMass, Leon Barron, professor of English at UMass, and Harry Falcetti of Holyoke.

The Amherst Community Opera Company will sponsor this program tomorrow at 7:45 p.m., in Jones Library Auditorium.

Univ. Of Colorado Editor Dismissed For Political Ideas

President Quigg Newton of the University of Colorado announced Wednesday he has dismissed Gary Althen, 21, as editor of the campus newspaper, the Colorado Daily.

The paper recently carried attacks on Sen. Barry Goldwater and former President Eisenhower.

Both Newton and Althen sent apologies to Goldwater.

RPI's Wiberly Talks On Campus Monday

Dr. Stephen E. Wiberly, professor of analytical chemistry at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, New York, will speak on "Infrared Spectroscopy" on Mon., Oct. 29 at 8 P.M. in Peters Auditorium. Everyone is welcome.

Dr. Wiberly received his B.S. from Williams College and his M.S. and Ph.D. from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

He has worked for several companies, such as General Electric Corporation in Pittsfield, Mass., and is currently a consultant to Imperial Paper and Color Corporation and Socony Mobil Oil Company.

Dr. Wiberly has published one book and approximately 39 articles in various journals.

His special fields of research and technical work include analysis of fissionable elements, instrumental analysis, infrared and mass spectroscopy, rheology and borane combustion.

Ted Kennedy Asks Students To Rally, Mix

Democratic senatorial candidate Edward M. Kennedy has invited college students to a rally and mixer Friday at 8 p.m., according to an announcement by UMass Young Democrats.

The rally and mixer—open to all college students in Massachusetts—will be held at the Bradford Hotel in Boston.

University students interested in attending the rally and mixer are asked to contact Margie Jordan in Abigail Adams as soon as possible.

Frosh Meet Holy Cross; DeLue To Replace Hillson

by GENE COLBURN '64

After a week away from action, the freshman football team gets back to business Friday afternoon in a home encounter at 2 o'clock with the freshman version of the Holy Cross Crusaders. Fred Glatz' Little Redmen opened the season at Manlius, New York with a 16-12 victory over the Red Knights of the Manlius School, a military academy which has sent a lot of players to Syracuse University and West Point in recent years.

The Redmen pulled the game out of the fire with two second half touchdowns, after trailing 12-2 at the half. It will be the same team going against the Crusaders, so it could be that there will be another scoring explosion similar to what shook the Red Knights. The only change in the starting lineup will be Bob DeLue at left halfback replacing Bob Hillson who injured a foot in practice this week. Hillson may be available for service if he is needed. In the opening game he led the team in rushing with 26 yards and a 3.3 yard average. DeLue is one the smallest men on the Mass roster, but his speed more than makes up for a lack of size.

The other halfback will be Bob Ellis who scored the first touchdown against Manlius on a 48 yard pass from Bob Taylor. Ellis also was slightly injured in practice during the week but is expected to be back to regular duty by Friday. The two other backfield men will be Dave Kelley, a bone crushing fullback, and the Somerville Gunner, Bob Taylor, the man who fired two touchdown tosses among his 13 completions in 19 attempts. In all, he was responsible for 153 of 219 yards total offense that Massachusetts rolled up in the Manlius game.

Friday's opposition can be counted on to present a stiff passing game, so the Redmen's biggest problem will be the performance of their secondary. In the opening contest Mass allowed 15 yards in seven Manlius attempts, but most of their defensive work in that game was stopping the Red Knights' ground game.

Although his lineup is nearly the same, Coach Glatz indicated his plan of attack may vary some from that of two weeks ago. Since Taylor was so effective through the air, the Little Redmen will put more emphasis on the passing to beat the Crusaders at their own game. The offense was evenly divided against Manlius between running and passing, especially in the second half when the damage was done. This kept the Knights' defenses honest, but with the obvious offensive strength that Taylor and his receivers, Ellis, Milt Morin, and Bob Meers present, the Redmen can be counted on to go all out aerially against the Holy Cross squad that knocked off the tough Boston College Eaglets last weekend.

Football Contest Has 12 Winners

RICHARD LERNER '65 is the winner of the $100 cash prize in last week's VICEROY COLLEGE FOOTBALL CONTEST, which was based on 11 games in this area.

In addition to the top award, there were 11 other cash prize winners.

Four separate contests are being sponsored by the Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corporation, manufacturers of Viceroy cigarettes. Entry blanks for a new contest are now on easel cards displayed throughout the campus.

Other winners in last week's contest were:

SECOND PRIZE—$25.00: Lawrence Grillo '64; RUNNER-UP PRIZES—10 of $10.00 Each: Rick Fontaine '64, Ira Gorfinkle '65, Kenneth MacIver, Jr., '63, Dennis R. McManus '65, Conrad Motyka, Grad., Saul Needle '65, David Robare '63, Richard Stewart '65, Peter Tashman '63, P. A. Vecchiarelli '64.

Speaking Of Sports

by BARRY BROOKS '63

The Boston University Terriers will invade the UMass campus this Saturday, along with a large student representation, in search of their first win of their half-completed 1962 season.

Don't let their won(?)-lost record fool you. "They are a team characterized by obvious potential, but erratic play." The problem for the Terriers has been getting "all the components (running, passing, and defense) together in any one game." While there has been a proposed de-emphasis on football on the Boston campus, someone forgot to tell the schedule makers. Top-ranked Terriers opponents include Kansas (still undefeated), West Virginia, Army (next week), and Boston College.

The Terriers will employ the lonely end offense, presently in vogue in collegiate football. A basic difference in Coach Steve Sinko's offense is that the lonely end returns to the huddle after every play. When the lonely end offense was introduced, the end never returned to the huddle, and it is now believed that he received the play by the position of the QB's feet. During contact drills this week, Coach Sinko shifted Tom Prebola into the lonely end slot to replace Bob Horton.

The BU attack will be led by senior QB Tom Daubney, along with 205 pound fullback Charlie "Choo-Choo" Meadows, and halfbacks Joe DiPietro and Hugh O'Flynn who turned in a fine performance last Saturday night. Director of Sports Publicity for BU, Art Dunphy, said earlier in the week that this BU team is a "better football team than the Redmen met last year."

The Redmen strengthened their grip on the Yankee Conference Beanpot last Saturday, but New Hampshire—unbeaten though tied—kept pace with a 19-6 triumph over Vermont.

The battle of the big powers in small college ranks takes place this Saturday at Williamstown, when undefeated Tufts visits unbeaten Williams. Tufts has run up four straight wins outscoring the opponents 116-26. Williams' last defeat was October 28 (last season) when they lost to the Jumbos by a score of 14-0.

In other New England games this week, Dartmouth's unbeaten Indians will be seeking their 7th consecutive victory while playing the Harvard Crimson at Cambridge. The Big Orange of Syracuse travels to Worcester to meet Holy Cross at Fitton Field. Houston plays at B.C., and Colgate visits Yale.

DIS an' DAT

Dartmouth found Holy Cross' weakness last Saturday—QB Pat McCarthy had an injury and couldn't run on rollouts . . . Weymouth's Ron DiGravio turned in a brilliant performance, throwing three TD passes, as Purdue routed Michigan 37-0 . . . The UMass-BU clash will receive state-wide radio coverage. WMUA will carry the game locally, WMAS AM & FM in Springfield, WBR in Pittsfield, WARE in the Ware area, WHDH AM & FM and WBUR FM will blanket eastern Massachusetts.

THE IFC SCENE

by John Carr

The scene Monday night was another one of well-played, closely contested games. At 7:00 o'clock, PMD, after a drought of many years, finally beat SAE 12-6. In the other league, TEP and SPE battled, with TEP coming out on top, 20-13. At 8 o'clock, AEPI tipped LCA 6-2, while PSK and BKP fought to a scoreless tie.

Daher to Durfer was the offensive story for PMD as they clicked for two timely TD's. Ken Fallen scored the only SAE TD on a pass from Tony Kazukonis. Chuck Bemis intercepted a pass and ran it back 30 yards.

TEP and SPE had a real dogfight. TEP scored first on a pass from Tom Davidow to Murray Kaplan with Charlie Gordon adding the conversion. Eddie Salamoff scored on a pass interception. SPE came storming back as qb Butch Francin scored one TD, and passed to Bill Gianoulis for another. The conversion tied the score 13-all. With 40 seconds remaining, Davidow hit Gordon for the winning TD.

Yacus To Address Engineering Society

Guest speaker at the first meeting of the Student Section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, to be held tonight at 8 p.m. in the Hampden room of the S.U., will be William B. Yacus, who will speak on the "Engineering Development of the Corvair Turbo-Supercharged Engine."

The membership campaign will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Yacus is an Industrial Engineer, graduate of General Motors Institute, Flint, Michigan ('49), and is presently Senior Process-Production Engineer at the Framingham Assembly Plant, Chevrolet Motor Division, General Motors Corporation, Framingham, Massachusetts.

WILLIAM YACUS

He has been associated with General Motors since 1943, with Eastern Aircraft, B.O.P. Assembly and Chevrolet Motor Division Plants in Linden, New Jersey and Framingham, Massachusetts, in capacities of Process Engineer, Plant Layout Supervisor, Supervisor of Work Standards and Methods Engineering, Production Superintendent, and Project Engineer prior to his present assignment.

He has also studied at Wright Junior College, Chicago; University of Houston, Texas and Northeastern University, Boston.

Yacus is a registered professional engineer (Massachusetts), a member ('51) of the Society of Automotive Engineers, American Ordinance Association, and Past President ('61) of the Framingham Engineers Club.

Art Exhibits To Be Shown By 4 Colleges

Thirteen members of the art departments of UMass, Smith, Mount Holyoke, and Amherst will each exhibit two original art works in the Four College Art Faculty Exhibition of Recent Drawings October 28-November 19 in Bartlett Hall foyer.

Contributing artists will include UMass faculty members John Coughlin, John Goodyear, Walter Kamys, Donald Matheson, and John Townsend, while Leonard Baskin, George Cohen, Edward Hill, Mervin Jules, and Elliot Offner will represent Smith College in the exhibition.

Susan Mangum and Carl Schmalz will be contributing artists from Mount Holyoke and Amherst, respectively.

Students and faculty are invited to meet the artists at an opening "coffee hour" October 28 from 3 to 5 p.m. in the lobby of Bartlett Hall.

Opera Workshop Plans Yearly Christmas Show

This semester Opera Workshop will again present Amahl and the Night Visitors during the season preceding Christmas.

In the story, Amahl, a little boy, and his mother are visited by three kings who are on their way to visit a child king. Through Amahl's desire to make this child a present of his crutch, he is cured and goes with the kings to deliver the crutch himself. Menotti, in this Christmas Opera has created a beautiful story with equally beautiful and enchanting music.

There are still openings for chorus singers in the opera. Anyone interested in singing can apply at the Music Office in Old Chapel and schedule an audition with Dr. Doric Alviani. For further information contact Mrs. Perry, Music secretary.

countries providing bases for American U-2's spying on Russian territory would be considered responsible for their actions by the Soviets and would be open to possible Soviet nuclear attack.

Only if nuclear missiles were used by the Cuban government would the U.S. declare war on Cuba, he pointed out. This, he said, excludes any possibility of the U.S. declaring war on Russia if Cuban attacks any other Latin American country or the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo with non-nuclear conventional weapons.

Danger of the Cuban crisis lies in two places, Vali said. The first is that the island nation is in the grip of an irrational leader, "a typical desperado" named Fidel Castro. The second danger is the puzzling behavior of Russian leaders who maintain they only need missile bases on their own territory.

An opposer of any form of unilateral disarmament, and one who has experienced living in a totalitarian state, Dr. Vali ended the interview by emphasizing Kennedy's statement that "the 1930's taught us a clear lesson: aggressive conduct, if allowed to grow unchecked and unchallenged, ultimately leads to war."

Campus Greeks Hold U.N. Carnival Tonight

The Panhellenic and Inter-Fraternity Councils will combine their efforts to present a United Nations Carnival tonight as part of a campus-wide University project celebrating United Nations Week.

The Carnival will be held following the Rally for the B.U. game until 11:30. Each fraternity and sorority will have booths at which games of skill are to be played for prizes. The booths themselves will feature a particular phase of a U.N. member nation.

In keeping with the philanthropic nature of the U.N. week purpose, no fraternal insignia or lettering will be displayed at any booth. All proceeds are to be given to the U.N. Week Committee which is working toward a goal of $5,000 to be given to the Pilot Farm and School Project in Nigeria.

This event inaugurates a tradition of combined effort on the part of the Greeks to present to the campus an activity open to all. It is also the first charitable project which has been undertaken by the Panhel and IFC Councils as a body.

The parking lot directly behind the S.U. will be the midway where over 20 booths will be in business throughout the evening. The Rally Dance is being held simultaneously, so the evening promises to be a full one. Costumed personages and clowns will add to the usual Rally Parade and foretell the evening's gaiety.

In case of rain, the Carnival will move to the S.U. lobby mezzanine and will proceed as planned.

Plans Formed To Establish Men's Inter-Dorm Council

Formation of a Men's Inter-Dorm Council to coordinate athletic, social and academic events among the campus' 14 men's dormitories took a big step forward Tuesday night.

Under sponsorship of Adelphia, the Senior men's honor society, and the Office of the Dean of Men, dormitory presidents and social chairmen met to formulate initial plans for the Council. An Adelphia spokesman said there was "100 percent attendance of these dormitory representatives."

The Council is to be comprised of a central committee and policy including all dorm presidents.

From the group of dorm presidents will be elected Council officers as well as a Social Chairman and an Athletic Chairman. General coordination of social and athletic activities among the men's dorms will be directed through these chairmen, who will work with the individual dorm's athletic and social chairmen.

Advisor to the Council will be Assistant Dean of Men William Roth.

One object of the Council, Rosenthal said, may be to work with the Women's Inter-Dorm Council in planning social events between men's and women's dorms on a wider scale than is now done.

The Council will centralize such activities as point competition between men's dorms for float parades and athletic events —similar to activities presently performed by the Women's Inter-Dorm Council for the women's dorms.

There will be a meeting of dorm presidents Tuesday night at 7:30 in the Worcester Room to elect officers of the Council and to draw up a constitution.

Researcher To Discuss Human Eye

Pioneering research on the human eye will be discussed by an outstanding authority in a talk to be given at the University of Massachusetts tomorrow.

Dr. Norman Mackworth, principal scientist of Public Research, Inc., and senior scientist of Dunlop and Associates, will speak on the research results achieved with the unique Eye Camera that Dr. Mackworth developed. The talk, titled "Perspectives from Points of View and Lines of Sight," will be given in Room W36 of Machmer Hall at 10 a.m. The event is under sponsorship of the University's new Institute of Environmental Psychophysiology. All interested persons are invited.

Dr. Mackworth's research is of wide general interest since it has important bearing on space travel both from a psychological and medical viewpoint, as well as on studies of the learning process, eye disabilities, and highway safety research.

Notary Public Will Provide Free Service

The Student Senate Ad-Hoc Committee on Absentee Voting has announced that free Notary Public Service will be provided for those people who wish to have their Absentee Ballots notarized. Upon receipt and completion of his Ballot, the voter must take it to Mr. L. Lawrence Taylor at the Treasurer's Office in South College or to Mr. John DeNyse at the Personnel Office at South College for notarization. This may be done anytime from now until the deadline on returning Absentee Ballots to the respective Town and City Clerks across the State.

Senate Appropriates Funds; Band Will Go To Villanova

by ANN MILLER '64

The Redmen Band and Precisionettes Drill Team will go to Villanova — so the Student Senate decided Wednesday night.

President Donald Cournoyer ('63 Fraternities) took the floor to speak on behalf of a motion appropriating $1600 for the band and team.

Cournoyer took this dramatic action to remind members of the Senate they were "representative of the student body and wishes in this matter."

"We're not going to get money for this trip from any source other than this Senate," he said, "so we've got to realize the problem at hand."

He told the Senate he had spoken to President Lederle and "the administration is aware of the problem." President Lederle, he said, plans to set up a committee to try to work out the long-term problem of financing the band and drill team on away football games.

Solution Is Short-Range

Senate Vice-President Betsy Robicheau ('63 At-Large) said earlier that any solution reached that night would be "short-range" and would only apply to the Villanova game.

The resolve, introduced by Senator Susan Hajjar ('65 Knowlton), originally called for a $2400 appropriation. The request was cut to $1600 by Senator Hajjar, chopping off the $750 which would have been used for meals for the 125 members of the band and drill team on the away game with Villanova November 10.

Reason for the cut, several Senators said, was a lack of funds in the Senate account.

Breakdown on the $1600 was $1000 for transportation and $600 for lodging for the band and drill team.

Senator Marilyn Singer ('65 At-Large) told Senators regarding the appropriation, "We're not setting Senate policy by letting the band and precisionettes go to Villanova. We represent the student body and will do them a service by voting on this issue now."

Also passed at the meeting was a motion that "the Student Senate not consider any report from the Fine Arts Council unless it be in writing and signed by the Chairman of the Council."

A motion "that the Senate appropriate the sum of $350 for the purpose of hiring a secretary for the Senate office at the rate of $1.25 per hour with a three hour work day; duties of the secretary to be outlined by the Executive Committee of the Senate," was tabled to the Finance Committee for further study.

Alma Mater May Be Changed

A motion "that the Student Senate recommend to the Trustees and the Administration that the official Alma Mater song of the University be "When Twilight Shadows Deepen," was tabled for one week so that information on the proposal could be circulated among the students.

Senator Steve Hewey ('63 At-Large) reported, as chairman of Service Committee, that the "gripe session" held at Brooks dormitory Tuesday night was successful. He said there was a large turnout of girls living in the dorm, and that many constructive criticisms and suggestions were made to members of the Student Senate operating the "session".

Senator Singer, chairman of Public Relations Committee, announced that the "gripe sessions" would be held throughout the year.

A motion that "the Men's Affairs Committee set up an Ad-Hoc Committee to study the present system of choosing men counselors; that they inquire into the methods used by other

Social Events To Require I.D. Cards

Dean of Students William Field has announced that student I.D. cards will be required for ticket purchase and admission to all mixed social events held on the University campus, effective today.

UMass events are open only to University students and their guests, students of the four college community, and members of other colleges visiting in connection with student organization scheduled activities, he said.

The Student Union Governing Board approved this policy Tuesday with the understanding that it will be extended to all mixed social events held by other university groups.

According to Field, it has been increasingly evident in recent weeks, that many persons attending social events or using campus facilities are not members of the University community.

In order to insure adequate facilities at these events for students and their guests, and to maintain the best recreational setting, the board deemed it necessary to restate this present policy of requiring I.D.'s.

Dean Field said, "I sincerely hope that students will understand the need for this action and will co-operate in its support. This method of restriction should prevent the occurrences of possible difficulty with those who do not understand the nature of our programs."

Synthesis Will Present Arms Lecture

Professor Melvin Steinberg of Amherst College Department of Physics, will talk tonight at 8 p.m. on "The Arms Race and Its Relation to the Cuban Crisis". The talk will be in Bartlett Auditorium.

"In light of recent events in Cuba," said Synthesis chairman Michael Palter in announcing the event, "we felt this program should be presented as quickly as possible. This is not a rally but, rather, an open discussion such as has taken place on many other campuses in the past few days."

"We have contacted the Educational Radio Network and they have informed us of the possibility of a delayed broadcast of this talk," said Palter.

Folk singer-guitarist Pete Seeger will appear in a concert Sunday, Oct. 28 at 2:30 in the WPE. Tickets are on sale at the box office in the S.U. or at the door.

HONORS COLLOQUIA

There is a growing trend among educators to decrease the importance of grades in the process of education. The basic motive behind this trend is to decrease the emphasis on marks for marks' sake, while stimulating the desire to learn. We agree with the philosophy as a theory, but we deny that this system is practical on a large scale at the University of Massachusetts.

There is an alternative, however. The Honors Colloquia program is designed for students and faculty to satisfy their academic curiosities without the pressure of grades to hinder the real goal of education.

The program is divided into two basic groups: the sophomore and junior colloquia and senior honors projects. The sophomore and junior groups in turn are divided into groups of ten students and two faculty members. These smaller units pick their own topics of discussion and set their own pace for advancement.

It is important to note that the faculty members of the colloquia do not teach—they learn. This mutual sharing of ideas, facts and philosophies is truly an idealistic system put into actual practice.

The seniors in the colloquia work on individual projects in a field of their choice. These seniors have an opportunity which is seldom equalled in undergraduate education. They have maximum use of research facilities, and maximum support of faculty members aiding in the project.

In an effort to acquaint undergraduates with the Honors Colloquia Program, the Collegian will present details of the several colloquia. We will also refer any queries that undergraduates have on the Honors Colloquia to the proper parties.

* * *

We salute the Honors Colloquia program and all of its members. The pursuit of academics should always be encouraged, and this particular program even more so, for it has freed itself of unnecessary frills which can only slow down or block the road to knowledge.

PRINCIPLES OR ACTION

The Student Senate has torn itself far enough away from its dickering over "principles" to realize its obligation to the student body. This in itself was a great feat, but we feel that the unity shown by the new Senate is even more welcome. A team effort of many Senators overrode opposition to a bill to appropriate $1600 towards the Redmen Band's trip to Villanova.

Previous to Wednesday's meeting, the Senate had shown a tendency towards arguing over "principles" rather than the bill before them. Their disdain for this policy was shown clearly as they reminded the Senate that its first duty was to its constituency, not to the rules.

Senator "Sam" Singer told the body to "get down and vote on the issue at hand." President Don Cournoyer seconded the suggestion by stating that although the Senate had its fiscal principles, it had a higher aim —responsibility to those who had elected them.

The bill was passed overwhelmingly.

There is no doubt about the approval of this bill by the students. In fact, many will complain that the Senate should have acted sooner.

We feel the individual Senators will, from now on, keep themselves informed about the wishes of the constituency, rather than isolating themselves in an ivory tower built on principle.

The Senate has shown in past weeks a unity new to the Council Chambers. With luck, we may see it throughout the year. Perhaps unity will prove to be just the beginning of one of the most productive years for the Student Senate.

THE UGLY CUBAN

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

GIVE THEM THEIR SHOTS

To President Kennedy:

Please Mr. Kennedy, I don't want to go. I am an abject coward. Besides the Cubans are not worth the trouble. They have sugar. This is a bad thing. Nicolai Reguspatoff knows that people who have sugar must have shots regularly. This is why Cuba has all its armaments. If you persist in this folly of denying the Cubans their shots, then they will get sick and die. This would be a good thing. However, there is something we could do for them to show that Big Brother Jack and family are a good thing. We could send them some shots of American make. Then everybody would say that we did a good thing except the Russians who will have lost their home away from home for wayward comrades. Therefore they will yell and rant and jump up and down (unfortunately they will have to omit the chicken scene) screaming that Big Jack did a bad thing.

Respectfully yours,
23-0162255975

A NOTE OF APPRECIATION

Despite the overhanging nets and other gymnasium paraphernalia among which we heard Arthur Fiedler and the New Haven Symphony Orchestra, we are happy that the concert was enjoyed by so many, particularly those from the student body. We were also pleased to see so many dressed in the appropriate attire for a concert, as contrasted to the highly informal garb of knee socks and dungarees which in the past has been all too common at concerts in the Cage. Although we do not as yet have a sufficient auditorium for large orchestras, the attitude of the students as evidenced by their dress can go a long way to minimize the barrenness and primitivene of the physical education building. The effect of this is by no means lost upon the performers themselves. Keep it up, students; you looked very nice and we hope to see some of you again when we will have the opportunity to hear the New England Woodwind Quintet.

"PROFILES IN COURAGE"

To the Editor:

It was extremely encouraging to find, in this atmosphere of "false national unity," several thoughtful persons who had the courage to express what they doubtless knew to be vast minority opinion when they called "Kennedy's myopic view" one of questionable legal character.

Though the President's third point in his recent address to the nation ("It shall be the policy of this nation to regard any nuclear missile launched from Cuba against any nation in the Western Hemisphere as an attack by the Soviet Union on the United States requiring a full retaliatory response upon the Soviet Union.") was made with the intent to deter Russia from continuing her course of action and to ensure that Cuba keeps her Red missiles on her (Cuba's) launching pads, his rash statement placed the U.S. in a dangerous and potentially embarrassing position. The President's aim was to "draw the line somewhere" as so many of his supporters like to put it: but why was it done in such an inappropriate situation as this? Why did President Kennedy not bring the matter before the U.N. before this sudden, dramatic decision? Must we follow Russia's policy and shake our own sabres and rattle our own rockets? Certainly we will never win worlds with this line of childish action.

The American stand is a deplorably hypocritical one. If we practiced what we preach, there would be no U.S. missile bases in the Eastern Hemisphere, particularly in Turkey. Is Russia really gaining an advantage by establishing a base 90 miles from the U.S. when distance is made negligible by the omnipresent range of ICBM's? It appears what the Soviet Union is doing is primarily aggravating wounded American pride, and the reality of that pride is evident in the mere continued existence of Guantanamo Bay as an American base. Almost useless in itself, the base remains "as an obsolete anachronistic symbol of colonialism and nationalistic pride."

THE NEW GOODELL LIBE

512 members of the student body, faculty, and administration participated in the Collegian opinion poll on Goodell Library.

The three questions in the poll were:

1. I favor the reserve desk's being open until midnight Sunday—Thursday.
2. I favor the library's being open Saturday after 4:30 until 10:00 p.m. for study hall purposes.
3. I am in favor of the library's being open Sunday mornings.

Results of the poll (tabulated below) show overwhelming support for questions one and two. The hours involved in questions one and two will be in effect this weekend.

The results of question three show that almost two-thirds of those polled are in favor of Sunday morning hours. There were several suggestions that the library should be opened at twelve or one p.m., but not before. We interpret this to mean that the campus would favor a slightly earlier opening on Sundays, but there might not be sufficient usage of the library Sunday morning to warrant such an early morning opening.

As has been stated, the new hours are an experiment. The Collegian poll indicates that the campus is in favor of the new hours. We urge that students and faculty make optimum use of the library facilities.

If this first semester experiment proves succesful then the Collegian will suggest that the Library be opened at twelve or one on Sundays for the second semester.

BELLS, BELLS, BELLS!

To the Editor:

I'm not particularly religious but the letter entitled "Cut That Out" in the October 22 Collegian made my blood boil. I think, when a person gets so involved in his studies that he can't take five minutes out of his class to hear one verse of the Lord's Prayer and his own school song, he is in a pretty bad way.

He says there are two alternatives. I think there is a third: namely that he can go to "hell" because that's where his type belongs.

Bill Lever '66

To the Editor:

Last Monday I submitted a complaint regarding certain chapel bells. It would be unfair of me not to follow it through with a sensible suggestion. I would like to offer a third alternative to those I gave.

At present the bells ring daily at 12:00 noon. Why not from 11:50 - noon? This would end the irritation to students in classes and allow everyone to enjoy them. I don't think that's unreasonable.

Thank you,
Charles W. Roundy '64

In conclusion, I again commend the authors of "CUBA: KENNEDY'S MYOPIC VIEW" for their dauntless stand and only hope that more "casual observers" begin to form an objective opinion on the present policy of the U.S. in this critical situation. It is not a time for blind patriotism; it is a time for dispassionate evaluation and critical judgment of the real issues in question.

Priest Cites Need For More Clergy

by IRIS LOFARO '66

"Over 190,000 Catholic priests are needed to take care of the Catholic Church today," began the Reverend Robert Healy of Glenmary Missions at the third meeting this year of the UMass Newman Club Tuesday evening.

One of 62 Glenmary missionaries, Reverend Healy is trying to "bring the Catholic Church to the 700 counties of 'No Priest Land U.S.A.'," he said. "Although there are 43,000,000 Catholics in the U.S., there are still millions who do not belong to any church, millions who do not know about the Catholic Church, its functions and its priests," he said.

"It is up to us as Catholics to promote the Church by setting a good example, especially if we live in remote areas of the country where Catholics may be in the minority or non-existent except for ourselves. It is not easy to be a good Catholic in such areas. The social pressures of conforming to the majority are tremendous," he said.

In closing Reverend Healy stressed the fact that "all non-Catholics are watching us. Don't let down the faith by being lax or afraid," he said.

Reason for the tabling action was that Men's Affairs Committee has been working on a similar resolution and plan to have their report on the Senate floor in two weeks.

Senator Charles Kessler ('65 At-Large) reported to the Senate the results of his Service Committee investigations at the Dining Commons. He said that he was meeting with Commons Manager Martin and Dean of Students William Field Thursday to discuss conditions there and that his report would be made public at a later date.

Winners of the Freshmen elections were sworn into office, along with newly elected '64 Senator-At-Large Dave Mathieson and Junior Class Vice President Raymond Kodzis.

Newly elected Freshmen officers are Bernard Dallas, President; Milton Morin, Vice President; Susan Swanson, Secretary; and Carol Atwood, Treasurer.

UM Prof., Robert Johnson Author Of Poetry Volume

A successful first volume of poetry is attracting special attention for its author, Robert B. Johnson, associate professor of Romance languages at UMass. The American writer has produced a 61-page book of original poems, all of which are written in French.

Recently published by Jean Grassin of Paris, the volume is called Concentricites. The book has been praised by both French and American critics for its wide range, insights, and strong handling of poetic forms.

Prof. Johnson, a member of the University staff since 1950, is preparing a second volume of poems for publication soon. His most recent publications, besides Concentricites, have included articles and poems, the latter published in The Massachusetts Review and Le Mercure de France.

The UMass poet, a graduate of Ohio University who received his doctorate from the University of Wisconsin, has studied at the University of Grenoble and the University of Paris in France.

Ed. School To Host Conference

"The Challenge of Urbanization" will be the title of a talk keynoting the annual conference of the Adult Education Association in Massachusetts on Saturday, Oct. 27, in the UMass School of Education Building.

Frederick O'R. Hayes, assistant commissioner for program planning in the Urban Renewal Administration, Housing and Home Financing Agency, will deliver the main address at 10:30 a.m.

Taking part in a panel discussion of Mr. Hayes' talk will be Dr. Robert F. Campbell of Clark University, the Rev. Robert G. Howes, director of community relations for the diocese of Worcester, and Dr. Hans Spiegel, director of Springfield College's community tensions center.

Dr. Albert S. Anthony, professor of education at the University, will moderate the discussion.

Group discussions are scheduled for 2 p.m. as a part of the afternoon session. A summary of these discussions will be presented at 3 p.m. to close the program.

Home Ec. School Plans Display On Women's Careers

The School of Home Economics has on display, in the Commonwealth Room of the S.U., pictures representing women's careers. They encompass careers in extension, teaching, research, fashion, institutional administration, interior design, television, journalism, dietetics, health and welfare agencies, Peace Corps, and utility companies.

The display is open to viewers from Wednesday, October 24 through Sunday, October 28.

Lee Simonson's Work To Be Shown In Conjunction With OEDIPUS REX

In conjunction with the University Theatre's initial performance of Oedipus Rex, the Department of Speech announces an exhibition of the Theatrical Art of Lee Simonson, to be displayed in the Commonwealth Room of the Student Union from October 28 through November 4, 1962.

Retrospective in concept, this exhibition will display the major commissions of costume and scene designs he has created. Mr. Simonson will be the guest of honor at a coffee hour in the Commonwealth Room on Wednesday, October 31, at 4. p.m.

Artist, poet, author, and Man of the Theatre, Lee Simonson is one of the foremost scene designers and theatre consultants in America today. His rise to prominence parallels that of the Theatre Guild of New York, of which he was one of the founders and for many years its principal designer of settings and costumes.

Probably no other artist of our times can surpass Simonson in organizing the technical details of a play so accurately and in harmonizing so completely with the ideas of the director.

A distinguished historian of the theatre, who was first to recognize the contributions of the Royal Innovator, the Duke of Saxe Meiningen, to modern theatre practices, Simonson is also the author of several books on the theatre, including The Stage Is Set? The Art Of Scenic Design and an interesting and informative autobiography, Part Of A Lifetime.

In 1934, Mr. Simonson organized the International Exhibition of Theatrical Art for the Museum of Modern Art and later he served as consultant and director of the Costume Institute of the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

In recent years he has served as theatre consultant to the new theatres built at the Universities of Indiana and Wisconsin and Hunter College in New York. He has lectured on scene design and the art of the theatre at many universities.

He comes to the campus of UMass after a year's travel in Europe on a Ford Foundation Fellowship during which time he studied European repertory theatre.

DR. ORVILLE LARSON and LEE SIMONSON.

Speech Dept. To Display Huge Puppets

The Speech Department has announced that a display of uniquely styled puppets will be coming to the UMass campus in the near future.

The puppets, eight to ten feet in height and of the marionette variety, are on loan from the Detroit Institute of Fine Arts.

Designed and built by Robert Edmund Jones, the huge puppets are used in the 100-voice chorus in the Stravinsky version of the Sophoclean tragedy "Oedipus Rex."

Present plans call for the puppets to be put on display either in the S.U. ballroom or at Bartlett Hall.

The exhibition is being staged in connection with the Speech Department's presentation of "Oedipus Rex" on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 2 and 3.

Charter Members Present To Burn L.C.A. Mortgage

Attendance of two of the four living charter members of the UMass Gamma chapter of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity highlighted celebration at the house Tuesday of final payment of the 51 year old house mortgage.

Louis F. Drury of Sterling and Louis Webster of Stoneham were guests at the "mortgage burning" Tuesday evening. Also attending were five members of the House Corporation, and the House brothers.

Of the eight men who founded the Gamma chapter in 1912, the four surviving charter members also include Peverill Peterson and Murray Lincoln, who were unable to attend the burning.

Lincoln arrived Wednesday, and yesterday delivered the keynote address at the Stockbridge Centennial Convocation.

The House Corporation is comprised of ten Alumni of the House who oversee taxes and physical care of the House.

Corporation members who attended Tuesday were Arnold W. Olson, Dr. Carleton Smith, Dr. Warren Johanssen, Franklin Southwick and Charles Oliver.

The burning followed a banquet at the house at 6 p.m. Brothers in charge of the event were Paul Mahoney '64, Arthur Hennessey '63 and Bruce Lord '63.

House officers include Paul Dupont, president; Charles Lapier, vice president; Jack MacNeil, secretary; and Joe Quinter, treasurer.

Phi Mu Delta was founded as a national fraternity in 1918. At present it has 11 chapters located on campuses throughout the northeastern United States. PMD came to this campus in 1954 as the Nu Zeta chapter. It is presently located at 75 Sunset Ave.

Although a relatively young fraternity on this campus, PMD has compiled a distinguished record of scholastic and athletic achievements. The House is very well represented in all campus activities.

Phi Mu Delta prides itself in that it has a very active and solid alumni which has assisted it in making renovations totaling well over $70,000 since its installation eight years ago.

Along with its varied social calendar which includes weekly parties and exchange suppers, it also engages in special service projects. These are of great satisfaction to the brotherhood and the community.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

Last Saturday we entertained Alpha Chi alumnae from all over this state and part of Connecticut at a buffet dinner. It gave us a chance to make several new acquaintances and acquire some new ideas, as the "alums" had many interesting anecdotes to tell of their own college years.

We are all very proud of Cary O'Connell who was recently selected as a Phi Kappa Phi. "Congrats."

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

We were happy to see so many Alumnae on homecoming weekend. Many came back to see the new addition and were as pleased with it as we are.

We've all been busy working on the booth for International week-end. Our theme is to be Africa. We are looking forward to seeing many attend and hope that the fund raising efforts will be successful. It is certainly a worthy cause.

LAMBDA DELTA PHI

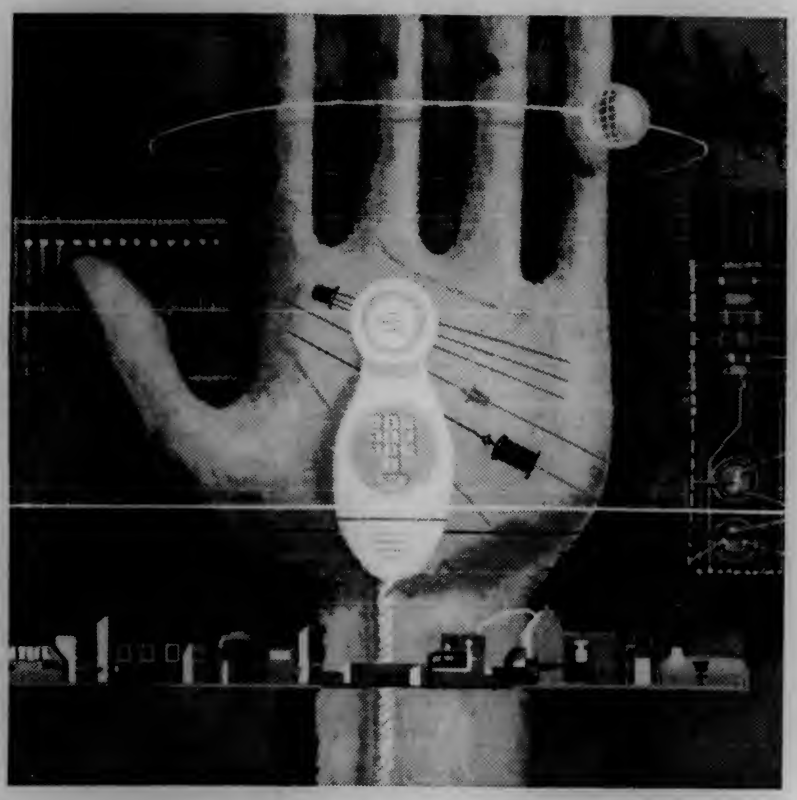
As our dinner guests Wednesday evening we were very delighted to have our advisors, Miss Mary Kay Heath, Miss Barbara Drake, and Mrs. John Fenton. The newer sisters were afforded the opportunity to meet the advisors and the House was able to express its appreciation for the assistance these women are giving us.

SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA

The Tri Sigma pledges would like to take this opportunity to welcome back our "founder and leader", Nancy Frazier, who was able to transfer from Florida State this year and return to the UMass campus.

Congratulations go to our two new pledges Ginger Neulieb and Laura Ricketson. Welcome to Tri Sigma, girls!

Congratulations are in order for Rose Arnone, who was elected to serve Knowlton House as representative to the Inter-Dorm Council.



Our future is in the hands of men not yet hired

At Western Electric we play a vital role in helping meet the complex needs of America's vast communications networks. And a career at Western Electric, the manufacturing arm of the nation-wide Bell Telephone System, offers young men the exciting opportunity to help us meet these important needs.

Today, Western Electric equipment reduces thousands of miles to fractions of seconds. Even so, we know that our present communications systems will be inadequate tomorrow; and we are seeking ways to keep up with—and anticipate—the future. For instance, right now Western Electric engineers are working on various phases of solar cell manufacture, miniaturization, data transmission, futuristic telephones, electronic central offices, and computer-controlled production lines—to name just a few.

To perfect the work now in progress and launch many new communications products, projects, procedures, and processes not yet in the mind of man—we need quality-minded engineers. If you feel that you can meet our standards, consider the opportunities offered by working with our company. In a few short years, you will be Western Electric.

Challenging opportunities exist now at Western Electric for electrical, mechanical, industrial, and chemical engineers, as well as physical science, liberal arts, and business majors. All qualified applicants will receive careful consideration for employment without regard to race, creed, color or national origin. For more information about Western Electric, write College Relations, Western Electric Company, Room 6206, 222 Broadway, New York 38, New York. And be sure to arrange for a Western Electric interview when our college representatives visit your campus.

Varsity Edged By Crimson Harriers; Frosh Beat Central Conn And Harvard

VARSITY

by Jim Ryan '65

The UMass cross country team suffered its first defeat of the season last Tuesday, losing to Harvard University by the score of 28-29. As the score indicates, the race was very close. The decisive factor was Harvard's capturing of 2nd, 3rd, and 4th places, behind winner Bob Brouillet of UMass.

Brouillet returned to his winning form in this meet, after suffering his first loss of the season last Saturday to Central Connecticut's Jim Keefe. "Digger" covered the rain-soaked 5.0 mile course in 25:15, the third fastest time ever posted on Harvard's home course.

The next UMass finisher behind Brouillet was Jim Wrynn, who placed fifth.

UMass got seven men in before Harvard's fifth man crossed the finish line, but Tom Crain, Ed Meehan, and Ed Hamlin clinched the meet for Harvard by finishing 2nd, 3rd, and 4th respectively.

The Redmen are now 6-1 for the season. Their next meet is today at West Point vs. Army and N.Y.U.

FRESHMEN

by Gene Colburn '64

The freshman cross-country team is making a strong bid to be named the best freshman team on campus.

The little Redmen added Central Connecticut to its list of victims on Saturday to the tune of a perfect score 15-50. The highlight of the meet was Bob Molvar's record-breaking run, as he lowered Bob Brouillet's record of 14:16.4 to 14:10.4.

After polishing off the relatively weak competition of Central Conn., the frosh stepped up to face and beat Harvard, 25-30.

Harvard does not compete in the New England's meet, but it is always recognized as one of the top cross-country powers around.

Molvar finally met his match in Dan Heutert, who sped over the 3-mile course in the record time of 14:29. Even in losing Molvar proved his great ability by running the third fastest time ever recorded.

However, this was a meet in which the entire team was needed for the win. Following Molvar across the finish line were Bob Larson, Clayton Berry, Don Campfield, and Carl Lopes. Close behind these boys were John Scherben, Ron Oakland, and John Hill. The intensity of the competition was shown by the fact that only a minute and 20 seconds separated the first and the tenth finisher in the meet.

Sharpshooters Win Over Harvard In Preseason Game

by LARRY THIBERT '64

The UMass Rifle Team defeated the Harvard University team by a score of 1396 to 1352 in a pre-season match on Saturday at the Dickinson Hall Range.

UMass gave the greatest exhibition of team shooting that has been seen in years by any Redman rifle squad, despite the fact that several members of the team were plagued with first-match jitters. For the first time in a long while, UMass had the depth which previously was so sorely lacking.

Mark Nataupsky led the Redmen with a score of 284 out of a possible 300. Nataupsky has greatly improved over last year and should help the team considerably this season.

Sophomore Jim Carswell fired well, posting a total of 277. Carswell should be of noticeable importance this year and shows great potential for the future.

Judging by Saturday's performance, the Redmen have the potential for a great season.

...for a life of pride and purpose

Among the young people being graduated from college in these times, there are some who think and feel—perhaps a little more deeply than the others—about the world we live in, the future we face. They ask, "How can I make my career really meaningful? More than just personally rewarding?"

And many of today's most successful young people are finding a fulfilling answer to these questions as officers on the Aerospace Team... the United States Air Force. They can tell you that no career could better combine the opportunity for achievement—and the deep inner satisfaction of knowing that they are helping preserve the very future of America.

How can you become an Air Force Officer?

If you are a college senior and not currently enrolled in ROTC, Air Force Officer Training School provides an opportunity to qualify for a wide variety of career fields. The graduate of this three-month course receives a commission as a second lieutenant. As the Air Force continues its technological advance, officers with college training will move into positions of increasing importance.

For full information—including the opportunity to earn graduate degrees at Air Force expense—see the Air Force Selection Team when it visits your college, visit your local Air Force Recruiting Office, or write: Air Force Officer Career Information, Dept. SC210, Box 805, New York 1, New York.

Redmen Set To Take On Terriers; Flagg Returns To Lineup Saturday

by STEVE HEWEY '63

Boston University's win-hungry Terriers will invade Alumni Field tomorrow afternon with only one thought in mind: to win.

In the five games that BU has played this season, it has come out on the short end of the score each time. Buffalo, Kansas, West Virginia, George Washington and Richmond have all chalked up wins over Coach Steve Sinko's Terriers. But BU is not the only team that wants the victory. The Redmen want it and want it bad.

Coming into tomorrow's contest sporting a 4-1 overall record (3-0 in the Yankee Conference), Massachusetts will be looking for its first triumph over BU in the modern day series between the schools which began in 1937 with a 66-6 win for Boston. The other four games, beginning in 1958, have all resulted in BU wins.

The Fusiamen will be strengthened on the backfield for the Terrier encounter by the return of halfback Loren Flagg who has been out of action since his stellar performance in the Bucknell game. This UMass. backfield sports two other star performers in Sam Lussier and Jerry Whelchel.

Whelchel, a sophomore and regular signal caller for the Redmen all season long, was voted ECAC Sophomore of the week for his antics in last Saturday's crushing of URI. This is the second time this season that Jerry has received this honor. In the passing department he has clicked on 28 of 52 pass attempts good for 473 yards and 4 touchdowns.

Right halfback Sam Lussier in his third season with UMass, is leading Redmen ground games with 460 yards and a superb 5.1 yards per carry average. In his past two performances, Sam has literally run wild. Against UConn. he grabbed a total of 175 yards and the following week he chewed up the gridiron at URI to the tune of 176 yards. Lussier has been Whelchel's favorite target so far this season snaring 11 passes good for 103 yards. Incidentally, Lussier needs but 28 more rushing yards to establish himself as the first UMass ball carrier to amass a career total of 1500 yards gained.

For BU, ends Paul Majeski and John Hudson are both scoring threats and both boys, especially Majeski, spell trouble by enemy quarterbacks. Bob Burke and Paul Graham will be going at the tackle slots. Pete Pietz, Tom Kirby, and Bob Tedoldi will be starting at the middle of the UMass line.

Co-Captain Kirby and guard Tedoldi were singled out this cially Majeski, spell trouble for their fine line play in past games.

Another scoring threat that will confront BU tomorrow will be the kicking toe of George Pleau who has booted 11 of 12 extra points and 3 of 4 field goals.

OFF TACKLE SLANTS

by HERB COWLES '65

Green Bay has built a football legend. With last Sunday's 31-13 shattering of the San Francisco '49ers, the Green Bay Packers extended their overall win streak to fourteen, including exhibition games.

The "Packs" have not lost a game since last Dec. 10, a 22-21 defeat at the hands of the '49ers, a truly remarkable achievement in the well balanced N. F. L. The most important thing about this powerful Green Bay team is its youth. The offensive line, the best in football, has no real age problem although center Jim Ringo and tackle Forest Gregg are in the post-30 category. However, the backfield of Starr, Taylor, Horning, and Dowler average about 27 and the defense boasts 8 men who could conceivably play another 10 years.

Therefore, since Green Bay appears to be going to dominate N. F. L. competition for the next few years, I think it is important for football fans to understand who owns and runs the Green Bay Packers.

The Green Bay team is the most unique of all professional teams in that it is a non-profit organization. Even more amazing is the fact that the team is owned by the entire town of Green Bay, Wisconsin. Thus, each person of Green Bay's 60,000 is a "stockholder" in the team. The profits, however, are placed back into the team, wherever possible.

This makes possible a football organization whose only concern is the performance of the team on Sunday afternoon. There are no decisions made for purely personal or financial reasons which have in the past hurt so many fine professional teams. Such a "pure" organization as Green Bay which is completely devoted to the sport of football certainly deserves any success which it achieves.

—NOTICE—

The Athletic Department asks that at all future home-games students enter at the new student entrance (the old baseball entrance at the Northeast corner of the field).

This fall the acquisition of advisors Ev Kosarick and Vic Fusia as well as the new house give Tau Pi its brightest outlook in the chapter's history.

THETA CHI

Theta Chi is a national fraternity founded in 1856, with over one hundred chapters throughout the country. Theta chapter was installed at the University of Massachusetts in 1911. Our present brick structure at 496 No. Pleasant St. was acquired in 1935 and our addition was constructed in 1955. At present our house has living accommodations for fifty brothers, along with a fine library, T.V. room and rec room.

Theta Chi is proud of the fact that our Housemother, Mrs. Molly Doering, was the first fraternity housemother on campus. She has been a source of great help and humor to the boys of Theta chapter for more than eleven years. Our wonderful cook Mrs. Pease, has been delighting us with her real home cooking for over sixteen years.

Our brothers come from a great variety of backgrounds and are majoring in all fields at the University. We have always been well represented in all walks of campus life, with numerous brothers participating in all sports and activities.

We are proud of our large and faithful alumni who continue to support our efforts every year. This year we had more alumni than ever returning for Homecoming, and we all enjoyed a great banquet at the Wycoff Country Club after the game.

This year Theta Chi has won the Inter-Fraternity Council Over-all Competition Trophy.

The brothers are anticipating the start of rushing and meeting the freshmen. We hope to see a big turnout for the I.F.C. Round Robins November third and fourth.

ZETA NU

Zeta Nu, the youngest fraternity on campus, is still less than a year old. On November 26, the brothers will celebrate the first anniversary of its founding—a founding unique in the history of the fraternity system. For Zeta Nu is a product of the IFC itself. It was formed last year through a coordinated effort by all of the fraternities on campus to meet the needs of an expanding University enrollment. Today, it is on its own two feet and doing well.

This year the brothers are living in their own house, the old Mount Pleasant Inn, where they held their dining operation last semester. With thirty rooms and occupying two full house lots, the building is well-suited to fraternity use. In fact the entire brotherhood is now living in at the "House".

Although there is a great deal of work and cost involved in moving into a house such as this, Zeta Nu has not let its social schedule suffer. With an exchange supper and several parties behind them, the brothers are looking forward to an active social season.

Zeta Nu cannot offer its members a long established fraternity with a strong alumni. Actually it doesn't have one alumnus yet. All that it can offer is work. But this is rewarding work. Zeta Nu is a fraternity with a future—not a past.

Dr. Henry Little To Study Complexes Under Grant

UMass has announced a $16,825 federal grant for a two-year study of complexes of porphyrins and metalloporphyrins with proteins.

The U.S. Public Health Service actually wants to find out more about enzymes, which are substances that speed up chemical activities in the cells in the body. The special substance to be studied by Dr. Henry N. Little, professor of chemistry, is methemalbumin, a red-colored molecule which is similar to hemoglobin which is the red protein that colors the body.

Alcorn To Give Lecture On Two-Party South

Meade Alcorn, former chairman of the Republican National Committee and now Distinguished Visiting Professor of Practical Politics at UMass, will deliver the first of three public lectures tomorrow at 4:00 p.m.

Entitled "A Two-Party South —Requisites for Success," Alcorn's talk will be given in the Council Chambers of the Student Union at 4 p.m. The public is invited to attend without charge. In view of recent occurrences at the University of Mississippi, Alcorn's talk is of exceptional relevance.

Between 1937 and 1948 Alcorn served in political office in the State of Connecticut. He was successively, a member of the State Legislature, Republican House leader, Speaker of the House, Assistant State Attorney, and State Attorney. In 1948 he made an unsuccessful bid to gain the lieutenant governorship of the State.

Alcorn met General Dwight Eisenhower in 1950. Two years later he became chairman of the Eisenhower Committee in Connecticut, and in the hard-fought battle with Senator Taft for the Republican nomination for President, Alcorn was able to deliver 21 of Connecticut's 22 votes for Eisenhower.

A member of the National Republican Committee between 1953 and 1960, he served as national chairman from 1957 to 1959. He was chairman of the Citizens for Eisenhower Committee in 1956 and was Counsel to the National Republican Committee from 1959 to 1960.

At the University, Alcorn is teaching two sections consisting mostly of seniors and graduate students.

Mass. Review Scheduled To Appear In Late Nov.

"Every UMass student should take special pride in The Massachusetts Review," says Art Department member Walter Kamys, speaking about this extraordinary journal, which will begin its fourth year of publication in late November.

Published four times a year by UMass faculty members (and others from our three neighboring colleges), Review offers selections in the arts, literature, and public affairs. Its contributors from many different parts of America and from foreign countries abroad include well known professional writers, professors, Fulbright lecturers, teachers in schools, and undergraduates.

For its contribution to the world of art, MR has gained recognition from the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Museum of Modern Art in New York, the American Institute of Graphic Arts, and the Chicago Art Institute, and it continues to draw increasing praise from art collectors and dealers all over the world, as well as praise from its subscribers.

According to contemporary American artist and MR contributor Ben Shahn, "I find it the best reading of any publication that comes to my home, and I am pleased to have taken part . . . I think it is one of the outstanding magazines in the country."

Another MR critic A. Hyatt Mayor, Curator of Prints at The Metropolitan Museum of Art, refers to a special feature on French artist Rodolphe Bresdin as "excellently written and impeccably printed . . . it states much that the others miss." Professor Walter Kamys considers the quarterly "a very compact form of keeping abreast of the world of art and literature," and finds its art sections "invaluable to me," for they provide "a source to inform, enlighten, and inspire the student by examples."

As a teacher of art, Mr. Kamys also values the literary sections, because, in his opinion, "the art student must feed on

H. Weisinger To Talk On Tragedy

PROF. HERBERT WEISINGER

In conjunction with the University Theatre's forthcoming production of Oedipus Rex, Professor Herbert Weisinger, chairman of the Comparative Literature Department of Michigan State University and editor of The Centennial Review will lecture on the "Myth and Ritual Theory of the Beginning of Tragedy in Relation to Oedipus Rex."

The controversial myth and ritual theory of the beginning of tragedy is one of the more prevalent today, claiming the attention of many dramaturgists

Tremendous Team Effort Salvages Majority Of Belongings, Aids Girls

The morning after the night before isn't such a pleasant sight in this third floor center single room of Abigail Adams Dormitory. White spots on the wall are where paint has peeled off. The bed mattress is completely charred.

by ANN MILLER '64

A tremendous team effort on the part of University and fire officials, has led to immediate housing, aid and reclamation of room contents for victims of the general alarm fire at the Abigail Adams Dormitory Saturday night.

Temporary financial aid has been made available to the 122 girls of the Abbey, a number of whom suffered considerable personal loss as a result of the blaze which wrecked the physical structure of the building.

Cause Undetermined

Cause of the fire is undetermined at present. A representative of the State Fire Marshall's office arrived at 9 a.m. today to inspect the charred structure. Sources report that probable cause was electrical disturbances.

The origin of the fire, observed by a crowd of about 3000 onlookers, was in the second floor of the north wing. The alarm to the Amherst fire department was turned in at about 6:45 p.m. Saturday by head of residence at the Abby, Mrs. Teresa deKerpely. It has not been determined who started the fire alarm in the dorm which aroused the girls to the danger and led to immediate evacuation.

Three engine companies and one ladder company, comprised of close to 35 men, were at the scene quickly from the Amherst Fire Department. They were joined by firefighters from Hadley, Pelham and an engine company from Northampton. Men from Greenfield joined in the fight.

Under command of student Captain Theodore Gerber, University student volunteer firemen Elwyn McNamara, John Brooks and Steve Bowman worked with other firefighters.

First on the scene, Amherst firemen checked to make sure all girls were out of the dorm, and ran hoselines to the second and third floors.

Student Volunteer Firemen Work

University student volunteer firemen worked quickly ripping up threshold boards in the second and third floors to relieve water pressure from water being pumped into the two upper levels.

High pressure hoses were used to cool the heated structure and dowse flames, but dense smoke poured from the building until about 9:15 p.m. Flames broke out in different rooms intermittently during the first few hours of the blaze.

Rapid spreading of the fire appeared to be caused by the timber lining between the brick outer layers of the structure's walls.

Most severe damage was sustained in rooms near the center and north end of the second and third floors.

Fire doors at exits at either end of each corridor kept stairwells on both ends of the dorm

Hillel To Hear Amherst Eng. Professor

Allen J. Guttman, assistant professor in English at Amherst College will speak on "The Jewish Writer as Radical," Tuesday, October 30, at 8:00 p.m. in the Middlesex Room of the Student Union. He is the fourth lecturer in the series "Modern Jewish Writers" sponsored by the Hillel Foundation.

Mr. Guttman, who joined the Amherst faculty in 1959, was graduated from the University of Florida in 1953, received his M.A. from Columbia University in 1956, and his Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota in 1961.

Prof. Guttman has published many articles appearing in the American Quarterly, Arizona Quarterly, Mass. Review, and the New England Quarterly. His most recent publications are: The Removal of the Cherokee Indians (Boston; D. C. Heath, 1962) and The Wound in the Heart; America and the Spanish Civil War (New York; Free Press, 1962).

STUDENT SENATE

There will be an emergency meeting of the Student Senate tonight at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers of the S.U. to discuss probable Senate action to aid students who suffered personal loss as a result of the fire Saturday night at Abigail Adams.

All members of the Senate are requested to attend.

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

I have already said that our people, our government and I personally, as Chairman of the Council of Ministers, are concerned solely that our countries should develop and occupy a worthy place among all peoples of the world in economic competition, in the development of culture and the arts, and in raising the well being of the people.

—Premier Krushchev

IN TIME OF NEED

During the past two days there were many members of the University family who gave freely of their time and effort to aid the women of Abigail Adams House. We will never know all of the names of those who helped, but we are sure we express the sentiments of the women of the Abby and the entire campus when we say thank you.

Moving furniture, setting up beds, and carrying clothing are certainly not normal activities for students and administration. We are proud of the way members of the UMass community reacted in a time of need.

The Crisis Of The United Nations And It's Causes

by SEVA SUD

Editor's note: The following article by Miss Seva Sud is the first in a series about the United Nations. The opinions expressed in these articles do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian.

From time to time efforts have been made by the statesmen of the world to establish an international government in order to keep peace and order in the world. Such efforts created the Holy Alliance after the Napoleonic Wars, the League of Nations after the first World War, and the United Nations after World War II.

The United Nations is required to preserve the world from atomic war which threatens the very existence of the universe. Hence the responsibilities of the UN have increased enormously in view of the advancement of technology and also due to the idealogical differences between the two superpowers of the world, the United States and the Soviet Union.

Daily we read and hear about the fate of the United Nations. "Fate of UN hangs in the balance" —"UN—Can it survive?"—"Crisis at the UN"—"Will UN crack up?" and so on. The burning issues before the United Nations are Berlin, Admission of Red China, Cuba, etc.

Another serious problem having formidable effect on the UN was the untimely death of the late Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold in the Congo, because the Soviet Union, for at least one year, had wanted Mr. Hammarskjold removed from his post of the Secretary-General.

His untimely death was a God sent opportunity for the Soviet Union to have her own plans accepted to fill this post.

In view of all these problems, one often asks the question: to what extent has the United Nations government been able to maintain order in the world?

In order to evaluate the tasks of the United Nations, it would be appropriate to discuss it in comparison with the League of Nations. In other words, what are the necessary conditions for the survival and effectiveness of a world organization? And what were the causes of the failure of the League of Nations? The weaknesses of the League of Nations were three fold. First, the structural weakness. The League of Nations was predominantly European in a period when the main factors of International politics were no longer predominantly European. France and Great Britain, both European powers, dominated it. The only non-European power that was a member of the League of Nations was Japan. Of the two Nations that were already potentially the two most powerful nations on earth, the United States was never a member and the Soviet Union only during the declining years of the League from 1934-1939. Besides, Germany was not a member of the League until 1925. Then again, soon after the admission of Germany and the Soviet Union, Japan withdrew herself from the League because she was determined to wage an aggressive war against China. With the rise of Hitler to power, Germany also left the League of Nations. When the war broke out only England, France and the Soviet Union were its members. Hence, throughout the period of its existence, there was a lack of the principle of Universalism.

Perspective—

by G. MASSELAM

A regular Saturday night—the campus milling and moving with a Saturday night uniformity. Boys meandering to the girls dorms to pick up their dates, girls returning from supper, the sun just having set — everything generating in seeming order, with people fluctuating and undulating with normal movements, living lives as they should be led.

A coolness pervading, then tickled and caressed by a spark of hotness—a small insurgence—gathering, growing, looming, into a shadow, quickly feeding from a window, a flame, yellow, red, bright, threatening, consuming, rapaciously seeking expression. Soon there are alarms. Before long a disorder emanates from this pattern of uniformity—as girls rush from the dorm, a mixture of apprehension and excitement on their faces. The flames demand and demand, as fear and excitement turn to anger, then sorrow. Slowly the controllable becomes uncontrollable.

The crowd grows, watches. A small group of men enter on the scene, fighting and struggling to discern, to analyze where will it turn up next—where will the simmering red light appear through the smoke-filled windows? Smoke clouds the visibility of objects and people, as fear, sorrow, and anger fog thoughts and clear thinking. As the disorder turns into dismay and constrained chaos, people watch expectantly, hoping for change, either better or worse—responsibility and irresponsibility mix and conflict, amongst the disorder. But a symmetric urgency flows from that group of men, who are earnestly trying to deal scientifically with such dismembered looseness. Police and fire fighters, seeing misfortune, unnaturalness and doing something about it—even to the point of risking their lives.

Then an unconscious reaction arises—from people around—people not directly involved—people sensitively aware of disorder, unhappiness, and misfortune. People who feel sympathetic, but who are not just being sympathetic. Instead being able to do, to respond by helping. A directive bustling activity erupts from the group as furniture, clothes, belongings are rushed out—leaders among boys, among girls, spring from the group. Responding interested people ask "Is there anything I can do?" There is felt a real desire to alleviate stress and conflict. Before long fifty beds shoot up at the W.P.E. building as men and women work to get ready. Soon there are collections of clothes, blankets and money and people answer with as much as they can.

The overall reaction to this disorder and chaos was instilled with a definite harmony, as the variant parts, the fire fighters, police, voluntary fire department, administration, concerned students, formed a constructive end—a living, congruous mixture with an eagerness to put order in the disorder and to be helpful. And yet the real potency of this reaction lies in its consistency, direction and purpose, creating a rational, productive movement. The purpose was to appease the conflict and misfortunes, and this is what was, and is being done, for there was ultimately order, and the conflict was appeased. The end is being reached through the means of people's reactions and concern. So many times man reaches for an end with a desire to fulfill it, and ends up using a means that ultimately destroys this end. One can't help but feel sad as he questions: is it only under pressure and misfortune that men correlate harmoniously their actions with their desires and purposes?

Thus there was a warmness, there was a harmony. There was reaction with concern. There was sensitivity and an eagerness to do. There was a desire to become a helpful being, to become a functioning being, to engrasp certainty and sureness in a time of insecurity and uncertainty. The reaction by the people to chaos and confusion was to put order, seriousness, and concern into action and a living reality.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"MY COUNTRY, RIGHT OR WRONG"

To the Editor:

There can be no doubt that despite the relative slowness in the developments of the current Cuban crisis and the fact that the whole situation may resolve itself quite successfully through the UN and other negotiations, our nation is still on the verge of the worst war of all time. It is for this reason that I must disagree with Mr. Perry in his valiant commendation of that asinine article, "Cuba: Kennedy's Myopic View," the authors of which are so nauseatingly typical of not "thoughtful persons who had . . . (a) minority opinion" and the courage to express it, but I'm-being-college-educated-and-can-rationalize-even-morals-and-patriotism "intellectuals."

If there is one thing we do need now, it is not Hughes' views nor those other idiots' views nor Mr. Perry's making matters worse, but a whole hell of a lot of that selfsame "false" national unity. It most certainly is a time for "blind patriotism," for the time to evaluate so-called "real" issues is long gone. One does not stop to justify his way of life and his government's policies just as the enemy takes aim; one does an age-old, instinctive, honorable thing; one fights. Remember?

I will not try to argue the legal aspects of our position. I freely admit my ignorance in the matter of legality. All I need, though, is common sense to know the answer to that cute, blue-eyed, rhetorical question asking if Russia is really gaining an advantage by establishing missile bases in Cuba in view of ICBM's in Russia. (The-more-the-merrier bit, you know?) And I also know, although this view may now be as out of intellectual vogue as believing in God, when one's nation is endangered, one prepares to fight, not study law.

ON NEPOTISM IN WASHINGTON

To the Editor:

Much public commotion has been generated by the growing number of Kennedys in high governmental positions. The President, his younger brother Bobby, his next youngest brother Edward, his brothers-in-law Sargent Shriver and Stephen Smith—all occupy, have occupied, or will occupy, important positions on the national level. Yet, is this fact so strange?

In England, Prime Minister MacMillan practices nepotism on a scale that makes Mr. Kennedy's family appointments appear trivial. Mr. MacMillan's nephew is Under-Secretary of State for Commonwealth Relations. The British ambassador to the United States is a brother-in-law of MacMillan's son. Mr. MacMillan's son is a member of Parliament for Halifax. Julian Amery, married to MacMillan's daughter, is Secretary of State for Air. A cousin of Lady MacMillan is Under-Secretary of State at the Foreign Office.

In Saudi Arabia, King Saud appointed his younger half-brother as Deputy Premier and Foreign Minister. The Minister of the Interior, Faisal bin Turki, is a nephew of the king. The Minister of Defense is a third son of the king. Abdul Rahman, uncle of one of the king's sons, is Minister of Finance. Another son, Mansour, is a major general in the Royal Guard, although he is only nineteen years of age.

In Laos, General Phoumi Novasan is a distant cousin of Marshal Thanarat, strong man of Thailand. Red Prince Souphanouvone is a half-brother of Prince Souvanna Phouma. And Prince Phouma is a cousin of King Savang Vathana.

So it goes, in India, Ethiopia, and Russia, too. Now, really, is there anything wickedly wrong with another Kennedy in Washington?

PLEASE HELP

To the Editor:

Early last September 3 year old Timmy Roberts was badly burned, 40 to 50 per cent of his body. He looks forward to receiving letters and cards containing balloons and little nick nacks. Please would somebody write to Timmy at the Springfield Hospital, East Wing Springfield, Massachusetts. He will really appreciate your letters and any donations that you might send since doctor bills are beginning to add up.

Ding-Dong

To the Editor:

In last Friday's Collegian there was published a letter by Bill Lever '66, regarding our carillon bells. Unfortunately his blood was boiling when he wrote it with the consequence that he did not make much sense. He states that we should be willing to listen to the bells while valuable class time is being wasted. This is an incredible idea.

Incidentally, he states that he is "not particularly religious" and then proves it by deciding that Mr. Roundy "can go to hell," a decision that most would prefer to leave to Our Lord.

Mr. Roundy's statement to the effect that these bells are a needless distraction when played during a class is well taken as is his suggestion that they be played between classes, thus irritating no one.

John Shepardson '65

To the Editor:

Will someone shut up those censored bells!

Sincerely,
Ann H. Baxter '65

Interviewer For Foreign

For American Institute Trade Here Wednesday

On Wednesday, October 31, Mr. Laurens Henderson, Jr., Career Counselor of The American Institute for Foreign Trade, will be on campus to talk about the work of that postgraduate school and to interview students who may be interested in assignments overseas. His visit is of particular interest in view of the fact that six students from UMass have taken the intensive course of study given at The American Institute for Foreign Trade.

The courses of study at the Institute prepare the students for international commerce and associated activities by providing trained personnel to serve business and governments throughout the world, and do much towards helping international understanding. Up to date, over 1400 graduates have been placed in posts abroad and an even larger number are in the services of American corporations in the U.S. having large foreign interests or affiliates.

The curriculum emphasizes three major fields — language, area studies, and international commerce. The course involves three to five hours a day on language work, and the balance of a very full schedule divided between the area studies and the technical side of foreign trade.

Over the years, more than 75% of the students have obtained positions before graduation. The scale of salaries received together with special allowances in foreign service is considerably above the average received by the students with one year of graduate training, taking positions outside of this sphere.

Little Redmen Outclass Freshmen Crusaders, 12-6

by AL RICE '66

The UMass freshmen football team notched their second win of the season Friday at Alumni Field by holding Holy Cross scoreless until the final minute of the game. Then with only 32 seconds remaining, the Crusader's quarterback ran a kickoff back 85 yards for a touchdown which made the final score 12-6.

The Redmen completely outclassed the Crusaders through the entire game both on the ground and in the air, but Mass only managed two touchdowns because Holy Cross refused for most of the game to allow Massachusetts more than two consecutive first downs.

This practice ended late in the final quarter when Redmen Bob Ellis plunged over right tackle for the second touchdown. The drive started when Lou Zangrilli intercepted a Holy Cross pass and returned it to the Crusader 32. Dave Kelley ground out a first down after two plays had netted about nine and a half yards, and Ellis broke loose for a 13 yard gainer before being hauled down at the six yard stripe. Three plays later Ellis scored to up the UMass count to 12.

A flying tackle on the part of UMass frosh end Mitty Moran catches the Crusaders' Brian Flatley behind the line of scrimmage, as a light snow falls on Alumni Field.

85 Yard Runback

On the kick following the six pointer, Brian Flatley, the Crusaders' field general, fielded the ball along the sidelines near his own 15 and took off down field past the UMass defense. He cut in toward the middle near the mid field mark, took advantage of a perfect block an unidentified teammate put on Bob Ellis, the only Redman back down field, and went streaking the last forty yards with no one near him.

The first UMass scoring came late in the opening period when Bob Taylor connected with Bob DeLue for an 11 yard touchdown toss. After taking over on downs at their own 15, Holy Cross couldn't move against the tough Redman forward wall and were forced to punt. Mass hauled in Terry Mooney's boot at the Crusaders 40 and started to move. Two runs by Taylor and Ellis gained about eight, then Kelley broke loose for 18 yards before being stopped. A five yard gain moved Mass closer, and the next play went for the bundle when Taylor reached DeLue in the end zone. The try for the point failed.

Crusaders Stop Redmen

Holy Cross had gained possession of the ball, prior to the punt which started the Redmen touchdown drive by holding the Mass offense in check at the seven. Two big plays, a 15 yard gallop by Taylor and a 21 yard slant pass to Milt Morin had the Redmen at the Crusaders 11. Ellis and Dave Valeri moved down as far as the seven, but Flatley and Mooney blitzed in on DeLue and tossed him for a seven yard loss. Another loss and two incomplete passes ended the dream of the first Mass score but the DeLue touchdown a few minutes later made up for it.

Each team had possession five times in the first half after the initial score, but the defenses of both teams were in charge the rest of the way. Mass lost the ball twice on fumbles, were forced to punt once, were stopped for no gain on a fourth down and one yard to go situation, and had a drive halted by the clock at the end of the second period. Holy Cross punted five times in the first half and lost the ball on downs once. Their rushing total in that stretch was −47 yards.

The Crusaders started to move in the second half, but interceptions by Ellis, Kelley, and Zangrilli killed any threats to the Redmen's lead.

COLLEGE ROUNDUP

The 1962 college football season has finally settled down after the topsy-turvy results the first few weeks produced. Saturday's action saw only one of the top fifteen teams defeated and three tied.

Rice Ties Texas

However one of the ties came at Houston, Texas where the lightly regarded Rice Owls held off the number one team in the country, the Texas Longhorns, before the final score read 14-14. Texas was expected to win by two touchdowns.

The other two tied teams were Washington and Oregon who faced each other in Seattle. The Huskies were rated eighth and Oregon thirteenth. The oddsmakers had the game a tossup, so it can't be classified as an upset. There was one big upset in the Pacific Northwest, however, as Oregon State tromped previously unbeaten West Virginia 55-22, The Mountaineers depended on a strong ground attack to supply their punch, but Oregon State had the great Terry Baker firing both barrels to end Vern Burke, the leading receiver in the nation. Baker threw three touchdown passes to bring his total to a dozen at the season's half way mark.

The other top quarterback in the nation, George Mira of the Miami Hurricanes, seems to be getting every game. Mira scored once, threw one pass for a more, and threw to set up another touchdown and a field goal in Miami's victory over the Air Force Academy.

Two other quarterbacks also got a share of the headlines Saturday in the Midwest. One was Tommy "Gun" Myers, the Northwestern play-caller who has been the main reason the Wildcats are enjoying an undefeated season. Myers connected on 11 passes and two touchdowns, both by Paul Flatley, the third leading receiver in the country on the basis of number of passes caught.

NORTHERN ILLINOIS' GEORGE BORK

The other man in the news was George Bork, an unknown passer from an unknown college, Northern Illinois. All he has succeeded in doing so far this season has been to complete 174 passes in seven games. Against Northern Michigan he threw for 32 receptions breaking the old total record of 159 set in 1952, and yet his team lost 37-35.

Varsity And Freshmen Booters Sweep Over Tufts

VARSITY

by Dave Podbros '65

After losing a hard-fought game with Coast Guard last Tuesday by a score of 1-0, the UMass varsity soccer team went to Tufts Friday, and sparked by a tremendous defensive effort by goalie Dick Phillips and Pat McDeviot's offensive powers, the Redmen defeated the Jumbos 3 to 1.

Both games were hampered by miserable weather. At Coast Guard after slipping and sliding on a muddy field for three quarters neither team had scored. Then in the fourth quarter Coast Guard slipped the ball into the net, giving them the final victory.

The story at Tufts, however, was a little better, although the weather wasn't. Pat McDeviot starting at center forward for the first time this season, played a fantastic game of soccer to score two goals in the first half. Then, Tufts scored in the third quarter only to be answered by Tom Astaldi in the fourth as he added a goal and completed the score 3 to 1.

Goalie Phillips added some highlights to the game by making some amazing saves.

The next game for the bootmen will be at Clark, Tuesday, October 31, at 2 p.m.

FRESHMEN

by Scott Freedland '66

The freshman soccer team defeated the Tufts College frosh 3-2, Friday. Playing under the worst conditions of a season plagued by poor weather, the frosh defeated a strong Tutfs team.

Rain, snow, wind, and an unfamiliar Tufts field hampered the frosh at the outset. Most of the first half was spent becoming accustomed to the lack of ball control due to the numbing cold and snow on the field. Center forward Bill Borecki scored the frosh's first goal late in the second period off the Tuft's goalie who was unable to hold on to the wet ball.

Early in the third period Borecki scored a second goal driving down the center of the field to score unassisted. With the score now 2-0 Borecki scored again with a beautiful head off a pass by left wing Mike Zaurotny. Behind 3-0 Tufts managed to score twice off of goalie Rick Gustafson, who also was unable to hold on to the ball with hands numb from the cold, making the score 3-2 going into the fourth period. Cold and wet from the driving sleet the frosh kept up the pressure throughout the fourth period, keeipng the score at UMass 3, Tufts 2, and making it a clean sweep for both varsity and freshman soccer teams.

The frosh round out their season this week playing Deerfield Academy, Monday; Stockbridge, Wednesday; and Amherst College, Saturday to end their season.

RIFLE TEAM

by Thibert and Nataupsky

The UMass Varsity Rifle Team defeated Wentworth Institute Saturday in its second preseason match at the Dickinson Hall Range by a score of 1380 to 1271. Due partially to the absence of three of its top shooters, the team this week did not maintain the pace set by last week's score.

Co-captain Hal Butterworth led the Redmen with a score of 280 out of a possible 300 total.

With the first and toughest league match of the season coming up with Coast Guard Academy on Nov. 10, UMass will have to show considerable improvement in order to extend its winning streak to three in a row.

Powerful Terrier Squad Overruns Redmen, 20-6

Whelchel Scores Lone UMass TD; Lussier Passes 1500 Yard Mark

by STEVE HEWEY '63

It was bound to happen sooner or later. Boston University, frustrated and winless after five encounters with more powerful foes this season, was bound to strike for a victory on some weekend. And it just so happened that the University of Massachusetts was an obliging host Saturday afternoon, enabling the visiting Terriers to return home with a 20-6 win. This was the sixth victory in a row over the Redmen for the Beantowners.

The passing arm of Tom Daubney, the explosive running of Hugh O'Flynn and Joe DiPietro, the rugged Terrier lineplay and blanket-like pass defense all figured in the BU victory that put the skids to the Mass win streak.

BU Begins To Roll

BU began to roll as soon as it took the opening kickoff. Halfbacks O'Flynn and DePietro spun and twisted through the Redmen defenses in what looked like an early touchdown march. A fumble halted BU scoring hopes for the time being and the Redmen took over on their own 25. Several plays later the Terriers were in possession again, courtesy of a Loren Flagg fumble on the 38.

O'Flynn and DePietro took turns carrying to the 26 where on 4th down and six, Tom Daubney tossed to end Nick Marchese on the 3. Three plays later fullback Charlie "Choochoo" Meadows rammed his way in from the one. Phil Caito added the point after.

37 Yard Runback

Sam Lussier gathered in the following kickoff on his own 11 and galloped to the 48 yd. line of the Redmen before a leg grab stopped him from going all the way. UMass could not progress any from here, losing the ball on the 47 on a pass interception.

At the start of the second period UMass found itself at midfield with a first and ten, thanks to some fine running by Lussier. But Jerry Whelchel was thrown for a loss of 5 and a delay of game penalty cost the Redmen 5 more. A couple of plays later Jack Schraeder punted, the ball going out of bounds on the BU 43.

BU almost added another score here. Moving in the air and on the ground, the Terriers had a 1st and 10 on the Redmen 15. Halfbacks DePietro and O'Flynn could go no further and two Daubney passes were futile. UMass took over on the 13 but were forced to punt when confronted with a 4 and 6 situation on the 40.

This time the Terriers went 74 yards in six plays to score. The big play once again was the pass from Daubney to Marchese, giving BU a first and ten on the four. Daubney hit O'Flynn with a short pass for the score after a bullet pass over center failed on the previous play. The attempted conversion was no good and BU left the field at halftime leading 13-0.

Redmen Score

The only Redmen score came in the third quarter on an eight yard run around the left side by Jerry Whelchel. The backfield of Biron, deRose, and Lussier led by quarterback Whelchel started the drive from the BU 29. Biron, Whelchel, and Lussier took turns picking up first downs in the drive that saw Whelchel look his best all afternoon, running like a halfback and completing several key passes. After Leo Biron advanced to the 8, Whelchel rolled out to left, found his blockers and carried it in for the score. George Pleau's attempt at the conversion was no good and BU led 13-6.

Any hopes the Redmen had in evening the count were dimmed in the fourth period when BU capitalized on a poor UM punt that rolled out of bounds on the midfield stripe to manufacture a 10 play 50 yard drive capped by Joe DePietro's dash from the four. Caito added the game's final point and BU had its long awaited win.

BU Pass Defense

BU's pass defense, the best in the nation coming into Saturday's game, kept UMass receivers blanketed for most of the afternoon. Whelchel completed only 3 for 9 which is below his usual game average. Sam Lussier was held to only 58 yards on the ground by the Terrier defenses but this was more than enough to give him a career total of 1500 yards, the first UM player to ever reach that mark. UMass punting leaves a lot to be desired. In three kicks the average was an anemic 20.7 yards.

Next Saturday the Redmen travel to Burlington, Vt. for a YanCon meeting with UVM. Vermont has lost two conference games while UMass is undefeated in three.

Cadets Edge Redmen Harriers; Brouillet Sets Academy Record

by JIM RYAN '65

Despite Bobby Brouillet's record setting first place finish, the Redmen harriers finished second to the cadets from West Point in a tri-meet held last Friday at West Point. The Redmen, losers to undefeated Harvard by one point just three days before, were defeated again by a very narrow margin, 26-29. The third team in the meet, N.Y.U., was far behind with 85 points.

Running over one of the longest and toughest courses the Redmen have encountered this year, Brouillet set a new record and defeated his nearest rival by 35 seconds.

"Digger's" time for the 5.2 mile course was 26:58. He has now won five out of six meets for the Redmen, and established three course records in doing so.

Army, running on their home course, had a definite advantage over UMass, who weren't expecting quite so many hills. Jim Wrynn, showing his usual consistency, finished third, only one second behind Stroud of Army. Co-capt. Dave Balch finished sixth, and Ken O'Brien and co-capt. Dick Blomstrom were ninth and tenth respectively. These last two boys had perhaps their finest week of the season, as both were outstanding against Harvard in addition to their finish here. Other UMass finishers were in order: Bob Pendleton, 12th, Bill Young, 17th, and Tom Panke, 18th.

The next meet for the Redmen, now 7-2 for the season, will be one of their most important; the YanCon Championships to be held at Storrs, Conn. next Saturday at 10 o'clock. Maine, whom the Redmen beat by just 4 points in the opening meet of the season, will provide the stiffest competition for UMass in this meet.

Bobby Brouillet will be seeking his second straight individual Yan Con Championship and the third straight individual title for UMass. "Digger" won last year's meet as a sophomore, and Dave Balch, also as a sophomore, won the individual title in 1960.

Coach Bill Footrick will be looking for his third consecutive team championship when he takes his boys to the University of Connecticut next Saturday.

A case of books and other effects are shown in burned condition from one of the third floor rooms. According to William Scott, Co-ordinator of Student Activities, the S.U. Bookstore will allow charging for books needed by students who have not yet discovered the condition of their texts. These books, if unmarked, will be accepted back by the Store without charge if the original texts are found.

permanent housing possibilities exist in the Infirmary, the rec rooms of Mary Lyon and Leach Dorms and the Skylight Room of the Dining Commons. Also, offers have been made by a number of faculty and other persons in the Amherst area of rooms for the rest of the semester.

A group of 49 girls will, in all probability, occupy a corridor on the third floor of the Infirmary at least for the rest of this semester. Housemother Mrs. deKerpely will reside in private quarters on the Infirmary's second floor.

A group of about 25 girls will probably be moved into the Dining Commons quarters.

Administration Working At High Pitch To Aid Girls

Dean of Women Helen Curtis and Dean of Students William F. Field, two of the many persons who have worked at a high pitch since early Saturday evening, have said that all is being done to keep girls together who wish to be together in reassigning housing.

Men worked yesterday bringing belongings out of rooms that suffered comparatively little damage. Personal effects from basement and first floor rooms and rooms 227, 229, 230 and 231 were stored in a University owned barn close to the Education Building, where it has been claimed today. Reclamation is expected to continue for two or three days.

Despite rumors to the contrary, said Dean Field, "the building was never condemned. We have considered for a number of years taking it out of use as a dormitory and using it as an office building."

He said "the damage is of such a severe and far-reaching nature, the building will not be serviceable for a long time, if ever."

Emergency Loans Available

Emergency loans were made available this morning through the Placement and Financial Service Office in Machmer Hall. These loans are to meet the immediate needs for personal expenses and other necessities during the next few days.

Memorandum were sent to all heads of departments early this morning, with a list of names of Abbey residents and requesting the girls be extended whatever aid is necessary in their course work and assignments.

Although, Dean Field said most textbooks will be usable, arrangements have been made with the University Store to extend charge privileges on any books Abbey residents must have during the next few days.

According to Dean Field, the University will assist all Abbey residents who have special financial problems resulting from fire losses to meet these obligations so they will have no barrier to successful continuance of their education. •

Air Force-Army To Choose Honorary Colonel At Military Ball December 8

Dormitories, fraternities, and sororities have elected their candidates for Honorary Colonel of the Air Force-Army Military Ball, to be held December 8.

Five finalists, who will be given a tour of Westover Air Force Base and Fort Devens, will be selected by the ROTC cadets November 6 and 8. The voting will be held in Bowker Auditorium.

During intermission at the Ball, the Statesmen and Musigals will combine their musical talents. The Honorary Colonel will be announced following intermission.

A Mili Ball Committee spokesman said a photographer has been engaged by the Committee to take a 5" by 7" color picture of every couple at the dance. The only cost will be slight mailing charge of 25 cents, he said.

Because of the difficulty in finding transportation and the crowded conditions in the nearby restaurants, the spokesman said there will be a buffet in the Union from midnight to 1:30 a.m. The buffet is optional and for the benefit of those attending the Ball. Although it is non-profit, there is a charge, he said.

The Dynamics will entertain during the Ball and at the buffet in the Cape Cod Lounge. The orchestra for the Ball itself has not yet been selected.

There are tentative plans for a free band concert in Bowker on the following Sunday afternoon, the Ball spokesman said.

Mili Ball nominees and the dorm, sorority or fraternity nominating them are as follows:

Judy Furnans, Arnold Air Society; Karen Hamilton, Theta Chi; Lucille Francescom, Pi Beta Phi; Diane Dixon, Mills; Nancy Thompson, Lewis; Marie Mortimer, QTV.

Also, Sally Minich, Abbey; Martha Brockway, Knowlton; Gail B. Cavicchi, Chadbourne; Rory Broderick, Baker; Dolores Grinuk, TKE; Mary Pat Carroll, Sigma Kappa.

Also, Elizabeth Mercer, Johnson; Janet Hatcher, Beta Kappa Phi; Linda Valonen, Butterfield; Linda Peterson, Tau Epsilon Phi; Ann Ruthel, Hamlin; Berna Menz, Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Also, Lillian Rich, Sigma Delta Tau; Kathleen Manning, Chi Omega; Gail Benvie, Alpha Sigma Phi; Carolyn Oliver, Lambda Chi Alpha; Francia Seipel, Greenough; Martha Siebel, Hills North.

Also, Pat Jones, Zeta Nu; Ann Credon, Alpha Epsilon Pi; Judy Knox, Brooks; Edie Leahy, Thatcher; Dianne Wylie, Crabtree; Brenda Bryan, Dwight.

Also, Christina Cady, Alpha Chi Omega; Roberta Labatte, Kappa Alpha Theta; Carolyn Young, Sigma Phi Epsilon; Bernice Conlon, Lambda Delta Phi; Maren Yancey, Mary Lyon; Terry Joseph, Brett.

Fraternity Rushing Will Begin Saturday

Fraternity rushing will begin this Saturday and Sunday when Round Robins are held to acquaint prospective members with the various fraternities.

Defines Rushing

An IFC spokesman defined rushing as "that period of time when freshmen may visit fraternity houses, meet the brothers and discuss with them entrance into a fraternity. The rushing period gives both the freshmen and the fraternity men an opportunity to become thoroughly acquainted with each other. The ultimate goal is the selection of fraternity pledges by the House and the selection of a fraternity by the frosh."

In order to be pledged a freshman must have achieved a 1.7 average (as determined by the Registrar's Office) for the first mid-semester. An upperclassman must have achieved a 1.7 for the previous semester or mid-semester, whichever was the most recent grade received. In calculating freshman averages the Registrar's office will not count ungraded courses as passing or failing. Subsequent to mid-semester reports freshmen may provide a note from an instructor of an ungraded course to the Dean's office, if desired.

The first group to attend Round Robins Saturday will be those freshmen whose names begin with A-L. The second group, to attend Sunday, will consist of those names from M-Z.

Smokers To Be Assigned

During the following week, Nov. 5-9, specific fraternities will be assigned open smoker dates. At these smokers, freshmen will have an opportunity to discuss various aspects of fraternity life more thoroughly. The smokers

Univ. Theatre Opens Friday With Oedipus

The first major production of the University Theatre at the UMass, "Oedipus Rex," will be presented this Friday and Saturday in the ballroom of the University's Student Union.

Two evening performances are scheduled to start at 8 p.m. There will also be a special matinee for Western Massachusetts high school students at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 3.

Tickets are available at the box office.

The University Theatre is under the direction of Prof. Orville K. Larson of the speech department.

In keeping with the spirit of the Sophoclean tragedy, the theatre group is using the full face masks, the costumes, and cothorni first used in the Canadian Stratford Shakespeare Festival production of "Oedipus Rex" in 1955.

Sheila Ferrini, a junior from Gloucester, Mass., is cast as Jocasta in the University Theatre's first offering of the University centennial year. A speech major, Miss Ferrini was associated with the Rockport Playhouse last summer.

The part of Creon will be played by David Manley, a junior majoring in English who makes his home in Needham, Mass.

Frank Powers, a transfer student from the University of Richmond (Va.), has the lead role of Oedipus.

This production is the climax of a week-long series of events, which included an exhibition of Lee Simonson's theatrical art and a lecture on the Myth and Ritual Theory of the Beginning of Tragedy by Prof. Herbert Weisinger of Michigan State University.

The same costumes and face masks in this picture, taken during the 1955 Canadian Stratford Shakespeare Festival production of "Oedipus Rex," will be used by the University Theatre at UMass in their production of the Sophoclean tragedy this Friday and Saturday.

Senate Acts To Co-ordinate Efforts Aiding Abbey Girls

by AUDREY RAYNER '63

"We need a home," stressed Abbey Senator Maida Hurwitz ('65) in her address at the emergency meeting of the Student Senate Monday night.

The first point Senator Hurwitz brought up was the loss of the dormitory itself, which "meant a lot to all of us." Abigail Adams House, which was the oldest student residence on campus, was also the smallest girls' dormitory.

"We lost our clothes, our books; some of the girls lost everything," she continued. "We do have our lives and we do have our friends, but now many of our friends are being separated from us. Those of us who didn't lose possessions have no place to put them. We need a dormitory."

Motions To Help Girls Passed

Both motions concerning the fire catastrophe, presented to the Senate under Special Business, were passed.

The first motion S26, read "Moved that the Student Senate, on behalf of the student body, establish an Ad-Hoc Committee, to be known as the Campus Co-ordinating Committee, for the purpose of co-ordinating all campus efforts toward soliciting aid for the residents of Abigail Adams House."

Steve Hewey ('63-At-Large), who sponsored the motion, pointed out the two main problems facing the Abbey girls:

1. Money to replace personal belongings.
2. Housing.

Senator Hewey explained that while the Senate had no jurisdiction over the housing problem, they would do everything they could to co-ordinate all campus efforts to help out.

The second motion was, "Moved that the Student Senate donate the sum of two thousand dollars from the Stabilization Fund to the Campus Co-ordinating Committee to be administered according to loss and need, in accordance with advice from the University office of financial aid."

In introducing her motion, Senator Marilyn "Sam" Singer ('65-At-Large) stated, "This is what we can do for our fellow students in need. Our two thousand dollars will be a gift, not a loan."

Donation Kickoff For Other Contributions

The donation of the Senate is being used as a kickoff for other contributions from campus, community, and outside contributions.

Immediately after the adjournment of the Senate, a meeting of the newly formed Ad-Hoc Com-

Dean Curtis Announces Further Housing Plans

by ANN MILLER '64

Dean of Women Helen Curtis has announced further housing arrangements for Abbey girls.

Exploration of the possibility of housing in the top floor of the Dining Commons, she said, revealed that inadequate washroom and shower facilities would not permit this to be used for living quarters.

The Women's Physical Education Department, she said, has rescheduled classes which were to have been held in the Games Room, and arrangements to reschedule other activities are being made, so that this area can be used to house about 30 girls.

Many offers have come in from faculty and other persons in town, which the Dean of Women's office is now checking. Dean Curtis said they would try to match up these offers with those girls who have expressed a desire to live off-campus for the remainder of the semester.

Girls in various women's dorms, she said, have offered to triple their rooms to accommodate Abbey girls, and a few girls will probably be taken care of in this way.

She pointed out, however, that conditions in the women's dormitories are overcrowded at present and little tripling would be allowed.

The 10 girls of the French Corridor, she said, will be kept together and will live in the resident janitor's apartment in Leach, which was vacant.

Sororities are filled to maximum at present, and will not be able to take any more girls.

Arrangements at the infirmary for living quarters for 49 Abbey girls and Housemother Mrs. Theresa deKerpely are working out well.

Fire Marshall's Office Finishes Investigation

Investigation of the cause of the fire that nearly destroyed the Abigail Adams House on the University campus last Saturday night has been completed by Lt. Detective Timothy F. Keane of the State Fire Marshall's office.

Lt. Keane reported that in his opinion the fire was caused by an overheated electricial hot plate in a room on the second floor. The hot plate apparently ignited nearby combustibles.

University regulations state that "students may own irons and hair driers but may not use them in student rooms. All other electrical appliances such as grills, hot plates, toasters, coils and sterno cans are not allowed."

Dean of Students William F. Field has called on all students to turn in unauthorized appliances immediately to Heads of Residence. No penalties he said, will be assessed if they are turned in immediately.

E Pluribus Unum

Inscribed on the face of every United States coin one finds the words E Pluribus Unum—out of many, one. So too the many members of the University Community became one in a great effort to aid the refugees from the "Abby". Before the ashes had cooled, offers of clothing, housing, and financial aid were streaming in. The Senate met in emergency session forming the Campus Coordinating Committee with a treasury of $2,000 to aid the girls.

We of the Collegian applaud the entire community for the spirit shown in the face of crisis. However, many problems face the refugees from the Abby. Foremost among these is money for immediate expenses and books. We hope that anyone who can help in either of these ways will contact the committee, that the many problems facing the girls may be solved in the shortest possible time.

The Crisis Of The United Nations And It's Causes

by SEVA SUD

In the first article in this series Miss Sud discussed the lack of universality in the League of Nations. This is the second article in the series.—Ed.

Now let us find out how far this principle of universality is observed by the U.N., the present world organization. The basic idea at the creation of the U.N. after World War II was to make this organization a universal one. After the war, the Allies included the five big powers not equal in strength; China, the U.S.A., Great Britain, France, and the Soviet Union. China is represented by Taiwan (the mainland China isn't represented in the U.N.). It is a deficiency of the universal principle. Then again, against this universal principle, Germany, neither eastern nor western, is a member of this world organization. Korea and Vietnam are also not members of the U.N. At present the membership of the U.N. has risen to 110, nearly half of which are from Asian and African countries. At the time of its creation, the Latin American countries formed the biggest block of 20 members and so could influence the vote in the General Assembly. But now, Asian and African countries form the largest group and can influence any decision in the Assembly, where a ⅔ majority is required but there is hardly any unanimity in this group.

Secondly, the old structure of the U.N. is based on the principle of unanimity of the five big powers who occupy permanent seats in the Security Council. Each of these powers has veto right and so can prevent any resolution. As the split between the Soviet Union and the Western powers is much deeper than among the permanent members of the League of Nations because of their ideological conflicts, they no not agree on status quo which was one of the main purposes of the U.N. at the time of its creation. The split renders the U.N. incapable of dealing with the greatest issues of our time. Hence, here again the structural weakness, though a little different from the League of Nations, is present and renders ineffective the work of the U.N. The U.N. successfully solved the Suez issue but failed in the Hungarian issue. The Berlin issue is hanging and the Congo problem has taken the life of its Secretary-General.

The basic requirement of the principle of unanimity was another cause of the failure of the League of Nations. The League had two principal organs (a) the Council consisted of 9 to 50 members; (b) the Assembly, in which all the member states were represented. All the members of the disputed states were not counted. In all other cases, unanimity was required which was its weakness because there would always be one or two powers against the resolution. The present world organization, U.N., also has two main organs, Security Council and the General Assembly. General Assembly is a parliamentary body where each member has one vote and so there is complete equality. But it is the Security Council which occupies a most important role in the United Nations.

COMPULSORY RELIGION

To the Editor:

Before stating the purpose of this letter, I will state what I do not intend. I have no intention of criticizing anyone's religion, or his profession of it. I don't want anything to do with controversies over Anti-ROTC or compulsory ROTC; to me that battle is futile as the administration does as it pleases anyway. I certainly don't intend to criticize "Col. Bill," the guest speaker at the AFROTC mass drill yesterday; he was sincere and amusing.

What then do I wish to criticize?—the fact that our ROTC should make it compulsory for every cadet to sit through a forty minute lecture on religion. Once more, having struck what is a sensitive, defensive, note to many, I say it is not the purpose of this letter to discuss the necessity or validity of God. Then again, it is not the purpose of the military section on campus to discuss this subject either.

I am aware that the majority of the cadets probably enjoyed the lecture: the Colonel was a very skilled speaker. Had I been there of my own accord, out of uniform, I too might have enjoyed it. However, we should not forget, and our Supreme Court is now reminding us, that we have a right to free religious choice and practice. I assume this means you have the right to religiously reject God as well. Indeed, what right has the Colonel, representing the ROTC, representing our country, to raise his voice and point his finger and say "Don't you dare take refuge in blaspheme . . . toss God's name around like a football." I wonder if those who disagreed then didn't have the right to stand and exit. I am truly amazed that such a talk could even be thought of as being compulsory.

And now I have made my complaint; but I am sure there will be a half a dozen people calling me names—accusing me of atheism as though it were not my right to be an atheist if I so desired—accusing me of trying to decay the morals of the masses. For those I feel sorry, for they are truly closed minded. I also feel sorry that our administration (though we are living in good old Blue Mass.), could allow a worthwhile talk about religion and God to be tainted by its compulsory nature.

DUBIOUS GLORY FOR $1,600

To the Editor:

Last Wednesday evening the Student Senate voted $1600 for the Band and Precisionettes to attend the Villanova game. This was voted apparently without regard to the fact that this is a non-conference game, that the total time that these groups will be used for the purpose they were intended is at most fifteen minutes, and that this is a lot of money for fifteen minutes of dubious glory. It is argued that the team needs support, that the presence of these two fine Redmen groups is a great morale booster. It should be noted that when these groups are doing what they went for, the team is in the locker room, not listening to the band, but to the coach. It might be argued that these groups constitute a cheering section, but can the teams on the field differentiate between the roars of anguish and the roars of appreciation which come simultaneously during play?

Since these two groups plus the team and cheer leaders constitute the only U of M students that attend the far away games, it would seem more appropriate to use that same money for games nearer home, that car cavalcades can attend in sufficient numbers to warrant the additional support of the Band and Precisionettes. In the far away games, it would seem more appropriate for going away and/or

"THE PRESENT CRISIS"

To the Editor:

Cuba, the strategic issue of the moment in humanity's struggle for survival, affords to the thinking American an opportunity to reflect upon the totality of global considerations before us. Survival itself is the primary moral and political justification for our present quarantine on arms to Cuba and, perhaps, for more necessary belligerent action in time to come. The present crisis demands of us careful deliberation on the consequences of our actions in the Caribbean and on the futility of attemping always to accept as a course of action the present middle of the road course that we are prone to follow. Without question, I support President Kennedy's long delayed decision to take an affirmative stand. My only criticism is that our position is not of a more militaristic and belligerent nature. The Cuban crisis demands strong military action against Castro's communist Cuba and an overwhelmingly enthusiastic psychological plea to the world that we stand for something—our ideals and our way of life.

The following quotation for reflection from James Russell Lowell's poem, "The Present Crisis," represents America's moral and spiritual heritage and it offers to all of us for this crisis and for others to come an expression of hope and faith for confrontation with the "dim unknown":

". . . Behind the dim unknown
Standeth God within the shadow, keeping watch above his own."

Francis X. Allard '64

To the Editor:

I was most amused while reading a certain letter to the editor which appeared in your last issue of the Collegian. It dealt with reasons why we should put another Kennedy into a government post in Washington.

As reasons, the author listed the officials related to one another in various countries throughout the world, all of which represent the weakest, unstable, and most Communist-infiltrated of governments in the world today. I am not trying to suggest that with another Kennedy in the government our country will go Communist. That is absurd. But I would like to remind you of the fact that one of the strong points of our government has been its ability to have the Presidents listen to varying opinions on a subject, and then choose what appears to be the best solution. A person with exactly the same religious, educational, and family environment cannot offer the varying opinions that come only from different environment—hence a different outlook on issues that may come before the President from time to time. It is not very comforting to realize that in time of great trouble your second lieutenant is your kid brother, who very probably has no more of an idea of a solution than you do.

What this country needs is not more people in government who will be simply yes-men; but rather, people who will stimulate thought, not by simply reiterating the President's views, but by offering their own.

David Gillespie '66

THE ONLY POSSIBLE WAY

To Russell Murphy, a Sadly Blinded Patriot:

In reply to your letter in the Collegian of Monday, Oct. 29, your "blind patriotism" is affecting your ability to reason logically. When a country is in grave danger (as the U.S. was last week), the citizens of that country should rally to its defense if they are patriotic. But, rallying to the defense of our country is not a case of standing up blindly behind the President and ceasing all logical thought processes. Rather a national crisis such as Cuba should serve to point out the extreme danger of the course our country is presently pursuing.

The defense systems of the U.S. and Russia are so awesome and complex and so powerful that war through crisis or war by accident are increasingly probable.

A patriot desires to save his country, not to let it die. If you desire to be a true patriot, open your eyes and fight for your country in the only manner which will allow it any chance of a long and great future: a fight for genuine, long-lasting peace, which is possible only through disarmament.

Butterfield Dorm Holds Mixer With Mt. Holyoke

Butterfield Dormitory, the smallest men's dorm on campus, held a mixer for 60 Mt. Holyoke girls last Saturday night. The Dorm was decorated in a Parisian manner complete with cafe awnings and candlelight.

The dance was the second of the Butterfield social season, and according to Social Chairman John Winski, "it was a great success."

Previously in the year the Butterfield Distinguished Visitors program entertained Dr. Janowitz, the University Psychologist, who answered questions from the Butterfield residents ranging from "What do you do about someone who is always crying on your shoulder?" to "Do a lot of people want to commit suicide?"

The night before the upcoming State elections Butterfield will host Dr. John Fenton of the UMass Government Department.

International Club Gets Aid From Rotary

Amherst Rotarians will support the International Club with financial aid, Shree Prasad, Publicity Director and Member of the International Club's Executive Council, announced today.

The International Club has been holding weekly Coffee Hours every Wednesday from 5 to 6 p.m. These informal meetings have been very enthusiastically attended by both foreign and American students.

Considering the club's usefulness in promoting friendship, good will, and understanding among the foreign and American students on campus, the Rotary Club has come forward with timely help. This will take the form of covering the cost of coffee and cookies to be provided at these meetings.

Shree Prasad attributed this move to the interest taken in the activities of the International Club by Rotarian Earl Ward and Rotarian Thompson.

FAT, SLEEP, AND MATRICULATE

The trouble with early morning classes is that you're too sleepy. At late morning classes you're too hungry. At early afternoon classes you're too logy. At late afternoon classes you're too hungry again. The fact is—and we might as well face it—there is no good time of day to take a class.

What shall we do then? Abandon our colleges to the ivy? I say no! I say America did not become the hope of mankind and the world's largest producer of butterfats and tallow by running away from a fight!

If you're always too hungry or too sleepy for class, then let's hold classes when you're not too hungry or sleepy: namely, when you're eating or sleeping.

Classes while eating are a simple matter. Just have a lecturer lecture while the eaters eat. But watch out for noisy food. I mean who can hear a lecturer lecture when everybody is crunching celery or matzo or like that? Serve quiet stuff—like anchovy paste on a doughnut, or steaming bowls of lamb fat.

And kindly observe silence while lighting your post-prandial Marlboro Cigarette. Don't be striking kitchen matches on your jeans. Instead carry an ember from the dormitory fireplace in your purse or pocket. Place the Marlboro against the ember. Light it quietly. Smoke it quietly. Oh, I know I ask a great deal! I know that one's natural instinct upon encountering Marlboro's fine flavor and filter is to throw back one's head and bellow great, rousing cries of joy. But you must not. You must contain your ecstacy, lest you disturb the lecturing lecturer. You can, if you like, permit yourself a few small shudders of pleasure as you smoke, but take care not to wear garments which will set up a clatter when you shudder—like taffeta, for example, or knee cymbals.

Let us turn now to the problem of learning while sleeping. First, can it be done?

Yes, it can. Psychologists have proved that the brain is definitely able to assimilate information during sleep. Take, for instance, a recent experiment conducted by a leading Eastern university (Stanford). A small tape recorder was placed under the pillow of the subject, a freshman named Glebe Sigafoos. When Glebe was fast asleep, the recorder was turned on. Softly, all through the night, it repeated three statements in Glebe's slumbering ear:

1. Herbert Spencer lived to the age of 109 and is called "The Founder of English Eclectic Philosophy."

2. The banana plant is not a tree but a large perennial herb.

3. The Archduke Ferdinand was assassinated in 1914 at Sarajevo by a young nationalist named Mjilas Cvetnic, who has been called "The Trigger of World War I."

When Glebe awoke in the morning, the psychologists said to him, "Herbert Spencer lived to the age of 109. What is he called?"

Glebe promptly replied, "Perennial Herb."

Next they asked him, "What has Mjilas Cvetnic been called?"

Replied Glebe, "Perennial Serb."

Finally they said, "Is the banana plant a tree?"

But Glebe, exhausted from the long interrogation, had fallen back asleep, where he is to this day. © 1962 Max Shulman mittee, led by Activities Committee Chairman Steve Hewey, was held in the Senate Office. The committee consists of heads of various campus organizations, including Men's and Women's Interdormitory Councils, IFC and Panhellenic, Campus Religious Council, WMUA, and the Collegian.

The consensus of the group opinion, plus that of Dean of Students William Field, was that the most important effort was to be made to co-ordinate and consolidate efforts by the entire campus and community for soliciting funds to help the girls.

Al Savat, from the Campus Religious Council; Mike Rosenthal, representing the Men's Interdorm Council; Ruth Feinberg, president of Women's Interdorm Council; Steve Israel, president of I.F.C.; and Betty Nurmi, representing Pan-Hellenic; formed a sub-committee to organize the best approach for canvassing the campus.

Committee To Have Separate Account

The Campus Co-Ordinating Committee will have a separate RSO account as a sub-committee of the Student Senate; funds, which will be relayed to this account, will be administered in accordance with the Financial Aid Office of the University, which will screen loss, need, and insurance coverage of each girl applying for monetary aid.

U.S. Will Help Those Who Help Themselves....Dr. Fei

The United States has decided to "associate itself with the development of nations in their economic and social advancement if these nations co-operate fully with the U. S. in this program," was the opening statement of Dr. Edward C. Fei at a lecture presented in the S.U. Ballroom at 4 p.m. last Friday.

Dr. Fei, Director of the Research, Evaluation, and Planning Assistance Staff of the Agency for International Development (AID) discussed the "Aspects of Aid" in conjunction with the U.N. program held last week at UMass.

"The U.S. is not going to help countries in a haphazard way as we have done in the past," said Dr. Fei. "Instead we are going to develop a plan whereby we can supply aid to countries which are willing to contribute something themselves".

"This is the action we are pushing in South America. The U.S. is hoping that the Latin people will begin to take an active part in trying to develop a framework for South America."

"We must make a conscious attempt to involve ourselves in research because there are so many things we don't know. For instance, in which specialized areas should we spend our foreign aid? Even though Congress appropriates about half of the four billion foreign aid allowance toward the economic development program, we must determine the specific areas in which to spend this money. The most obvious area is education," explained Dr. Fei.

In order to accomplish this, AID has sent students from approximately 65 U.S. universities into 45 countries to "help create institutions that will enable other countries to go ahead on their own." Among the universities represented in this program is UMass which has sent students to Uganda.

"We are trying to approach more than a political activity" concluded Dr. Fei. "We are attempting to hit at the human and institutional problems. We hope we shall succeed."

Cuban Crisis To Be Topic Of Discussion

"The Continuing Cuban Crisis" will be the topic of a panel discussion tomorrow at 4 p.m. in the Council Chambers of the S.U.

The discussion has been arranged by a faculty committee, said Prof. Ronald McHaffey of the UMass Math Department, "in response to the sudden crisis, which many persons will want to hear more about."

Prof. Louis Greenbaum of the History Department, will be panel moderator.

Members of the panel will be Professors Phillips Jones of the Physics Department, Frank Wickwire and Paul Gagnon of the History Department and Gerard Braunthal of the Government Department.

NOTICES

CHEMISTRY SEMINAR

Charles E. Sullivan will talk on "Acylation of Some Beta-Keto-Esters with Ethyl Chloroformate," at 5 p.m. Thursday, in room 152 Goessmann.

RUSSIAN COURSE

A ten week course in Elementary Russian will be offered to interested students of the four-college area. A one-hour meeting will be held each week at Smith College, transportation provided. The meetings will be recorded and broadcast next Semester on WFCR. Those interested should leave their names with Prof. Rosen of Amherst.

TUTORING NOTICE

Physics One, held Mondays at 7 p.m. in room W36 Machmer, has been cancelled.

Physics Three starts Thursday, November 1, at 7 p.m. in room W36 Machmer.

SOPH-FROSH NIGHT

A "Centipede Stampede" will be sponsored by the Sophomore class Friday, Nov. 2, at 7 p.m. in the Womens Phys. Ed. building. Admission will be 50¢ for an evening of entertainment and refreshments.

MATH FIVE

The tutoring session for math five will not meet Wednesday, October 31. The next meeting will be held November 7 as usual.

WMUA Adds New Show, Topics, To Educational Block

WMUA, the campus radio station, has announced an addition to its Educational Programming Block. The new show, Topics, is aired on Wednesday evenings from 7 to 7:30, and features informal discussion of topics of current interest by members of the University faculty and administration.

The subjects chosen for investigation are based on news items from the wires of United Press International. There are three guests each week, ranging from teaching assistants to deans and representing different departments of the University.

"The guests", says Moderator Joe Turowsky, "are usually non-experts in the particular field discussed, and the emphasis is placed on friendly, informal controversy and exchange of ideas and opinions rather than on academic study of the topic under consideration. I don't really moderate at all, but just introduce the subject and then sit back and watch the fun."

Described by station members as "fast-paced" and "unusual", Topics is, according to Turowsky, "an attempt by WMUA to broaden its interpretation of current events by letting the students listen while fine minds discuss these important subjects."

Cornel Grad School Dean On Campus

Dean William D. Carmichael of the Graduate School of Business and Public Administration at Cornell University will visit the UMass campus tomorrow.

The University Economics Association will host Dean Carmichael from 2-4 p.m. in the Governor's Lounge of the Student Union.

All students are invited to meet with him during this time to discuss all aspects of the Cornell program, in particular entrance requirements and career opportunities in these fields.

SPEED READING COURSE

A speed reading course begins November 6. The class meets in the School of Education, Room 125 at 6:30 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday evenings. Those who wish to join should sign up in the Counseling and Guidance Office, E27A Machmer.

Masquers To Present Brecht Play

Amherst College's Masquers will present "The Good Woman of Setzuan" by German playwright Bertolt Brecht Nov. 2, 3, 9, 10, and 11 at 8:15 p.m. in Kirby Theater, with a 4-college cast including UMass student Ann Meltzer.

The production will be in a musical comedy form with a narrative rather than representational approach, and characters will often speak directly to the audience.

Tickets are on sale now at Kirby Theater.

W.A.A. TENNIS

The Tennis Club of the University of Massachusetts recently attended the three-day Eastern Collegiate Tennis Tournament for Women held at Forest Hills, New York. Those representing the University were Rosemary Connolly, Beverly DeMarco, Pat Frugoli, Shirley Lord, Mary O'Toole, Kathy Walsh, and Carol Woodcock. Miss Nancy Rupp, advisor, accompanied the team.

Participating in the tournament were one hundred seventy-four college women from forty-six colleges in ten states and Canada. Carol Woodcock, a freshman, went as far as the semi-finals when she lost in a close match to the number-one-seeded player, Nadine Netter of Wellesley College. The girls were able to attend three clinics; Bill Lufler of the West Side Tennis Club instructed the players on "The Singles Game," while Judy Barta, inventor of the 'Ball Boy,' helped the girls with strategy techniques in her 'Barta Special."

The Tennis Club has also held two matches with Mount Holyoke this fall; the UMass girls won both matches. The Club is now preparing for a field day to be held at the University of Connecticut which will mark the close of the season until next Spring.

UMGPDPC Makes Plans For Great Pumpkin Day

The University of Massachusetts Great Pumpkin Day Planning Committee (officially known in inner circles as UMGPDPC) is making plans for the annual Great Pumpkin Day Festival.

Chairman of the Planning Committee Charles Brown '74 has informed the Collegian that he will again station himself in the pumpkin patch behind the Metawampee Statue and await the arrival of the Great Pumpkin spirit. Inspiration for Mr. Brown's vigil will be supplied by the campus' favorite piano player, Taj Schroeder.

Last year the Great Pumpkin appeared in the pumpkin patch of Harvey Ferndock of Keokuk, Iowa. This year it is hoped that the mighty spirit will visit the UMass campus.

Soph-Frosh Hoop Contest To Highlight Centipede Stampede

A highlight of this year's Soph-Frosh night will be a basketball contest between two teams, each representing its respective class.

The sophomore team boasts three players from last season's 13-1 Redmen Frosh basketball squad. All three hoopsters, Frank Pluta, Ken Lindberg and Dick Stewart, have exceptional height and should prove to be very valuable for the '65ers under the boards.

In addition to the three veterans, the sophomores have on hand five other boys all of whom were outstanding in high school competition. They are Dick Murphy, Karl Kamina, Paul Case, Ed Burke and Bill Kelley. Case's speed in the backcourt will undoubtedly aid his team in its efforts to topple the frosh squad.

The freshmen club is expected to give the upperclassmen a good fight. Every member of the '66 squad has had previous experience either in high school or prep. The nine members of the club are Dennis Barnicle, Horace Murray, Nick Martines, Ron Cormier, Dick Benjamin, Barnett Parker, Bob Karagosian, Ross Piken, and Mark Hurwitz.

Steve Reimer '65, coach of the freshmen squad, feels that "if the team can play well together, there is no reason why they shouldn't win."

Be at the WPE building this Friday night when these two undefeated teams meet each other as part of the "Centipede Stampede", the Centennial Year Soph-Frosh Night.

Frosh Blank Deerfield; Play Amherst College Saturday

by SCOTT FREEDLAND '66

The freshman soccer team made it four straight wins by defeating Deerfield Academy, Monday, 2-0. Highlighting the game were goals by defensemen Henry Strapp and Bruce Allaire, who were moved to inside right and left wing, respectively.

Play during the first period was rugged with the frosh missing several opportunities to score because of players being offside. With play tightened up in the second period, Allaire scored unassisted to make it 1 to 0 at the half. Deerfield's only serious scoring threat came during the third period on a penalty kick. Goalie Rick Gustafson made a beautiful save to end the threat. Late in the period Strapp scored on a corner kick which the Deerfield goalie misjudged, missing the ball as he dove for it. Darkness hampered play during the fourth period, as neither UMass or Deerfield made a serious scoring threat, keeping the score at UMass 2, Deerfield 0.

The frosh play Stockbridge, Wednesday, and Amherst College, Saturday to end their season.

The Big Change—From Land To Air

by AL RICE '66

An offhand look at the college football scene this season to most observers will produce nothing unexpected. LSU, Mississippi, and Alabama are powers again in the South, and Ohio State, Wisconsin, and Michigan State are the headliners in the Big 10; but there is one main difference in the play this year that is not like anything football has ever seen before. Saturday's heroes, 1962 version, aren't the likes of Joe Bellino, Billy Cannon, Jimmy Saxton, Bob Ferguson, Pete Dawkins, Ernie Davis, or the other running backs who have reaped the glory in the past few years.

Passers Star

The big stars of the big teams are the boys who throw the long bomb. This season the names in the headlines are George Mira, Jerry Gross, Dick Shiner, Terry Baker, and Tommy Myers. The pass is the offensive weapon that has brought home the bacon to Northwestern, Mississippi, Miami, Wisconsin, Oregon State, and most of the other teams high in the national ratings.

Among the top five rushers, only two ball carriers represent well known football powers. Johnny Roland of Missouri and Preacher Pilot of New Mexico State are leading rushers, although both are relatively unknown. The covers of the football magazines feature Sonny Gibbs, a senior at Texas Christian who completed 71 passes last year at a 52% completion average; Jerry Gross of Detroit, who was leading the nation in total offense last season before being injured; and Terry Baker, one of the greatest throwers in West Coast history. Gibbs hasn't lived up to his pre-season expectations and Gross has the misfortune of playing for a winless team. The other member of the trio of seniors expected to lead the field this season has been every bit as good as the experts figured he would be. Baker has already tossed a dozen touchdown tosses in six games and has the third highest yardage total of any quarterback in the major colleges.

However, most of the new breed are sophomores and juniors who have hit the bright lights sooner than was expected. Junior George Mira of Miami was the pick for All-American quarterback, and he has justified his supporters with 1054 yards gained passing although his completion percent is not among the leaders. His eight touchdown passes are also impressive considering the fact that his favorite receiver last year, Bill Miller, is now hauling down passes for the Dallas Texans.

Two other juniors that are shining lights in the Atlantic Coast Conference and the Southeastern Conference, respectively, are Dick Shiner of Maryland and Billy Lothridge of Georgia Tech. Shiner has the most completions in the nation with 87 and has the second highest completion rate. Lothridge confined his duties to kicking last year as he scored 28 points by his foot, but this season he has sent senior Stan Gann to the bench and has accounted for 83 of his team's 123 points scored so far. He also has a 40.7 yards punting average which is much higher than any in these parts.

Northwestern Tops

Sophomores also have appeared in key positions this season with more regularity than ever before. In the national ratings released yesterday, the top team was Northwestern. The Wildcats were expected to do nothing this year, but Tommy Myers' efforts have resulted in an undefeated season so far, and has kept Northwestern the leading team in the country in most yards gained passing all season. At Navy soph Roger Staubach has led the Middies to three wins in a row after he took the field leadership from Ron Klemick, who completed more passes last year than any other player back this season. Klemick gained 1045 yards last year (more than Mira, Shiner, or Gibbs) but Staubach has his job, and his eight completions against Pitt last week in the same number of attempts show why.

Two other sophomores had days last week under circumstances not usually seen. The perennial powers from Syracuse had rookie Wally Mahle at the controls and he led the Orangemen to a 30-20 win over Holy Cross. Craig Morton took charge of the California attack in his first game after being sidelined with an injury and fired three touchdown passes in the losing effort against Penn State. The Golden Bears are the only team in existence with more top flight quarterbacks than victories. Before Morton got to play he had to beat out the team captain, Larry Balliett, number 14 in completions among the major teams, and Randy Gold, who rated one of the best in the West last season. With that many bombs flying through the air, California is bound to win sometime. Everyone else is.

Speaking Of Sports

by BARRY BROOKS '63

Television cameras were just beyond the end zone, in the lower rows of stands, and in the press box at Harvard Stadium last Saturday, as 32,000 spectators watched one of the strangest things ever to happen in a Harvard-Dartmouth clash.

Dartmouth fullback, Tom Parkinson, had spearheaded a "Big Green" drive deep into Crimson territory, shortly after the fourth quarter had gotten underway. The whistle was blown, as if a penalty was about to be called, and the ball was put on the same spot where the play had originated. A thirty second delay followed and the scoreboard showed it was still first down. Why was the game stopped, you ask? The game was stopped by the C.B.S. Television Network to permit the insertion of a 30 second commercial.

After the game, coach John Yovicsin of Harvard commented, "This is a funny league; it's composed of football and television." Indian coach Bob Blackman noted, "We moved the ball downfield but we had to stop for TV commercials, and neither John (Yovicsin) nor myself knew about these conditions before the game."

So we ask ourselves: "Has television taken college football, too?"

After five attempts the Boston University Terriers finally broke into the win column. "They had a bigger line than we did," said Fusia, "and they were a lot hungrier too."

Coach Steve Sinko must now begin getting his ballclub in shape for Saturday's Homecoming opponent—Army. Twelve hundred Cadets will march up Commonwealth Avenue to B.U. Field to watch the East's top-ranked team (5-1) engage the Terriers.

Meanwhile, the Redmen will travel to Burlington, Vt., to meet the Vermont Catamounts before a Homecoming crowd in a Yankee Conference game. The Redmen may be without the full services of halfback Sam Lussier who was injured in the opening minutes of the B.U. game.

In other New England action this week-end the high-flying Eagles of Boston College will meet Vanderbilt (0-6) at Nashville, Tenn., while the Harvard Crimson are at home against Pennsylvania. The Tufts Jumbos will come to town on Saturday to meet the "Lord Jeffs" at Pratt Field, Amherst, in a battle of undefeated small college elevens.

Many fans must have wondered as they sat before their TV sets last Sunday, why N.Y. Giant QB Y. A. Tittle, after having passed for 7 TD's and 505 yards, didn't go for the N.F.L. record of 8. "It would have been in bad taste," explained the 35 year old veteran. "I'd be going out of my way just to do something for myself; it was more important to win."

KICKING AROUND

Amherst's Tom Parkinson has been the unsung hero for the Dartmouth Indians . . . Don't be surprised if Indian QB Billy King is in a Patriot uniform next fall. . . WMUA, along with WMAS in Springfield, and WBRK in Pittsfield, will carry the UMass-Vermont game "live" from Burlington beginning at 1:25 p.m. . . . Terrier halfback Joe DiPietro was elected to the ECAC team of the week for his outstanding play against the Redmen . . . Navy's brilliant soph QB, Roger Statubach, received the ECAC's Sophomore of the Week award.

LACROSSE

There will be an important meeting of all varsity lacrosse team candidates on Wednesday, November 7, at 4:15 P.M. in Room 14 of the Cage.

TICKETS

Tickets for the Vermont Game Saturday at Burlington will be sold in the Men's Physical Education Building. These are reserved seats usually selling for $2.50 and are available for the student price of one dollar.

WMUA Conducts Interview With Famed Jazz Musicians

At New York City's famed Basin Street East, Ron Engel of WMUA recently interviewed prominent jazz musicians Bob Brookmeyer and Gerry Mulligan for the station's "Sounds of Jazz" series.

Mr. Brookmeyer, a 33 year old native of Kansas City, exemplifies the spirit of the city's important influence on musicians of whom Count Basie is another example. Dividing his time between the roles of valve trombonist-pianist and arranger-composer, Brookmeyer is the object of wide-spread critical acclaim and listener popularity for his consistently original, sensitive, and witty writing and playing.

New York born, 35 year-old Mulligan initially found the West Coast most receptive to his ideas; his first fame was attained there, and he was largely responsible for the attention given to the coast during the 50's. His baritone saxophone work and writing among other innovations have made him one of the prime influences of the last decade. Experimentation in his various combos and recent big band has met with a success afforded few.

In addition to working together, the artists have other factors in common: the humor they convey in their music, the prominence they have brought to their respective instruments, and their classfication as modern mainstream stylists.

The Mulligan interview will be featured on tonight's "Sounds of Jazz" at 10 p.m. on WMUA, and the meeting with Brookmeyer will follow soon.

'The Great Divorce' Will Be Presented At Bowker Tonight

C. S. Lewis' "The Great Divorce" will be presented by the Bishop's Company of Santa Barbara, California tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Bowker.

Sponsored by Wesley Foundation and Christian Association, the drama tells the story of the annual bus excursion taken by the residents of Hell to the borders of Heaven and their discovery that there can never be a marriage between Heaven and Hell, but only "the great divorce".

The presentation is one of eight plays in the repertoire of the Bishop's Company, the first American touring repertory company of its kind.

Student admission for the presentation is $.50 while non-students will pay $1.00.

Fr. Quigley Will Conduct Phil. Seminar

Seminars in philosophy will be held every Thursday at 6:30 p.m. in the Norfolk room for interested Newman Club members.

Fr. Quigley conducts the weekly seminars, which will discuss such theories as naturalism, materialism, vitalism, rationalism, communism, and existentialism.

The textbook used in this noncredit one hour course is In the Image of His Maker—A Study of the Nature of Man by Father Robert E. Brennan O.P.

Anyone interested in participating in the weekly discussion is invited to attend tomorrow's meeting.

Fraternity Rushing ...

are open to all interested freshman men. No invitation is required and freshmen are encouraged to attend as many smokers as possible during the coming week.

Rushing will end Nov. 18 at 7 p.m. Fraternity men will not discuss fraternities with freshmen, nor will the latter enter any fraternity houses until after Pledge Chapel.

Pledge Chapel

Pledge Chapel will be held in the SU Ballroom Nov. 19. During the day, freshmen will bring their rushing cards to the Dean of Men's Office. That night, at Pledge Chapel, they will receive invitations to pledge, according to their preferences. Following the Chapel, formal pledging ceremonies will be held at each house by members of the IFC.

Freshmen are encouraged to participate in as many rushing functions as possible.

Campus Community Aids Victims Of Abbey Fires

In the wake of last Saturday's fire that virtually destroyed the Abigail Adams House, students, faculty and administrators have taken a number of emergency measures.

On Sunday, many girls contributed to a "clothing pool" from which Abbey residents were able to draw immediate clothing needs.

The Campus Religious Council, Panhellenic Council (sororities), Interfraternity Council, Men's and Women's Interdormitory Councils, and the Campus Chest have formed a committee to undertake a general campus solicitation to alleviate the personal loss of those involved in the fire.

University President John W. Lederle commended the students for their spontaneous action to help residents of the Abbey. He said, "the University will do everything possible to make certain that no student will have to leave school because of personal loss incurred in the fire."

During the last two days many faculty members have opened their homes to students. The majority of evacuees, however, are living in emergency quarters now open in the infirmary, Leach dormitory, and the Women's Physical Education Building.

At the request of the University administration, occupants of the dormitory at the time of the fire and early arrivals at the scene have been writing personal accounts of what they saw and how they reacted during the emergency. A standard procedure in times of crisis, the reports will be used as documentation in the official records. It is hoped that this information can also be used to evaluate present safety and fire drill methods with an eye toward improving them in the constant effort to avoid tragedy in the event of fire.

In addition, contractors, architects, state engineers, and the University's planning coordinator and design coordinator are being called in to give their expert opinions on the prospects for future rebuilding of the dormitory.

As soon as these reports and the state fire marshal's report have been compiled, a complete documentation of the fire and events following it will be presented to the board of trustees and state officials.

YR's On Stepped-Up Pre-Election Schedule

The drive by the Young Republican Club to assist candiddates has become too complex to be handled by any one person, a club spokesman said, and as a result has been divided into three areas: statewide: the Fourth Hampshire District; and the Second Franklin District.

Chuck Nihan, president of the Young Republicans, and Bob Crocker are co-captains for the students working on the statewide campaigns.

On October 25 there was an evening parade at Northampton for state and local candidates. The parade was followed by a rally at the Polish-American home. Conte, the only state candidate present, had just returned from a meeting with Dean Rusk and talked on the Cuban situation.

The students working for state nominees have checked voting lists for Northampton. Nihan and Crocker, furthermore, have planned a day of campaigning for Perry in different towns, the spokesman said.

Bob Morgan, editor of the UMass Republican newspaper, The Prism, heads the students who are working for Dressel in the Fourth Hampshire District. At the recent fair in Belchertown, students handed out campaign literature.

In Ware, students recently spent a day passing out election material. The Young Republicans have also checked the voting lists for Amherst. Next Tuesday the entire committee of students working in the Fourth Hampshire District will be helping out in Amherst, he said.

Del Ketcham, campaign director for all three sections, is, in addition, in charge of the Second Franklin District. He and the students who are working with him to help Czuj, spent last Thursday polling voters. On the afternoon of October 20 they phoned people and passed out campaign literature. According to the spokesman, at least five of the students functioning in the Second Franklin District will be going down to Greenfield on Election Day.

Even after Election Day the Republican Club will continue to be active, the spokesman said. Perry and Brooke are among the speakers who have been invited to talk at the University.

Next year he said, Senator John Barker will give a speech. The Young Republicans will continue to meet regularly.

Mich. State Prof. Lectures In Connection With Oedipus

by RICHARD BUSH '63

"One aspect of the myth and ritual pattern," Professor Herbert Weisinger said, "is its adaptability—its ability to change." He stressed the distinction between myth and ritual on one hand and tragedy on the other.

Professor Weisinger from Michigan State University presented a lecture on the "Myth and Ritual Theory of the Beginning of Tragedy in Relation to Oedipus Rex" Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium.

Weisinger said that when you attend a play you are a spectator, but in a ritual you take an active part. He said the "purpose of ritual is to bring about a just order."

"I warn against the indiscriminate use of myth," he said, "it is my contention that while myth may be accepted by one writer, it may be rejected by another."

Professor Weisinger is Chairman of the Comparative literature Study at Michigan State University. He has been a Fellow at Warburg Institute in London and while there was a member of the Institute of Advanced Study. His extensive writings include the book Tragedy and the Paradox of the Fortune of Fall.

Round Robins At Sororities To Begin Sat.

The first sorority Round Robins for Freshman women whose last names begin with A to M will be held tomorrow, beginning at 1 p.m. in Dwight.

This first group will tour all the sorority houses. Round Robins is sponsored by the Panhellenic Council to provide an opportunity for Freshman women to get acquainted with all sorority women and to view the various houses.

The tours are guided by Panhellenic Representatives. Refreshments will be served and the dress is casual.

Title Contest Gives Tickets For Mili Ball

It has been announced by AFROTC Cadet Captain George Fisette, chairman of the Mili Ball committee, that a full set of tickets to the Ball and buffet will be given to the basic cadet, either Armor of Air Force, who submits the most "appropriate and original name of title for the buffet to be held after the Ball on Dec. 8."

The buffet will be held in the Hatch. Dinner music will be provided by the Dynamics, while lights and food supplied by a local caterer will complete the theme for entertainment after the ball.

All entries should be submitted to the committee by November 30 in a collection box on the first floor of Dickinson Hall.

Curry Hicks Transforming For 50th Annual Hort Show

Work on the 50th Annual Horticultural Show started Tuesday evening as the floors of the Cage were covered with canvas, and floor space was allocated for student exhibits, departmental exhibits, and special features.

Truckloads of lumber, tools and other material began flowing into the Cage Wednesday. Aboriculture students at the same time began setting up mock trees, exhibition framework, balcony decorations, and special features.

By Thursday the pattern had been well established. Rolls of turf reduced the vast open areas; coats of paint, sounds of nailing, sawing, and hammering and the arrival of more materials defined the hustle and bustle of meeting the Friday deadline.

Crews worked through Thursday night and Friday morning to add finishing touches such as a bit of paint here, a shift of materials there, and an extra nail or two.

The show opens at 4 p.m. today and continues through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Students will be admitted with ID's.

Besides the 14 student exhibits there are six departments in the College of Agriculture sponsoring exhibits.

They are: Arboriculture and Park Management, Forestry, Olericulture, Wildlife, Floriculture and two by the Department of Landscape Architecture. One exhibit will be a city planning exhibit and the other will be an exhibit of the paintings by the late Ian MacIver, artist and landscape architect, and former professor of art here at UMass.

The competitive student garden exhibits are divided into six classes: classical, traditional informal, contemporary living, contemporary visual, natural and special-anniversary. The Massachusetts Department of Agriculture has allotted agricultural prize money not to exceed $500 to be awarded. The first place in each class will receive $50, second in each class $30 and sweepstakes $20. Also, the Massachusetts Nurserymen's Association is donating $50 to be divided as overall first, second and third prizes of $25, $15 and $10 respectively.

The theme of this year's show is "100 years of Horticulture". The show will commemorate the show's 50 years as well as the University's centennial year.

Inflammable Tiles Blamed In Dorm Fire

Rapid spreading of the Abbey fire Saturday night, sources have said, was caused by the easy inflammability of the overhead tile in the corridors and of wooden parts of the building.

The fire was started by person or persons unknown who used a hot plate in the room on the second floor where the fire started. The hot plate was placed on a bookcase, which ignited as the plate overheated.

Fire went through the bookcase, up the wall, through the transom above the wooden door and ignited the tile on the corridor ceiling.

The tile was a fiberboard accoustical tile which supports combustion. It is similar to that found in a fire last year at a hospital in Hartford, Conn. The tile, once ignited, burns at a rate of ten feet a second.

The fire spread along the ceiling tile rapidly, igniting the wooden interior of the building and traveling through open transoms all along the corridors.

The blue flame reported seen by several Abbey occupants was caused by the copper screening on a window in the room which burned giving a bluish flame.

Japanese "Go" Exhibition Tomorrow

Two free public exhibitions of an ancient Oriental game similar to the Western game of chess will be held tomorrow in the Plymouth Room of the Student Union from 2 to 6 p.m. and from 8 to 11:30 p.m.

The Japanese game of Go will be demonstrated by Miss Rayoko Ozaki, a professional Go player from Japan, and Mitsuo Horiguchi, an amateur player from New York City.

Miss Ozaki is currently visiting the U.S. for a year as a representative of the Japanese Go Association. The Association is currently sponsoring Western interest in the game.

Horiguchi is the manager of the Wippon Club of New York City, a Japanese businessmen's club.

Explanation of the game will be given and audience participation will be invited, said UMass Math Dept. Professor Paul Dormont who is helping to sponsor the match.

Fraternity Round Robins Start Sat.

Interested Freshman men will be given their first opportunity to meet and talk with fraternity men tomorrow and Sunday during Round Robins.

Freshman men whose names begin with A-L will meet in the Commonwealth Room of the S.U. at 1 p.m. Saturday; M-Z on Sunday. At these times members of the Interfraternity Council will conduct small groups of freshmen to every fraternity for a short stay. Transportation will be provided.

The purpose of Round Robins is to insure every interested freshman be given an opportunity to form an impression of each house.

The advantages of Round Robins are two-fold, said an IFC spokesman. First, they give the freshman a chance to meet the brothers of every fraternity. Secondly, they insure each fraternity an equal opportunity to meet prospective pledges.

Debate Team On Active Schedule

This Saturday the UMass Debate Team will be represented by eight debaters and one observer at the Greater Boston Forensic Association Tournament.

In addition to Boston College, the UMass team will oppose such schools as Tufts, Brandeis, Harvard and M.I.T.

Last weekend, a varsity affirmative, consisting of Mike Feer and Steve Jenkins, represented the University in a demonstration debate at Amherst College.

The debate was on the national topic for this year—Resolved: that the non-Communist nations of the world should form an economic community.

On October 20, the Debate Team sent the largest contingent in its history to the Boston University Debate Tourney at Providence, Rhode Island.

The highlight of a busy fall schedule, the spokesman said, will be the Amherst College Debate Tournament, to be held on November 10. The University will be represented by eight debaters.

Annual Soph-Frosh Night Tonight

Theme of the annual Soph-Frosh night to be held tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Women's Physical Education Building will be "Centipede Stampede."

The evening will open with a Sophomore-Freshman basketball game in the women's gymnasium. All members of the Classes of '65 and '66 are invited to attend the game.

The gym will be cleared for dancing after the game, said a Soph-Frosh Night committee spokesman, with music to be provided by a five-piece band and the Statesmen, the University's men's choral group.

A humorous skit will be added to the bill, a new event this year.

There will be swimming in the women's pool for those who wish it.

An admission charge of 50 cents will be charged to cover entertainment and refreshments. Tickets will be sold at the door.

Experience is the oracle of truth and where its responses are unrequired they ought to be conclusive and sacred.—The Federalist, No. 15

Any Religion or None At All

The recent AFROTC lecture by an Air Force clergyman was certainly not the presentation of a religious fanatic (see Letters to the Editor). In fact, several cadets have mentioned that except for the compulsory nature of the lecture they enjoyed the Chaplain's speech very much.

We believe that any department on campus, including the military, has every right to offer such a lecture to the student body. However, no department has the right to enforce attendance at such a lecture. The Constitution grants each of us the right of free choice of any religion or no religion at all. Certainly the military must be aware of this.

The basic issue is not whether or not the lecture was a good one, but rather it is the principle of enforced religious instruction. The Air Force detachment on campus had no right to force such a lecture on Air Force cadets.

If cadets were free to leave at any time, as some have suggested, then we ask why there was no notice of this fact presented to the cadets previous to the lecture? N.C.A.

The Crisis Of The United Nations And It's Causes

by SEVA SUD

This is the third article in a series by Miss Seva Sud, a graduate student majoring in government. —Ed.

Now let us examine the reasons for the ineffectiveness of the Security Council.

Art. 25, paragraph 1 of the Charter of the United Nations says that the members of the United Nations agreed to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the present Charter. As far as this article of the Charter is concerned, we know that the Security Council fulfilled this function very ineffectively.

Art. 27 states, I. Each member of the Security Council shall have one vote. II. Decisions of the Security Council on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of seven members. III. Decisions of the Security Council on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of seven members, including the concurring votes of the Permanent Members, provided that, in decisions under Chapter VI, and under paragraph 3 of Art. 52, a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting.

The Security Council has eleven members in all, out of which five are permanent members: U.S.A., Great Britain, China, Soviet Union, and France; and the other six are non-permanent members, who are elected by the General Assembly, for a period of two years. Art. 27, paragraph II requires that decisions be taken in procedural matters at least by the seven members and paragraph III of the same article requires decisions on all other matters to be made by an affirmative vote of seven members, including the concurring votes of five permanent members. In other words, it means that if one of the permanent members does not vote for a resolution, then there can be no valid decision. It means that a unanimity of the permanent members is required. So here again we are facing the same problem, as was faced, in the case of the League of Nations, because the Security Council was unable to perform its function of the Executive.

So far the Soviet Union has used its veto power one hundred times, and Great Britain and France have used it only once, that in the case of the Suez issue. The United States has never used her veto power.

At the time of the framing of the Charter, it was presumed that the veto would be used only in extreme cases when the national interests were involved, but here we see that this right is being abused by the U.S.S.R.

But You Said I Could Have Them

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

INEBRIATED REASONING

To Mr. Clark:

I agree with you. I am rational. I believe that total disarmament is possible. I believe that we can create a Garden of Eden on this earth. I believe that hate and greed will automatically be abolished if we all put down our weapons. Why? Because I'm rational. And right now I'm also stone drunk. James Collins '66

To Arthur Clark, a Happily Misguided Patriot:

To tell me or anyone that disarmament is the only possibility for world peace is to take my or anyone's intelligence as being nonexistent. It is as obvious that armament leads eventually to war as it is that fire leads eventually to getting burnt. I'm one hundred percent for disarmament—omnilateral. But the question is: How feasible is it? Sadly, the answer is: Not very. How can we ever expect fair play from a nation who one day claims the missiles in Cuba are defensive, the next day non-existent, and the final day being withdrawn. It is quite clear that the Russians are not very logical if that is an example of their diplomatic reasoning.

Don't try to rationalize the irrational and reason with the unreasonable. Mr. Clark, war is surely irrational and the Russians are surely unreasonable.

I did not say, go right ahead and fight, damning the possibilities for a settlement or disarmament. I merely said that when there is no alternative, as there seemingly was last week before the Russians gave in, then, by all means, fight. I will say, however, that it is all well and good to be a rationalist, to say that the only logical solution to the world's current dilemmas is disarmament, but please, Mr. Clark et al., for my sake be realistic, also. Wake up to the fact that might fights might; right just makes good martyrs.

Russell Murphy '66

COMPULSORY RELIGION

To the Editor:

I wish to take this occasion to chide the AFROTC Department for presenting a religious fanatic to the troops. He was an excellent rhetorician but the majority of his ideas belong in a church, certainly not in a state university where things he holds true should be questioned. To make matters worse, the presentation was compulsory!

In the end, the whole affair boils down to a compulsory theo-ROTC lecture, the likes of which should not be tolerated in this or any other state university. Furthermore and on top of that we as students have a right to object to such programming. M.D.R.

PACIFISM NO!

To the Editor:

It would appear self evident, from reading the Collegian, that pacifism is running rampant at UMass. Let me, one who has been here for three years, enlighten all freshmen to what is actually going on.

Well, it all started with Palter and Theroux, two UMass pacifist students. Then came Sythesis, a unilateral disarmament group of rather dubious reputation. Messrs. Theroux and Palter were in no small way responsible for the establishment of said organization on this campus. Some of the activities indulged in by these people are picketing the ROTC ball, attending this function in various and sundry uniforms, picketing mass review, and trying to ban the bomb.

We have already had a list of "characters," and here are their parts. Messrs. Palter and Theroux advocate unilateral dis-armament, which is, as we all know, the only solution to the arms race. Here is how the game is played. First, the United States takes all of its thermonuclear weapons and drops them to the bottom of the Atlantic or Pacific ocean, depending upon which is more expedient. Now, so the theory goes, what else can Russia possibly do but follow our fine example, and dump their bombs too? This is where the only trouble arises in the theory. As all geography majors know, Russian ports are iced in for the greater part of the year, so instead of dumping their bombs in the sea, they dump them on New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco, and possibly even Westover. Now, as all you freshmen can see, this is the only way to end the arms race, and believe me, it will end the arms race in more ways than one.

Being disgusted with Synthesis for the past three years, I never bothered to look into exactly what they believe, but with Theroux and Palter as leaders, I can guess, and so can you.

Now for a historical note. As all History 5 students know, the downfall of Rome, the greatest power the world has ever known, was caused by the pacifism of the citizenry of that empire.

Et tu, United States???

LABORATORY IN PROFIT

To the Editor:

The recent fire in the Abbey has brought to the fore and uncovered several problems which have been glossed over by the administration and others concerned. The students are now becoming quite concerned.

We understand that the Student Union Book Store has offered to assist the Abbey girls in replacing their lost books by extending their credit. At the same time, the book store is subjecting the girls to the full price of the books. We realize that the store is under obligation to satisfy the wage demands of their employees. However, due to the extraordinary circumstances of this situation, we would not consider it unreasonable for the book store to sell these books at cost.

It is the theory that a student operated book store in a student owned building should be geared to the financial welfare of the students. The university is not to be used as a laboratory for the practices of the prevalent profit motive.

In view of the fact that many organizations on campus are giving of themselves in this time of need, an act of their generosity would certainly display an example of supreme humanitarianism.

COULD HAVE LEFT

To the Editor:

In reply to Mr. Axelrod's objection, printed in the Wednesday, Oct. 31, 1962 Collegian, to the fact that a . . . "talk about religion and God to be tainted by its compulsory nature" . . . , could be allowed, I would like to say only two things.

First the talk was on morals and not on religion and second if Mr. Axelrod's objection was truly sincere he could have left without objection from anyone at any time during the talk.

Humphries, Tucker To Read Poems Tuesday

Amherst professor Rolphe Humphries and UMass professor Robert Tucker will read their poems at Jones Library next Tuesday for the Amherst Art Center's second poetry program of the season.

Professor Humphries, who received Amherst College's B.A. in 1915 and its Honorary M.A. in 1950, has taught at his alma mater since 1957. He is the recipient of a Guggenheim Fellowship, the Shelley Memorial Award, the Borestone Mountain Poetry Award, and a $5000 Academy of American Poets Fellowship. In addition, he has produced six books of poetry and is widely published in periodicals.

Assistant Professor of English at UMass, where he has taught since 1951, Robert Tucker received the Amherst College B.A. in 1949, the Harvard M.A. in 1951 and the State University of Iowa Ph.D. in 1961.

His work has appeared in several periodicals and a book of his poems, A Way of Looking, will shortly appear in Curious Quire, a joint-volume being published by the Committee for a UMass press.

WMUA To Assist Students Evicted From Abbey By Fire

WMUA, the campus radio station, will contribute to the campaign to aid the students of Abigail Adams House this weekend with programming activities to help the fund, to be administered by the Financial Aid services of the University.

On Saturday evening, special programming within the regular music format will continue for one hour beyond the regular sign off time of 1 a.m.

On Sunday morning the Sounds of Sunday will begin at 8 a.m., one hour earlier than usual, and at 10 a.m. WMUA will begin broadcasting from the lobby of the Student Union. At that time donations to the fund will be solicited and accepted.

All those who contribute will be eligible to fill out a selection slip. These slips will be placed in a container, and periodically throughout the day records will be awarded to those whose names are drawn from this container.

From 6:30 to 7 p.m. Sunday evening, UMass Homecoming Queen Pam Chace '65, and the co-captains of the 1962 Redman football team, Paul Majeski and Tom Kirby, will be at the WMUA microphones in the lobby of the Union to solicit donations.

At 7 p.m. the names of one man and one woman will be drawn from the containers by Miss Chace and Majeski and Kirby.

Either the person whose name is drawn or another of his or her choice will be entitled to do a one-hour dee-jay show over WMUA the following Wednesday between 8 and 10 p.m.

The man will share the mike at that time with Miss Chace, and the woman with Majeski and Kirby.

Both will broadcast their own shows. The winners may select their own music. An engineer and any additional help required will be provided.

Yale Prof. Will Deliver Talk On Wm. Wordsworth

Frederick A. Pottle of the Yale University English Dept. will talk on "How to Become a Wordsworthian and Like It" Monday at 8 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium.

The lecture is the third Rand Lecture, given annually at UMass.

The Rand lectureship was set up to bring speakers to this campus to talk on those aspects of English Literature which interested Frank Prentice Rand, formerly a member of the University's English Department.

The fund was set up in 1959 by 700 of his former students.

Rand, now living in Amherst, is author of several books, including a history of the University and one of the town of Amherst.

Princeton's Rabbi Levey Hillel Guest

"Rationalism, Modern Science, and Judaism" will be the speech topic of Rabbi Irving Levey of Princeton University, who will talk at the Hillel Foundation delicatessen supper, Sunday, November 4, at 5:30 p.m. in the dining rooms of the S.U.

Rabbi Levey received his M.A. from Harvard University and has been a graduate fellow at Dropsie College in Philadelphia.

An authority on Medieval Jewish Philosophy and the thought of Averroes or Ibn Rushd, Rabbi Levey has been lecturer in Judaism in relation to Christianity at Princeton Theology Seminary and Chaplain to Jewish students and Director of the Hillel Foundation at Princeton since 1948.

He has also served as librarian and member of the faculty at Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati.

Admission to the supper is 50¢ for members and $1.00 for non-members. All are invited to attend.

Pall Mall Presents~ GIRL WATCHER'S GUIDE

HORN-RIMMED BOOKSTACKER

CAMPUS TYPE III

The Bookstacker serves the cause of classical literature in various ways. Perhaps the least of these is in keeping the rows of books properly aligned and the jackets free of dust.

Her most important contribution is in improving the environment for study, enhancing the halls of learning with her own classical form. Many a college man has discovered a previously unfelt craving for knowledge simply because he received his copy of Homer from the hand of a deep-breathing redhead who sighed, "I think Homer is the most!" Yes, it pays to take a good look at the classics now and then.

Among cigarettes, Pall Mall is a classic—famous length, fine tobacco . . . no flat "filtered-out" flavor, no dry "smoked-out" taste. Try Pall Mall and see!

Pall Mall's natural mildness is so good to your taste!

So smooth, so satisfying, so downright smokeable!

This Colonial-type residence will be built by Kappa Kappa Gamma on Nutting Avenue. The two and one-half story structure, designed by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Schmitz of Detroit, will cost an estimated $165,000. Features of the house include sleeping accommodations for 54 girls and dining facilities for 80.

AEPi Tops In Scholastics; Theta Chi Wins IFC Trophy

The yearly averages, September, 1961, to June, 1962, of the fifteen fraternities on campus revealed that Alpha Epsilon Pi had the highest house average, 2.314. In second place was Lambda Chi Alpha with an average of 2.189, followed by QTV with a 2.165.

The all fraternity average of the 963 members and pledges was 2.083.

Theta Chi has been awarded the Interfraternity Council for having the highest number of academic, athletic and other competition points for the 1961-62 school year.

The award of the trophy was made to Theta Chi House President Bruce McCracken by IFC President Steve Israel.

With an accumulated 102 points for the year, Theta Chi placed first in IFC competition in football and the 1962 float parade and second in softball.

QTV placed second in the competition with 65 points and AEPi was third with 61 points.

SORORITY PROFILES

The first chapter of Kappa Kappa Gamma was founded in 1870 in Illinois. Kappa was the first sorority to publish a magazine and the first to call a National Panhellenic meeting.

In 1942 Sigma Beta Chi became the Delta Nu chapter of Kappa Kappa Gamma. Six years after becoming national, Kappa bought the house it is presently occupying. This past year land was purchased on which a new chapter house is being built. The new home will be erected adjacent to the athletic field and the completion date is February, 1964.

Kappa Kappa Gamma provides many aids for girls, regardless of sorority affiliation, in the form of loans, scholarships, and fellowships. Aside from these aids, Kappa national has many funds to help needy girls.

The present sixty-five Kappa undergraduates are very active in academic and social activities on campus, such as Scrolls, Mortar Board, cheerleaders, Revelers, class officers, and Musigals. In past years Kappa has been successful in winning prizes for their floats, snow sculptures, and singing.

SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA

Four enthusiastic junior girls, Linda Perley, Michele Abladian, Dorothy Adams, and Elaina Menin, realizing the need for more sororities on this growing campus, proceeded to work towards the foundation of the ninth Greek sorority at the University of Mass. in February, 1962. As they spread the word to their friends, the number interested multiplied. They became acquainted with Sigma Sigma Sigma through Nancy Frazier, a sister from Rho chapter of Florida State University, who was attending the University of Mass. as an exchange student. Through her they gained guidance and inspiration. Their decision was to become directly affiliated rather than go through a period of localization.

This goal, colonization, which is a means of expansion by a national sorority on a college campus, was unique in the fact that it had never been accepted at UMass before. The usual rule is that a National sorority is asked to come on a campus by the administration and is given a special rushing period held by national officers of the respective sorority. However, it was the nucleus of interested girls on this

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

Thanks ATG for a marvelous exchange supper. However, if the hors d'oeuvres hadn't finally disappeared, I don't think any of us would have budged from the living room. The "smoker" after was also very enjoyable—thanks to Corky.

Thanks also to the boys from Zeta Nu, Beta Kappa Phi, and Q.T.V. who helped us to build our UNESCO booth last week.

CHI OMEGA

Hootie-Hoot, the Chi Omega Owl, was spooked from his perch at 315 Lincoln Avenue on Sunday evening. A haunting band of pint-sized pumpkins, goblins and ghosts scurried up the front walk to the House and paid little heed to the strange ghost guarding the doorway. Within, Hootie could see candle-light flickering through the grinning visage of a toothless orange pumpkin and heard delighted welcomes being exchanged.

A few moments revealed that Chi O was not being haunted by Halloween strangers, but, in fact, that the sisters had invited the neighborhood children in for a party of thanks for their morale boosting enthusiasm over the "pink pig" on Homecoming Weekend.

Hootie soon heard songs and games from within. The traditional bobbing for apples and costume parade followed with prizes being awarded for the most outstanding costumes. Refreshments were accompanied by more singing, while the parents enjoyed coffee and cupcakes with Mrs. Young.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA

All the Kappas are anxiously waiting for contruction to begin on their new house. At a zoning board meeting last week Kappa was granted a building permit, so the dream of a new house will soon begin to materialize.

Last week Kappa's province director of chapters, Mrs. Shute, came to formulate plans for the forthcoming Kappa province convention to be held here next September. This convention is held every other year at various chapters throughout the province. The travelling secretary is also expected this Thursday With all these plans, the sisters expect to have a very busy year.

The Kappas would like to thank the Phi Sigma Delta's for all their help on the U. N. Carnival booth, and through combined efforts were very proud to have won second place.

LAMBDA DELTA PHI

Last Saturday the sisters of Alpha entertained four of their sisters from Delta chapter at BU. The officers, including the president, were here for the game and also to meet some of the new sisters at the University.

Lambda Phi would like to express its appreciation to the brothers of Beta Phi who were so helpful in making our booth a success last Friday evening.

Our dinner guest Wednesday evening was Mrs. Theresa deKerpely, head of residence of the former Abbey. Our chaplain, Maddie Marsella, was a counselor in that dormitory, but Mrs. deKerpely and all the Lambda Phi's were gratified to learn that Maddie's losses were confined to smoke and water damage and were lighter than expected.

FRATERNITY PROFILES

KAPPA SIGMA

Kappa Sigma fraternity was founded at the University of Virginia in 1869. Since that time it has expanded to include 101 chapters all over the country. Gamma Delta chapter was established here at the University in 1915.

Our present membership consists of sixty brothers, many of whom represent us in every varsity sport. Kappa Sigma has placed and won in many of the scholastic and intramural competitions among the fraternities.

At the house our biggest asset continues to be our housemother, Mrs. Rosa Bouthilette.

In the following weeks we are looking forward to meeting all the freshman men.

PHI SIGMA KAPPA

Alpha Mu Chapter of Phi Sigma Delta Fraternity traces its origin back to what was once known as the "Triangle Club" in 1951. Four years later the organization became a colony of Phi Sigma Delta, and in 1957 was recognized as a national fraternity. In 1959 a chapter house was acquired and the following year a new kitchen was installed.

Improvements of the house are still being carried out. An additional living room was constructed by last semester's pledge class. Also, over a $1,000 worth of new furniture has been ordered, plus a jukebox to provide recreation on weekends when no official parties are scheduled.

Phi Sigma Delta is active in extra-curricular as well as scholastic fields of endeavor. A large percentage of the brothers belong to various campus organizations. Proof that the brothers can also tackle the books is brought out by the fact that in the first semester of last year the house placed second in IFC academic competition.

The house also takes pride in having a very capable staff of adult guidance and assistance. These include the housemother, Miss Dorothy Pyle, a graduate of Mount Holyoke College; Mrs. Mary Szawlowski, the house's remarkable cook; Mr. Vincent Parisi, alumni advisor, and Mr. Wynne, faculty advisor and a popular instructor in the Chemistry department.

PHI SIGMA DELTA

Most students have noticed the plaque on the outside of Machmer Hall. This denotes the founding on Phi Sigma Kappa at the University of Massachusetts on March 15, 1873. The national fraternity has grown and now includes seventy-four active chapters. Alpha chapter is located on this campus at 510 N. Pleasant St.

Besides growing nationally, we have participated in all phases of campus life. The brothers are represented in various campus athletics and activities. Our social functions are numerous and varied.

We are looking forward to Round Robins and the beginning of Rush with great enthusiasm.

B.U. Prof. Will Lecture Next Tuesday

Dr. William C. Kvaraceus, professor of education at Boston University and an internationally-recognized authority on juvenile delinquency, will give a public lecture at UMass Tuesday.

In his lecture, sponsored by the University's education club and scheduled for 7:30 a.m., at the School of Education auditorium, Dr. Kvaraceus will speak on the role of schools in the juvenile delinquency problem. Based on his own experience, the doctor will compare methods of dealing with this problem, both in the United States and abroad.

While on sabbatical leave from B.U. in 1952-53, Dr. Kvaraceus served with the Turkish Ministry of Education as a consultant on the education of exceptional children and the process of psychological measurement.

In 1958 and 1959, he directed a National Education Association project on juvenile delinquency. Last year Dr. Kvaraceus worked with UNESCO, directing a project dealing with adolescents with particular reference to the socially inadapted youth. In connection with this project, he worked closely with 12 research centers in different parts of the world that had programs dealing with the same problem.

He is the author of two books, "Juvenile Delinquency and the School" and "The Community and the Delinquent." He has written many articles which have appeared in professional journals.

Dr. Kvaraceus graduated from Boston College and received his doctorate from Harvard University.

Contest Can Yield Publication

The National Poetry Press of Los Angeles has announced its annual poetry competition open to all college students. Although there are no limitations as to form or theme, shorter works are preferred because of space limitations.

In addition, teachers and librarians are invited to submit poetry for consideration for possible inclusion in the "Annual Anthology of Teachers' Poetry."

The closing date for student submissions is November 5; teachers and librarians must have their entries in by January 1.

All interested students, teachers and librarians should mail their manuscripts to the offices of the National Poetry Press, 3210 Selby Ave., Los Angeles 34, California.

WASHINGTON PRESS SERVICE

Importance Of Campus Clubs Emphasized By Major Parties

Many leaders of campus political clubs have privately felt that the Democratic and Republican parties regard them as political "window dressing." Spokesmen for both national parties denied this last week. Student groups are playing an increasingly larger role in national and Congressional election campaigns, they say.

Jim Hunt, college director for the Democratic National committee, was asked: "How important do political parties consider their college branches?"

"Both parties consider them important enough to expend a great deal of money in that field, to maintain a permanent staff at national headquarters to deal with them and constantly send out literature and other campaign material to them," he replied.

"I'm not sure whether Democrats or Republicans spend the most on college activities. I believe the GOP has the larger staff. But you can be sure that neither of us is ignoring this potent field."

Both the Democratic and Republican campus clubs operate as branches of the Young Democratic and Young Republican national organizations.

Campus Organizations Independent

"Sheila Beck, administrative secretary for the Republican College Service Committee generally agreed with Hunt. According to both spokesmen, the campus organizations have a surprising amount of independence from the national organizations but work through them in a command chain.

In many respects, Hunt said, the college units do an even more important job than some of the Young Democratic groups and are more active in some areas.

Some campus clubs see their independence from the national organizations in a different light than the national spokesmen, however. One campus Young Democrat explained that the college clubs are autonomous groups primarily "because nobody has figured out how to use them."

Within the Young Democrats national organization there is a running battle between college and non-college factions, he explained. The college YD's are too liberal for the national organization, especially on the issue of civil rights. Southern YD's have successfully blocked national funds for the campus groups for over two years. Previously the national Young Democrats had set up appropriations for the campus groups, he said.

"It's a direct slap in the face, a challenge to the legitimacy of our organizations," said one campus Young Democrat. "It's not the lack of money we mind," he added, "we never get much anyway. But this fight makes it harder for us to get national figures to speak on campus. They are afraid of offending the rest of the Young Democrats."

Membership Heavy In Election Years

When asked about the role of the campus Young Democrats, Hunt said: "We have between 500 and 700 Young Democrat college clubs with a membership of between 75,000 and 100,000 students that are active year in and year out. In a presidential election year we may have two or three times that many.

"One of their purposes is to familiarize students with the issues, the political process, the nature of the parties and to give them a chance to get to know the party leaders.

"A second purpose is to make the clubs instrumental in determining the outcome of elections. We have been putting more emphasis on this than ever before.

"Many clubs are considered a major part of the campaign effort in some Congressional districts. The students provide manpower to canvass the community, hand out literature, and conduct a research on voting records of candidates."

Sheila Beck, who graduated last year from Miami University of Ohio, recalled that during her undergraduate days, the Republican club at Miami sent 16 busloads of students to Cincinnati to help in the 1960 Nixon campaign.

She said that the GOP College Service Committee in Washington has a $500 a month budget for mailings to campus groups around the country. In addition, she said, the national office helps line up national figures to speak at colleges. She estimated Republican campus membership at more than 100,000.

"To show you that these clubs are more than just an afterthought of the Young Republicans," she said, "several of them offer regular campaign headquarters in small college towns where otherwise there wouldn't

Harriers To Defend YC Championship

The University of Massachusetts varsity cross-country team and its sensational Bob Brouillet hope to successfully defend their titles in the Yankee Conference Championship meet Saturday at Storrs, Conn.

The Redmen, coached by Bill Footrick, have won the title the past two years and Brouillet finished first last fall as a sophomore. Two years ago when the Redmen won, Dave Balch (Brookville) placed first as a sophomore. Now, Balch is Co-Capt. and would like nothing better than to finish among the top five. Brouillet's performance this fall has been highly notable. The lanky (6', 175 lb.) Forestry major has won five of six races, setting three course records. His only defeat was by Central Connecticut's Jim Keefe, defending New England titlist.

The UMass harriers take a 7-2 overall record into the Conference meet. The Redmen lost 28-29 to undefeated Harvard and 26-29 at Army. Although the Redmen already own a 27-31 win over Maine, Footrick looks for the Black Bears to be the chief contenders for the title. "Maine is improved and has good team balance," Footrick stated, "and Connecticut, Rhode Island and New Hampshire have individuals who can all place very high."

The other UMass entrants besides Brouillet and Balch will be Jim Wrynn, Bob Pendleton, Ken O'Brien, Tom Panke and Co-Capt. Dick Blomstrom.

Booters Romp Over Clark; Travel To Army Saturday

by DAVE PODBROS '65

Last Wednesday, at Clark, the UMass varsity soccer team added another victory to its record to make it 5 wins and 3 losses. Playing on an extremely wet field, the UMass bootmen shut out Clark University, 5 to 0.

Scoring for the Redmen were Pat McDevitt, who scored two goals, Bob Chenery, Tony Palatino, and Gerry Clinton. Chenery again started at inside and played a fine game, as did Palatino. Also good on offense was Tom Astaldi.

On defense, Captain Dick Repeta had his usual good day, and Dick Phillips, at goalie who has improved tremendously since the beginning of the season, gave Clark the shutout.

Saturday, UMass travels to West Point to play an Army team that has so far only lost one game. Coach Briggs and his squad hope to be the cause for the second West Point defeat.

Fullback PAT McDEVITT

Briggs says that the team showed "good teamwork" in the Clark game. A continuation of this will give Army a rough match.

Little Redmen Go For Third Straight Win; Face Brewster

by AL RICE '66

The freshman football team in search of its third straight win, meets its toughest foe of the year tomorrow on the shores of Lake Winnipesaukee as it tangles with Brewster Academy of Wolfboro, New Hampshire.

The Redmen opened the year with a win at Manlius School by staging a second half aerial show. They then downed the Holy Cross freshmen 12-6 in a grind-it-out-a-few-yards - at -a - time game in a snowstorm last Friday.

However Brewster is expected to field a much more powerful team than either of the two UMass opponents to date.

Last year at Amherst, with two top notch ends and a fine quarterback, Brewster passed the Redmen to a sound beating. The tables are slightly turned this year, however, since both the ends of last season's Brewster team are now wearing the Maroon and White of the Redmen, and the passing quarterback has graduated. The two Brewster alumni now with Mass are Milt Morin and Bob Meers, two of the most valuable men in the Redmen lineup.

Brewster Depends On Ground Game

This Brewster team is much more dependent on a ground game to roll up the scoring since they have neither outstanding receivers nor a good passer. Their quarterback, Bob MacLean, is a master runner off a rollout, but he doesn't throw the long bomb needed to keep the defense honest. And defense is what the Redmen have plenty of. Last week they smothered Holy Cross for a loss of 47 yards in the first half, and in the opening game they stopped cold the Manlius offense, which consisted mainly of a rollout quarterback for most of the game.

Hillson Out

The offense has been the only problem lately, and it has not been helped by the fact that Bob Hillson again will not be in the lineup due to an injured foot. The rest of the backfield consisting of Bob Taylor, Bob Ellis, Dave Kelley, and Bob DeLue, Hillson's replacement, are set for action.

The outlook for the Redmen isn't bad by any standard, especially since Bob Eaton,' the man who notched one of the touchdowns last week, is available for plenty of reserve action.

LACROSSE

There will be an important meeting of all varsity lacrosse team candidates on Wednesday, November 7, at 4:15 p.m. in Room 14 of the Cage.

TICKETS

Tickets for the Vermont Game Saturday at Burlington will be sold in the Men's Physical Education Building until 3:00 p.m. Friday. These are reserved seats usually selling for $2.50 and are available for the student price of one dollar.

Redmen Face Improved UVM; Lussier Out Of Action

by STEVE HEWEY '63

The University of Vermont, facing a full Yankee Conference schedule for the first time since 1956, meets the cream of the crop in Yan-Con competition this Saturday afternoon when it plays host to the visiting University of Massachusetts. The Catamounts with their first year coach Bob Clifford are preparing to meet the Redmen for the first time since they were nosed out, 14-13, by UM in 1957.

Conference-wise U of M has an unblemished slate of three wins and no losses while the UVM eleven has a 1-2 record. In league play Vermont owns one win over Rhode Island and losses against Maine and undefeated New Hampshire. The Vermont squad has the honor of running up the biggest score over any opponent in New England this season. This was an 82-6 drubbing of R.P.I.

When the Redmen take the field Saturday they will have to contend with a team that has been improving each game this season. Vermont has a good pair of halfbacks, Dean Kent and Ken Burton, that are rated as potential threats any Saturday afternoon. Tackle Dave Sequist and end Frank Balden along with end Bill Burke have been sparking the Catamount play up front. But the difference in the lines could tell the story for the contest. UM has a bigger line that has seen some tougher service than has the UVM front wall.

Last Saturday's loss to Boston University left the Redmen without the services of star halfback Sam Lussier who will miss the Vermont game because of torn leg ligaments. All season long Lussier has found Yankee Conference teams a cinch to pile up rushing yardage against. Senior Ken Kezer is expected to fill in for the injured Lussier against Vermont. There is one bright side to the injury picture. Soph end John Hudson, out with a bruised hip as the result of the URI game, could be well enough to draw duty Saturday.

Once again, coach Vic Fusia will have his number one quarterback in action. The flashy Jerry Whelchel, who scored the only UM TD against the Terriers, looks better every game. Without Lussier around to bear a great deal of the offensive burden Saturday, Whelchel will have to pick up some of the slack himself.

How did Redmen Mentor Vic Fusia react to his team's loss against the Terriers? Said the coach, "They are big and strong; it's surprising that they haven't won more games, but of course they've been playing some of the top teams in the country and giving them close games." Wonder how close they'll come to Army this week?

UConn To Meet UNH In Important YanCon Clash

Connecticut and New Hampshire, a pair of YanCon rivals who have made a habit of staging exciting football contests, clash at Durham, N.H., Saturday in a game which finds the winner still nursing an outside chance for this year's title.

UNH carries an undefeated record into the game with an over-all 4-0-1 figure and a 2-0-1 Conference mark, compared to Connecticut's 2-3 over-all and 1-1 loop ledger. Both are behind conference leader UMass (3-0) in the league.

The Wildcats' Frank DiQuattro, a halfback, has a 5.3 yards per carry average; and Lloyd Wells of UNH leads the loop in passing with 18 for 35 attempts for 295 yards and three TD's. Dan Sereika shares the league scoring lead with two others at 18 points.

UConn has about the same starting lineup which was pounded by Delaware last week. Gerry White moves from fullback to replace the injured Sean Sgrulletta — the team's leading runner with 199 yards in 53 carries.

The hard-hitting Wildcat line has drawn the plaudits of its coaching staff week after week.

QB Wells has come along in giant strides, two seniors or a pair of juniors may be called upon to play the halfback positions.

BAKER'S DOZEN

by NEIL BAKER '66

After a one week layoff (in which I went AWOL), I find myself returning to my badly beaten crystal ball.

The YanCon finds all teams in action with four engaged in league contests. The Connecticut Huskies travel to the Granite State to meet the UNH Wildcats. For once, the cats will tame the dogs. The Fusiamen, also traveling north, find themselves in Burlington to take on the Vermont Catamounts. Redmen should getum much scalps. Lil' Rhody will be Ram-ing the Springfield Maroons as the Maine Bears will knock the hel—mets off of poor little Colby.

In other New England action . . . Army, Paul Dietzel, and 1200 cadets will prove too much for B.U. . . . B.C. will add much prestige to the northeast by knocking off Vanderbilt . . . Top-ranked N.E. team Dartmouth should strengthen its Ivy League standings at Yale . . . The Crimson fly once more! More woe for UPenn.

GAME OF THE WEEK

The top game in New England—and most likely in the nation—finds unbeaten Tufts visiting unbeaten Amherst. Tufts has both defense and offense with a record to prove it. Against five opponents this year they have outscored the oppositions 124-26. They have the most explosive backfield in N.E. in its DDT arsenal—Deveaux and Doran of Tufts. Last week the Jumbos beat Williams, another unbeaten team, 8-0. But the score is deceiving. Tufts came four times inside the Ephmans 10-yard line. They out first-downed the opposition 17-5. The intercepted one Williams pass and recovered two fumbles. They outgained (ground and air) them 305-105; more than double. All this: against a Williams team that had not been scored upon for over 500 minutes!

Amherst also has a well rounded team. The accurate passing arm of quarterback Mark Hallam parlayed with the hard running of halfback Bob Santonelli and John North; the Lord Jeffs have nothing to worry about. They piled up over 400 yards last week while beating Wesleyan 18-6. But Amherst doesn't have enough depth. The Jumbos are too good for the Jeffers—it's Tufts by a TD plus.

NATIONALLY

The Nitanny Lions of Penn State, in spite of the passing of Dick Shiner and everything else, should squeeze by Maryland . . . It's been all downhill for Pitt after its upset of UCLA a month ago. Syracuse won't help . . . Notre Dame, which has seen many, many, better days will politely lose one more to Navy . . . A Big Ten game of great importance has Michigan State facing Minnesota. A tossup, but I say MSU . . . To end it off on an easy note Northwestern Wildcats clawing the Indiana Hoosiers.

SUMMARY

UNH over UConn	Dartmouth over Yale
UMass over Vermont	Harvard over UPenn
URI over Springfield	Tufts over Amherst
Maine over Colby	Penn St. over Maryland
Army over B.U.	Syracuse over Pittsburgh
B.C. over Vanderbilt	Navy over Notre Dame
Northwestern over Indiana	Michigan St. over Minnesota

be a party office."

Miss Beck said that the Republicans have 800 member clubs registered, some in every state in the union. She said the organization is "very weak" in Louisiana, but is "very active" in another southern state, North Carolina.

GOP Strong in Midwest, Democrats in New England

Most of the GOP strength is concentrated in the midwest—in the area running from North Dakota down through Oklahoma and eastward through Ohio, she said.

Hunt said the Democrats are strongest in New England, but also have big organizations in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, North Carolina and some areas of the midwest.

Are college clubs a stepping-stone to power in the national party?

Unquestionably, according to both Hunt and Miss Beck. Hunt noted that Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina was a leader of the campus club at the University of North Carolina. Other student club leaders have advanced to become state party chairmen, he said.

Miss Beck listed a number of state legislators who were active in campus clubs only a few years ago. She named William A. Steiger of the Wisconsin State Legislature; Tom Van Sickle, Kansas State senator; Harold Froehlich, another Wisconsin legislator, and Bob Hughes, Tennessee Republican treasurer.

campus who petitioned Tri Sigma to be accepted as a prospective colony.

Colonization was then explained as fully as possible to the administration by Nancy and Mrs. R. J. Dobson, a Tri Sigma National Officer from Connecticut. Many other conferences were held where Nancy was asked questions concerning her attitudes toward Greek life, what Sigma Sigma Sigma meant to her and what she felt it had to offer others. Through a conference with Linda Perley and Dorothy Stoklosa, speaking for the group as a whole, Dean Curtis and Mrs. Gonon learned that the girls had an understanding of Tri Sigma's history and traditions and felt that they were ready to undertake the responsibilities of sorority life.

The National Constitution of Tri Sigma was read and approved by Dean Curtis and Mrs. Gonon. The girls were informed in May that they could become the first colony at the UMass. It was at this time that colonization was made a permanent policy on this campus.

The girls, twenty-two in number, waited as patiently as possible for news from Tri Sigma National. They soon received a telegram informing them that their petition had been accepted by the Executive Council. With sighs of happiness their pledging date was set for May 20, 1962.

Panhellenic, which had given encouragement during the long months, voted Tri Sigma in in May 1962.

This year the Tri Sigmas have returned to campus with the intentions of making this a Centennial year to remember. They are working towards changing their status from a Colony of Sigma Sigma Sigma to the 64th chapter of Tri Sigma early next semester.

Second Semester Bills Will Be Mailed In Dec.

Dean of Students William Field has announced that University bills for the second semester will be mailed in early December with all payments due by January 11, 1963.

Board and room charges for the second semester will be billed to all students who were responsible for these charges for the first semester, he said, unless approval of the Dean of Men or Dean of Women to a change has been arranged. Students who anticipate any change in board or room status which has not already been approved should apply to the Dean of Men or Dean of Women by November 16.

The Deans' lists will serve as the basis for room and board billings. If a student's second semester bill is to be corrected, all changes must be made through the appropriate Deans' Office by November 16, when final preparation of bills will be made by the Treasurer's Office.

Application should be made to the University Health Service prior to November 16 to extend an existing suspension of the board or residence requirements to the second semester, he said. Excuses from these basic requirements which are now in effect through the approval of the Dean of Men or Dean of Women should also be updated and extended prior to November 16. Religious excuses from the board requirement will extend automatically to the second semester.

Students who are currently on the boarding list but who will reach the age of 21 prior to February 1, 1963, may have the board charge removed from their second semester bill by requesting such action through the appropriate Dean's Office prior to November 16.

If there are any questions concerning the board and room billing procedures, Dean Field said, students should take them up with the Deans during this period and insure the correctness of the second semester bill.

UMass Business Manager G. Grady To Give Lecture

Gerald J. Grady, UMass Business Manager, will speak at My Best Lecture on Wednesday, from 4 to 5 p.m., in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union. The lecture is sponsored by the S.U. Special Events Committee.

Grady, born in Port Washington, Wisconsin, received degrees from Lawrence College and the University of Chicago. While teaching government at the University of Maine, he was a Congressional Fellow, serving on the staffs of Congressman Richard Bolling and Senator Joseph S. Clark, and in 1958 he was the Democratic candidate for Congress from Maine's Third District. For the past three years, he has been the Assistant Director of the Bureau of Government Research in Amherst, and became Business Manager in February, 1962.

All are invited to listen to his lecture, entitled "Not So Ivory Towered." His comments will relate particularly to the "student's opportunity and obligation to prepare himself during his college years for positions of political responsibility and leadership."

Who Should Be Senator; Panel Topic

"Which candidate ought to be senator from Massachusetts?" is the subject of a faculty debate scheduled for 4 p.m. today in the Commonwealth Room.

William O'Hare, Jr., Director of the Bureau of Government Research, will debate on behalf of Edward M. Kennedy; Professor Albert Madeira, Department of English, will speak for George C. Lodge, and David Leonard, Department of History, will support H. Stuart Hughes.

The Graduate School's Dean Edward C. Moore will serve as moderator of the debate which is sponsored by the Faculty Committee for Hughes.

Revelers Will Sponsor Student Activities Night

The UMass Revelers are again this year sponsoring a Student Activities Night on Wednesday, Nov. 7, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Student Union.

The event, planned to introduce freshmen to the various campus extracurricular activities, will be held on the mezzanine over the lobby of the Union.

Among the groups participating in the Student Activities Night will be radio station WMUA, which will be set up in the lobby, Yahoo, the Square Dance Club, Equestrian Club, the Commuters Club, Operetta Guild, the Art Club, the Education Club, Debating Society, Naiads, Scuba, and the Collegian.

According to Dave Bates, co-chairman of the event, all freshmen are urged to investigate the exhibits, in order to determine what organizations they may be interested in. Bates pointed out that now that freshmen have passed the mid-semester point, many will be sure enough of scholastic progress to look into the extracurricular activities offered by the UMass campus.

STAFF NEEDED

The Collegian needs your help. This year's staff and Executive Board have made every possible effort to improve the Collegian, and we feel that we have made a great deal of progress.

Our most basic problem at this moment is that we do not have the staff necessary to insure future improvements. Please help.

Color Riot Brightens Cage In 50th Hort Show Classic

by IRIS LOFARO '66

Prize winning flowers of scorching reds, vibrant yellows, regal purples, and snowy whites filled Curry-Hicks for the 50th Annual Horticultural Show this past weekend.

Six first prize and six second prize awards went to creative UMass students for displays featuring garden settings and floral arrangements. Special features were an outdoor recreation area and a history of the growth of the University as seen by a one hundred-year-old oak tree.

Fresh grass donated by the Turf Management Club covered most of the Cage providing an outdoor setting with the flavor of Fall. Pictures of past Hort Shows recalled the best of the fifty year classic. A touch of the future was depicted in the model of a towering architectural design, the proposed Centennial Campanile which present University plans have located at the new Route 116 campus entrance.

"Pierian Spring" Winner

Winners included "Pierian Spring," recipient of the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture State Award of 1962, the Massachusetts Nurserymen's First Prize Award, and the UMass Student first prize award. Entered by John Croive and Terry Robinson, "Pierian Spring" featured the simplicity of a flower enclosed garden with a sculptured child pouring water into a miniature pool.

The second prize Massachusetts Nurserymen's Association winner, and also UMass Student winner was entered by Carpenter, Guilford, and Johnson. "A Glimpse of New England" was a scenic Autumn view of a small wooded area sheltering wild animals in rural New England against a background picture of a distant farmhouse.

"Atrium", the third prize Massachusetts Nurserymen's association winner and holder of a first prize UMass Student award, entered by Donald Noyes, Jr. and George Hannum featured an antique vase pouring water into a shallow pool at the foot of a staircase.

Other Entries Included

Three other entries received first prize UMass Student awards. They include, "Three Coins in the Fountain" by Charles Waeldi, Richard Lapinski, Allan Woodbury, and David Silvia; "Ledge Garden", by James Curtis and Pete Stanley; and "Oriental Touch" by Ives Ewell and R. Javis.

Two Events To Be Held For Abbey

The proceeds of two events being held in the Student Union Ballroom this week will go to the Abigail Adams fund.

On Tuesday night, the Band of Tony Ravosa and guitar player Taj Mahal will present a concert at eight o'clock.

Wednesday at 6 p.m. and 8 p.m., a film, "Mighty Joe Young", will be shown.

According to Mike Rosenthal '63 and Steve Israel '63, members of the Campus Co-ordinating Council, recently established as an Ad Hoc Committee by the Student Senate, these two events have been planned specifically for the purpose of donating to the fund for the Abby residents.

The proceeds of the activities, as well as other donations and contributions for the Abby, will be handled in conjunction with the Office of Financial Aid of the University.

Commons Not To Be Open This Weekend

University Boarding will not serve meals Nov. 10, 11, and 12, Saturday, Sunday, and Monday.

John F. Martin, manager of the boarding halls, has announced that five-day and weekend meal tickets will not be honored on those dates. He said that all boarding halls will be closed after the evening meal on Friday, Nov. 9, and will resume food service beginning with breakfast on Tuesday, Nov. 13.

Campus food service will be provided at the Student Union on those days.

WAKE UP DRIVERS

In last year's editions of the Collegian we recall seeing the state of conditions on Route 116, the main road through campus, written of on two occasions. Apparently no notice was taken of these words.

It is a common boast of the drivers on this campus that they disregard the speed limits of the University. This to most is a laughing matter, or was. It can safely be considered so no longer. On this past Saturday night a very familiar student figure on this campus was struck down trying to cross the afore-mentioned road in front of the girls' dorms. It is unfortunate that such a thing should be possible when a little caution and obedience to common rules would go far to prevent it. It is doubly unfortunate that these simple rules should be considered a joke by those to whom they apply.

True, we can say that it is the duty of the pedestrian to be alert and to avoid the near occasion of such an occurrence, but this does not lessen in the least the driver's responsibility to insure that if the pedestrian fails, he will not. Though we were not with the driver and did not know his every move we must say that if his attitude was that of a majority of students he must have gotten a big dose of learning last Saturday. We can only hope that this will not happen again. —R.J.M.

OEDIPUS REX

A GREEK TRAGEDY

by ANN MILLER

The University Theatre scored with its production this weekend of Oedipus Rex, first in its four-play season. Technically, the production was top flight. Directing, lighting, staging and costuming would have been acclaimed excellent had it been done by a professional troupe. As it was, they chalked up many points for the embryo Theatre.

Major flaw in the production was a sharp division between fine amateur acting and mediocre amateur acting. Frank Powers' treatment of Oedipus was exceptional; the feeling of a man discovering tragedy, the transition from the haughty king Oedipus to the outcast sinner Oedipus is portrayed with perfect sympathy by Powers. On the other hand, Robert Landry as the aged priest was notably lacking in attributes to fill this character role. Aside from his uncertain acting talent, Landry's chief liability in this role was his youthful voice, incongruous with his part as an old man.

Sheila Ferrini playing Jocasta, Thomas Kerrigan playing Tiresias and Paula Norton leading the chorus illustrated the fine direction they had received with genuine talent and clear vocal expression.

Joseph Collins as the first messenger was mediocre. David Manley as Creon seemed miscast rather than lacking talent. The role did not fit him; something totally different, a Moss Hart vignette, might have.

Robert Mastrodomenico as the second messenger and Saul Gliserman as the herdsman, entering as they did at heavily dramatic moments, carried off their parts with adequate finesse. Both were well cast.

Alden Blodgett as a boy, Marcia Elasowich as Antigone and Deena Ferrigno as Ismene did well in their minor roles.

The chorus, comprised of Beverly DeMarco, June Traibman, Edna Colcord, Nancy Adams, Alice Delaney and Catherine Treadwell as well as Miss Norton, was well placed and well directed but at times seemed uncoordinated.

Harry Mahnken, head of play direction and design, and Terry H. Wells, in charge of lighting and technical direction, must be applauded for their work with the group.

Production flaws were caused by lack of good acting. The Theatre, it seems, did not draw a choice of talent and it was a shame that the great potential displayed in direction and staging was not fully realized by better student participation in the Theatre.

The capability to give the campus great presentations of great plays exists with the Theatre. Hopefully, it will be realized in later productions. We look forward with great interest to their upcoming presentation of Moliere's Tartuffe.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

SETTING THE RECORD STRAIGHT

To the Editor:

While I can understand the concern expressed by Miss Spearen and Mess'rs. Fife and Boyden, for the Abbey girls, in their letter of criticism for the university Store, I would like to correct the basic errors contained in their comments.

Mr. Scott volunteered the support of the entire Union and Student Activities Office within the hour that the Abbey fire was reported. Emergency supplies of food and coffee for the fire fighters were delivered at once, followed by donation of the tags and paper supplies necessary to package and label personal belongings. A reshuffling of work responsibilities was quickly accomplished to free Mr. Watts, who took charge of the reclamation process, and has been aiding the Abbey girls and their parents, in this capacity, on a continuing assignment for the past seven days.

Two fund raising programs, scheduled by students for the current week, will also receive support from the program office. In short, every request I have made of the Union and Activities staff has been acted on promptly and without question.

I considered the desirability of reducing book prices in the University Store and decided against it and in favor of providing additional financial assistance through the review procedures set up in the Placement and Financial Aid Services Office, for all Abbey residents. My decision was dictated by the fact that individual student insurance will reimburse some girls for the entire cost of lost books, while other girls will have no outside support at all. The University Store was completely cooperative and offered to take any action I might recommend.

I am sure that no person or group seeks to have a public listing of what they are doing to aid in this program. I am certain that all wish to serve as completely and simply as possible. With this in mind, I offer any student concerned an invitation to contact me directly and to get whatever information he may desire to enable him to arrive at a complete understanding of any situation relating to the Abbey girls.

FOUR COLLEGE FILE

To the Editor:

We wish to inform the student body that the Four College Course Committee recently held its first meeting. This committee is concerned with compiling a list of courses offered at the other schools in the Four College Community. It is our hope that such a list will be available before counseling day in December.

DRIVERS AND PEDESTRIANS

To the Editor:

I would like to express my sympathy for the injuries and inconveniences caused Betsy Robicheau and regret for my part in the unfortunate accident that took place Saturday evening in front of Arnold House.

I hope that this incident will teach campus motorists and pedestrians an important lesson that will not have to be taught by further misfortunes. This accident was unnecessary, and could have easily been avoided if both parties concerned had been more alert.

I would like to offer a suggestion that may help eliminate some of the danger campus pedestrians face when walking from one part of campus to another. If several additional clearly marked crosswalks were placed at strategic places on campus and all cars were required to stop for people in these crosswalks, a great deal of confusion would be avoided and the responsibility for safety each individual has would be clearly defined. Although this would cause inconvenience to both motorists and pedestrians, there is no equality between discomfort and human life.

LENDING MORAL SUPPORT

To the Editor:

On election day the University Association for Social Action will participate in a nation-wide student demonstration in support of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee's voter registration program in the South. It is felt that the work being done by SNCC in voter registration is essential to both the perpetration of democracy and the solution of the nationwide civil rights problem.

The goal of this demonstration is educational as well as financial. It is felt that the general American public knows very little of the voting problem of the South, or of SNCC's work, and that this will help the Northern voter to be more aware of the problems which Southern Negroes face on election day.

Eighty per cent of the potential Negro vote in the South is unregistered (according to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission) and there are sixteen counties in the deep South where not one Negro is registered. SNCC workers (all students) based in Atlanta, Georgia, travel and work full time in the South organizing and running registration projects, citizen schools and attempting to build local leadership which can carry on the program after the students leave. A large part of their job involves lending moral support and encouragement to the people in their efforts to register, helping them to face the intimidation and continual threats of violence coming from the white community.

It is for these reasons that we feel that such an effort to make the voting public aware of this civil rights problem and to raise money for the support of SNCC is essential. Students from the University and Amherst College will be at the Amherst polls explaining SNCC's work and accepting a one dollar voluntary poll tax as a contribution to the fight for equal rights.

Anyone interested in participating in this program on Tuesday, Nov. 6, can contact Virginia Myers in Johnson House or Linda Muldoon in Mary Lyon House.

Tony Ravosa, Taj Mahal To Perform In Concert

The Arts and Music Committee is sponsoring a concert in the S.U. Ballroom on Tuesday, Nov. 6, with an admission charge of 50¢. However, all profits gained from the event are for the benefit of the Abbey, to aid the girls in the various losses from the recent fire.

The concert will feature both Tony Ravosa and his Jazz Band and Taj Mahal. Tony Ravosa incorporates the style of the Four Freshmen into his musical arrangements, and leads an essentially Jazz Band. He has performed at UMass in a number of engagements and is fairly well-known among the students. The entertainment will be novel in that not only Ravosa will perform, but he will alternate with Taj Mahal, a figure well-known on campus.

The atmosphere will be an especially casual and relaxed one, for all who attend are asked to bring pillows, blankets "or a date to lean on." There will be no chairs provided.

Senate File: Senate Committees Explained By Student Members

The following is the first in a series of articles about the workings of various Student Senate committees. They will be written by members of the Senate Public Relations Committee who are qualified to write authoritatively on the various matters chosen for the articles.

Senate President Don Cournoyer's statement, made at a Senate meeting earlier this year, "The Senate will roll or heads will roll," is the stimulus behind all Senate action this year.

At the recent meeting of the Senate Public Relations Committee, Senator Marilyn "Sam" Singer, committee chairman, emphasized this policy of Senate action to stress the importance of the committee's purpose, "to bring the Senate to the students, and perhaps of more importance, to bring the students to the Senate."

The functioning of the University Publicity Committee, which was inaugurated at S.W.A.P., is the responsibility of the Public Relations Committee. To see that all University committees and organizations receive sufficient coverage through publicity in the Collegian and over W.M.U.A. is the function of this Senate Committee.

Blank sheets for publicity articles for an RSO organization can be obtained in the Program Office of the SU. Two copies for each article must be filed—one for publication in the Collegian, the second for W.M.U.A. broadcast.

Those articles acceptable after processing by the Collegian and by W.M.U.A. will be publicized. Rejections of articles will be looked into by the Public Relations committee.

Facilities are available to accommodate the functioning of this publicity committee. It is up to the University RSO organizations and committees to utilize the new program for their own benefit.

Gripe sessions, a "pet project" of our committee, will be more numerous this year. Scheduled sessions will be held for any University group for students to tell their senators complaints they may have concerning any phase of student life.

Senators attending these gripe sessions bring the complaints to the various Senate committees. The session held recently in Brooks Dormitory informed the Senate of many problems of which they were not aware. Also of importance was the realization by the girls in Brooks that the Senate can aid by making the administration aware of student problems.

Action taken by the Senate in regard to the Commons has brought the students extra milk; free interdorm phones are presently being installed; and late breakfast at the Commons will be offered in the near future.

Another gripe session will be held this evening at 10:30 in Arnold. Any students interested in scheduling a session should contact the Senator.

Alcorn Lectures On Republicans In "Solid South"

Meade Alcorn, former National Chairman of the Republican party, spoke Tuesday in the Senate chambers, about Republican acceptance in the "solid South". He said that in past years, the 12 states which composed this coalition, regarded the Republican party as a "dirty word".

Alcorn said he realized that these states should be more fluid in their party affiliations. He organized a move to create a "two party system in the South".

Alcorn told the group that he and President Eisenhower and Vice-President Nixon saw the need to create a Southern Division of the Republican National Committee; this came to be known as "Operation Dixie". He launched this campaign in full force, and said "we had to convince the people of the South that we meant business". Alcorn went on to say that "the Democrats have been taking the South for granted too long".

This movement to break up the "solid South" was a great success, he said, for now the percentage of Republican voters and office holders has greatly increased. There are 61 Republicans running for Congressional offices, in next Tuesday's elections, and 3 out of the 6 governorships are being contested by Republicans.

This was the first in a series of three political lectures to be given within the next month.

Pall Mall Presents~ GIRL WATCHER'S GUIDE

HIGH-FLYING GYM-DANDY

CAMPUS TYPE IV

Few sights in all the world of girl watching are as breathtaking as the unexpected observation of a Gym-Dandy in midair maneuver. Plato might well have had the Gym-Dandy in mind when he wrote, "When a beautiful soul harmonizes with a beautiful form, and the two are cast in one mould, that will be the fairest of sights to him who has the eye to contemplate the vision."

Although the Gym-Dandy is a joy to behold even while tightening the laces of her sneakers, she must be seen in action to be fully appreciated. The same thing is true of a Pall Mall. It's a long, firm cigarette in a handsome package, but it must be tasted to be fully appreciated. Try Pall Mall and see.

Pall Mall's natural mildness is so good to your taste!

So smooth, so satisfying, so downright smokeable!

Redmen Harriers Retain Title; Brouillet Wins Again

by JIM RYAN '65

For the third straight year, the University of Massachusetts harriers have won the Yankee Conference Cross Country Championships. This year's harriers, led by record-setting junior Bob "Digger" Brouillet, turned what was expected to be a very close meet, into a rout.

The Redmen put on an almost unbelievable display of team strength for a championship meet by finishing with a total of 27 points. The Univ. of Maine, a potential threat to UMass, finished a distant second with 58 points. Other team totals in their order of finish were: N.H. 80, R.I. 98, Conn. 108, Vt. 147.

To show just how strong the Redmen are, if the best individual runners from each of the other five teams were placed on one team for this meet, UMass still would have won.

On a rainy, cold, and windy Saturday at Storrs, Conn., Bob Brouillet and Jim Wrynn, as they have done so often this season, finished 1-2, in leading UMass to the championship. "Digger" was outstanding as he established a new record, covering the 4.5 mile course in a time of 24.22.8., in winning the title for the second year in a row.

Jim Wrynn finished second for UMass, as he easily outdistanced all of the other top runners in the conference. His time was 24.56, 21 seconds ahead of third place finisher Lund of Rhode Island.

Kenny O'Brien, showing tremendous competitive spirit, finished 5th. He might have finished 3 rd, had he not tripped and sustained cuts on both legs during the course of the race.

Co-capt. Dave Balch, always among the leaders in the big meets, finished 7th, and co-capt. Dick Blomstrom, outstanding under pressure, finished 12th to complete the UMass scoring. Bob Pendleton and Tom Panke, though having off days, still finished 17th and 24th respectively.

UMass now faces one of its toughest dual meets of the season as they host undefeated Springfield College, one of the best teams in New England, Wednesday afternoon at 3 p.m. This should be one of the best meets held in New England this year, and will feature an individual dual between two of the area's best runners, Bob Broullet of UMass and Terry Merritt of Springfield.

Coach Footrick wants this one badly, as he has only lost one meet to Springfield in his entire coaching career, and that was last year's dual meet at Springfield. The Redmen gained revenge by defeating Springfield to win the New England's last year, but UMass has not lost a home meet this year and does not intend to start with Springfield.

Snow Hampers Lil' Redmen; Knot Brewster Acad., 14-14

The University of Massachusetts freshman football team scored a second half touchdown Saturday giving them a 14-14 tie with Brewster Academy in a driving rain and sleet storm at Wolfboro, N.H.

Sub-Freezing Temperature

The sub-freezing temperatures and muddy field greatly hampered the Redmen attack, but they managed a first period score when Bob Taylor fired a 25-yard scoring toss to Don Eaton.

UMass took over the ball in Brewster territory on a punt reception and moved in for the score. Mass had possession just after the game began, but Brewster held and forced the Redmen to kick. The punt, a 65-yarder by Milt Morin who played for Brewster last season, rolled dead on the two yard stripe. The tough Mass line forced Brewster to punt immediately or get thrown for a safety, and once with the ball, Taylor lost no time in heaving his fourth six point pass of the year. Dave Kelley ran the two point conversion over.

Brewster Comes Back

However, things began looking black for the Redmen as Brewster quickly came back with a score and then added another in the waning moments of the first half to go into the intermission with a 14-8 lead. The first score came on a 35-yard return of an interception of a Taylor pass, and Brewster picked up the second touchdown on a one-yard plunge off tackle after taking a UMass punt and moving downfield.

The Little Redmen outplayed Brewster in the second half when they held them scoreless while tallying the equalizing six-pointer on a five-yard end sweep by Bob DeLue.

Balanced Offense

The Little Redmen moved the ball well both on the ground and in the air on short passes with their balnaced offense despite the most wretched conditions. Though the Brewster line was tough, the Redmen were hitting harder and they stopped Barry MacLean, the Brewster quarterback who specializes in the roll-out.

COLLEGE ROUNDUP

by AL RICE '66

After this past weekend most of the so-called football experts around the country should silently fold their odds-sheets and steal away into the night like the Arabs. Nine of the top teams were upset by large margins by lightly regarded opposition, resulting in five more colleges dropped from the ranks of the unbeaten.

BIG TEN

The Big 10 was the scene of most of the uproar where Purdue, Michigan State, and Ohio State were dumped by Illinois, Minnesota, and Iowa, respectively. The biggest shock befell Purdue on their own field when Illinois, winless in 15 straight games, a Big Ten record, scored after a blocked punt and an intercepted pass to win 14-10. Joe Cairns went across the Michigan State goal line twice to lead Minnesota to a win over the seventh ranked Spartans. The defending Big 10 champion and the team expected to win everything this year, Ohio State, suffered their third loss and second in conference play when Iowa knocked them off 28-14.

OLE MISS WINS SIXTH

The Southeastern Conference saw two of its members pick up their first defeats. In a game sold out for six months, Glynn Griffing tossed a pair of touchdown passes in leading the Rebels of Ole Miss to their sixth in a row by dumping favored Louisiana State for a 15-7 loss, their first of the year. Auburn also had its perfect string snapped when Florida's tough defense held the Tigers to a field goal.

Right here in Amherst the race for the Lambert Cup took a sharp turn when Tufts, the top team in the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference small school division, had their unbeaten record snapped by also unbeaten Amherst College when the Jeffs beat the Jumboes in the coldest, wettest game played around here in a long time.

Two other wild times in the East had Pittsburgh overpowering Syracuse 24-6 and the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame dumping Navy 20-12 in Philadelphia. It was the first fighting the Irish have done in quite a long time. Joe Kuharich's Notre Dame teams the past few seasons have been playing like his Washington Redskins used to, but Saturday Daryle Lamonica scored twice and threw a 45 yard pass to help the boys from South Bend gain some lost pride.

NORTHWESTERN OVER INDIANA

The top three clubs all emerged victorious, but number one Northwestern came awfully close to losing before winning 26-21 over Indiana. The closeness of the score will likely drop them behind Alabama in this week's ratings since the Crimson Tide with sophomore quarterback Joe Namath at the wheel, drove a strong Mississippi State team to a 20-0 loss. Pete Beathard and Hal Bedsole teamed up as usual to give Southern Cal another win. Their latest was a 14-0 affair against the ninth ranked Huskies of Washington.

The big possibilities for upsets next week are Northwestern at Wisconsin and Miami at Alabama. Duke tangles with Maryland to decide the Atlantic Coast Conference crown..

INTRAMURALS

by GEORGE SMITH '66

Gridiron action in the dorm leagues was abbreviated last week as Tuesday's complete schedule was rained out and will be played this Wednesday.

There was heated play in leagues "A" and in the "Mixed League" on Thursday nite, however, as Baker beat Brett, Gorman shut out Van Meter, PE majors downed Middlesex and Gorman "B" blanked Berkshire.

Baker seems to be following in last year's footsteps as they trounced Brett 13-0 to finish league play with a 5-0 record and walk away with the League "A" title. Don Koehler scored first to put Baker ahead 6-0 and Bob Scott completed the scoring by tallying and carrying for the conversion.

In the other league "A" game Gorman ended its season by shutting out Van Meter 12-0 for an overall 3-11 record for the year. Rasierski carried the ball into the endzone for the first TD and Dick Allen went over for the final on a fine running pass from QB Frank Bucker. Winless Van Meter will attempt to break into the win column Wednesday when they face winless Hills South in a makeup contest.

In "Mixed League Action" Thursday, Berkshire dropped a big one to Gorman "B" 6-0 and fell from undisputed possession of first place into a three way tie for the crown. Gorman's Bernier threw to Thompson for the six points. Berkshire, Gorman "B", and the PE majors have all finished with 3-1 marks and are tied for the lead.

The PE majors scored a decisive win in downing Middlesex 12-2. Don Trembley scored twice to lead his team to victory and a piece of first place, while Joe Reardon of Middlesex was credited with the safety accounting for their two points. Middlesex is still winless and will look for its first against the Brett Mavericks on Wednesday.

The season will officially end Tuesday with games scheduled for leagues "A" and "B", but last Tuesday's postponed slate in leagues "B" and "Mixed" will be fitted in on Wednesday. Campus play-offs begin Thursday nite under the lights when the two IFC champs take the field against each other, and the winners of dorm leagues "A" and "B" battle it out. The "Mixed" league champ will play the winner of the dorm game on Monday, Nov. 12, and that winner will play off with the IFC champ on Tuesday to determine the campus winner.

Redmen Romp Over Vermont After Slow Start, 34-6

UM Defense Clicks; Biron Scores Twice

by STEVE HEWEY '63

Neither rain, snow, or UVM's defenses could halt the University of Massachusetts from sweeping to its fourth consecutive Yankee Conference win Saturday afternoon at Burlington Vt., by upending the University of Vermont, 34-6. The snow, which started in the second quarter and continued for the remainder of the game, caused UM quarterback Jerry Whelchel to fumble five times, but otherwise the talented sophomore ran, passed and directed his mates to victory in the typical Whelchel fashion.

Four Backs Score

The Redmen backfield, working without the services of its top ground gainer, Sam Lussier, displayed its ever dangerous depth and talent by sending four different backs into Vermont scoring territory during the game. Sophomore Leo Biron tallied twice; Phil DeRose, Ken Kezer, and Dick Lewis each added another score for UMass.

The very first play the Redmen ran saw Jerry Whelchel lose the handle on the pigskin and the Vermont Catmounts recover on the eighteen and get set to roll. But in three plays they advanced no farther than the sixteen and a field goal attempt on fourth down went astray. On the next series of downs Whelchel fumbled again with Vermont recovering on the thirty-eight of UM. UVM returned the favor on the next play when Deane Kent dropped the ball on the thirty-five and UM center, Tom Kirby, gathered it in.

Penalties Hurt Redmen

Both teams went scoreless in the first quarter. Several early drives started by UMass were bogged down as a result of two fifteen yard penalties assessed against them for personal fouls and holding. A booming forty-one yard punt by Mike Ross late in the period put the Catamounts deep in their own territory. Unable to move in three downs, they were forced to punt from their own end zone to the thirty-eight, where Loren Flagg returned it to the thirty-five just as the period ended. On the second play from scrimmage of the new period, halfback Phil DeRose went off tackle on a twenty-nine yard run for the touchdown. George Pleau added the extra point and UMass led 7-0.

Minutes later the Redmen were on the march again, going sixty-three yards in four plays for the touchdown. The big play was a third-down pass from Whelchel to Flagg, who galloped down to the four yard line before being caught from behind by Vermont's Dean Kent, probably the only YanCon player that can run faster than UMass' speedy Flagg. The next play saw soph halfback Leo Biron go off tackle from the 4 for the second UMass TD of the day.

Vermont tried desperately to get back in the ball game by constantly going to the air in the first half. Catamount quarterback Paul Harris was continually threatened by a big hard-charging Redman line. Just about every starting UMass lineman broke in at one time or another to dump Harris as he went back to throw. Even though Vermont was employing the pro-type shotgun offense to get the benefit of the direct snap from center, its passes were still hurried and off target.

66 Yards In 8 Plays

After taking the second-half kickoff from Vermont, UMass marched 66 yards in eight plays for another score, Ken Kezer taking a Jerry Whelchel pitchout on the 20, and scampering off-tackle for the six points. Pleau added point number 21. This drive saw Whelchel use his running talents to pick up two first downs.

Vermont was soon in trouble again on the next set of downs they ran, as Redmen lineman Bob Burke, Dick Bourdelais and Paul Graham broke through to smear Catamount ball carriers behind the line for big losses. Vermont was forced once again to punt from deep in its own territory, the ball being downed on the UVM 39.

Biron Scores

On first down from the 39 Whelchel fired to Kezer who made a sensational over-the-head grab on the 23. Biron carried to the 19 where fullback Warren broke through to the 2 yard line. On second down and goal to go, Leo Biron swept into the end zone on the right side for his second TD of the afternoon. Whelchel held, Pleau kicked, and the Redmen were well in charge, 28-0. A Whelchel fumble early in the fourth period set the stage for Vermont's only touchdown. Vermont recovered on their own 26 yard line and with number two quarterback John Greer calling the plays the Catamounts moved 26 yards in 8 plays. Greer hit end Bill Burke in the end-zone for a 12-yard scoring pass. Greer passed again for the two points, but the attempt was broken up. Coach Vic Fusia lifted Jerry Whelchel late in the fourth quarter to give him a well earned rest, and sent in John Schroeder to take his place.

Schroeder rewarded Fusia's move by intercepting a Vermont pass on the UVM 34 and returning it to the 30. After Schroeder ran one play from scrimmage, Al Hedland came in to take over the helm for the Redmen. Directing his second and third string teammates, Hedland fed handoffs to Dick Lewis and Joe Morris who ground out the remaining yards enroute to TD number five. Halfback Dick Lewis went over from the two for the finale with nine seconds left to play.

Linemen Star

The key to UMass' fifth win of the season was its big and aggressive line play. Redmen linemen were constantly in the Catamount backfield, harassing Harris and Greer on pass attempts and snowing under Vermont runners before they even got started. If one were to single out linemen for their fine play, the honors would have to go to soph tackle Bob Burk, ends Paul Majeski and Dick Bourdelais, guard Bob Tedoldi and tackle Paul Graham.

Injuries during the game included Graham, who suffered a broken nose, and tackle Bob Burk, who received a knee injury, both in the first quarter. However, the two UMass linemen finished out the game despite their injuries.

Next week: Villanova.

Redmen halfback Kenny Kezer slices through the Catamount defense in a hole opened wide for him by the powerful UMass line.

"SO FOUL YET FAIR A DAY"

Two loyal but cold Redmen cheerleaders look on as their team mauls Vermont.

The Redmen's star quarterback Jerry Whelchel eludes a would-be UVM tackler as he fades back looking for a target.

UMass Plays Host To 67 Peace Corps Trainees

U.S. Peace Corps getting to know each other better as they set up at Farley Hall. Left to right: Terry Shelton, Norfolk, Va.; Douglas Treado, Marquette, Mich.; Roosevelt Weaver, Atlanta, Ga.; and Scott Judy.

Group Attends Classes Sixty Hours Per Week; To Serve In West Africa

UMass is hosting, for 14 weeks, 67 Peace Corps trainees from all over the country, preparing for work in Senegal, Niger, and the Ivory Coast.

The 67 young men — average age 23, but covering a span from 18 to 40 years — are living in Bowditch Lodge in back of Machmer Hall and in a loft over a storage area behind Bowditch —"The best of Spartan living," cracked one of the troup, Roger Persons from Colorado.

Part of the flexibility program, said Roger, is sharing two sinks and one shower in Bowditch. The group is using the Farley 4-H Clubhouse for office and study room.

UMass, said Persons, was chosen for the group's training because of its language facilities and the background of African studies available through the Four-College Community.

Trainees On Heavy Schedule

Besides working a 60 hour week class schedule while at UMass, the trainees have been given over 7000 pages of reading material to skim through during their 14-week stay. The outside material is on African-American studies, specific trade skills, and French.

The trainees begin their day with physical exercises—running obstacle courses and doing calisthenics between 7 and 8 a.m. Monday through Saturday. Six days a week, breakfast from 8 to 9 is followed by special French sessions from 9 to 10 a.m., technical studies between 10 a.m. and noon, and lunch from noon to 1 p.m.

Monday through Friday the group has Area and African studies from 1 to 3 p.m., technical studies from 3 to 6 p.m., dinner from 6 to 7 p.m. and French language lab work from 7 to 10 p.m. Saturday afternoon and all day Sunday are left free.

Varied Backgrounds

Coming from various socio-economic groups and widely varying backgrounds, most of the trainees have had some college training and close to half of them are college graduates. A few of them are working on advanced degrees.

In the group are college athletes, writers, folksingers, musicians, and a marathon runner.

The trainees, who arrived on campus October 15 to begin the extensive program, will go home for Christmas vacation December 22 and return here January 2 for their final three weeks at the University. They will leave this country at the end of January for their host country, where they will undergo another three weeks of training preparatory to starting work.

Some of them will be coaching sports such as track, wrestling, boxing, basketball and swimming in Senegal and the Ivory Coast, in preparation for the African games preliminary to the Olympics in 1964.

Some of the group will work in Senegal as farm machinery mechanics, irrigation specialists, and construction foremen. Some will work in Niger with poultry and livestock breeding and soil development.

One of the trainees, Miles Crane, left Czechoslavakia two weeks after the Communists gained control in the country, spent five years in France learning to be a cabinet-maker before coming to this country. He speaks five languages — Polish, German, French, Czechoslavakian and English. Crane will go to Senegal as a teacher of technical skills.

Scott Judy, a world traveler and school teacher, will teach farm mechanics in Senegal.

Among the athletes in the group is George Terry, third ranking marathon runner in the U.S. and brother-in-law of John Kelly, the first ranked runner.

Mel Swygardt, a graduate of the University of Oregon, placed second in the National Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) wrestling tournament and was first alternate for the U.S. Olympic Wrestling Team. He will coach wrestling in West Africa.

Roosevelt Weaver, Small College All--American honorary mention, does the 100 yard dash in 9.7 seconds. He will go to Senegal in January as a track coach.

Barry Fisher, who runs the mile in 4.07 minutes, has an M.A. in philosophy and is working toward his Ph.D. He will coach distance running in Senegal.

"Many of us joined the Peace Corps," said Persons, "because of the challenge, adventure and travel it offers, as well as the opportunity to do a service to mankind.

"The Peace Corps also offers a good educational background for those of us who would like to do independent studies on West Africa, he said.

"One of our members, a doctoral candidate, has thought of writing his doctoral thesis on the selective breeding of cattle and goats in Niger," he said.

Staff physician Dr. Thomas C. McBride told the Collegian Sunday night that Miss Robicheau "is doing well." "Sweet Betsy," as she is known to her many friends on campus, was injured Saturday evening about 6:25 when she was struck by a car as she was crossing Route 116 in front of her dormitory.

UMass One Of Eleven To Be Polled

UMass students are among 3000 from eleven colleges and institutions in the Connecticut Valley participating in a Smith College study of critical issues. The students, selected at random, will be asked their opinions in questionnaires distributed within the next week.

With the cooperation and support of the eleven institutions, Smith sociology students, under faculty direction, will study student attitudes on issues such as segregation and disarmament. The study is being financed by a grant from the Public Affairs Research Committee of the Ford Foundation.

Dr. Peter I. Rose, director of the study, has asked that participants fill out the questionnaires and return them in the envelopes provided as soon as possible in order that the study be truly representative. No one will be asked to sign his name. Answers to the questions will be completely anonymous.

The institutions in the study are American International College, Amherst College, Greenfield Community College, Holyoke Junior College, Mount Holyoke College, Northampton Commercial College, College of Our Lady of the Elms, Smith College, Springfield College, UMass, and Westfield State Teachers College.

Kirschstein Visits UM During Tour

Hans G. Kirschstein of the West German Ministry of Economic Cooperation arrived at UMass recently to observe a group of Peace Corps volunteers in training here for missions to Senegal, Niger and the Ivory Coast in West Africa.

Kirschstein's trip to the University was part of a 15-day tour of the United States arranged under auspices of the State Depattment's Foreign Leader Program. He Was the second foreign dignitary to observe the University's Peace Corps program since it began two weeks ago.

Before coming to the U.S., Mr. Kirschstein attended the Middle Level Manpower Conference, sponsored by the Peace Corps and held at San Juan, Puerto Rico.

During his swing through the U.S., Kirschstein visited on the West Coast and at the University of Oklahoma.

Dr. John Ryan, secretary of the University, hosted Mr. Kirschstein while he was at UMass. As a student, Mr. Kirschstein was chairman of the World University Service. He received his law degree from Bonn University in 1954 and in 1957 became press officer of the Carl Duisberg Society. At the economic cooperation ministry, he heads the section dealing with Peace Corps-type activities.

Scandinavian Here To See Peace Corps

Arne Arnesen, first secretary of the Norwegian ministry of foreign affairs, spent several days at UMass observing a group of Peace Corps volunteers in training for a mission to Senegal, Niger and the Ivory Coast in West Africa.

Arnesen, in charge of Norwegian assistance programs for less developed countries, visited the University campus under the auspices of the State Department's Foreign Leader Program.

Arnesen remained in Amherst for several days, then returned to Boston. He was hosted during his University visit by Dr. John Ryan, secretary to the University.

Arnesen's observation of the Peace Corps trainees was part of a 15-day study tour of the United States he is making after attending the Peace Corps-sponsored Middle Level Manpower Conference at San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Future Of Federalism Topic Of Bane Lecture

Frank Bane, chairman of the U.S. Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, is at UMass this week to give a major public lecture and to hold a series of conferences on federal, state and local governments.

High point of Bane's visit is the lecture to be given tomorrow at 4 p.m. in the Middlesex Room of the S.U. Entitled "Is Federalism Dead in the United States?", Bane's talk will be an analysis of the future of federalism. The lecture is open to the public without charge.

The visit, sponsored by the University's department of government, will include conferences between Bane and individual students on the opportunities in local government.

Bane has been active in public service since the end of World War I. From 1935 to 1938 he was the first executive director of the Federal Social Security Board. Until 1959 he was executive director of the Council of State Governments and secretary of the Governors' Conference. He has been a lecturer at the University of Chicago since 1932, and served with the Brookings Institution in the early 1930's.

The U.S. Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations was established in 1959 by the 86th Congress "to give continuing attention to intergovernmental problems."

Members of the commission include private citizens, cabinet members, U.S. senators, U.S. representatives, governors, state legislators, mayors and county officials.

Among those serving on the commission in 1962 are C. Douglas Dillon, secretary of the treasury; Edmund S. Muskie, U.S. Senator from Maine; and John E. Powers, president of the Massachusetts State Senate.

Fall-out Protection Afforded By Eleven UMass Buildings

In view of recent national and international events involving the security of the country, Dr. John W. Lederle, president of UMass, has released a 65-page document, prepared nearly a year ago, pertaining to measures for the protection of University personnel in the event of nuclear attack.

The report was prepared by the 1002 U.S. Army Reserve Research and Development Sub-Group and U.S. Naval Reserve Research Co. 1-3, made up of personnel largely from the University's faculty and staff. The document covers recommendations for an immediate fall-out protection plan in case of atomic attack and includes proposals for an information program for the academic community, warning systems, shelter assignments, sanitation and medical needs, food and water supplies, and other important categories.

Eleven UM Buildings To Be Shelters For 10,000 Population

Eleven buildings have been selected as desirable shelters on the basis of accessibility, wide distribution throughout the campus, maximum building occupancy at any given hour, grouping of like buildings, and a minimum of 10 square feet of floor space for each occupant.

The 11 shelters, equipped to handle a total campus population of 10,000, are the Dining Commons, the new Cold Storage building, Goodell Library, Morrill Science Center, Women's Physical Education Building, and Hamlin, Hills, Knowlton, Van Meter and Wheeler dormitories. The University set-up is large enough to provide some space for residents of the Amherst area.

The reservist - investigators were carefully briefed before conducting their research to see which buildings were suitable for use as shelters. Prior to examining the buildings, the group heard special lectures by Prof. Merit P. White, head of the civil engineering department and a national expert on blast effects, and by Prof. Karol Wisnieski of the public health department, on sanitation and health measures.

Recommendations by the six investigators stress the need for training students and University personnel in first-aid and in basic information on nuclear explosions as well as what to do for protection in the event of an attack.

The survey recommends that diesel or gasoline-driven generators be installed as auxiliary power measures in vital areas. Methods for securing and storing water, food supplies, detergent-disinfectants, and drugs are also described.

The report states that the University has an excellent warning system, employing five different methods by which the campus population can be notified of an attack.

All Future UM Buildings Will Have Shelters

According to Dr. Lederle, the University's plans will be flexible. "As the campus changes, our protective measures will be

Goodyear Will Open Art Club Discussions

The Art Club will begin a series of art discussions and coffee hours tonight at 8 p.m. in room 225 (drawing studio) of Bartlett Hall.

"It is hoped", said club officials, 'these evenings with eminent people of the art world will provide an opportunity for those interested to acquaint themselves more completely with certain aspects of art."

Tonight's speaker will be John Goodyear, the newest faculty member of the Art Department at the university. Goodyear holds a Graham Foundation Fellowship for advanced Studies in the Fine Arts to investigate the possibilities of three dimensional painting. In his talk there will be more discussion of the aims to be achieved in this work and of his approach to the problem.

Any questions will be welcomed and Mr. Goodyear will be glad to discuss the possibility of viewing his work in progress at his Clark Hall studio with those interested.

Freshmen Initiated Into Honor Society

The UMass chapter of Alpha Lambda Delta, a national honor society for freshman women, inducted seven new members Nov. 4 in the Senate Chambers of the S.U.

The girls were initiated on the basis of their freshman scholastic average and will be active throughout their sophomore year. The requirement for membership is a cumulative scholastic average of 3.5 or above.

Initiated were Patricia Gully, Carolyn Howarth, Christine Olsen, Judy Oltsch, Carolyn Pearson, Mary Stewart, and Janet White.

The parents of the initiates were invited to the ceremony and to a tea which followed. The tea was held in conjunction with Phi Eta Sigma, the men's sophomore honor society.

Officers of Alpha Lambda Delta include Suellen Kone, president; Helen Radowicz, vice-president; Marilyn Anderson, secretary; Joan Janik, treasurer; Carol Hermesdorf, historian; and Linda Schechterle, junior advisor. Dean of Women Helen Curtis and Miss Schiffer act as faculty advisors.

MacIver's Watercolors Displayed In Mem Hall

An exhibition of 60 paintings and drawings by the late Ian MacIver, well-known watercolorist and one-time University faculty member, will be on display today through November 30 in Memorial Hall.

Assembled by friends as a fitting tribute to him and an expression of honor, the exhibition was also shown last weekend in conjunction with the 50th annual Horticulture Show and the centennial of the University's founding. A coffee hour will be held tomorrow in Memorial Hall from 2-3 p.m.

MacIver, who died in January at the age of 49, was a native of Aberdeen, Scotland. He received his education at Upper Canada College in Toronto and at the Horace Mann School and Columbia University in New York City.

He began painting in Canada and had exhibits at the Ontario Society of Artists, the Canadian Water Colour Society, the Canadian National Exposition and the National Gallery at Ottawa.

The current display features MacIver's watercolors, which have been described as "rich in color and strong in design." MacIvor produced a large number of paintings while at UMass and was repreesnted in many exhibits including some in Franklin County.

"Uncle Wiggily" Dies; Was Amherst Resident

by NEAL ANDELMAN '63

Way back in 1901 a thirty-six year old police reporter named Howard Garis started writing a series of bed-time stories for children. The hero of these stories was a rather sedate rabbit called "Uncle Wiggily." Since that date back in 1901 Howard Garis had written over 400 childrens books and 15,000 children's stories.

Mr. Garis, known to thousands of grateful children and adults across the country as Uncle Wiggily, died last Monday in a Northampton hospital at the age of 89. Mr. Garis had been ill for several years, and last year members of the University family donated blood to help Uncle Wiggily recover from his illness. Mr. Garis had been living in Amherst since 1951 when he moved here from New Jersey.

Although Mr. Garis wrote many children's stories about many characters (animals and otherwise), it is Uncle Wiggily who will live on. The long-eared rabbit created by Mr. Garis was a dignified influence on past generations, and he will continue in this role for many years to come.

Wanted: Freshmen Rope Pullers

The first Freshman Class meeting will be held tomorrow at 11 a.m. in Bartlett Auditorium.

At this meeting persons interested in joining the rope pulling team, the Freshman cheerleaders, the pep team, the Winter Carnival Committee, the Centennial Committee and the Executive Committee may sign for these activities. Two guest speakers will be at the meeting.

Class officers have urged all Freshmen to attend.

STOMACH RUMBLINGS

Again, Commons patrons face a long weekend of Hatch meals or abstention due to the short notice of Commons officials in notifying the student body of "its" holiday. This problem, recurring for the second time this year, certainly deserves some comment. The grumbles of lean, hungry students aroused feelings pro and con the situation over Columbus Day—but our place is not to determine the legality of non-Commons weekends—we are merely criticizing the habitual last minute notification of this situation. Again we are handed the mimeographed notice of no meals, giving not more than ten days in which to write home or arrange emergency loans. We all like to eat—holiday weekends are no exception. Is it possible for Commons officials to plan more than ten days in advance? S.J.M.

THE CRISIS OF THE UNITED NATIONS AND ITS CAUSES

by SEVA SUD

In this fourth article in the series, Miss Sud contains her explanation of the weakness of the United Nations Security Council. —Ed.

The position of the Security Council is further weakened due to lack of efficient enforcement measures. This was also one of the causes of the failure of the League of Nations which had no army or police force of its own. Had there been one, there would have been no executive power to issue the orders to the force. Now the question arises: does the Executive authority of the U.N. have the power of enforcement measures? Article 39 of the Charter provides that:

> The Security Council shall determine the existence of any threat to peace, breach of the peace, or act of aggression and shall make recommendations or decide what measures shall be taken in accordance with Article 41 and 42 to maintain and restore international peace and security.

From all this it is clear that enforcement actions must be decided by the Security Council which can be easily obstructed by the use of the veto by any of the five permanent members in case enforcement action is taken against any one of them. Requirement of unanimity hinders enforcement action because there is always a difference among the five permanent members in the Security Council. The western and some other states are conscious of this weakness in the working of the Security Council and so are trying to find a substitute in case of emergency. The necessity for such a pressure arose in the case of the Korean War, when under Article 42 of the Charter, enforcement measures were applied.

Then again, of the five permanent members of the Security Council only two, the United States and the Soviet Union, are really great powers. Great Britain and France are medium powers. China is only potentially a great power and the government of Formosa which occupies the permanent seat of China, represents the mere fragment of a nation. Under present conditions of world politics, most members of the Security Council, including the permanent members, can be prevailed upon, if need be, to support the position taken by either the United States or the Soviet Union. The international government of the United Nations stripped of its legal trimmings, then, is really the international government of the United States and the Soviet Union acting in unison. At best, if they are united, they can govern the rest of the world for the purpose of maintaining order and of preventing war. At worst, if they are disunited, there will be no international government at all.

— LETTERS TO THE EDITOR —

THE WOMEN OF THE ABBY SAY THANK YOU AND A LITTLE MORE

The Abby girls wish to express their appreciation and gratitude to those of the University whose generosity and thoughtfulness have made the consequences of the fire easier to endure.

A Special Thanks:
To the Administration—for the efficiency and speed in setting up emergency housing facilities.

To the Housemothers—for their consideration in making us feel at home in various dorms.

To Mrs. Cummings (Lewis)—for organizing and administering the "clothing store" in WPE which furnished Abby girls with the generous donations given by UMass co-eds.

To the Faculty—for their leniency and patience in postponing exams and papers and for offering us temporary housing in their homes.

To the Maintenance Department and Grounds Crew—for their remarkable ability in salvaging what possessions remained in the Abby.

To Mr. Watts—for supervising the reclamation of what was left.

To APO and WSO—for their services in lending us books.

To Campus Organizations, especially the Student Senate—for their efforts in raising emergency funds.

To the Students of UMass—for offering clothes, rooms, books, and above all, their friendship.

And a special apology to the boys and housemother of Mills dormitory—for the poor taste in which the Abby Senator handled our future housing problem.

Although we appreciate the Senator's efforts to obtain a dorm for us—we do not appreciate her approach. Although we want a dorm, we realize this action must be taken up by the Administration, and, naturally, it will take time. No individual student has the authority to disrupt the lives of others because of our bad luck.

We of the Abby are only thankful that no lives were lost and that the fire didn't happen during the middle of the night. The girls are doing their best under existing conditions and are handling the situation with the composure which is normally expected of a college woman.

Correct Printing of A Mistake

To the Editor(?)

In the Collegian edition of Friday, October 26, 1962, you printed the most irresponsible statement to date that you have ever printed. In the article headed "NOTARY PUBLIC WILL PROVIDE FREE SERVICE," you said, and I quote, "Upon receipt and completion of his Ballot, the voter must take it to Mr. L. Lawrence Taylor at the Treasurer's Office at South College or to Mr. John DeNyse at the Personnel Office at South College for notarization."

It has come to my attention that certain students actually did complete the Ballot according to YOUR instructions and as a consequence had their ballots nullified. Explicitly, they were supposed to show an UNMARKED ballot to the notary and not to have completed it beforehand. Apparently there are two ways of doing things around here, your way and the right way.

However, the thing that amuses and angers me the most is the irresponsibility of Mr. Taylor and Mr. DeNyse who, as the ones that would notarize the ballots, did not correct you before this—and there was plenty of time. The article appeared on the front page, and yet no one made any attempt to correct it.

It's bad enough that so many people do not take any interest in voting (and they are the ones that usually complain about the government the loudest), but, for those who do, to have their privilege voided by someone's stupidity, is a CRIME against their rights.

In the future, may I suggest, that you find out the truth about what you print BEFORE you print it or hire a responsible proofreader. At least don't add to my impression that you just don't care.

David F. Greenwood

The information upon which this story was based was received from a Student Senate Ad Hoc Committee on Absentee Ballots. The original source of information was from Beacon Hill, and this information was passed on to the Collegian as the correct voting procedure. The Collegian expresses regret for its part in the propogation of incorrect procedure. —Ed.

Letters to the editor must be typed and double spaced. All letters must be signed, but names will be withheld upon request.

The girls from the Abby would like to express their deep appreciation to everyone who has helped us in any way.

We would like to thank all the men who started carrying our things out of the Abby minutes after the alarm sounded. Their actions prevented extensive personal losses for many of us. We would also like to thank the girls who answered our immediate needs by lending us clothing and providing us with rooms, the Physical Education Department staff who did not spare time or effort to situate girls in the W.P.E. building, those who provided transportation to and from Bigelow's Barn, and to the infirmary, and also the students who set up beds.

We are grateful to the housemothers and students who have made the facilities of their dorms available to us, and to the people who offered to take some of us into their homes. We thank Dr. Gage, our first "housefather," who has done everything possible to make the girls in the infirmary feel at home, and also Dean Field, Dean Curtis and their staffs.

Since Saturday night the response has been tremendous—from contributions of money and clothing to much needed moral support. So many of you have given so much of your time to help us in every imaginable way. Thank you very much!

MORALS AND THE CHAPLAIN

To the Editor:

Mr. Axelrod and others have said that Chaplain Clasby's speech to the AFROTC cadets was good but that their freedom of religion was violated. Having heard this address, I find these letters disgusting.

Brief reference was made to the existence of God, but the speech dealt primarily with the need for greater morality, maturity, and leadership. Thus, the main issue here is not the denial of freedom of religion. Instead, the freedom to continue to be immoral, immature, and to lack leadership without any accompanying guilt feelings has been denied. Do you object to this, Mr. Axelrod?

The First Amendment was meant to prevent the government from setting up a religion or supporting any particular religion. Neither has been done in this case. It can be argued that the right to be an atheist is being denied. But personnel in the armed forces are required to attend religious programs and the Supreme Court has made no interpretation of the Constitution in this regard.

Could it be that the reactions of these individuals to Chaplain Clasby's speech are merely a crude attempt to degrade ROTC? If so, I think they are digging pretty deep. Scott Phillips '64

PARTY PRAISE

To the Editor:

The Hallowe'en party for faculty children, on the afternoon of October 28 in the ballroom of the Student Union, was a delightful occasion. I do not know whether the university women who were hostesses at this party represented any specific organization(s), but through your pages I should like to thank the individual students who this year continued—most successfully—a considerate tradition.

Sincerely yours,
Priscilla G. Hicks

ATTENTION: MR. DWYER

To the Editor,

I, like you, am against pacificsm, but I do take a more broad-minded view of other peoples opinions.

You condem the whole freshmen class because of what you interpreted to be an attitude shared by all of this class.

Well, Mr. Dwyer, I think it is time to remind you that a few of us in the Freshman class, approximately 20% of it, are veterans. We, from our past experience, are probably more acutely aware of the world situation and the dangers of pacificism than you are.

We defended you while you studied here for three years, et tu, Mr. Dwyer, will defend us if a war breaks out.

Dave Blaisdell '66

LET THERE BE LIGHT

To the Editor:

Does the centennial year mark the beginning of the Dark Ages, or has the university been placed under a curfew by the ROTC department? What I am referring to is the lack of adequate lighting, especially in the vicinity of the library and the men's dormitories. Must each student supply himself with a flashlight? Is that why the university bookstore is running a sale? FIAT LUX!

MOVEMENT SOLICITS AID

Students Go To Polls For Southern Negroes

Between 15 and 20 students yesterday distributed information and collected contributions at Amherst polls on behalf of Southern Negro voter registration rights.

Having received the endorsements of several political candidates, the Northern Student Movement, which includes nearly 65 campus civil rights groups, participated in demonstrations to support the voter registration program of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

The demonstration is intended to educate the North to the problems of Southern Negro voters.

Any funds raised have been used by the Committee to increase the number of Negroes who are registered to vote in the rural south.

In addition to the demonstration, the Northern Student Movement has been working for the past year to involve students in the problems of Negro communities near their own campuses.

According to Peter Countryman, Director of the Northern Student Movement, northern students feel that many of the problems in their own cities are a result of segregation in the south, especially in areas of education and voting.

Also participating were students from Smith and Amherst colleges.

Yale's Pottle Discusses Wordsworth

by RICHARD BUSH '63

"Imaginative was what Wordsworth considered that highest breach of poetry," Professor Frederick A. Pottle said in his lecture, "How to Become a Wordsworthian and Like It," Monday evening in Bartlett Auditorium.

Professor Pottle said the first essential toward becoming a Wordsworthian "is not to read any books or articles about him."

As one reads Wordsworth he should notice what use Wordsworth makes of the word "human" and not so much "nature," Professor Pottle said.

Professor Pottle is a member of the Yale University English Department and is considered an authority on literature of the eighteenth century.

University Representatives Aid Agriculture Conference

University of Massachusetts faculty and representatives of co-operating agencies will play a major part in the North Atlantic Regional Research Conference on Agricultural Education in Northampton and on campus November 7-9.

Dr. Robert C. Jones, assistant professor of agricultural education, School of Education, is in charge of local arrangements and program for the conference designed for directors, supervisors and teacher-trainers in agricultural education.

Sessions will be held in the Schine Northampton Inn and Wiggins Tavern on Wednesday and Friday, November 7-9, and in the School of Eduaction building on the university campus on Thursday, November 8.

Conference discussions and talks will focus on research needs in agricultural education, and research design, implications and problems. Reports will be given on current research and new projects for regional study selected.

Dr. Jones also will preside at the morning session of the conference on campus Thursday. Dr. Albert W. Purvis, dean of the School of Education, will welcome the group.

Other morning speakers and their topics are: Dr. Richard A. Damon, professor of biostatistics, "Problems in Research Design;" and Dr. Stanley H. Gaunt, professor of animal science, "The Role of Computers in Research." Both are members of the College of Agriculture faculty.

Dr. Edward Moore, dean of the university's Graduate School, will discuss "Research and Society," and Dr. Gilbert L. Woodside, provost of the university, will be guest speaker at a luncheon in the Student Union.

Arthur Bertrand, principal, will demonstrate classroom TV and conduct a tour of Marks Meadow laboratory school to open Thursday afternoon's session.

Thomas J. McGarr, supervisor of teacher training in agricultural education for the state department of education, will preside. Dr. Jones will speak on the essential skills and knowledge needed by prospective farm machinery mechanics.

Outside speakers who will set the tone for the conference on Wednesday include H. Neville Hunsicker, agricultural education specialist, U.S. Office of Education, Washington, D.C., who will speak on research needs in agricultural education; and Dr. Duane M. Nielsen, a teacher training and research specialist from the same office, who will present a report of a panel of consultants for vocational education dealing with implications for research.

Robert Pickus Gives Speech Tonight At Amherst Regional

Robert Pickus will be the speaker at a public meeting to be held at 8 p.m. tonight in the cafeteria of the Amherst Regional High School. The title of his talk is "Policy for Peace and Freedom: 1962-1963."

The meeting is being sponsored by the Franklin-Hampshire Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy and Amherst Citizens for Peace.

Following graduation with degrees in Political Science from the University of Chicago and studies in England as a Fulbright Fellow, Robert Pickus traveled extensively through Europe, the Middle East and South Asia.

His most recent undertaking is as national coordinator of Turn Toward Peace, a cooperative effort of over 30 national organizations: labor, peace, veterans, civic affairs, church and other.

AlphaZetaInstalls Murray Lincoln In Centennial Rite

Last week, the UMass chapter of Alpha Zeta initiated Murray Lincoln as their Centennial Honorary member. Immediately following the ceremonies, refreshments and an informal get together were enjoyed by those in attendance.

Alpha Zeta is a national honorary fraternity with membership limited to men majoring in the College of Agriculture. Election to membership is based on academic excellence and qualities of leadership.

Lincoln, a graduate of Stockbridge, was keynote speaker at the College of Agriculture's Centennial Convocation.

Each of the country's 53 chapters of Alpha Zeta was given authority to elect an honorary member in honor of the centennial celebration of land-grant colleges.

Flying Club Obtains New Cessna 140

The UMass Flying Club recently purchased a 1940 model Cessna 140 to replace the Aeronca-Champ that it has been using since September 1960.

The green and white all-metal Cessna is an American made plane weighing about 1500 pounds. With a cruising speed of 105 m.p.h. and maximum speed of 140 m.p.h., the plane has a full panel, complete navigation gear and two radios, one a VHF Super-Hammer.

Not generally used for commercial purposes, the two seater plane has all equipment necessary for the beginner to get an adequate background in flying. The plane was purchased by the club with a $3000 loan from the Student Senate.

"The club, which now has twenty members, is open to anyone in the University community, student or faculty," stated vice-president Joe Daly.

Flying instruction for those members of the Club who are learning to fly can be arranged through the club.

Officers include president, Tom Dodge; Daly, who is also the club Safety Officer; treasurer, Dick Schulman and secretary, Judy Mandel.

VILLANOVA TICKETS

Ticket sales for the Villanova game will close at 11:30 a.m. Friday. All tickets are priced at three dollars.

Four Agriculture Students Receive $250 Scholarships

Four students at UMass received individual scholarships of $250 for ranking highest in their class academically as a feature of a College of Agriculture Convocation held recently as part of the institution's Centennial.

They were Arthur C. Costonis, a four-year senior majoring in plant pathology; Thomas P. Leavitt, a four-year junior in forestry; Neville J. G. Doherty, a four-year sophomore in agricultural and food economics; and William R. Handrich, turf management major in the two-year Stockbridge School.

Donor of the scholarships was the New York Farmers, an organization composed of New York City business men who own farms and have an interest in agriculture.

Alpha Zeta, a national honorary agricultural fraternity, and STOSO, the Stockbridge School service organization, sponsored the convocation.

Seventeen New Candidates On All-American Roster

Seventeen new players have been cited for early season performances by the American Football Coaches Association, it was announced by Billy Murray, AFCA president and Duke University coach.

Seven linemen and ten backs have been added to the roster of candidates for the 1962 All-America team—to be selected by the AFCA at the season's conclusion.

A total of 64 players—including 47 grid stars selected in a pre-season poll of coaches—now comprise the nominating list for the 73rd consecutive squad of the nation's oldest and original All-America team.

Verne Burke

Moving into contention at end is unheralded junior college transfer Verne Burke of Oregon State. After three games, he grabbed the lead among the nation's pass catchers with 25 receptions. Burke caught eight passes in Oregon State's upset over Stanford.

Among emerging tackle stars are Scott Appleton, 6-3, 227-pounder from the University of Texas, Daryl Sanders (6-5 and 237) of Ohio State, and Fred Miller (6-5 and 227) of Louisiana State's defensively-tough Bengals. Sanders teams with Bob Vogel, a previously-announced candidate, to give Ohio State a two-man tackle entry in the AFCA All-America ratings.

At guard, Jack Cvercko, a 236-pound, 6-0 junior, has been a key lineman in the upsurge of the Northwestern Wildcats. Tom Hertz (212 and 5-10) of Missouri also has been cited by coaches for outstanding play.

Center Wayne Lee, a 6-2, 200-pounder from Oklahoma, has moved up to challenge for All-America recognition.

Myers and Namath

Two sophomore quarterbacks —Tom Myers of Northwestern and Joe Namath of Alabama— have been impressive with their early-season passing accuracy. Bill Lothridge of Georgia Tech, an old-fashioned triple-threat, has had a hand or foot in virtually every point scored by the Georgians. Directing the powerful Arkansas attack is quarterback Billy Moore.

Five halfbacks have been recognized for their early-season performances. Eldon Fortie of Brigham Young, recovered from '61 injuries, moved ahead of all rushers for the first four games with 621 yards in 75 carries. UCLA's Kermit Alexander, an all-purpose back, ripped 45 yards for a touchdown in the Bruins' big upset over Ohio State.

Speedster Mel Renfro of Oregon and Byron Weaver of Houston—who set an alltime NCAA one-game record with five interceptions against Baylor — have also been nominated at halfback by the coaches.

Halfback Ron Bubick of Michigan State moved up when he gained 207 yards against North Carolina. He broke a 12-year record held by Sonny Grandelius of MSU.

Bill Thornton of Nebraska has been nominated for the fullback position.

List of All-America nominees, including pre-season candidates, are:

Dr. Fenton Guest Of Butterfield

Dr. John Fenton, Commonwealth Professor of Government, was the second guest speaker in Butterfield House's Distinguished Visitors Program.

The informal discussion was held on Monday night, election eve. Dr. Fenton answered questions from Butterfield residents on the then upcoming Massachusetts elections and expressed his opinions on state and national political trends. Dr. Fenton, a native Ohioan, came well prepared with facts and figures to help explain his views.

There were several questions on international problems. Dr. Fenton stated that he felt it would be realistic to recognize Red China in the United Nations, however he explained some of the reasons why our government has not yet done so.

The Butterfield Distinguished Visitor's Program, now in its second year, attempts to put some additional fuel on the fire of perpetual "bull sessions" in the dormitory.

Abbey Girls Receive Aid From Stores

Four Amherst stores have announced special allowances on their stock for girls who lost personal possessions as a result of the Abbey fire.

The stores will all have a list of girls who resided in the Abbey and urge that no one take advantage of the offers by purchasing material for anyone else.

The managements of the House of Walsh, Specialty Shop and Mathews Shoe Store will give a 20 percent discount to Abbey girls on all goods purchased at these stores during the current semester.

Baucom's Bookstore will allow Abbey girls to borrow any used books they have in stock and to keep the books for the rest of this semester free of charge. The books must be returned undamaged at the end of the semester.

Griggsmen Lose To Army, Amherst; Finish Season 5-5

by DAVE PODBROS '66

Although losing the last two games by the same score, the UMass varsity soccer team ended the season with five wins, and five losses, giving the team a fairly good record. At West Point on Saturday, the bootmen were again plagued by the weather, and played the cadets in mud and water. After a valiant attempt, UMass lost 4 to 2.

After a fast score by Army in the first quarter, Pat MacDevitt tied the score on a penalty kick. Army, however, could not be stopped, and they went on to score three more goals to end the half 4 to 1. In the second half, UMass kept Army scoreless, but was only able to score one goal, by Tony Palatino.

With somewhat better weather, UMass travelled around the corner to Amherst, yesterday, only to lose by the same score as in the Army defeat. Pat MacDevitt, a standout for UMass this season, scored the first UMass goal against Amherst. The second Redmen tally came in the fourth quarter and was scored by Stam Paleocrassus.

So comes to a close another season for the UMass soccer team. There has been improvement in almost all the positions. Gerry Clinton at left-half has played tremendous soccer, as has Dick Leete, out for the last three games due to an injury, and Stam Paleocrassus. Bob Chenery, Tony Palatino, and Bill Graves have shown marked improvement. Graves played his best game all season against Army.

At defense, Leon Aksioncyzk,

Dick Phillips and Dick Repeta were the mainstays of the season. Next year, taking advantage of the year's improvement, the bootmen should have a better year.

MacConnell Calls For Ski Candidates; Meeting Thurs.

William MacConnell, coach of the University of Massachusetts Ski Team, has announced that a meeting of all those interested in intercollegiate racing, will be held Thursday, November 8, at 7:00 p.m. in the Middlesex Room of the Student Union.

Last season was the University's first year in the New England Intercollegiate Ski Conference and they placed fifth out of a field of sixteen colleges. UMass Skiers, last year, picked up three second place trophies and one third place individual medal.

Returning this season from last year's team are Richard Hurlbut '63, Capt.; Clark Bowlen '63, Manager; Pete Helliwell '64, Don Burgess '64, and Tom Clark '64.

An intensive conditioning period will begin November 12th. Coach MacConnell has announced that a two week training camp will be held at Killington Basin in Shelburne, Vermont during the Christmas vacation.

Other teams in the conference include Amherst, Tufts, A.I.C., Boston College, Boston University, Brown, N.E.C., and Northeastern.

The 1963 schedule is as follows:

Date	Area	Sponsor
Jan. 25	Cranmore	Brown
Feb. 3	Sunapee	N.E.C.
Feb. 9	Thunder Mt.	Amherst
Feb. 10	Thunder Mt.	UMass
Feb. 16	Wildcat	N.U.
Feb. 17	Wildcat	Tufts
Mar. 2	Whittier	B.C.
Mar. 3	Pleasant Mt.	B.U.
Mar. 9	Okemo	A.I.C.

Speaking Of Sports

by BARRY BROOKS '63

Last year's Sun Bowl winner, Villanova, and our own Redmen will meet head on in a Homecoming Day clash before an expected "full-house" at Villanova, Pennsylvania, this Saturday.

For the Redmen, this will be their fourth Homecoming performance of the season, and also the second week in a row that their opposition will be "Cats".

Only two starters are missing from Coach Alex Bell's harassing, stunning defense that was third in the nation last year. The "Wildcats," who are presently enjoying a 6-1 record, suffered their only defeat of the season to the Eagles of Boston College, 28-13.

Both Villanova QB's are good runners and ball handlers. Richie Richmond is always a threat on the option play in Bell's multiple-T formation. Behind Richmond is Ted Aceto, an aerial marksman, who has such fine receivers as Larry Glueck, considered one of the finest in the East, Joe Cutroneo, and Jack Clifford. Not to be forgotten in the Wildcat line-up is a 245 pound fullback, Billy Joe, who hits with the finesse of a steam roller going downhill.

Kezer Gets All-East Pick

Pat McCarthy, Holy Cross QB, was named to the All-East major college team of the ECAC. Joining him in the backfield were halfbacks Paul Martha of Pittsburgh and UMass' Ken Kezer. Kezer, replacing the injured Sam Lussier, carried seven times for fifty-four yards, caught three passes for another ninety-one yards, and scored once on a nineteen yard scamper across the Vermont goal line. Harvard's Bill Grana completed the ECAC's backfield.

Who's Going Where?

College football heads into the final weeks as the bowl picture begins to emerge from the crystal ball.

Southern California could get its first bid to the Rose Bowl since 1954. Having blanked Washington last Saturday, 14-0, the Trojans need only to defeat Stanford and UCLA to win the trip to Pasadena.

Any one of several Big Ten teams could provide the opposition. Northwestern presently appears to be the one to beat. Sophomore QB Tommy Myers in his first five games hit on 72 of 108 passes for 979 yards; ten touchdowns and a phenomenal .667 completion average as the Wildcats remain undefeated.

In the South, the undefeated Mississippi Rebels appear headed for a perfect season, while Alabama ran its string of victories to 25, with a 20-0 win over Mississippi State.

A Sugar Bowl match between Mississippi and Alabama—an encounter that would be a dream game for any post-season classic—got a boost yesterday from Rebel coach Johnny Vaught. Vaught said a bowl meeting between his rebels and Paul (Bear) Bryant's Alabama squad "would be the best possible."

Surprisingly, Bryant indicated he wouldn't be amiss to battling Ole Miss. Mississippi is expected to get a formal invitation to the Sugar Bowl sometime this week. The committee is angling for Alabama too. The Rebels are considered almost a cinch for the Bowl game. If the committee can't line up Alabama, other possible contenders include Auburn, Arkansas, and possibly Army.

Only six major teams remain unbeaten-untied. USC, Northwestern, Ole Miss, and Alabama are four of them. The other two are Dartmouth, who has yielded only nine points to the opposition in six games (1.5 points per game), and Ohio University.

Still Kicking

Two of the East's finest quarterbacks will face each other this Saturday; Dartmouth's Billy King and last week's "Sophomore of the Week," Columbia's signal-caller Archie Roberts . . . Sam Lussier will remain side-lined this week, while the chance of his return is "very doubtful," according to Coach Fusia . . . UConn held UNH to minus seven yards for the afternoon, only to be set back 7-0 . . . Many Redman fans are expected to make the trip to Villanova (12 miles outside of Philadelphia) since there are no classes on Monday. Tickets ($3.00) will be on sale in Room 10-A of the Physical Education Building until 11:30 AM. on Friday WMUA, WMAS, and WBRK will keep Western Mass. informed of the happenings at Villanova beginning at 1:25 PM.

'Lil Booters Tie Amherst

by SCOTT FREEDLAND '66

The UMass freshman soccer team ended its season by battling the Amherst freshmen to a scoreless tie in a game which went into double overtime last Saturday. Play was hampered by rain and cold.

Both teams were aggressive and tough to compensate for the lack of ball control due to the mud and water on the field. Freshman goalie Rick Gustafson broke up many of the Amherst scoring threats with his excellent saves. Special mention should be made of Mike Zanrotny and right-fullback Ray Yando, both playing with injuries.

The whole team deserves credit for the excellent and spirited game they played against an Amherst squad of 40, double the size of the Redmen team. The varsity can look forward to many fine additions to the squad from this year's fine team, finishing with a 4-1-1- record.

FRATERNITY PROFILES

This is the last in a series of Fraternity Profiles—articles containing brief outline histories of the campus' 15 Houses. With Fraternity Rushing presently in progress, IFC Publicity feels Freshmen should have on hand this information.

In 1909, Lambda Chi Alpha was founded by three law students at Boston University. Since that time Lambda Chi, with a membership of nearly 80,000 brothers and 150 active chapters throughout the United States and Canada, has become the third largest national fraternity in the world.

Gamma chapter, founded at the University in 1912, has had a long history. In keeping with this fine tradition, Gamma Zeta scored very high in last semester's inter-fraternity competition. Lambda Chi placed first in the inter-fraternity swimming competition, first in the all-campus volleyball competition, second in the inter-fraternity sing, second in the snow sculpture competition during winter carnival, and first in the pageantry competition during Greek week. The chapter also ranked second scholastically among the Greeks on campus.

Weekly parties, exchange suppers with sororities, the Freshman tea, and the house banquet have been included in the social season thus far this year. With numerous social events scheduled for the remainder of this semester, the social season should be one of the most active in the history of Gamma Zeta. At the banquet attended by prominent alumni, the House happily dissolved its marriage to the bank and burned its House mortgage. House officials said they are now looking forward to the construction of a new house.

The brothers of Gamma Zeta come from all parts of the state and are majoring in fields ranging from physical education to engineering. They said that the diversified interests and backgrounds of the brothers have an integrating effect within the chapter. With rushing in progress, the brothers of Lambda Chi said they are looking forward to meeting the freshmen and hope to see a large turnout.

Interested In Tiddlywinks? Contact J.D.

One of the up-and-coming sports on campuses across the country today is tiddlywinks. Harvard, which recently lost to Oxford, has a team. So has Simmons and Mt. Holyoke, to name just a few. These teams are looking for matches, and UMass just might be their match—if we had an organized team.

Skelton To Discuss Synge Tonight At 8

Professor Robin Skelton, First Semester Centennial Lecturer in English Literature at UMass and Senior Lecturer in the Department of English at the University of Manchester (England), will deliver a talk on "J.M. Synge: The Poet and Tradition" tonight at 8 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium.

The program is one of a series to be presented by the UMass English Department in celebration of the University's centennial year. Theme for the series is Modern Trends in British and American Literature.

Professor Skelton has read his verse to audiences in many English schools and universities including Oxford and Cambridge, and is distinguished by T. S. Eliot as one of the most promising of the younger poets in England.

Educated at Christ's College, Cambridge, and Leeds University, he has been an outstanding booster of poetry and plastic arts in England. He has recently lectured at Victoria College in British Columbia.

Mr. Skelton has four volumes of verse in print and has published book-length critical studies of Ruskin, the Cavalier Poets and the nature of poetry (The Poetic Process).

Individual poems of his have appeared in publications including The London Times Literary Supplement and The New Statesman.

Mt. Holyoke Will Confer 13 Degrees

Honorary degrees will be awarded to 13 women tomorrow, to commemorate the day, 125 years ago, when Mary Lyon, for whom a UMass women's dormitory is named, opened an institution for the higher education of young women. Mount Holyoke College will confer the degrees upon 13 women whose achievements cover a wide span.

Best known of the 13 recipients who will assemble at the Founder's Day convocation on November 8 are Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, now well into her third Senate term, and Harper Lee, author of the Pulitzer-prize novel, "To Kill A Mockingbird."

Phi Sigma Kappa Plans Renovation Of House

Plans for complete renovation of the interior of the Phi Sigma Kappa Fraternity House have been announced by the Housing Corporation of Phi Sig.

The Housing Corporation is a non-profit organization of Phi Sig alumni in the immediate area, which is responsible for the maintenance and improvement of the chapter house.

Although the house has added many improvements since it was dedicated in 1917, the remodeling planned to begin December 17 is the largest the house has experienced to date.

The architect's plans, which are now on bid by several contractors, include large-scale renovations throughout the house.

The brothers' rooms, which are living-room bed-room suites, are to receive extensive work. New walls, acoustical ceilings and woodwork are to be installed in all rooms.

The main living room is to be renovated in much the same way; a lowered acoustical ceiling, paneled wall, new woodwork and walls and a new hardwood floor. A rug is being purchased by the brotherhood for this room. Renovations extend also to the dining area and hallways.

The Housing Corporation met last week with the brotherhood to discuss plans. All were agreed, said a Phi Sig spokesman, on the feasibility of the alterations and improvements listed above.

Several other topics were discussed. A proposal to install a "harem" or central sleeping quarters was rejected, the spokesman said. The contractor's work, to begin in the main living room, was postponed until December 17 so that the House could hold its last social function before the New Year-Christmas Formal, without any inconviences.

Renovations at this time were deemed feasible because of the House's financial stability, the spokesman said. Funds are to be appropriated from the Housing Corporation's improvement fund.

Fall Fashion Show Will Be Held Tues. In S.U. Ballroom

The Annual Fall Fashion Show, entitled "The Smart Set" will be held Tuesday evening, November 13 at 8 p.m. in the S.U. Ballroom.

Girls from each class will model clothing from the well known fashion centers, The House of Walsh and Ann August in Amherst, and Margaret Nelson on Green Street, Northampton.

The show will highlight new trends in sports wear and evening clothes.

There will be an admission fee of 25¢. Bonny Laird and Susan O'Neil are co-chairmen of the Special Events Committee in charge of the Show. Refreshments will be served.

Commonwealth Lawmakers To Attend Legislators' Day

The Commonwealth's lawmakers will visit the UMass campus for a special legislators' Day on Friday, Nov. 16.

President John W. Lederle announced today that he has invited all members of the General Court to participate in an informal Centennial program designed to acquaint legislators with the great progress the University has made in its first 100 years.

In a departure from last year's program, legislators are being invited to stay an extra day to make a fuller inspection of the University, talk with more of the students, and to watch the University football team in Saturday afternoon's game with the University of New Hampshire. The game will decide the Yankee Conference championship.

The lawmakers will meet with student leaders and members of the faculty, visit classrooms and laboratories, and inspect the library and other facilities.

A highpoint of the program will be dedication ceremonies for the newly opened Gorman House, a dormitory for men named for the late Edwin Gorman, highly respected legislator and friend of the University from Holyoke. Members of the Gorman family, legislative leaders, University officials and students will participate in the dedication ceremonies.

Blood Bank Relocated In S.U. Commonwealth Room

Because of the greater number of people donating blood this year, the blood bank has been relocated in the Commonwealth room of the S.U. rather than in Arnold Dormitory, as it has been in past years, said Alan Savat, student chairman of the drive.

The drive, which begins on Tuesday, Nov. 13, will continue through Thursday, Nov. 15. Students who have pledged blood during the drive will receive appointment cards in the mail a day before their appointments.

All students who are donating are reminded that they should have a good night's sleep and should eat within three hours before donating their blood.

Any student under 21 who has pledged blood and does not receive an appointment card has been refused permission by his parents.

Students over 21 who have not pledged and wish to donate may go the Commonwealth Room anytime during the operation of the blood bank.

Constitutionality Problem Tables Senate Clarification

by JACKIE BEAUVAIS '66 and ELAINE CORSI '66

Senator Richard Boyden's ('65 Commuters) resolution to clarify the jurisdiction of the General Court received Senate approval Wednesday night as Senator Jon Fife ('64 Van Meter) presided in the absence of President Don Cournoyer ('63 Fraternities).

However, the measure will be reconsidered at the next Senate session because of what Senator Richard Buck ('64 Married Dorms) termed a "constitutionality problem."

Senator Tom McMullin ('64 Chadbourne) of the Curriculum Committee announced that 20 UMass courses have been chosen by Amherst, Smith, and Mount Holyoke students to appear in the four college filing system.

The Senate also approved a measure recommended by Senator Richard Potter ('63 Van Meter) of the Finance Committee granting the Redmen Band a category change for a transfer of $320 from miscellaneous to meals for the Villanova trip.

Abby Fund Well Over 4 Thousand

Jon Fife, treasurer of the Campus Co-ordinating Council, has announced that as of Tuesday evening, a total of $4,266.86 had been collected in donations for the Abbey Fund.

The breakdown of contributions is as follows:

Boys Dorms	617.08
Girls Dorms	510.12
Panhellenic	363.75
French House	150.00
Protestant Churches (of Amherst)	79.00
WMUA	62.00

With several private donations, by students, faculty, administration, and outside sources, the sum reached $2,266.86, which, added to the Student Senate kickoff fund of $2000.00 added up to $4,266.86.

Fife, who is also treasurer of the Senate, added that donations from several sources had not as yet been tallied. Included in this category are the I.F.C. and the proceeds from two events held in the S.U. Tuesday and Wednesday nights, specifically for the Abbey Fund.

Bane Claims Fed. System Unweakened

"The federal system is as strong today as it has been for many years."

Frank Bane, chairman of the U.S. Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, stressed this point at a lecture yesterday afternoon before 30 people in the Middlesex Room of the S.U.

He said this system has been crippled many times in the past but has always come back. It is with us now, he said, and will be with us for a long time to come.

Bane explained that the old federal system maintained definite boundaries between the local, state and federal governments; but the new system is based on the cooperation among the three branches.

The major problem, he said, of the federal system is the relationship between local, state and national governments.

He listed four ramparts necessary for the protection of the federal system. They were state control of elections, the police, education and the concurrent tax system. "Maintain these," he said, "and you can maintain the federal system."

In closing he stated that the advantage of such a system is that it can't be ruined overnight by the hysteria of some dictator or over-powerful faction.

A RESPECTFUL MEMO

We respectfully request that the math department of this University remind the administration of this University that the straightest distance between two points (Bartlett and the Union) always has been, still is, and forever will be a straight line. We suggest that no matter how wide the University builds its go-nowhere concourses, this proposition will remain unaltered. —M.C. '64

THE CRISIS OF THE UNITED NATIONS AND ITS CAUSES

by SEVA SUD

Ideally, the United Nations is an instrument for governing the world through the combined power of the U.S. and the Soviet Union. The Charter of the United Nations, however, does not envisage the possibility that the United Nations operate as an international government for the purpose of establishing or maintaining order in the relations between the U.S. and the Soviet Union, or of preventing war between them. The device of veto excludes the purpose of subjecting the U.S. and the Soviet Union to an international government against their wills.

As a result of these disabilities, the Security Council is declining in its importance as the most effective organ of the United Nations. This decline is further illustrated by the drastic reduction that has occured since 1949 in the number of sessions of the Security Council. In 1946, the Council had 88 meetings; in 1947, 137; in 1948, 168; in 1949, 62; in 1950, 73; in 1951, 39; in 1952, 42; in 1958, 36, and so on. The above analysis makes very clear the ineffectiveness of the Security Council in the performance of its functions of maintaining security and international peace.

Now, let us turn to the reasons for the ineffectiveness of the General Assembly. What is the jurisdiction of the General Assembly under the United Nations Charter? Article 9 of the Charter provides, "The General Assembly shall consist of all the members of the United Nations. Each member shall have not more than five representatives in the General Assembly." Then Article 18 provides as to how vote is to be taken in the General Assembly.

"Each member of the General Assembly shall have only one vote. Decisions of the General Assembly on important questions shall be made by a two thirds majority of the members present and voting. These questions shall include recommendations with respect to the maintenance of international peace and security, the election of the non-permanent members of the Security Council." On other questions decision is to be made by simple majority of the present members.

Further, under article 10 and 11 of the Charter, the General Assembly can discuss all such questions on which action is necessary but its decision cannot be implemented directly. The General Assembly can only refer to the Security Council. So if there is aggression anywhere in the world, the General Assembly is not entitled to take any decision on such a subject or make recommendation. It may recommend measures only.

— LETTERS TO THE EDITOR —

CRAZY, MAN!

To the Editor and WMUA:

In regard to the Crazy Rythm Show of Friday, November 2, 1962:

It was insulting as donors to a dormitory collection to be continually subjected to the badgering and belittling of the announcer for our "apathy" towards the Abby cause. It must have been equally insulting for those who were not able to give because of a mere lack of funds.

The cause is a very worthy one and WMUA, the Collegian and other campus organizations have done a commendable job. Our point is that the show ought to be limited to music and should not contain the announcer's personal opinions and criticisms on the generosity of the student body.

PRONOUN PROBLEMS

To Miss Marcia Ann Voikos '63:

I should like to suggest that when you write letters to the editor stating your own personal feelings, that you say very clearly "I", and not "we of the Abbey." The feelings which you expressed in regard to our housing were not those of all the girls of the Abbey; they were your own. You are entitled to make known your opinions, but have the courage to endorse them on your own name, and not on the unified strength of the word, "we".

A NOTE ON ELECTIONS

To the Editor:

Reporter: President Kennedy, do you plan to run again in 1964?

President: Yes. I will run and win in 1964; my brother Bob will run and win in 1968, and again in 1972; my brother Ted will run and win in 1976 and again in 1980; and then it will be 1984.....

A PLEA FOR SUPPORT

Over the past several weeks, members of the Commuters Club have been working diligently on plans for a club party. At first thought this may not seem important, but to a club whose history is colored with failures, it is. In past years only a handful of commuters turned out for club events, and as a result the club collapsed.

This year, under the leadership of president Janet Vlach, the club is determined to blot out past failures and to prove that the commuters do have spirit. The club has succeeded so far by producing a float for the Homecoming parade, but what of up-coming events? A club comprising less than five percent of the commuter population may not succeed.

Realizing the need for the interest and support of all the commuters, the Commuters Club is inviting all commuters to the party. This party will give non-club members the opportunity to meet fellow commuters and also to learn more about the club. The party will be held November 17th at the home of Bob Rodriguez. We hope that all you commuters will be there.

THIRD DIMENSIONAL

To the Editor:

The Art Club's series of art discussions seems to be headed for success if the caliber and enthusiasim continues through out the series. Mr. Goodyear's presentation was excellent and stimulated some worthwhile and provocative discussion and thoughts for those in attedance.

Mr. Goodyear revealed himself as a struggling and humble artists with ideas that may have a profound effect upon art. By the use of three dimensional painting, John Goodyear has been able to entrap light and reflection within his work while also discovering new relationships between lights, darks, shapes, and objects of Nature. Because of the development evident in his works, his ideas suggested that we might also do some three dimensional painting of our own—with the result—hopefully being as successful as Mr. Goodyear's—that some new worthy open minded prespective of our own right be revealed.

A GREAT INJUSTICE

To the Editor:

I feel that a gross injustice has been done me by Mr. Blaisdells letter in this paper on Nov. 7. It is with the hope that this injustice can be rectified before it gets out of hand, that I am writing this letter.

Mr. Blaisdell insinuates in his letter that I called the whole freshman class "pacifists.' I believe that if Mr. Blaisdell would stop reading between the lines, and just read what I wrote, he would find that I never stated, inferred, or implied that the freshman class were pacifists. My letter was written merely to inform the freshmen, and the student body in general of certain pacifists, and pacifist organizations on campus. So, with this in mind Mr. Blaisdell I suggest that you re-read my letter, but without trying to read anything into it that just isn't there.

Mr. Blaisdell also says that because he was in the army he is just naturally more aware of world tensions than I. Possibly you do know more about the world and its tensions than I, but to make such a gross generalization that veterans know more about the worlds tensions than anyone else is taking a lot for granted.

Mr. Blaisdell also says that for three years he fought while I was studying. In as much that you don't know me, or ever read anything about me, Mr. Blaisdell, has it ever occurred to you that I too might be a veteran?

I hope that there are no hard feelings, Mr. Blaisdell, because none were intended, but I just felt that I had to further clarify the situation before the whole Freshman class jumped on my back.

Activity

Mr. David Dwyer:

What a revelation you have brought forth to us in your letter. You state that the downfall of Rome was caused by the pacifism of its citizens and therefore pacifism will mean the downfall of our civilization. But are you not twisting historical facts and taking these facts out of their proper perspective.

Rome fell, Mr. Dwyer, because of internal decay. Pacifistic activity means interest from within; an ardent and intense desire to end all wars. This is not decay but deep interest in world affairs. No matter how misguided pacifism may seem to others, it is still activity from within. Rome was not a pure democracy and fell because it decayed into a military dictatorship with the positions of the citizens hereditarily frozen. This is certainly not the case with the United States.

Too many people in my opinion, equate the fall of Rome with an apparent collapse of the American Empire. This is placing emphasis on the wrong point—i.e. America must be strengthened at all cost. The proper emphasis should be on preventing a limited democracy and preventing authoritarian control over Americans and foreign people (especially preventing dollar diplomacy).

ANOTHER SOCIAL CRITIC

To the Editor:

1-2-3-4-5-6-7 UMie, UMie, you are heaven.
Three cheers for Bartlett at 8 o'clock,
We're bright and ready for a boring talk.
Yay for the Commons at 6 p.m.
We're glad to be out in the cold again.
Cheery meals—sugar and spice,
Lovely settings—everything nice.
Home again, home again, Trusty Steed,
So we can finish our studies with amazing speed
And gallop down to the Holy Hatch
To hear the news of the latest catch.
We'll peer through red-rimmed eyes and see
The best of Umie's society.
O Knights of the round tables and damsels fair,
What, pray tell, are you doing there?
Sigma Sigma Delta Chi,
Kappa Theta Gamma Phi,
Sorority, Fraternity,
Turn your heads, Look at me.
Nonchalant but on the ball,
We make our way through the crowded hall.
We smile our best as we pass your crowd,
For all our humility we may well have bowed.
Onward, onward, back to the grind—
Open the books, see what we find.
History, math, zoo, and psych,
Which of you shall we do tonite?
Hi-fi, candy, girl next door,
Oh, too tired, can do no more.
Another day's gone, sleepy head
Shower, curlers, then to bed.

World UN Of Business May Be Answer To Agricultural Surplus Distribution

A United Nations of business around the world may be the answer to distributing our agricultural abundance "to reach the little people of the world" in the cause of peace and understanding, suggested Murray D. Lincoln.

Lincoln, member of the Advisory Council to the Peace Corps, chairman of the Food for Peace Task Force, chairman of the board of CARE and Columbus, Ohio insurance executive, spoke recently at a public College of Agriculture Convocation at UMass.

How best to reach the little people of the world is a special problem, said Lincoln in his talk on "Changing Currents in Agriculture." The best "how" of reaching them, he says, is unknown, but will come, he feels, with probing.

Lincoln, a worldwide leader of cooperatives, deviated from his topic to touch on the Cuban crisis and stated that one of the big problems was "how to project our image of democracy to the world." Our big job is "to help these little people get started on the road to abundance, and to eliminate hunger, disease and poverty."

Lincoln also said: that we need an entirely new approach to the U. S. agricultural surplus problem, that farmers need support the same as labor and industry, and that he foresees a compensatory plan of government support to farmers that still allows goods to go to market.

DORMITORY NEWS

DWIGHT HOUSE

Thanks to the seniors for the halloween party they put on, Wednesday, October 31. Pat Fielding was chairman. A skit was enacted by the senior residents with an important lesson for all: don't make brew in your room. It should be done in the kitchenette! There was cider and donuts for all the girls.

Prizes for costumes were won by Joan Fogel, Judy Ginsberg, Julie Houle, Linda Towse, Jean Faulkner, Penny Eskot, and Rita Swartz. The prizes were awarded for the prettiest, most original, funniest, and the ugliest!

On Friday, November 9 from 8:30 to 11:30 Dwight is having a dorm dance, "T-V Time." Tickets are $1.00 per couple, and the dance is presented by the T-V committee. The members are: Lisa Bengen, Joyce Brackett, Liz Cotton, Mary-Jane Cross, Penny Eskot, Mary Finnegan, Gayle Fishman, Linda Guagliardo, Beth Harrison, Patty McShane, Gail Mandell, Nancy Oeikelmus, Andrea Pinkul, Pat Shay, Lynne Spencer, Carole Sumner, Judy Szary, and Linda Towse.

MARY LYON

Mary Lyon girls were surprised to see tumbleweed blowing past their door recently. We learned that Carele Stone had brought the plant back when she returned from New Mexico. Carele spent last semester as an exchange student at University of New Mexico.

Homecoming saw Mary Lyon's two precisionettes, Eileen Boisjolie and Linda Bodwell, marching on the field. Our sincerest congratulations to them for making precisionettes.

Mary Lyon is proud to have among her girls Joyce Blum who has been chosen as Massachusetts representative to the New England Home Economics Council.

Residents of Mary Lyon greeted its new residents with a tea last Saturday afternoon.

Carol MacDonald will be missed by Mary Lyon as she leaves for the Homestead.

Students May Attain B.A. Degree In Three Years

This is the first in a series of three articles written by members of the Provost's Office staff on the prospect of obtaining a college education in three years. According to William C. Venman, Assistant to the Provost, the articles are a result of concern on the part of President Lederle and Provost Woodside about this possibility.

There are many students for whom it would be an advantage to spend less than the usual four years getting a bachelor's degree. Personal plans or financial reasons may make this a desirable goal.

One of the most frequently mentioned reasons for wanting to get a degree in less than the usual time is that finances are a consideration in getting a college education at all. There may be other children at home to be educated or there may be any of a hundred other reasons. It is usually assumed that by working summers the overall cost of higher education can be reduced. This may be true—at the moment.

It is possible to demonstrate, however, making no assumptions other than the omnipresent "average", that it is less costly to spend three years full time getting a bachelor's degree than it is to spend the normal four years of two semesters apiece. Only summer session attendance need be considered as a means of acceleration, even though there are many others. While total debt incurred in the three-year program is higher than that usually incurred in a four-year program because of the loss of possible summer earnings, the advantage of starting in on a productive life corner a year earlier and in paying off any debt sooner amounts to almost five thousand dollars within a period of eight years following first entrance into the University.

Every student has his or her own set of circumstances which dictate the total cost picture, so that inclusion of an example at this point would only be confusing. If cost of education is a factor to be considered, however, a student must not only consider the immediate outlay, but must also balance in future advantages as well. It has often been said that a college education is an investiment, and to recognize the total cost, it must be looked at this way.

A student's plans may call for education beyond the undergraduate level. Shortening the period of undergraduate preparation can not only get the student on to advanced work sooner, but can shorten the overall period of higher education.

Many women plan to be married upon completion of their undergraduate careers. Such women may want to get through college and have their education completed in a shorter time than normal.

A student may have begun his college education late for one reason or another. These students often wish to proceed more rapidly than usual to make up for lost time.

In a recent survey of three-year graduates, some mentioned the challenge they found in completing their education sooner as a factor in why they did it.

Whatever the reasons, it can be done.

All Postcards Should Be Addressed

Attention All Students—When you write postcards to say you're coming home on weekends, don't forget to address them! says Mr. Harlen Wood, Superintendent of Mails in Amherst.

According to Mr. Wood, as many as 310 unaddressed postcards are received at the Post Office annually, especially towards exam time. These cards request notes and important papers, but many students fail to write the address on the card.

Furthermore he said, students should not seal third class printed matter o send it at a low rate, and should not mark printed matter to send it at a letter.

Scholarships Available For Study In Europe

Scholarship applications for undergraduate study in Europe during the academic year 1963-64 will be accepted by the Institute of European Studies beginning Thursday, Nov. 1.

Seven scholarships are being offered for study at the Institute's centers in Vienna, Paris, and Freiburg, West Germany. Included are three full scholarships which cover all basic costs such as tuition, fees, field-study trips, room, most meals, and round-trip ocean transportation from the United States.

Each program embraces formal classes, lectures, seminars and field-study, and is designed to fulfill usual course requirements at its academic level. The programs in Vienna and Paris are open to college sophomores and juniors, while the Freiburg program is limited to juniors.

A full scholarship valued at $2,230 and partial scholarships valued at $500 and $1,000 are available for the Institute's program at the University of Vienna.

The program there combines English-taught liberal arts and general studies courses, intensive German language instruction, regular university courses taught in German for those competent in that language, and supplementary lectures and seminars. Previous knowledge of German is not required.

For its program at the University of Freiburg, the Institute is offering a full scholarship worth $2,125 and a partial scholarship valued at $1,000. The program stresses political science, German langauge study, German philosophy and literature, and European history, with all classes taught in German.

Scholarships offered for study in Paris include one covering all basic costs, equivalent to $2,475, and a partial scholarship valued at $500. Intended for superior students, the program encompasses liberal arts and general studies combined with opportunities for independent study at the University of Paris and other institutes of higher learning in Paris.

The Institute's announcement said scholarships will be granted on the basis of academic achievement, financial need, and recommendation by the applicant's "home" college or university. Applicants must be aged 18 to 24 and unmarried.

Completed applications must be submitted no later than Feb. 15, 1963. Forms and descrptive literature are available from the Institute of European Studies, 35 E Wacker Drive, Chicago 1.

Awards will be announced about May 1, 1963. Enrollees bound for Paris and Vienna will sail for Europe late in August, followed in mid-September by those bound for the Freiburg program.

The Institute, a nonprofit organization described as the largest institution conducting foreign study programs, is currently accepting non-scholarship applications for its spring semester, 1963, programs at the universities of Vienna and Freiburg. The application deadline for those programs is Dec. 10, with sailings scheduled for early February.

Newman Club Speaker Discusses Asian People

by IRIS LOFARO '66

"As we export our finest flowering of culture, for example, machinery, the Asian people are wondering if, in order to obtain these material goods, they must take on our culture completely," said Rev. Andrew O'Reilly at the Newman Club meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Dining Commons.

After spending three months this past Summer in various sections of Asia, Rev. O'Reilly, Chaplain at New York University, said he was convinced the Asian people feel "they will have to sell their souls to give their bodies the wordly goods America enjoys."

This concept, he said, they have acquired from American films depicting our lowering moral standards for more tangible things.

"Asian peoples place a different priority on problems and look at them from a different perspective than we do. It is impossible for them to hold on to their respect for other human beings even when they themselves are suffering starvation and poverty."

He told of Mother Teresa, a Yugoslavian nun who requested and got permission to leave her convent and beg in the streets of Calcutta on behalf of the poverty-stricken of that city. She soon acquired a following of young women to aid her in her task. There are now 600 of these women soliciting aid for the poor of India.

He pointed out the example of a Rev. Ceyrac, a Catholic Chaplain for Indian students, who is "trying to narrow the gap between economic poverty and starvation" by leading his young students into areas where they can help others while helping themselves to find new skills and better ways of living.

"When one jumps to hasty conclusions," said Rev. O'Reilly, "one is almost always in error. With the little they have, the Asian peoples are still eager to help others because of their genuine respect for other people.

"Perhaps one day Americans might be endowed with the inferiority these people feel and thus emerge as a greater people with a greater culture."

This is the first in a series of Alumni Profiles—brief biographies of some of the University's prominent graduates. They will be written by members of the Alumni Office staff qualified to write authoritatively on the subject.

On August 31, 1962, a short man with a round smiling face, large brown eyes, and an insatiable appetite for work, retired from the University of Massachusetts. Dr. Maxwell Henry Goldberg, known to thousands simply as Max, became the first Commonwealth Professor emeritus.

For the better part of four decades Max Goldberg's career and the course of the University of Massachusetts were closely entwined. He entered the University, at that time the Massachusetts Agricultural College, in 1924. A native of Malden and a graduate of Boston Latin, Max Goldberg majored in Agricultural Education. In 1928, an Adelphian, senior member and president of Roister Doisters, and member of Delta Phi Alpha, the "dark haired youth with the dreamy eyes," as the editor of the Index described him, graduated with highest honors.

Almost immediately after graduation Max returned to Aggie. Paul Anderson, an instructor of English, was goin on leave to get his Ph.D. Max Goldberg took his place in September of 1928.

Max studied for a while at Amherst College before going to Yale for his Master's, which he received in 1932. In 1933 he was granted his Ph.D. from Yale, in English.

"Max" Agitated For MSC

When, in 1933, the Special Committee on Revision of Course of Study was set up to fully implement the state college concept, the young Doctor of Philosophy was made a member. As a student Max Goldberg had been one of the group that had agitated for the change to a state college. As a faculty member he set to work drawing up the plans of the Humanities section of what became the division of Social Sciences and Humanities.

Ten years later, in 1943, when the Committee on Post War Adjustments was formed to implement the University concept, Dr. Max Goldberg was a member Again he planned ahead and again it was his plan that was used. This time the plan was that of the Humanities departments in the School of Liberal Arts, later to become the College of Arts and Sciences.

The influence is indelible, and it is a wide reaching and pervasive influence. Max Goldberg's interests as an educator and alumnus touched on every segment of campus life. Through his help a new fraternity and a new sorority were established at the University. His old fraternity, Delta Phi Alpha, was established as Phi chapter of Alpha Epsilon Pi. For 14 years Max Goldberg was the advisor to all student publications.

In the late '30's and early '40's, when spoken verse began to attract attention and Amherst was the hub of the movement, Max Goldberg was one of the prime movers. One of his lectures at Amherst College struck such a responsive note that he was persuaded to put it into print. Amherst as Poetry, a short book about the town that Joseph Auslander, Robert Frost, Audrey Wurdemann, David Morton, and Robert Francis then called home, was well received in poetic circles.

Scholarly Work

While his works were appearing in the Modern Language Quarterly, Menorah Journal, and the autobiographic section of the Complete College Reader (with pieces by Benjamin Franklin, T.H. Huxley, and Archibald MacLeish), the name Max Goldberg grew increasingly familiar and meaningful to educators. As an executive officer of the College English Association and editor of the CEA Critic, Executive Director of the American Humanities Center, and Director of the World Student Service Fund, (and later elected member-at-large from the United States to the World University Service General Assembly—a post he shared with Rheinhold Niebuhr). Max made Old Chapel and later South College, national headquarters for several of the most active educational associations in the country.

His work did not pass unnoticed. In 1942 the students dedicated the Index to "the dissenter from the utilitarian interpretation of man." The 1945 Gitelson Memorial Medallion for outstanding communal and cultural services was awarded to Max.

Headed UMass English Dept.

In 1955, having already established his reputation internationally in the Humanities, English, Literature, Letters, and Continuing Education, Dr. Maxwell H. Goldberg was named as Head of the Department of English. This was not a position that could be given to a man who would merely rest upon his laurels. Max Goldberg rarely rested.

Organizational and functional changes swept through the English Department, under his direction, readying the structure for university level instruction. Library resources were inventoried and evaluated; staff posts were set up—director of Freshman English; director of Sophomore Humanities courses; co-ordinator for graduate students. Research professorships were inaugurated. (The first, Thomas Copeland is currently engaged in the editing of the complete correspondence of Edmund Burke in England, a scholarly work second in magnitude only to the editing of the Rolls of Parliament.) Creative and technical writing programs and a journalism program were organized. And at last there was a Ph.D. program in English.

With many other commitments, his participation as co-instructor in two Honors Colloquia, writing a chapter. for The University Today, editing the "S/R Reports to America—Industry and the Liberal Arts" in the Saturday Review, and lectures for the Washington Seminar for Federal Executives, Max spent his spare time working on his forthcoming book, Liberal Education and the Quest for Wholeness.

First Commonwealth Professor Emeritus

On August 31, 1962, Max Goldberg became the first Commonwealth Professor Emeritus. He also became the living refutation of the interpretation of emeritus that says it means—on the shelf. Max is by no means on the shelf. On September 1, 1962 he assumed the position of Professor of the Humanities and Associate Director for the Humanities in the Center for Continuing Studies at the Pennsylvania State University.

Max, who, with his second wife, makes his home in State College, Pennsylvania, will continue to remain a familiar figure on campus. While he has moved, he has maintained his position as Executive Director of the Centennial, with John Ryan as his representative. The Centennial Offices are still on the third floor of South College and the staff, in answer to the question always answers, "Max is the Executive Director."

Faculty-Student Relations Important Says Woodside

PROVOST GILBERT WOODSIDE

UMass Provost Gilbert Woodside stressed the importance of improving faculty-student relations at an Adelphia-sponsored meeting Tuesday between Woodside and a group of academic club presidents.

Result of SWAP

The meeting came about as a result of discussion at SWAP last September in this area. According to Alan Savat, chairman of the meeting, the SWAP discussion revealed that "these relations could well be improved if the students realize the problems that exist in this area and if the students take the initiative in creating this greatly needed rapport."

Students Shy

Some students are shy, some just don't care and some think they have nothing to talk about, said Woodside.

"Faculty members are busy," he said, "but none are too busy to talk to students."

"The Provost's Hour, held on Monday afternoons at 4 in the SU has been enjoyable for those students who have come," he said, "but not enough come."

UNIVERSITY GOALS

"The goals of a University," he said, "are to teach knowledge, truth and wisdom."

"The main thing a student can bring to a University," he said, "is curiosity. Nothing can take the place of wanting to learn."

He pointed out five roles of academic clubs at the University. These include helping students to develop curiosity, developing a student's leadership qualities, developing a student's knowledge of his own field and aiding better faculty-student relations.

The success of these clubs, he said, depends on the sincerity of the students, the proportion of student majors taking part in these academic activities and the imagination of the leaders.

Clubs Acting

In the discussion following Woodside's speech, several persons present mentioned things being done by their clubs to sponsor such relations, including coffee hours and faculty luncheons.

Those attending and the academic clubs they represent included: James Gilligan, Turf Management Club; Charles H. McCollough, Floriculture Club; Steven R. Pyenson, Poultry Science Club; Harvey H. Issenberg, Food Distribution Club;

Also, Steven Alger, Carol Esoldi and Eleanor Bushey, Sociology Club; Sherman Clebnik, Geology Club; Harvey Kauter, Psychology Club; Roy F. Forgit, University Economics Association; Al Libardoni, Engineering Council;

Also, Michael Rosen, Astronomy Club; Roberta Hack, Spanish Club; Jean Faulkner, History Club; Emily Eldred, Omicron Nu; Suellen Kone, Alpha Lambda Delta; Don Moore, International Club;

Also, Domenico B. Ahlerti, Italian Club; James Farris, Zoology Club; Leslie Bevken, Food Science and Technology Club.

Army Needs More Officers For '63

For UMass Army Reserve Officer Training Corps students or students interested in Army careers, the UMass Army ROTC Department has announced the U.S. Army Department has a requirement for approximately 19,400 officers during the fiscal year 1963.

This total includes 17,500 commissioned officers and 1,900 warrants.

In order to meet this increased requirement, a number of actions are being taken to increase active army input from existing procurement sources, and to initiate new programs designed to attract the potential officers.

During the fiscal year 1963 all ROTC graduates scheduled for active duty will be called for a period of at least two years. The six month active duty for training program, which was suspended in August, will remain suspended throughout the current fiscal year.

ROTC graduates may request delay from call to active duty for the purpose of obtaining an advanced degree. Individuals granted such a delay must agree to serve on active duty for a period of two years once they have completed their studies.

The Officer Candidate Schooling program is currently undergoing considerable expansion. An enlistment option has recently been initiated which will permit college graduates to enlist in the Army for the purpose of attending officer candidate school provided they were unable to take ROTC as undergraduates.

In addition, greater numbers of qualified personnel currently serving in the active, enlisted ranks are being encouraged to apply for officer candidate training.

Female commissioned officer personnel are also in great demand. Procurement requirements for nurses and medical specialists exceed 1,000. WAC officer requirements total about 250. The Army must meet these requirements primarily by appointment of qualified personnel direct from civil life.

Women interested in serving on active duty as commissioned officers in the Army Nurse Corps, Army Medical Specialist Corps, or in the Women's Army Corps should contact the nearest Army recruiting station for more detailed information.

Additional information on new Army programs can be obtained by contacting Captain Green B. Williams, Dickinson Hall, extension 321.

Lussierless Redmen Face Mighty Villanova Wildcats

by STEVE HEWEY '63

For the second time this season UMass Coach Vic Fusia will take his team on a long trip to the state of Pennsylvania to do battle with one of the Keystone State's strongest elevens. The first trip was capped by a Redmen victory over Bucknell, 21-20, last month. This weekend's venture finds UMass paired off with one of the top independent teams in the East, the Villanova Wildcats, under the direction of Coach Alex Bell.

Redmen fans will recall the scare that Massachusetts gave Villanova last season at Alumni Field before finally bowing to the more rugged Villanova forces, 33-13. From all appearances this year's edition of Alex Bell's Wildcats will be no easier to deal with. The only team to halt Villanova to date is Boston College, 28-13. The six Wildcat wins have come over Westchester, V.M.I., Buffalo, Deleware, Xavier, and Detroit.

Mr. Monster

Here is what is awaiting UM Saturday afternoon: a big team that can move easily on the ground and with little difficulty in the airways. On the turf, halfback Larry Glueck has been top rusher for most of the campaign. Coach Bell has a tremendous one-two punch at the fullback slot with Lou Rettino (225 lbs.) and "Mr. Monster" Billy Joe (245 lbs.). Joe, who tallied twice against Massachusetts last season, is not operating at full steam because of a leg injury. The starting Wildcat quarterback will be southpaw Richie Richman, who, like UM's own Jerry Whelchel, likes to run and can throw well. Glueck and end Jack Clifford have gathered in most of Richman's tosses this season.

SATURDAY'S QUARTERBACKS

Villanova's Richie Richman (left) and the Redmen's Jerry Whelchel (right) will be calling the plays for their respective teams tomorrow when UMass travels to the Villanova campus just outside Philadelphia.

UMass has lots of talent to throw at their biggest hosts tomorrow and with "Finesse over Force" the Redmen could pull a king-sized upset. At quarterback will be Jerry Whelchel, Redmen field general all season. The soph sensation has been drawing the praise of coaches and scribes alike throughout the East. As a passer (39 for 70), he can throw with the best of them. As a runner, he's like having a third halfback in the lineup. Whelchel is second among UMass ground gainers with 183 yards. Already he has been named twice to the All-East rolls as Sophomore of the Week.

Kezer and Flagg At Half

Another All-East selectee, Ken Kezer, will be starting at halfback tomorrow. Ken earned the E.C.A.C. honor for his running and pass snaring show vs. Vermont last week. Kezer has a rushing average of 5.4 yards on 30 carries. Scheduled to go at the other half slot is Loren Flagg, fastest man on the UM squad. Dick Warren will be starting at fullback. Coach Fusia can also call upon Leo Biron (2 TD's vs. Vermont), Dick Lewis, Phil deRose and Mike Ross to give added strength to the Redmen running game against the Wildcats.

The big gap in the UMass ground game will be the absence of Sam Lussier in the lineup. Lussier was hurt in the B.U. game and did not see action at Vermont. Sam, the all time UMass ground gainer, leads the squad in rushing with a net of 518 yards on 88 carries for an average of 5.9 per carry. It is still doubtful whether the senior halfback will be set to go against UNH in the YanCon showdown next Saturday afternoon.

The UM line, which found its easiest work against the Catamounts last Saturday, faces its biggest challenge of the season tomorrow. Wildcat line play was the key to its 33-13 win over UMass last season and could spell the difference again this fall.

GAME OF THE WEEK

This is it. The game that will make or break Northwestern's Hope of a Big Ten title and a National Championship to boot. The Wildcats, currently in first place in the national ratings, will invade the campus of the University of Wisconsin this Saturday. Wisconsin could just as easily be in first place now had it not suffered a 14-7 defeat at the hands of Ohio State.

Undefeated Northwestern's brilliant Tom Myers to Paul Flatley passing combination has been the spark for the Wildcats. Myers, the No. 2 major college passer, completed 11 of 18 tosses for 168 yards before reserves took over for Northwestern midway in the third period at Notre Dame. Flatley, the nation's third best pass catcher, made several circus catches as he shared six Myers' tosses for 102 yards including touchdown grabs of 23 and seven yards. NW also has fine backs in Steve Murphy and Dick McCauley.

Wisconsin is led by All-American candidate Pat Richter. The Badgers are blessed with a fine passing quarterback in Ron Vanderkelen and hard running Ron Smith, who also catches passes. Two weeks ago he set up the only Badger TD of the game against Ohio State on a 43-yard pass play, dodging enemy tacklers for the last 40 yards.

Each team has the possibility of winning. Las Vegas has the man to man odds at even-steven. Each team is solid and has played brilliant ball all season; but Northwestern is the team to beat—by at least three points.

NEW ENGLAND ACTION

The New England action will be thin except for the BC-Texas Tech game. BC can add a lot of prestige to the East by beating the Lone Star State eleven. An underdog—but it's Eagles SI . . . . The BU Terriers seem to be taking adavntage of YanCon opponents this year. It's Terriers over Huskies at Storrs, Conn. . . . . Hofstra, third ranked for the Lambert Cup, symbol of Eastern small college supremacy, should cement its position when they meet the Rhody Rams in Providence . . . . Bob Blackman's Big Green should take care of talent-starved Columbia while in other Ivy action the Crimson of Harvard won't be so happy at Princeton.

NATIONALLY

Marvelous Mira will not be enough to contain the Alabama Tide . . . . Syracuse's Sophs will still be learning as Navy floats an easy victor over the Orangemen . . . . Pittsburgh, after a surprisingly easy victory over Syracuse, will not be up to a spirited Notre Dame eleven at South Bend . . . . Penn State will match identical 6-1 records with West Virginia. A stab in the dark cries Penn State . . . . Purdue has been having all sorts of troubles this year: losing to Miami — of Ohio yet! They spoiled Illinois' unblemished record (not a win in two years) by losing to them 14-10. Michie State will add to their woes . . . . A big Eastern contest finds Rutgers at Delaware. UDel is running first in the race for the Lambert Cup, while Rutgers is holding a four game win skein. It's Delaware by a hair . . . . as Army whips Oklahoma State.

SUMMARY

Northwestern over Indiana	Navy over Syracuse
BC over Texas Tech	Notre Dame over Pitt
BU over UConn	Penn State over West Virginia
Hofstra over URI	Michigan State over Purdue
Dartmouth over Columbia	Delaware over Rutgers
Princeton over Harvard	Army over Oklahoma State
Alabama over Miami (Fla.)

GAME OF THE WEEK

Listen this Sunday, Nov. 11, at 7:30 p.m. on WMUA for the play by play description of the SPE vs TEP play-off game which decides the winner of IFC League "A" competition and which team plays KS, winner of IFC League "B", in the semi-final playoffs for the campus championship.

Football Contest Has 12 Winners

LARRY GRILLO '64 is the winner of the $100 cash prize in last week's VICEROY COLLEGE FOOTBALL CONTEST, which was based on 11 games in this area.

In addition to the top award, there were 14 other cash prize winners.

Four separate contests are being sponsored by the Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corporation, manufacturers of Viceroy cigarettes. Entry blanks for a new contest are now on easel cards displayed throughout the campus.

Other winners in last week's contest were:

Redmen Swim Team

The hopes of the Redmen Swim Team suffered a serious blow Sunday when co-captain Jim Coffey '63 slipped on the deck during practice and broke a bone in his right wrist.

It is estimated by Dr. Gage that Coffey, a vital middle distance man, will miss eight weeks of action and thereby miss the first three meets on the Mermen schedule.

Springfield Nips Harriers; Wrynn Sets UMass Record

by JIM RYAN '65

Led by their fantastic 1-2 punch, Terry Merritt and Kirk Randall, Springfield College preserved its undefeated season record by edging UMass 27-29 last Wednesday on the UMass course.

This loss was the third of the year for the YanCon champs, and all three have been by a margin of three points or less.

This was the best dual meet ever held at UMass, as evidenced by the outstanding times turned in by the runners. Not only were times much improved for the whole UMass team, an important factor with The New England Championships coming up soon, but four of the five fastest times ever recorded on the course were posted in this meet.

Merritt Wins

Merritt, much improved over last year, covered the 4.6 mile course in a time of 24:12.4, only 3.3 seconds off the course record of 24:09.1, set by Jim Keefe of Central Connecticut State earlier this season. Teammate Kirk Randall finished second in a time of 24:18.

Jim Wrynn, the first UMass man to cross the finish line, finished third in the race. Running perhaps his finest race of the season, Wrynn set a new course record for a UMass man by finishing in 24:23, 4.4 seconds under the old UMass record of 24:27.4, set by Bob Brouillet earlier in the season. Co-captain Dave Balch, who ran an outstanding race, finished four seconds behind Wrynn, also breaking the old record. Bob Brouillet, suffering only his second loss of the season, finished fifth. Other UMass finishers were: Ken O'Brien, 8th; Bob Pendleton, 9th; co-capt. Dick Blomstrom, 10th; and Tom Panke, 15th.

New England Championship Meet

The next meet for UMass will be The New England Championships to be held Monday afternoon at Franklin Park in Boston. The Redmen hope for a repeat of last year's performance in which they snapped back from a dual meet loss to this same Springfield team, and went on to defeat Springfield and win the New England's a week later. Springfield, along with Brown University, will again provide the stiffest competition for UMass.

Frosh Runners Seek NE Title; Molvar Aims High

by GENE COLBURN '64

The freshmen cross-country team is well on its way to being the best in UMass history. The frosh now have a 6-0 record, and are running in the New Englands on Monday, Nov. 10. Due to the fact that the little Redmen have defeated such formidable foes as Army and Harvard, they stand a good chance of winning the title.

The team's strength and depth have been greatly improved by the return of Dave Sullivan. Before he was hurt Sullivan was running as second man on the team. If he can turn in a good performance Monday, Dave may very well turn the trick for the frosh.

Bob Molvar stands a good chance of winning the individual title.

UMass is a long way from winning, though. Northeastern has an exceptionally strong team. Many of its members are former high school stars, and Dave Dunsky is their best boy. Dunsky has been one of the best runners in the area for the last three years, and always placed high in the High School New Englands.

Even stronger competition can be expected from Brown and Providence. Both of these teams are loaded. Chris O'Donnell is the leading Brown freshman. He was in the top ten in the schoolboy New England's last year, and is a strong threat for the individual title. Providence is an exceptionally powerful team. Their number 5 man finished in the top ten of the schoolboy New England's also.

It looks like an uphill climb for the little Redmen, but if they show the fight and the spirit that they have shown all year, UMass may take the crown home.

SPORTS REPORT

Fusia's Bag Of Tricks

by JIM TRELEASE '63

If Villanova's Greg Bell thinks "trick or treat" ended last week, he may have another thought coming.

When a team the size of UMass must meet a hulking opponent like Villanova, there are only two alternatives: (1) not show up, or (2) prepare a healthy bag or tricks.

For the "most part," Vic Fusia seldom gambles, employs few tricks, and swears by the old school of hard-nosed, yard-by-yard victories. One might even call him the Barry Goldwater of Eastern Coaching. But this weekend's game in Villanova Stadium is not a "most part" contest for UMass; it is a "strange part." And because of this, Fusia must reach into the bag of tricks he has kept in mothballs for so long.

Villanova's scouting reports and last year's game movie will do them little or no good tomorrow. Closely guarded new team formations and line-ups should upset the Wildcats' defense enough to allow Jerry (Wow-Wee) Welchell to thread the secondary with his needle-aerials.

"When you can't plow 'em over," explains Line Coach Chet Gladchuck—"you have to gamble a little," he adds with a certain smile. The gambles involved are so startling that the surprise alone may put Villanova off-balance for a time. What the gambles do to Villanova's game strategy should account for the rest of the 60 minutes, Fusia hopes.

Injuries to Sam Tombarelli and Sam Lussier will prevent their participation against the Mainliners. However, Lussier will join the WMUA sportscasting crew for game commentary starting at 1:25 p.m., Saturday. John Hudson returns after a two week absence from the end spot while tackle Paul Graham's broken nose and half back Loren Flagg's ankle have mended sufficiently for these regulars to participate.

Lil' Redmen Face UConn Frosh; Injuries Weaken Scoring Punch

by AL RICE '66

The UMass freshman football team takes on the Connecticut Frosh at Alumni Field tomorrow afternoon with a badly banged up backfield that can pose a threat to the Redmen's undefeated record.

Bob Hillson still is listed as a doubtful participant due to an ankle injury suffered two and a half weeks ago in practice. His replacement Bob DeLue scored the game-tying touchdown last week at Brewster Academy, but he was injured shortly after the scoring play and will be out the rest of the season. Also on the casualty list is Bob Ellis, the left halfback and one of the leading pass receivers. Don Eaton is definitely set to take over one of the backfield slots, but the other position is still in doubt. Eaton scored the first touchdown two weeks ago against Holy Cross and also hit the goal line for the first score against Brewster last week in the 14-14 tie game played at Wolfboro, New Hampshire.

The other two backfield jobs are still held down by Bob Taylor and Dave Kelley. Taylor has proved to be a top-flight passer and a good runner. He has connected for four touchdown passes in the three games played so far. Kelley has come through with key rushing yardage for the Redmen when the chips were down. He scored on a two point conversion last week which enabled Mass to tie the game instead of losing by one point.

The Little Huskies have a 16-2 win over Rhode Island, but last week they suffered a 16-0 shutout at the hands of the New Hampshire Frosh. UConn has a pair of tackles weighing in at 245 and 231, both heavier than any Redmen in the lineup, but the UMass line has been a powerhouse in the previous games so a little extra up front for the Huskies shouldn't make any more difference than when their varsity counterparts met here four weeks ago.

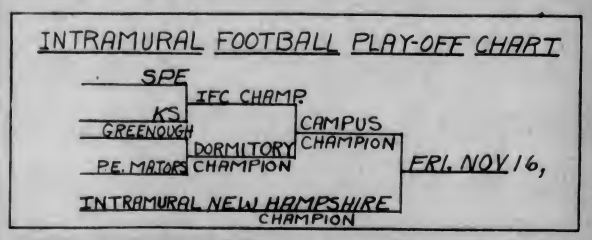
THE IFC SCENE

by JOHN CARR '64

The scene this past week saw KS clinch its league championship while TEP, Sig Ep, and TC tied for the top spot in the other league. Sig Ep beat TC last week 6-2, and all three fraternities had one loss apiece. Wednesday night, TEP played TC and defeated them 13-6. Tom Davidow passed to Murray Kaplan and Steve Vengrow for TD's. Charlie Gordon contributed the extra point. Rick Farrell threw to Bob Ferrara for the only TC score.

Thursday evening, TEP faced Sig Ep for the League championship. Sig Ep took the opening kickoff and moved down field for the first score of the night. QB Butch Francin passed to former Lowell All-Star Bill Gianoulis in the end zone, and Sig Ep had six points. In the second half, TEP came back strong as Tom Davidow threw to Steve Vengrow for the Teppers' only score. Murray Kaplan added the extra point and TEP led 7-6. Sig Ep grabbed the lead to stay a little later when Francin hit Cassana for the final six points of the game. TEP had one TD called back because of a penalty, but Sig Ep had the edge Thursday night.

Sig Ep's next game is with Kappa Sig for the fraternity championship Tuesday, November 13, at 7:00 p.m. Both teams are strong and their meeting should make an interesting contest.



IFC BASKETBALL

There will be a meeting of all fraternity athletic chairmen on Wednesday, November 14, at 6:30 P.M. at the Curry Hicks Building.

Prof. Beth Is Co-Author Of Book On Fla. Politics

Any resemblance between legislative action in Florida and the will of the majority is largely accidental, in the opinion of the authors of a new book on Florida politics.

Loren P. Beth, former faculty member at the University of Florida and now Professor of Government at UMass is co-author of The Politics of Mis-Representations Rural — Urban Conflict in the Florida Legislature, just published by Louisiana State University Press. Prof. Beth is co-author with William C. Havard, head of the government department at Louisiana State University.

Florida has experienced a population shift from two-thirds rural to two-thirds urban in the past 40 years, say Beth and Havard, but the makeup of the state legislature has remained relatively unchanged. As a result, whenever a rural-urban dispute comes up in the legislature, the 'country cousins' have easily outvoted the "city slickers."

The situation was improved only slightly by the reapportionment enacted in the August 1962 special session of the legislature, the authors state. Even if the measure is adopted as a constitutional amendment by the voters in the recent election, a majority of the House of Representatives can still be elected by about 27 per cent of the population and a majority of the Senate by slightly more than 13 per cent.

In writing this book, Beth and Havard have been concerned not so much with theoretical analyses of legislative institutions as with practical political relationships within the state.

They discuss the ways and means by which business is conducted in the legislature, relations between the governor and the legislature, lobbying, and legislative apportionment.

Book Edited By Silver Receives Critics, Praise

A new book by a UMass faculty member—"The Family Letters of Samuel Butler," edited and with an introduction by Dr. Arnold Silver of the UMass English department, is receiving warm praise from English and American critics writing in major literary periodicals.

Recently published by Jonathan Cape in England and by the Stanford University Press in the U.S., the volume has been hailed as a valuable addition to the body of knowledge on Butler, author of Erewhon and The Way of All Flesh and one of the 19th century's most interesting literary personalities.

The Observer of London, speaking of Butler as "one of the most gifted and wrong-headed rebels that there have ever been," calls Prof. Silver's compilation "an excellent guide" to the Victorian age.

The Times of London terms the collection of letters, two-thirds of which have never appeared before, "indispensable" to a student of Butler and his era.

The New Yorker's William Maxwell, in the Oct. 13 issue, devotes more than eight laudatory pages to Prof. Silver's book, noting his "substantial introduction" and his editing of the letters between Butler and his father.

Prof. Silver, now in his fourth year at the University, is a specialist in the field of nineteenth century English literature. He has also taught at Ohio State University and New York University. A graduate of New York University, Dr. Silver received his M.A. and Ph.D. from Columbia University.

Government Seeking Solution To Overcrowding In Colleges

The Department of Health, Education, and Welfare is taking a hard look at one of the toughest problems facing higher education today—too many students. The problem has gone beyond the large land-grant state schools: even the smaller private colleges are beginning to feel the population squeeze.

The several solutions to this problem have one thing in common; HEW is finding they don't work. At least, not very well.

Solutions—Good, Bad and Indifferent

One answer is long-range, sometimes abstract and always debatable. Federal aid to higher education—more money for buildings, and for teachers to meet the massive wave of fall freshmen. Congress, of course, has shown they are not quite ready for this by their rejection of education legislation in the last session.

Another solution, according to government officials, is being used on an increasing scale, even though it is "temporary and full of pitfalls."

It is, simply, to restrict the number of admissions—take only the best qualified students. The biggest pitfalls stem from the meaning of "restrict" and "best qualified."

More than a dozen large scale state universities are bound by law or tradition to admit graduates of accredited state high schools, "regardless of intellectual capacity." How does the state university president get around this?

Apparently, he can't drop a brick wall in the path of a well-meaning but inadequate student. Such undemocratic action would soon bring a member of the state legislature to his feet, bemoaning the injustice done to a constituent's son.

For the president of the private college, unhampered by law and tradition, it is merely a matter of grading and assorting, until the best students are admitted. The problem, then, is grading and assorting applicants.

Officials of the Education Section of the Health, Education and Welfare Department are watching the ensuing clashes with interest.

Since the large state university must admit high school diplomaholders, they're discovering new ways of ridding themselves of students who lower academic standards and crowd classrooms. rooms.

One major east coast state institution is axing undesirables with especially designed freshman courses almost guaranteed to flunk the required percentage. The student is given a chance to repeat failed subjects twice—but on the third attempt and failure, they're out.

One southern university has instituted summer courses for low-ranking high school students. They must achieve certain grade levels or they're refused in the fall. Counseling and guidance officers during the summer convince the students that they're either college material or they're not. This often permits withdrawals of students who can save face and leave an inferiority complex for a job.

Junior Colleges May Be Saving Grace

California's master plan is being eyed by government and other state officials. Top high school students are admitted to the university; the next rank to several four-year colleges, and two-year junior colleges are left open to the determined, but less-talented.

HEW officials report that the junior college may well be the salvation of the large state university striving for higher academic standards.

"Flunking someone out of school deliberately hurts the university and the person," said one source. "The junior college provides the post-high school education and there's always the chance of going on after two yeras."

The Educational Testing Service and the College Entrance Examination Board may provide another solution for limiting admissions.

National Co-ordinating Committee Considered

In his new book, "The Tyranny of Testing," Hoffman, of New York's Queens College, reports that one million freshmen each year are being treated unfairly by the battery of entrance exams Hoffmann's main argument against multiple-choice exams is: 1) they block thought and originality, 2) bright students are penalized while the speedy guesser is favored, and, 3) guesswork isn't education. It's an old argument, but backed by many educators.

Hoffmann, however, admits that the machine-graded multiple-choice exams aid in the sorting and evaluating of the hign school applicants. But he asks, how can an English composition test be given honestly in a multiple-choice form? A line must be drawn between sorting and educating.

In his book, Hoffmann tells of the need for nationwide standards for admission tests. He suggests that an impartial national commission be formed to determine new standards which would apply to all colleges and universities.

And, government officials are probing the use of such a national co-ordinating committee. What course of action will eventually be taken still hasn't been determined.

terial and photos supplied by the University news office and photographer Everett Kosarick, have prepared the UMass feature as an important part of the new roto section.

More than two pages of color and black-and-white photos will be appearing, showing views of the University campus building, and students.

African Film 'The Hunters' To Be Shown

"The Hunters," a feature length color movie about an African giraffe chase and an anthropological study of the Irishmen of the Kalahari Desert, will be shown next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Morrill Auditorium.

The movie, sponsored by the UMass Sociology and Anthropology Department, is open to the public by admission. Tickets for 25¢ may be obtained from Thomas Frasier or David Fortier in 301 Machmer Hall.

C.A. Film To Feature Van Heflin

"Patterns," a movie starring Van Heflin, Everett Sloan and Ed Begley, will be shown Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium, sponsored by the UMass Christian Association.

Chaplain J Springer called it "an exceptionally interesting drama of big business in action and its effect on the lives of two executives."

The event is open to the public without charge.

Girls Flee Hamlin Fire; Damage Set At $1,000

The second fire in two weeks emptied another UMass girls' dormitory Sunday morning at 2:30 a.m., causing $1000 damage to a third floor room at Hamlin.

Two university policemen used hand fire extinguishers to put out the blaze in approximately 15 minutes, thus preventing another serious dorm fire across the street from the Abbey, which recently suffered some $300,000 fire damage.

Policemen Lewis Anderson and Donald Zidik, who were cruising in the vicinity when they heard the interior fire alarm, had extinguished the flames before Amherst fire fighters arrived. However, the local department stood by until 4 a.m.

According to Lieutenant Timothy Keane of the state fire marshal's office and Edmund Goetzl, university fire marshal, the blaze was caused by defective electrical wiring in a table lamp.

Remembering the recent Abbey fire, the sleepy-eyed, excited Hamlin occupants grabbed various belongings as they hurried from their rooms.

All girls were temporarily evacuated without injury.

900 Pledge Blood Here As Drive Nears Close

Over 900 students have pledged blood at UMass for the Campus Blood Drive which started yesterday, according to Alan Savat, student chairman.

Savat reminded students who have missed bloodmobile appointments that they may report to the Commonwealth Room of the S.U. today or tomorrow between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Blood drive officials speculated that this year's donations based on the number of pledges received would go well over the record total of 621 pints of blood

Will Be 'Home' For Holidays

The International Club is sponsoring a program to make Thanksgiving recess more enjoyable for foreign students.

In response to the desire of many American students to become better acquainted with students from abroad, the club has inaugurated a program whereby foreign students can visit American students' homes during the Thanksgiving holidays.

American students have been invited to attend today's coffee hour from 5 to 6 p.m. in the Governor's Lounge as a starting point for this program.

Another meeting will be held tomorrow at 11 a.m. in the Plymouth room, when all further details will be given to those students who are interested.

Round Robins To Be Held

Round Robins will be held this coming Sunday, November 18, for all freshmen who didn't attend on November 3.

Interested upperclassmen are also invited by the Pan-Hellenic Council to tour the various sorority houses and learn about the sorority system.

Round Robins will begin from Dwight at 1 p.m. and end between 5:30 and 6 p.m. Refresh-

UMass Upsets Villanova 19-18 In 2nd Half Surge

by JEFF DAVIDOW '65

A thrilling final second goal-line stand preserved a slim one point lead to give the University of Massachusetts Redmen their sweetest victory of the season as they downed a powerful Villanova squad at Villanova Stadium for UMass' second win this season over a highly-ranked Keynote State foe.

Halfback Ken Kezer rushes through hole in Villanova defense. Wildcat defenders are Jim Thomas (41) and Bud Nask (71).

It was a bleak day when the Redmen took the field and the prospects for the afternoon looked even more dismal. The Redmen were five hundred miles away from home, playing on a muddy field facing last year's Sun Bowl victors, led by a versatile quarterback, a mammoth fullback and a front line with an interior average weight of 220. To add to this the Redmen were without the aid of its two starting tackles, Sam Tombarelli and Paul Graham, and missing the services of its two starting halfbacks, Sam Lussier and Loren Flagg.

As the game began it looked as if the 8,000 Wildcat fans were going to see exactly what they were expecting. Villanova won the toss and chose to receive. However, before they could run their first play they were slapped with a five yard penalty for backfield illegally in motion. Things were beginning to look

New Minimum Average Bill Up For Consideration Today

A new Recognized Student Organizations' officer qualification which would require the minimum scholastic average for graduation will be considered this afternoon in the S.U. Council Chambers by the Recognized Student Organizations Committee.

The passage of this proposal will send it on to the Student Senate, which if made law there, would require a 1.7 minimum average for seniors to hold office and a 1.8 for members of other classes to hold office within the RSO.

RSO sub-committee 3A, comprised of Chairman Andy D'Avanzo '63, Skip Oakes '63 and Ann Pinciss '65, was appointed at the October 18 meeting of RSO, when D'Avanzo proposed the bill.

D'Avanzo last April led the Student Senate in repeal of the controversial "2.0 Bill", which had been passed in May 1961. The "2.0 Bill" demanded a 2.0 cume of all RSO officers.

D'Avanzo introduced a counter-proposal, which required a graduating average of all RSO officers. That motion failed to pass the Senate because of a tie-breaking vote cast by President Arthur "Tex" Tacelli against it.

According to D'Avanzo, "the sub-committee met Oct. 25 to work out several modifications in the bill I had proposed, but retaining the basic idea of the bill: a graduating average requirement with as few exceptions as possible. The revised bill is known as the "new cume bill."

"Basic principles backing the bill that were concluded from the committee meeting included:

"The Need.

"After the defeat of the '2.0 Bill' something was needed to

Index Pictures

Seniors who missed having their Index photos taken will be given a final chance to take their place in the yearbook.

Alan Savat, Editor-in-Chief of the Index, has disclosed that seniors who missed the photographer will have one week to signify their intent to have their picture taken. He requested that seniors come to the Index office before Tuesday, Nov. 20 to sign. No requests will be honored after that date, he said.

Arrangements will be made for the late photos to be taken late in November.

Seniors who have received their proofs and would like to discuss the possibility of retakes are asked to contact Savat by next Tuesday at the Index office.

PRE-COUNSELING DAY MEETINGS

The faculty advisers in the following Departments will be available to meet with their freshmen advisees tomorrow at 11 am: Education, Education Building; Landscape Architecture, Wilder Hall; Sociology, Machmer E 37; German with Miss Schiffer, Bartlett Hall; and Entomology, Fernald Hall.

Commonwealth Lawmakers Will Visit Campus Friday, For Second Annual Legislators' Day

UMass students will have the opportunity Friday to see and talk to their state Representatives on campus.

Dr. Leo Redfern of the Office of Institutional Studies, co-director with University Business Manager Gerald Grady of the Legislators' Day Steering Committee, said close to 50 lawmakers are expected to attend the event.

Following registration from 10 a.m. to noon Friday in the Colonial Lounge of the SU, attending legislators may tour the campus, visit classes, administrators and students during the period.

Acting as guides and aides for the visitors will be about 70 students, members of the Senior men's honor society—Adelphia, the Senior women's honor society—Mortarboard, the Sophomore women's honorary society—Scrolls and the Sophomore men's honorary society—Maroon Keys.

A locator service will be established in the SU to aid legislators who wish to locate students. Two campus extension phones will be used for the service.

Following a luncheon in the SU, lawmakers will visit with University students or attend a dedication of Gorman Dormitory at 2:30.

Freshman Class President Bernard Dallas will welcome those attending the Gorman dedication. The new men's dormitory, opened in September, is named for the late Edwin Gorman of Holyoke, respected legislator and friend of the University.

Redfern said a difficulty was presented in having the event scheduled so soon after elections since many of the invitations had to be held off until last week.

Approximately 75 legislators visited the campus last year in a similar program.

Appropriate directional signs will be placed about the campus and town directing visitors to the SU. Special parking will be arranged for guests.

After an informal reception for the visitors at the Lord Jeff, they will have dinner at the Dining Commons and be free to attend the football rally at 7:30 p.m. An informal discussion will be held for them at President Lederle's later in the evening.

Unlike last year, many of them will stay over to attend the football game and get in some last minute sightseeing before heading home Saturday afternoon.

Among those who have indicated they will attend are House Leader John F. Thompson, Representatives John F. Dolan, Albert Kramer, G. Edward Bradley, Jeremiah J. Foley, John J. Fitzgerald, James R. Nolen, Charles A. Bisbee Jr., Paul G. Zollo, Clifford Stone, Walter Kostanski.

Also, Leo J. Cournoyer, Stanley J. Zarod, Emmett J. Cauley, Saul Simons, John G. Clar, Thomas M. Newth, Charles L. Flannery, Donald J. Manning, David Bartley, Oliver F. Ames and Paul C. Menton.

"I suggest that it would be reassuring to the American people, now that President Kennedy has demonstrated the worth of a policy of action based on American strength, to rid his administration of those who constantly urged a soft policy toward communism, both in Cuba and elsewhere in the world. The men responsible for convincing the President that he should withhold support from the Cuban invasion (in 1961) can no longer serve any useful purpose in government. Nor can men like Adlai Stevenson, Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., and Richard Goodwin."—Senator Barry Goldwater

THE BLOOD DRIVE

The annual "blood drive," sponsored by the University Women and the Campus Religious Council, is underway. The drive lasts until Thursday of this week, and if everyone who filled out a pledge card donates blood, then the drive will top the 1961 mark by over 200 life-giving pints of blood.

But all is not well. Several people who pledged blood have not appeared for their appointments. If you have pledged, please be sure to keep your appointment.

We remind donors that they should not pull "all nighters" before giving blood, and that they should not skip meals on the day they give blood. —N.C.A.

PERSPECTIVE

by G. MASSELAM

A tiny conglomeration of peoples, settled in the complex of Africa gushes forth with a revolutionary social upheaval, as it assumes its own identity. A medical school begins to materialize in the state of Massachusetts. A man chooses to attend college at the University of Mississippi. Young men and women nurtured and developed in the most affluent society in the world decide to train themselves to live with, and help those in the most poverty-stricken areas of the world. A girl decides to give blood. A boy makes up his mind to become a doctor.

As a human finality struggles for that which never before has been touched upon; as a lonely man strives to attain the unattainable, then having failed, urges himself on to reach again for that which he knows can't ever be reached; as men fight against death-inducing hates; as men surge against the helpless hopelessness of fear, always attempting to pry into the foundation of man—to learn life, to do life—his purposes and intentions become a more potent reality than the world he travails. The insistence of his hopes and dreams, his ideals, offers the source of his courage, his productivity, his creativity. In him lies the desire to change, the urgency to progress, the will to do society's brick and mortar.

But, how is man! Does he ever mold himself to the level striven to? Do his values or ideals become structured in his accomplishments? Does he fulfill his purposes and intentions? Look around! Threats upon threats in a cold war, international immorality, political farce on state and local level, business and society and slums, all stare at us, as Americans in the face. Do we as students with all our social organization, and representation serve our purpose? What about the faculty? The administration?

At this point, which lies between what man could do, and what he does do relative to his purposes and ideals, this column, "Perspective" wishes to stand. That is to view and perceive the inconsistency between men's values and intentions, and his accomplishments and ends—to evaluate reasoning, to remain sensitive to motives and desires, and to make suggestions. My desire is not to tear down and destroy defiantly but to look at what we do have and take hold with one arm, and then to grope with the other arm. It should be interesting to see if this column is consistent with its purposes and intentions.

(Ed.'s note: the opinions expressed in this column are not necessarily those of the Collegian.)

The Crisis Of The United Nations And Its Causes

by SEVA SUD

The General Assembly can take up question of aggression only when the Security Council has not taken any action and when the General Assembly discusses on such questions, it can take a recommendation, which means member states are not bound to obey. Hence, this situation leads to the ineffectiveness of the General Assembly.

In spite of this weakness, the General Assembly has been gaining an eminence as the most effective branch of the international government of the United Nations. The control of the Security Council over the General Assembly under Article 12 Paragraph 1 of the Charter has been circumvented by two constitutional devices. A number of cases have been removed from a deadlocked Security Council to the General Assembly by a simple majority vote on the assumption that such removal is a procedural matter that does not require the unanimous votes of all the permanent members, according to Article 27, Paragraph 3 of the Charter. In other words, the Security Council has proceeded on the assumption that the veto does not apply to a majority decision to remove an issue from the Security Council to the General Assembly.

Secondly the General Assembly has interpreted Article 12 Paragraph 1 liberally and has made recommendations with regard to issues that were at the same time on the agenda of the Security Council. This happened in the cases of Palestine and Korea.

The General Assembly assumed further responsibilities by passing the Uniting for Peace resolution in November, 1950, which attempts to strengthen the General Assembly as the principal agency for the organization of collective security. Its five main features are:

1) The General Asembly can meet in 24 hours if the Security Council is prevented by the veto from exercising its primary responsibility for international peace and security.

2) In such cases, the General Assembly can make recommendations to member states for collective measures, including the use of armed force.

3) A recommendation that each member state maintain within its national armed forces elements that could promptly be made available for possible service as United Nations units.

4) The establishment of a Peace Observation Commission to observe and report in any area where international tension exists.

5) The creation of the Collective Measures Committee to study and report on the ways and means to strengthen international peace and security in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Enough To Inspire Stravinsky

To the Editor:

The women of Hamlin House wish to express their sincere appreciation to Officers Anderson, Zidik, and Cavanaugh of the campus police, for their quick action in extinguishing the fire in Hamlin House early Sunday morning and to the Amherst Fire Department for removing the smoke.

The fire, which was caused by a defective lamp cord, was confined to one room, due to the quick thinking and efforts of the police officers. We are grateful to them that we were not another "Abbey".

Sincerely yours,

The Band Played My Old Kentucky Home

A genuine spirit should reside in the home where it was fostered. Essentially, "The Abbey" isn't just a building or a group—it is a very special and very rare spirit. Not so loud as it is true. Each girl in the gymnasium, the Infirmary, or elsewhere now, feels it differently, in her own way; and each can rightly say that, since the fire, our spirit is out of context. That building where intimacy without exclusion, art without cult, love of a foreign tongue for its own sake, love of ideas for what they opened to us, a sense of freedom which was not license, and the deepest veneration for a housemother whose main rule was and is love—compels me to declare that the use of Abigail Adams House for purposes rather other than housing a unique spirit is wrong, is unfit. Somehow, its very architecture alone attests to this. Logic can't explain it entirely: but affectional honesty begins to. Little things, unobtrusive things—the basement colony of slightly mad, histrionic, but sincere English majors who put signs on their doors and began their own art gallery and library—for the pure love of it; small and wonderfully open bull sessions between Mrs. deKerpeley and kids discovering the beauty of the written word; the main living-room which mingled something rustic and something elegant in its big window, fireplace, and small double stairways; the old wooden doors that wouldn't keep Beethoven in one room.

Some buildings have an indestructible personality of their own; and when a spirit agrees with the general atmosphere, that personality—they should co-habit. It can be done, it should be done, it must be done—for the sake of maintaining a state of being that has been jolted and dismantled and injured. The Abbey, its physical structure, must be reconstructed for past and future inhabitants; else it will be haunted and misused. Give her back to us, and us to her.

Senate Activities Committee Busy Reviewing Constitutions

by PRISCILLA SORENSON

The following is one of a series of articles about the workings of various Student Senate committees. They will be written by members of the Senate Public Relations Committee who are qualified to write authoritatively on the various matters chosen for the articles.

One Senate Committee little heard of yet much needed is the Activities Committee which functions in reviewing the constitutions of various campus organizations.

Headed by Senator Joan Labuzoski, the committee is comprised of three students from RSO, three faculty members from RSO, Edward Buck, Business Manager of all Recognized Student Organizations, two senators, and four non-senators. The committee is unique on campus in that it acts jointly with RSO Subcommittee 1 which Joan Labuzoski also heads.

The joint committee has the role of reviewing the constitutions of new campus associations which want to use campus facilities. It checks constitutions which have been revised to improve efficiency of an organization to make sure certain basic requirements are met and suggestions are made for their improvement.

With RSO approval, the constitution is brought before the Student Senate and, if approved, is sent for final approval to President Lederle.

UMass Coeds On Exchange Education Program At UNM

Five UMass coeds are attending the University of New Mexico as exchange elementary education majors.

The program is in its second semester. Last spring two UNM coeds attended the Massachusetts institution and three eastern students went to UNM.

Participating this fall is Rebecca Bartmess, UNM sophomore who is enrolled at UMass, and Merilee Carlson Greenfield, Mass., Margaret Fiske, East Longmeadow, Mass., Kathryn Melnick, Cambridge, Mass., Judy Rosenthal, Brookline, Mass., and Linda Russell, Worcester, Mass., all on the UNM campus.

Several national publications have commented favorably on the program, including the Saturday Review.

Three Mass. coeds attending the University of New Mexico as part of an exchange program write a letter to their eastern classmates. The young women are Judy Rosenthal, Brookline, Mass., Margaret Fiske, East Longmeadow, Mass., and Merilee Carlson, Greenfield, Mass.

UM Ec. Dept. Sponsors Conference

A prominent American economist and author was the main speaker at the semi-annual conference of the Connecticut Valley Economics Association at the University of Massachusetts Saturday, Nov. 10.

Dr Paul A. Samuelson, professor of economics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, spoke on "An Economist Looks at the Problems Thrown at Him by the Contemporary American Economic Scene." The talk was given at a dinner meeting on Saturday evening in the SU ballroom.

The conference, sponsored by the University's Department of Economics, was a special event in the University's year-long Centennial program. Nearly 150 economists from 25 colleges and universities in the Connecticut Valley and nearby areas attended.

Arrangements for the program were made by Dr. Philip L. Gamble, head of the Department of Economics, and Drs. Sidney Schoeffler and John Blackman of that department.

A former president of the American Economics Association, Prof. Samuelson is author of the famous economics textbook, "Economics—an Introductory Analysis."

Amherst Fraternities Forego Independence

A plan whereby social fraternities may exchange still more of their already limited independence for guaranteed financial support will go into effect next fall, Amherst College announced last week.

The announcement came in the wake of recent actions by both Williams College and Brown University to de-emphasize the purely social role of fraternities in collegiate life.

Lease Arrangement

Under the Amherst plan, first proposed by the trustees almost two years ago, fraternities will transfer to the college all real property they own. In return, the college will assume responsibility for local taxes and insurance.

Fraternity property will be leased back to the social organization at a nominal rent, but the college will continue to collect room rent from all students and pay a share of those rents to each of the fraternities.

In addition, under the new plan Amherst will establish rooming quotas for all fraternities, whether or not they participate in the overall program.

Two of 13 Greek letter societies at Amherst have already conveyed their property to the college. Five others have announced their intention of doing so.

Thus the new plan will go into effect next September with more than 50 per cent participation.

Plan Differs

The Amherst plan differs from that recently announced by Williams in that Amherst fraternities have an option on joining. At Williams, on the other hand, all 15 fraternities must conform to regulations which all but doom Greek letter social organization as such.

At Amherst, unlike Williams, all students eat in common dining facilities — not in fraternities.

At Brown, fraternities have been living in college-owned buildings for the past 10 years, yet have "failed the test of experience," a special committee reported last month.

Discrimination Row

Amherst was one of the first colleges in the nation to face up to the adverse academic consequences of predominantly social, frequently snobbish and sometimes downright discriminatory fraternity practices.

In a case that attracted nationwide attention six years ago, an Amherst fraternity withdrew from its national organization rather than refuse to initiate a Negro student it had previously pledged.

As a result of the furor, Amherst fraternities were among the first in the nation to eliminate all discriminatory clauses and to institute other reforms.

The fraternities, acting on their own initiative, adopted rushing practices which have made it possible for every interested student to join one of the social organizations. They have also made increasing efforts to make positive contributions to the intellectual life of the campus.

The new decision of Amherst trustees, approved last Saturday, recognizes that Amherst fraternities are an asset rather than liability to the institution, that they provide housing, social facilities and opportunities to practice democratic self-government.

Safari Swing Late Show On WMUA

"Music to relax you, but not to put you to sleep." That's how Program Director Jim O'Hearn describes the format of WMUA's new show, "Swingin' Safari".

The program is on the air from midnight to 2 A.M., Sunday through Thursday, and features music to suit all varieties of late-night listeners. The schedule is as follows:

Sun.: Rhythm & Blues—Ed De-Rosa
Mon.: Popular—Brew Harding
Tues.: Jazz—Sonny Drooton
Wed.: Folk—Vern Pero
Thurs.: Popular—Jeff French

The program is the result of a poll taken last year by WMUA to determine what UMass students wanted from their radio station. When a large percentage of listeners indicated that they would like to see an increase in broadcasting hours, WMUA responded with the new 12 to 2 scheduling. All University insomniacs and burners of the midnight oil will be glad to know that "WMUA is going on a Swingin' Safari."

Tickets Available For Newman Club Hockey Game Trip

Newman Club members have been invited to see the Springfield Indians play the Hershey Bears on Saturday, Dec. 1, in Springfield.

Tickets for this hockey game are $2.50 each. Newman Club will supply free transportation.

The bus will leave from the SU at 6:45 p.m. The game ends at 10:30 p.m., so there will be time to stop for a snack on the return trip, and still make the 1 a.m. curfew.

Those interested should see their dorm. captains, or go to the Newman office. Tickets must be bought by next Monday.

Newman Club members are also invited to bowl for Newman Club. Those interested should sign up at the Newman office.

Mendenhall Confers On Tiddlywinks

According to the Smith Sophian, the MHUTS (Mount Holyoke Undergraduate Tiddlywinks Society) challenged Smith College to a tiddlywinks match. Smith President Thomas C. Mendenhall's sage advice was sought in regard to formation of a Smith team, says the Sophian.

"The great threat is overemphasis," said Mendenhall. "And to prevent this we must avoid high pressure tactics in favor of occasional, informal, amateurism. The name for instance should be SCOTS—Smith College Occasional Tiddlywinks Society."

Many Ways Open To Students Wishing Three-Year Education

Following is the second in a series of three articles written by members of the Provost's Office staff on the prospect of obtaining an education in three years. According to William C. Venman, Assistant to the Provost, the articles are a result of concern on the part of President Lederle and Provost Woodside about this possibility.

There are many ways available at the University of Massachusetts to shorten the overall period of college education.

1. A student may have been eligible for admission after his junior year of high school. Applicants who have completed with very high academic standing work through the junior year may be admitted to the University for the semester following the junior year.

2. The University grants advanced standing and college credit to entering students who have successfully completed certain college-level courses in their secondary schools as a part of the College Entrance Examination Board Advanced Placement Program or an equivalent. The University also administers a number of advanced placement tests to entering students enabling them to be placed in more advanced courses. Upon obtaining satisfactory standing in many of these courses students will be granted academic credit for the courses bypassed.

3. Some students may be able to meet the requirements of a course by examination. The requirements of any course approved for credit may be met by special examination upon the recommendation of the dean of the college or school in which the student is enrolled and the head of the department offering the course, provided the student's cumulative average is 2.5 or higher. A student can earn up to thirty semester credits in this manner.

4. A student may register for one course beyond the maximum credit load allowed by his school upon approval of his advisor and the dean of his school. The student must file with the registrar an approval form signed by the advisor and the dean of the school giving permission for the extra course. A student wishing to carry more than one additional course must obtain the permission of both this dean and the Provost on the approval form.

5. It is normally possible to complete one full year's work in three summer sessions, and in the cases of exceptional students, in two.

Any combination of these ways may be used to complete one's college education in three, or even less than three years.

It is important, however, that this course be planned. If a student knows he can finish in three years, a course of action can be laid out for him which will cause a minimum of headaches and heartaches. It takes more effort to plan and carry out this course of action, and it is not without stumbling blocks. The University of Massachusetts is, however, prepared to handle your case on an individual basis. Besides your advisor, others who can help are the Dean of Students, the Counseling and Guidance Office, the head of your department or the dean of your school or college, and the Provost's office.

Drive On 'Right To Read' Spurred On By Teachers

The following article was compiled by Dr. John Chaffee, Jr. and appeared in the Nov. 12 issue of the Boston Herald-Traveler.

An outspoken counter-offensive against self-styled book burners and banners, long the bane of English and social studies teachers, marks the opening today of the 41st annual American Education Week.

"The Students' Right to Read," a study by the National Council of Teachers of English, will be distributed to 80,000 teachers and to the nation's 22,000 high schools.

Parents To Aid

The study has two sections, one addressed to parents and community leaders the other to school officials.

Parents are urged to join teachers, librarians and others interested in intellectual and academic freedom to protect the right of young people to read the books assigned or suggested by competent professionals.

For school officials, the study outlines the council's recommendations for establishing committees in each school to set standards for book selections, to work for community support and —perhaps most important — to deal with would-be censors.

These often well-meaning, frequently ill-advised but always irritating critics concentrate on one of three kinds of "objectionable" reading material:

●History and social studies books that fail to interpret events exactly as the critics would wish. This kind of pressure has become so widespread that many educators now accuse book publishers of producing texts which have been purged of almost all controversy and the study of controversy, they insist, is essential to any presentation of historical or political events.

●Efforts throughout the South to keep the works of Negro authors off the shelves of public school libraries. Similar pressures are brought to bear to ban the use of books which might be considered pro-Negro. This applies to even so simple a tale as that of "Little Black Sambo."

Ban On Chaucer

●Works of literature which, because of certain passages might be considered pornographic.

Among the writers whose works have recently offended youth-protecting adults, the council reports, were Chaucer, Hawthorne, Shakespeare, Hemingway, Faulkner, Thoreau, Mark Twain, Walt Whitman and the nation's latest winner of the Nobel Prize for literature—John Steinbeck.

The council charges that "across America today increasing pressures are exerted on schools to restrict the access of students to important and worthwhile books."

It reports that in many communities self-appointed censors have suddenly "discovered" pornography in familar classics and have accused modern writers of "seditious sentiments or licentious intent."

The council points out that these pressures are growing just at a time when teachers are taking increasing advantage of the excellent literature now available inexpensively in paperbacks.

Among the books subjected to censure last year across the country, the council reports, were: Aldous Huxley's Brave New World, George Orwell's 1948, Leon Uris's Exodus, J. D. Salinger's Catcher in the Rye, Hawthorne's The Scarlet Letter and Herman Wouk's Marjorie Morningstar.

The council report was prepared by a committee directed by Edward R. Gordon of Yale University. It is obtainable through the council at 508 South Sixth St., Champaign, Ill.

Mrs. deKerpely Reviews Prof. Johnson's Book

Professor Johnson's book is reviewed in this article by Theresa deKerpely, novelist, short story writer, translator and former Head of Residence at Abigail Adams Dormitory.

A successful first volume of poetry is attracting special attention for its author — Robert B. Johnson, associate professor of Romance Languages at UMass. The American writer has produced a 61-page book of original poems, all of which are written in French.

Recently published by Jean Grassin of Paris, the volume is called Concentricites. The book has been praised by both French and American critics for its wide range, its insights and its strong handling of poetic forms.

Prof. Johnson, a member of the University staff since 1950, is preparing a second volume of poems for publication soon. His recent publications, besides Concentricites, have included articles and poems, the latter published in The Massachusetts Review and Le Mercure de France.

The poet who chooses to express himself in a foreign language, and who succeeds in mastering its subtleties of sound and meaning, is a rarity. But this is Robert Johnson's choice and achievement. He writes with grace and skill in the French language. It is natural to associate a poet's work with his past and present national civilization, with the outlook on life that is, like the music of his native tongue, in his blood.

But in Concentricites we have an extraordinarily piquant combination; poems that are wholly and beautifully French, expressing a mind and imagination essentially American. His range is wide, and his insights are deep. Absolutely contemporary, completely unsentimental, he is not afraid to touch upon that unfashionable emotion love; nor does he suffer from the fashionable compulsion to exclude from his work the powerful element of beauty.

Frosh Trounce Huskies; Taylor Tosses Three TD's

by AL RICE '66

The University of Massachusetts football picture for the next few years is looking brighter every week as a result of the outstanding performances of this year's freshman squad.

The Little Redmen have yet to lose, and their latest effort was a rousing 29-0 victory over their rivals from south of the Bay State, the Huskies of Connecticut. UMass scored early in the game, the first two times they had the ball, and then they added one TD in the third and another in the fourth period.

Redmen Score Twice On Long Gainers

The Redmen rolled up 17 first downs to only six for the Huskies and allowed only 33 yards on the ground and 25 in the air. Twice UMass registered scores from more than 40 yards out. The second touchdown was a 50 yard pass from Bob Taylor to Milt Morin on a bootleg play. Taylor took off around his right side and faked the entire Huskie team out of the play. Morin had plenty of time to get clear as Taylor hit him on the 20 with a perfect pass that went for the six points. Dick Varrichione booted the pigskin through the uprights for a 15-0 lead. The last score of the game also came on an explosive play. Connecticut, with Billy Wise of Springfield at quarterback, had picked up a first down on a pass play, but when Wise tried the same play again Dave Kelley picked it off for the Redmen at his own 45 and scampered all the way with the ball. Kelley displayed great broken field running as he moved all over the field in picking up blockers.

The first touchdown of the game came on a short pass to Don Eaton climaxing a 64-yard drive in ten plays. Eaton and Morin were both alone in the end zone within ten feet of each other and Taylor flipped an eight yard toss that Eaton pulled down. Earlier in that drive Eaton raced 26 yards through the Huskie defense before being hauled down at the 14 yard stripe. Taylor hit Bob Meers with a pass for the two point conversion.

Defense Stops Threat

Connecticut tightened their defense during the second quarter and allowed only three Redmen first downs. Twice they forced the Lil' Redmen to punt, and Dan Kodz stopped another march at his own 25 by intercepting a Taylor pass and returning it 19 yards for the UConns. At first it seemed the interception sparked Connecticut as Vito Sabia grounded out a 16-yard gainer to move into Mass territory, but a fumble which lost 16 yards and a loss of ten more when John Frangipane blitzed in on Wise put Connecticut back where they started from.

On the third play of the second half Taylor rolled out and fired a diagonal pass from the 30 to Eaton in the end zone, but the play was called back as the officials ruled Taylor passed the line of scrimmage while looking for a receiver. The resulting penalty and an incompletion stopped the drive, and a fourth down pass on the next series of downs that fell just inches beyond the fingertips of Ed Cody in the end zone kept UMass off the board for most of the third period. Another Taylor pass hit home a while later for the third Redmen score. A 25-yard punt return by Dave Corna set up the play by giving Mass the ball on the Huskie 22.

Score On Fake FG

It appeared Mass would be stopped again, though, as a rushing play netted no gain and two long passes went incomplete. However, Taylor gambled on fourth down and found Bob Meers in the end zone and connected with his seventh scoring toss of the year. The play came off a fake field goal attempt at the 27 yard line. After being stopped on the previous three plays Mass lined up in kick formation with Varrichione back to attempt the three pointer, but Taylor took the snap and fired to the right corner of the end zone into the waiting arms of Meers.

Steve Trbovich intercepted a Huskie pass for UMass a few plays later, but the threat ended after one first down when a penalty and an incompletion forced a punt. Midway through the final quarter the third string took over on their own 30 and moved all the way to the Connecticut two-yard line before losing the ball on downs. The big plays were a 20-yard jaunt by Dick Cain and a 20-yard pass from Cain to Tony Arnieri that gave the Redmen a first down at the ten.

Undefeated

UMass now owns a 4-0-1 record, and they finish the season next Saturday at 10:00 a.m. against the New Hampshire Freshmen at Alumni Field.

Speaking Of Sports

by BARRY BROOKS '63

HIGHLIGHTS OF VILLANOVA

For every force there is one equal and opposite, as the saying goes, and the Redmen displayed that they had studied their physics assignments, as well as their defense assignments to a multiple "T". The final statistics failed to show how the Fusiamen outlasted an overpowering Villanova attack. However, the answer rests in the words of Line Coach Ted Schmitt, who said in a madhouse visitors' locker room after the game, "It was that REDMAN SPIRIT once again."

Burke Gets ECAC Berth

In spite of the fact that the Redmen pulled perhaps the biggest upset in the east, the powers above chose only to single out one member of the squad. Bob Burke, Soph tackle from Holyoke, playing perhaps his finest game in a Redman uniform, recovered two Wildcat fumbles to brighten the afternoon. Those whose job it is to select the weekly All-East Team must have forgotten sophomore Mike Ross who averaged 38.1 yards in 6 punts, and carried twice for 65 yards, and Jerry Whelchel who engineered his team's victory and senior tackle John Kozaka's third period interception on the Mass 18, after Villanova had moved from their own 30 to the Mass 26 in just four plays. It was truly a team effort that led the Redmen to their sixth win of the season.

The Toe

Nine sophomores led the Redmen to their third TD of the day. John Kozaka and Ken Kezer had seen action in previous years. The winning point was of course booted by George Pleau. As Pleau stepped to the kicking tee, John "Bumps" Bamberry (62) who traveled to Villanova, could only recall similar situations in his own career, as he watched the "Toe" send the pigskin through the uprights. "With three chances, I just had to make that one," said Pleau, who had returned dejectedly to the Redmen bench after missing No. 2. "I don't look up until the ball goes through, so I don't know how close they came to blocking it, but it sure looked pretty when I saw it."

TACKLE BOB BURKE

Kicking Around

Almost forgot soph Richie Lewis' fine defensive play Saturday... One Philadelphia radio station informed its listeners that it felt certain that the reported score that UMass had beaten Villanova "must be a mistake"... Jerry Nason of the Boston Globe who suggested that the Redmen should play Radcliffe should have taken the afternoon off and gone to Radcliffe College himself.

Redmen Preserve Victory With Late Goal Line Stand

Burke Recovers 2 Fumbles; Whelchel, Kezer Score TD's

up for the Redmen, but not for long.

Villanova Scores First

The Wildcats, with field-general Richie Richman calling the plays then proceeded to march 82 yards in 16 plays, amassing six consecutive first downs, for the first goal of the afternoon.

Highlight of the drive was a twenty-one yard gallop by Richman to the Redmen 10. Two plays later Richman handed off to his left half back Larry Glueck who cut through right tackle from the six yard line for Villanova's first tally. Richman tried for the extra two points but was stopped cold by Redman left end Paul Majeski as he was rolling left.

Kenny Kezer received the ball for the Redmen on his own ten yard line and with the aid of good Redmen blocking made it up to his own 49 yard line and had clear sailing ahead for the TD but was tackled from behind by a stalking wildcat.

Whelchel's two incomplete passes forced the Redmen's Mike Ross to punt. There followed an exchange of punts which resulted with Villanova in possession of the ball on the UM 29 as the first period came to an end and the teams switched goals.

Richman Switches to Halfback

The small delay of time didn't seem to extinguish Villanova's fire and with the situation third and ten on the Redmen 29, Richman moved over to halfback with second-string quarterback Ted Aceto calling the plays. Aceto then hit Richmand for a 17-yard pass play and three plays later Aceto threw a screen pass to Richman who raced over the goal line for the Wildcats second TD.

A delay of game penalty forced Villanova to back to the eight yard line where they again tried for the two points. This time Richman tried a pass to right-end Jack Clifford, but the pass was incomplete making the score Villanova 12—UMass 0.

17-1, 282-51

The first half statistics graphically point out the plight of the Redmen at that time. Massachusetts had been able only to gain one first down in the entire first half as compared to the seventeen that Villanova had racked up, and the Wildcats' total offensive yardage was more than five times greater than that of the Redmen; 282-51.

The Redmen received, and on the second play from scrimmage Kenny Kezer broke through the Villanova defense for a gain of eighteen yards giving UMass a first down, its second of the afternoon. However, the Redmen could not manage another first down, even with the use of a sharp double reverse play, and were forced to punt.

Burke Recovers

Richie Richman took the Mike Ross punt on his own 16 yard line, but before he had a chance to do anything with it he had fumbled and the Redmen, thanks to the sticky fingers of Bob Burke, were in possession of the ball.

It took the Redmen seven plays before Jerry Whelchel plunged over from the one yard line for UMass' first touchdown of the afternoon. George Pleau, the Redmen's ace place kicker who had gone into the game with a fifteen for eighteen record, could not find the mark and his kick went wide, giving UMass only six points to Villanova's twelve.

With Villanova in possession of the ball on the UMass 25, senior Redman tackle John Kozaka intercepted a Richman pass. The Redmen took the ball and marched back upfield. On a first and ten on his own 25, fullback Mike Ross, who had taken Art Perdigao's place after Art had injured himself late in the first half, tackling "Mr. Monster" Billy Joe, cut through a hole between left tackle and left end and raced 52 yards to the Villanova 23. However, five plays later, after a five yard delay of game penalty, and with the Redmen on fourth and one on the Villanova 14, Jerry Whelchel faded back to look for a receiver but was hit hard by the onrushing Wildcat line, Jerry fumbled the ball and it was received by Villanova's 220 pound guard Bob Kowalski.

The Wildcats didn't have their paws on the ball for very long as three plays later their fullback Lou Rettino fumbled and Sophomore Bob Burke was right on the spot again as he gobbled up the fumble to give the Redmen possession of the ball on the Villanova 43.

Then The Rains Came

As the fourth quarter began the threatening skies opened up and a fairly heavy rain began to fall. The Villanova crowd opened up their umbrellas, the traditional symbol of appeasement but the Redmen paid no heed and continued their scoring efforts. With the situation 2 and 12 on the Villanova 45 Whelchel teamed up with Mike Ross for a forty yard pass play. Three plays later Kenny Kezer knifed his way through an opening made for him in the Villanova line for a nineteen yard touchdown run.

George Pleau came in for the extra point and again he couldn't find the mark.

In seven plays Villanova, alternating rushes by Larry Glueck, Bob Merenda, and Lou Rettino, marched sixty-six yards for their third and final touchdown of the afternoon. Larry Glueck swept around right end from the fifteen for the score but in turning the corner he pulled a muscle in his leg and was not able to continue the game—a loss that no doubt hurt the Wildcats later in the period.

For the third time in the afternon Richman went after the two extra points, and was again stopped by the Redmen this time led by Dick Bourdelais.

Phil DeRose took the kickoff on his own 18 and raced twenty yards before the Wildcats could bring him down. After that it was one, two, three for the Redmen. One: DeRose on a combination double reverse-trap play cut through the Wildcat line outsmarted the Villanova secondary by heading towards the sideline, then side-stepped a would-be tackler, cut back towards the center of the field where he was finally brought down on the Villanova 32, for a gain of thirty yards. Two: Ross bulls his way to the Villanova 19. Three: Jerry Whelchel cuts inside his own right end on a keeper play and, aided by a key block thrown by Kenny Kezer, races into the end-zone.

Pleau Comes Through

George Pleau placed one through the uprights, and as he was being congratulated by his teammates the score posted on the board read UMass 19 - Villanova 18, the first time in the long afternoon that the Redmen had gained the lead.

With the Wildcats in a fourth and goal to go on the UMass two yard line, Coach Alex Bell, perhaps lacking the services of a good kicker, or perhaps underestimating the strength and courage of the UMass team, ignored the field goal attempt and gave Richman the go-ahead. Richman sent halfback Jim Thomas crashing into the UMass line, but the Redmen wouldn't budge an inch and in holding their ground they took possession of the ball.

As the final buzzer sounded, the entire team raced onto the field and congratulated one another for a job well done.

Kenny Kezer vaults over the Wildcat line in the fourth quarter. On the next play Kenny knifed through the Villanova defenses and raced 19 yards for UMass' second touchdown of the game.

Brown Harriers Edge UMass In NE Meet; Brouillet Fourth

by JIM RYAN '65

The University of Massachusetts' bid for a second straight New England Cross Country Championship was spoiled by Brown University Monday at Franklin Park in Boston.

Just as they did last year, the Redmen came back to trounce Springfield in the big meet after losing to them in a close dual meet. Three Redmen, Bob Brouillet, Jim Wrynn, and Dave Balch, finished ahead of Springfield's first man, Terry Merritt, who finished first in the dual meet at UMass last week. Although the Redmen scored an excellent team total of 73 points, Brown, last year's third place team, was not to be beaten this year. Led by Dave Farley and John Jones, who finished 2nd and 3rd respectively, they went on to take 16th, 20th, and 21st places for a total of 62 points, an amazing score in such a big meet.

The individual title was won by Jim Keefe of Central Conn. State, in a race in which he proved just why he is one of the top men in the East, if not the country. He won his second straight title, broke his own previous record of 21:01 for the four mile course by 57 seconds, and finished over a minute ahead of his nearest rival.

For UMass it was Bob Brouillet and Jim Wrynn leading the way. "Digger" finished 4th in 21:27, two seconds ahead of Wrynn in fifth place. Wrynn improved his time by a full 60 seconds over last year. Other times were unavailable at the end of the race. Dave Balch, coming through once again, finished 12th, and Bob Pendleton, in his first New England meet for UMass, ran exceptionally well and placed 19th, passing two Brown men near the finish line. Dick Blomstrom finished 33rd to close out the Redmen scoring. Other UMass finishers were sophomore Bill Young, 42nd, and Ken O'Brien, 67th. A total of 209 runners from 23 schools were entered in the meet.

The next meet for the Harriers will be their last dual race and their last home appearance of the season. Saturday afternoon the University of New Hampshire team comes to UMass for a meet in which the Redmen will be heavy favorites. UNH was third in the YanCon Championship.

"Cume" Bill ...

protect the individual and the organization when the individual finds it difficult to discharge both his academic and extra curricular responsibilities.

"A new cume bill is needed, not to display a minimum standard of academic achievement in extra curricula activities, but to minimize disruption of the activity and to the individual officer that could occur should the officer be forced to leave his post.

"The basic decision that is to be made by RSO and the Senate is whether or not they will recognize the need which the committee felt was obvious.

"The Graduating Average.

"After the need is recognized, the RSO sub-committee felt the graduating average requirement instead of 2.0 average requirement would best satisfy their need. By setting the standard at the graduating average, we are telling the individual that he must be sure he can graduate before he can take on extra obligations.

"At the same time, we are not restricting an individual who has attained the University's minimum scholastic requirement from pursuing other opportunities, as the case would be if the standard were higher than the graduating requirement. This law affects only those people who do not have a graduating average.

"No Exceptions.

"There will be no exceptions for any particular people, such as those who are presently holding office and would only need re-appointment or re-election.

"In the '2.0 Bill' exceptions were made for those people who were already holding office or appointment. We recalled that this exception was a primary source of trouble.

"After the bill goes into effect, there will be no exceptions to any particular class of people, including those running for re-election or re-appointment to the same office or position.

"However, the law will not cause any one to be removed from office to which he has already been elected or appointed prior to enactment of the law.

"No exceptions will be made to individuals who have attained a certain semester average in the previous semester.

"The '2.0 Bill' was hard to enforce because there were so many exceptions to it. More important the fairness of the bill deteriorated with the many exceptions applied to it. Therefore we decided that no attention will be given to an individual semester average prior to election or appointment. The graduating average would be strictly enforced regardless of any individual's previous semester average.

"The committee has set a tentative date of Jan. 1, 1963 as the date when the 'new cume bill' will go into effect.

"All of the committees' decisions were enacted upon a unanimous vote.

"I feel we have learned a lot from the old. I felt, and the committee concurred, that the '2.0 Bill' was unfair to the individual. I was a staunch supporter of the 'Bill' until I discovered that the bill did not allow many individuals to take advantage of all the opportunities available to them on this campus.

"This is why I led the fight to repeal the bill last spring even though I had helped to make it law originally.

"When the '2.0 Bill' was repealed, I did not think the matter of cumulative average requirements in extra curricula activities should be dropped. I was convinced that we had learned a lot from the old '2.0 Bill,' and we could now implement our newly acquired understanding in constructing a new bill that would be effective."

Tonight at 7:00 p.m. Kappa Sig, winner of the fraternity league competition, will play Greenough Dormitory and Independent league champion, for the campus championship. This Friday, Nov. 16, our intramural football campus champion will play Lambda Chi Alpha, the winner of intramural league competition at the University of New Hampshire. Last year's winner was also this same Lambda Chi Alpha team, who will be trying to take the inter-school trophy back to Durham, New Hampshire again. Baker A, last year's campus champion, gave the Wildcats, LCA team, a hard fought game but bowed finally to a score of 13-0. This year's inter-school football match should provide good competition with the New Hampshire team boasting undefeated league play.

Student Senators Given Test On Formal Rules

by CONNIE AVALLONE '64

The Senate was put to the test Wednesday night when Senate President Don Cournoyer ('63 Fraternities) quizzed the Senators on Robert's Rules of Order which Cournoyer termed "points we all should know".

Cournoyer stated at the beginning of the meeting that parliamentary procedure was to be enforced at future meetings, not to demonstrate the power of the chair, but to keep meetings orderly and exclude discussion of trivia.

President Cournoyer announced the resignation of Senator Richard D. Buck ('64 Married Dorms) from the Senate as of last Tuesday, due to a "pressing time element" that interfered with his duties as a senator.

Senator Buck said he did not wish to criticize the Senate in any way, but felt qualified to say that students should not "sacrifice studies for extracurricular activities—the opportunity to gain this extra experience will come later while the opportunity to gain a college education will not."

The constitutions of the SCUBA Club and the Musigals were accepted after being presented to the Senate by Senator Joan Labuzoski ('64 Dwight). The resolution by Senator Labuzoski to approve the change of name of the Literary Magazine of the University to Caesura was passed.

The last resolution to be passed prior to President Cournoyer's "quiz" was a resolution presented by Senator Jon Fife ('64 Van Meter) that the Caesura be allowed to use a new method of distribution, not yet decided on, for their Fall edition.

Soph-Frosh Rope Pull Planned Sat.

The Soph-Frosh rope pull will be held tomorrow morning at half-time during the Freshman football game which begins at 10 a.m.

At the half, Freshman and Sophomore classes will reinstate the once traditional Soph-Frosh rope pull over the college pond. About 25 of the strongest Freshmen have been chosen to represent the Class of '66 against 25 Sophomores.

The rules and regulations have been drawn up and approved by the Maroon Keys who will be sponsors of the event.

Colloquium Holds Free Discussions

by NEAL ANDELMAN '63

Editor's note: This is the first in a series of articles on the Honors Colloquia Program at the University.

Students and faculty file into a small meeting room to begin a discussion. No bells ring, no attendance is taken, and no grades are ever assigned. This is a meeting of an Honors Colloquia group.

This particular colloquium is comprised of ten sophomores and two members of the University faculty, Dr. Benjamin Ricci of the Physical Education Department, and Dr. Sumner Greenfield of the Spanish Department. The title of this Colloquium is "The Image of America," and on this particular night there was a discussion of E. B. Whyte's "The Organization Man."

"The problem is to avoid the 'temporary' feeling of living in a community when you know you may be moved out in two years." . . . "homogeneous nature" . . . "you only know the people right next door to you" . . . "we face that problem in the dormitories too" . . . "Is this over-organization?" . . . "How about the Church in Forrest Park?" . . . "The modernization of religion" . . . "This certainly isn't true on our campus" . . . "How does this relate to the Ecumenical Council?" . . .

Snatches of the discussion such as those above give a general idea of the free-wheeling nature of the Colloquia. No area is sacred, and no effort is made to limit the scope of the subject.

Trustees Approve Increases In Salary For UM Faculty

A statutory mandate "to maintain high educational standards" at UMass has prompted the UM board of trustees to approve salary increases for approximately 340 faculty members.

The increases, totaling only about 4.2 per cent of the entire faculty payroll, came after indications showed the impending loss of competent teachers because of a salary scale lower than that of any other state university in New England.

The board cited the highly competitive nature of faculty recruitment and the constantly increasing salary scales of other public universities as the reasons for granting the raises.

Outstanding Teachers For Growing Massachusetts Student Population

The trustees emphasized that their action, affecting slightly more than half of the UM faculty, was the first step needed to assure Massachusetts students that they would continue to have a faculty of "outstanding scholars, scientists and teachers" within funds available from state appropriations and other sources.

The board said the magnitude of the challenge facing the University is reflected in enrollment projections showing that by 1975 there will be 97,000 college-age students in Massachusetts who will turn to public institutions for their higher education.

Terming current plans for expansion as "conservative and perhaps inadequate," the board noted that the University's expansion program will provide for only about 20,000 of the almost 100,000 Massachusetts students seeking places in public institutions of higher learning.

"The new salaries being paid, even at the highest level of $12,779 for full professor, will still not move UMass to the forefront of current competition—not when the University of Connecticut is able to pay as high as $17,540 in this rank; New Hampshire, $15,000; Rhode Island, $14,200; Maine, $13,400; and Vermont, $13,300. The improvements will, however, "help to keep UMass in the market place as a competitor for qualified faculty members," the board aded.

UM Upper Teaching Ranks Weakest In Pay Scale

The new UM adjustments, made in all ranks, provide an average 7.1 per cent increase for the 340 faculty members affected by the action. The raises bring badly needed improvements in the associate professor and full professor ranks, in line with the national trend to have optimum incentives at the upper levels where a faculty's competitive position, as at UMass, is weakest.

The trustees said that "the modest nature of the adjustments is clearly shown by comparing our increases with improvements made at other institutions."

—The State University of New York last year gave increases of 15 per cent or more to 55.3 per cent of its faculty.

—The University of Maine gave raises as high as $1200.

—The University of Connecticut in recent faculty actions gave raises increasing the maximum salary for full professor by $3,060; associate profesor by $1,740; assistant professor by $840; and instructor by $1,080.

—The University of Vermont is making an effort to raise its faculty salaries by 7 per cent in each of the next two years.

A recent survey by the American Association of University Professors showed an overall average increase of 6.5 per cent for faculty salaries last year. The AAUP has set a minimum goal of 7 per cent in increases per year for the next several years as a minimum effort to keep the college teaching profession in a competitive position.

The board said that national statistics indicate that between 1940-60, incomes of physicians went up by 103 per cent, industrial workers by 72 per cent, and lawyers by 60 per cent, while college teachers' salaries rose by only 27 per cent.

WELCOME LEGISLATORS

The Collegian extends a warm welcome to the several Senators, Representatives and officers of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts on campus today to participate in the annual Legislator's Day. We welcome you, as taxpayers and as duly elected members of the General Court, to your University.

Don't be surprised if a few students say "thank you"—we are grateful for the passage of the "fiscal autonomy bill" (better known as H.3350 in political circles.) Don't be surprised if students ask you about the State Medical School—or if they offer their suggestions on where it should be located. And above all, don't be surprised when the Massachusetts Redmen wallop the UNH Wildcats in Saturday's football game for the beanpot.

Many of you are regular visitors to the the University, and so you will know just where everything is. For newly elected legislators (congratulations) we offer this handy guide to the campus.

Starting from the Student Union Building (which, by the way, is the only building on campus which is not state owned) we cross the street and arrive at Machmer Hall. Beware as you enter this building. Inside are horrible ogres and gargoyles who call themselves Deans. They have been known to gobble up students, but in all honesty we do not know if their epicurian tastes include Legislators.

As you leave Machmer Hall, proceed south until you come to a quaint bastille called South College. Inside you will find a familiar personality, President John W. Lederle. Be nice to him. He is working towards making UMass a great State University. We like him even if he did come from Michigan.

As you continue south you will notice a very wide sidewalk. Scurrying to and fro, hauling green bookbags, and dressed in full academic robes, are our faculty. They work here.

You will also notice about 7,000 clean cut American youths on campus. That's us.

We hope you enjoy your visit. —N.C.A.

Our Colleges And Foreign Students

ONE OF THE challenges which our colleges face in increasing volume each year is that of presenting the fundamental truths of American life to the growing numbers of foreign students who enter their hallowed halls.

This is a grave responsibility which rests just as heavily upon the general citizenry of the country as upon the schools. It is intensified in the classrooms and on the campuses because it is there that ideas are exchanged, differences explored and areas of agreement found, but it is reinforced in contacts with the off-campus world.

In the newly developing countries of the world, the impressions of American goals and purposes as expressed by the way of life our people and recorded in the minds of the select natives who come to us for education can be decisive. These students rapidly rise to influential positions at home and in decision-making roles will act toward the United States as their own experience dictates.

It is no small matter. Last year, it is estimated, more than 53,000 foreign students were in schools in the United States.

AT NEW YORK University alone, there are 3,103 foreign students in this academic year. They come from 95 nations, with India, China, the Philippines, West Indies, Japan, Israel, Korea and Greece supplying the greatest number.

Within the next decade, it is estimated that the total of non-immigrant foreign students in our schools will reach between 80,000 and 100,000.

Here is one field in which American student action and attitudes can play a big role in shaping foreign policy and in forming the basis for understanding acceptance of our policies overseas.

MORTAR BOARD COMMENTS

At the risk of offending J.D. and the Meandering Mike, we feel that judging from the large number of letters appearing in the Collegian as well as the many mutterings and mumblings echoing across campus, there is a distinct need for a good weekly commentary on campus affairs. The function of Mortar Board, nationally, has long been to find a specific need on campus and attempt to fill that need. Since the members of UMass Mortar Board represent various areas of campus activity, we feel that we, collectively, might be in the position of spotting certain problems, of investigating them, and finally of passing an opinion on these problems.

What we intend to do in the following week is to look around, find subjects both lamentable and commendable, present a clarification of the situation, and hopefully offer a plan of action. Unlike the opinions presented in many letters to the editor, the views presented in this column are backed by a group which intends to act upon them. We hope to enter into this action not only to comment or criticize, but also to present workable plans for bettering the UMass campus.

We feel that the interest and support of the students, faculty and administration in this venture is not only welcome but vital to our success. Therefore, we encourage you to bring to our attention subjects which you feel could use investigation or verbalization. And, of course, we are interested in your reactions.

Please do not hesitate to stop us on campus or call us. Messages may be sent to Mortar Board, % the R.S.O. Office at the Student Union. Listed below are the names of members of 1962-63 Mortar Board:

The Crisis Of The United Nations And Its Causes

by SEVA SUD

This resolution has shifted responsibilities on the General Assembly for the maintenance of peace and so at present the General Assembly can take up immediately any such question for consideration. This is the theoretical position, but let us see how far the General Assembly will be able to exercise this modest recommendation. At present the Afro-Asian bloc is the biggest in the General Assembly. This bloc is not united, but if it does unite, it can prevent any enforcement action by two-thirds majority vote in the General Assembly. Then again, some may follow the recommendation and some may not.

Another weakness of the General Assembly is that out of the 103 member states very few states represent a military force. Small states like Cambodia, Sudan, can hardly protect their own countries with their military force. Hence, unless the supporting countries have sufficient military force for the implementation of the enforcement action under the above resolution, the General Assembly seems to be very weak.

The General Assembly and the United Nations as a whole is prevented from exercising the function of the world government, not for legal reasons, but for political motives. The cold war between Russian and Western blocs prevents and hinders the actual working of the United Nations as a world government. As a result no agreement

PEACE IN HATCH?

To the Editor:

At 4:30 on Thursday, a colleague and myself had some coffee in the Hatch, and noticed that it was unusually peaceful. Alas, the juke box was turned off!

We were so struck by the beauty of the silence that we are prepared to state that the graduate students of the Department of Government will present "The Machmer Peace Prize" to the individual who contributes to the peace and the betterment of humanity by putting the jukebox permanently out of commission.

"YOU PAYS YOUR MONEY ...."

To the Editor,

Contrary to the notices posted by the Boarding Halls, the instructions sent with the first semester bill stated that meals on holiday weekends were included in the weekend meal ticket plan. "Weekend board is optional and is not included on this bill. Those students who elect this plan should add $40.00 to their remittance. A weekend meal ticket will be furnished providing for Saturday breakfast and lunch, and Sunday dinner and supper (holiday weekends included)."

We students are not asking for much, all we want is what we paid for.

Four College Co-operation

Now that the four college file system is almost completed, we at the University have a chance to sit back and reflect upon the merit of four college co-operation.

There is no doubt that the academic horizons of every student in the four colleges has been extended. The opportunity to take courses not offered at one's own school is, to say the least, a rare event. There is also the opportunity to take courses under a particular instructor who teaches at a different school. This factor will be most important to juniors and seniors who are taking courses in their major fields.

There are, however, additional advantages to the four college program, not the least of which is the co-operation between the four schools in extra-curricular activities. When one reflects that the University of Massachusetts is the only co-ed institution of the four, then this last factor becomes even more important. Amherst College, for example, would have a great deal of trouble putting on "Guys and Dolls" if there was no co-operation with the other schools.

What remains to be done now is to co-ordinate the schedules of the four colleges so that the four can act as one in matters of vacations and examinations. The transportation between the other three schools has been satisfactory, and we are sure that this service will expand as the number of people participating in the four college program increases.

The future of the program is almost unlimited. We hope that with time it might be possible to eliminate some of the duplication of courses at the four colleges so that staff and students could put their time into more valuable projects. This is not to say, however, that the four colleges should ever merge. It is essential that the individual personality of each school remain intact. —Metawampee

Debate Team Victorious At Amherst Tournament

The University debate team registered a series of victories at the Amherst College Debate Tourney last Friday and Saturday evenings.

Victories were scored over Amherst, Princeton, Emerson, Ithaca, Central Connecticut State, and several other colleges by the UMass team, at the tourney which represented 31 colleges.

The varsity affirmative team of Mike Feer and Steve Jenkins won three of their five debates. Joe Kielec and Ken Jacobson, the varsity negative team, scored successes in two of five debates.

An added highlight of the tournament occurred when Ken Jacobson took first place trophy in the after-dinner speaking contest.

Turning to novice debaters, Maureen Flanagan and Rod Hart (affirmative) won three out of five, while Peter Goodman and Mike Farrell (negative) won one out of five.

The final record—the varsity team won five and lost five, and the novices won four and lost six.

This weekend, the team travels to Burlington for a two-day tournament at the University of Vermont.

Internat'l Club Meets Tonight At 8

The International Club will hold its first "get together" tonight at 8 p.m. in Dickinson Hall.

Club Vice President Don Moore said there will be a full program of dancing—Square and Ballroom—affording "full opportunity to socialize informally."

Though mainly for members of the Club, other students are welcome to attend as guests, Moore said. The program will continue until 11 p.m.

There will be a small charge to cover the cost of refreshments.

SZO Plans Program For Sunday Breakfast

A bagel and lox breakfast sponsored by the B'nai Brith Hillel Foundation will be held Sunday, at 10:30 a.m. in the Commonwealth Room, S.U.

The program is sponsored by the Student Zionist Organization, which will present Zeev Wiesman speaking on 'Religion in Israel."

Zeev Wiesman has lived in Israel since 1925 where he early became an active member of Hamachanot Haolim, a General Pioneering Movement youth organization, of which he was National Director in 1948.

In 1940 he founded Kibbutz Hamadia at Beisan Valley, near the Jordan border. At this time he was also active in the Hagana. He has received a degree in Biblical Studies and Hebrew Literature from the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

Admission to the breakfast is 50¢ for members and $1.00 for non-members. All are invited to attend.

LIEUTENANT JOHN MONTEFUSCO, HISTORY MAJOR, CLASS OF '61

"If I had it to do over again, would I take Army R.O.T.C.?

My wife and I are in Panama at the moment. She likes it. You know, Officers' Club, dances—that sort of thing. I like it, too. But whether I stay in the Army or not, the question is: Would I take Army R.O.T.C. if I had it to do over again? Yes, I certainly would. In spades, I didn't realize how lucky I was. At the time I figured: Okay, so I'll get my degree—get an Army commission, too, and pick up some extra money along the way! I wasn't the leadership type, I thought. I was wrong. Boy, was I wrong! Looking back on it, I wouldn't trade the leadership training I got for anything! Take my word for it, leaders are made—not born! Whether I stay in the Army or not, nobody can take away what I've learned. And let's face it, where can anybody my age step out of college and walk into a standard of living this good? Look, if you have already invested two years in college ROTC, take it from me: Stick it out! It'll be one of the smartest things you ever did. I say so."

Mining Research Exhibit Displayed At Morrill By Geology Department

The Department of Geology at UMass will present a photographic exhibit of mining research Nov. 16 to Dec. 7 in the Justin Morrill Science Center at the University.

The exhibit will feature photographs showing the role of research in the Canadian mining industry. The photographs are on loan from the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys in Ottawa, Canada. They deal with research in the mineral and petrological sciences, mineral processing, fuels, mining practice, physical and extraction metallurgy and physics of the earth—the "upper mantle" project.

The purpose of the exhibit is to explain some of the professional and technical functions of persons employed in the geosciences.

The exhibit is being arranged by Dr. Oswald C. Fraquhar, professor of geology and acting head of the Department.

There will be 24 panels in the exhibit, each 2½ by 2½ feet in size. The display will be held in the Reading Room of the Morrill Science Center. This is the second exhibit shown at the University this year. The other, also from Ottawa, was a major attraction at the April Open House. The exhibit is open to the public without charge.

Party Chairmen "Abused". But Invaluable — Alcorn

by JACKIE BEAUVAIS '66 and ELAINE CORSI '66

In his "defense of all national chairmen," Meade Alcorn called these party officials "the least appreciated, most abused, and most harassed of all men and women serving in politics."

The former Republican national chairman, presently Visiting Professor of Practical Politics at UMass, delivered a lecture on "National Party Chairman—Figurehead or Party Leader," Tuesday in the Council Chambers.

Outlining the chairman's routine duties, he cited his role as business head of a large Washington office, the elected head of a national committee, traveling salesman of the party, morale booster, trouble shooter, and political agent of the president if his party occupies the White House.

He further mentioned areas which give the national chairman the opportunity to be a real party leader and determine his ultimate value to the party.

These areas include the handling of presidential candidates, national convention, generation of ideas and strength, managing delicate and explosive relationships between people in government, and his approach to conflicts between national committee leadership and congressional and senatorial committees.

He added that the role of the party chairman fluctuates with the personality of the presidents.

"Democratic presidents since 1932 have been skilled politicians hemselves with less need for the party chairman while by virtue of the personality of the president, Republican national chairmen have had more to do with formulation of party policy and philosophy," said Alcorn.

In conclusion he declared "while a national chairman is expected to be a full time target, scapegoat, and in the better sense a figurehead, he should be a party leader and on the whole is."

UMass Professor Accepts Invitation To Speak On TV

Dr. John H. Fenton, Commonwealth professor of government at UMass and an expert on Ohio politics, will visit Cleveland this month for radio and television guest appearances and to address the City Club of Cleveland.

On Thursday, Nov. 15, Dr. Fenton will appear over KYW-TV in a panel discussion of Ohio politics.

The following Sunday, the University professor will be back on the same channel for KYW's "Open Circuit" program, answering questions from television viewers.

Dr. Fenton has accepted an invitation from the City Club of Cleveland to address the Club's Saturday Forum on Nov. 17. The Saturday Forum, well known throughout the nation, regularly invites distinguished figures to air their views on political, social and economic questions. A Cleveland radio station broadcasts the forum to Northern Ohio residents.

Dr. Fenton has been with the University since September, 1959. He served previously as an instructor at Tulane University, as an assistant professor at Michigan State University and as head of the management services department at the Oak Ridge Nuclear Studies Institute.

A paper prepared by Dr. Fenton, "Party Politics and Political Responsibility," was used as background for discussion at the Tufts Assembly of Massachusetts Government last spring.

ROTC Cadets Select Six Honorary Col. Finalists

Announcement was made today that Kathy Manning, Patt Jones, Carolyn Young, Judi Furnans and Elizabeth Van Gelder have been selected finalists for military ball Honorary Colonel by Army and Air Force ROTC cadets.

On Nov. 6 and 8, all cadets voted for Honorary Colonel in Bowker Auditorium during weekly drill hours.

Junior Carolyn Young comes from nearby West Springfield, where she attended West Springfield High. At the University, she is an art major living in Arnold. Nominated by Sigma Phi Epsilon, Carolyn lists the Christian Association and Naiads among her extracurricular activities, and is interested in horseback riding, swimming, skiing and dancing.

Kathy Manning, who graduated from New Bedford High, is a sophomore majoring in history. Kathy, who was nominated by Chi Omega, lists the Scrolls, Soph, Exec. Council, Newman Club, and Chi Omega as extracurricular activities, and is interested in dancing. Kathy, who is 19, lives in Arnold.

Judi Furnans graduated from Old Rochester Regional High School this past June. Nominated by the Arnold Air Society, she is majoring in Home Economics and lives in Lewis House. This freshman from Mattapoisett is a member of the Christian Association, and lists swimming, boating, and dancing as her interests.

Patt Jones, from Bushy Park, England, graduated from Central High School. Patt is a freshman math major who is interested in travel, tennis, swimming and is an avid sports enthusiast. She is living in Brooks, and was nominated by Zeta Nu.

Elizabeth Van Gelder, a freshman who was graduated from Holyoke High School, was nominated by Phi Sigma Kappa. She is majoring in history, and is a member of the History Club and the Centennial Committee. Beth, who commutes from Holyoke, is interested in skiing, swimming, and tennis.

Profs Speak At Knowlton; JobOpportunitiesExplained

Wednesday, November 7, Knowlton's juniors and seniors were happy to receive various members of the faculty speaking on occupational opportunities in their fields.

Following refreshments, there was a general discussion of graduate schools, during which the availability of fellowships in all areas was stressed. Dr. Czarnecki of the bacteriology department spoke also of the openings in research work for girls and of the new opportunities for bacteriologists in connection with space travel.

Representing the government department, Dr. Braunthal talked of work in the Peace Corps, the foreign service, and other areas. Both Dr. Feldman of the psychology department, and Mr. Hall of the education department mentioned counseling in elementary schools. A question and answer period followed.

Knowlton wishes to thank these faculty members for helping us to understand the opportunities in their respective fields.

AMSC Capt. Davis To Be On Campus For Interviews

Captain Barbara A. Davis, Army Medical Specialist Corps Counselor for northeastern United States, will be on campus Wednesday, Nov. 28, from 9 to 4. Captain Davis is well versed in all aspects of the Army Medical Specialist Corps with special experience in the field of physical therapy.

Professional training of the highest quality is available for selected young women who are members of the Army Medical Specialist Corps. This all-officer group is composed of dietitians, occupational therapists, physical therapists, and young women who are training for these professions. These officers serve in large Army hospitals both in the United States and overseas.

Each spring new students are chosen from applicants throughout the United States. Women college students or graduates who are interested in obtaining details of the training programs are encouraged to talk with members of the Army Medical Specialist Corps.

Anyone wishing information on AMSC opportunities and benefits is urged to call or see Miss Carolyn Hawes for an appointment with Captain Davis during her visit.

Frosh Look For Undefeated Year; Taylor And Co. Meet UNH Kittens

by AL RICE '66

The outlook is bright for the Freshmen footballers to end their season on a successful note tomorrow morning when the New Hampshire Frosh tangle with the Little Redmen in a preliminary event to the big game in the afternoon.

Once again the UMass squad will be without some key men as a result of injuries. Bob Ellis and Bob DeLue are still out from the injuries sustained at Brewster Academy and Jim Pfersich who suffered a shoulder ailment last week against Connecticut will not be able to play. Two on the questionable list are Bob Hillson and Bob Meers, a pair of casualties in the 29-0 rout of the Huskies last Saturday.

The starting backfield from last week's contest is still intact with Bob Taylor once again doing the quarterbacking, Dave Kelley running the fullback slot, and Don Eaton and Lou Zangrilli at the halfback posts. Taylor has connected with seven touchdown passes in four games. Kelley has been the big first down man, and Eaton and Zangrilli both did well last week in their first chances at regular duty. Eaton averaged 9.5 yards a carry in five attempts and caught touchdown passes of eight and 30 yards.

Zangrilli and Taylor looked well in the backfield, but both had trouble following the backfield blocking asignments, something coaches Fred Glatz and Don Johnson have been working on this week.

The New Hampshire freshmen have, in five games, looked considerably less impressive than the Wildcat's unbeaten varsity. Coach Ted Connor's kittens have a 1-4 record and are fresh from a 42-0 stomping by the Dartmouth team last week. They have also lost to Exeter Academy and the Northeastern first year men. Their only win was a 16-0 shutout over the Huskies.

The big offensive guns are quarterback Paul Lovallo and halfback Jim Sacchetti, a co-captain along with Ed Govoni who is a center and the top lineman of the New Hampshire squad. Sacchetti, a native of Braintree, was lost for three weeks with an injury which hurt the Cats during their losing streak, but his return didn't help much in the last game and it won't tomorrow since the Little Redmen, despite the injuries, have their best team since 1957 and possibly their best ever.

Beanpot Ballad

(Sung to the tune of "Hey Look Me Over)

Hey, look them over,
Join us in cheer.
Just back from "Philly"
Victory up to here.

Don't pass them off, boys,
They never quit.
Whenever the Redmen are down and out,
The only way is up.

And they'll be up with a victory,
Fusia's our man.
He'll make us known, folks,
Clear across the land.

So look out New Hampshire,
We're out to win.
The Conference will be ours,
Yankee Beanpot, HERE WE COME!

(Clip this out—it will be sung at tonight's rally and tomorrow's game.)

Pay Raise ...

tive salaries among state universities in New England shows that UMass is either lowest or second lowest in each of the four faculty ranks. Latest figures—prior to granting of last week's raises — indicate the following minima and maxima for salaries paid on an academic year basis as of Nov. 6, 1962.

In announcing the increases, the trustees said that "the University was thus moving forward to assure Massachusetts students the best possible educational opportunities within the appropriations provided by the legislature."

GLOOM AT THE TOP

Oh, sure, you've been busy, what with going to classes, doing your homework, catching night crawlers, getting married—but can't you pause for just a moment and give thought to that dear, dedicated, lonely man in the big white house on the hill? I refer, of course, to the Prexy.

(It is interesting to note here that college presidents are always called "Prexy." Similarly, trustees are called "Trixie." Associate professors are called "Axy-Pixy." Bursars are called "Foxy-Woxy." Students are called "Algae.")

But I digress. We were speaking of the Prexy, a personage at once august and pathetic. Why pathetic? Well sir, consider how Prexy spends his days. He is busy, busy, busy. He talks to deans, he talks to professors, he talks to trusteees, he talks to alumni. In fact, he talks to everybody except the one group who could lift his heart and rally his spirits. I mean, of course, the appealingest, endearingest, winsomest group in the entire college—you, the students.

It is the Prexy's sad fate to be forever a stranger to your laughing, golden selves. He can only gaze wistfully out the window of his big white house on the hill and watch you at your games and sports and yearn with all his tormented heart to bask in your warmth. But how? It would hardly be fitting for Prexy to appear one day at the Union, clad in an old rowing blazer, and cry gaily, "Heigh-ho, chaps! Who's for sculling?"

No, friends, Prexy can't get to you. It is up to you to get to him. Call on him at home. Just drop in unannounced. He will naturally be a little shy at first, so you must put him at his ease. Shout, "Howdy-doody, sir! I have come to bring a little sunshine into your drear and blighted life!" Then yank his necktie out of his vest and scamper goatlike around him until he is laughing merrily along with you.

Then hand him a package and say, "A little gift for you, sir."

"For me?" he will say, lowering his lids. "You shouldn't have."

"Yes, I should," you will say, "because this package is a carton of Marlboro Cigarettes, and whenever I think of Marlboro, I think of you."

"Why, hey?" he will say curiously.

"Because Marlboros have taste, and so do you," you will reply.

"Aw, go on," he will say, blushing furiously.

"It's true," you will say. "Moreover, Marlboro has a filter, and so do you."

"In my swimming pool, you mean," he will say.

"Yes," you will say. "Moreover, Marlboro has a soft pack, and so do you."

"My limp leather brief case, you mean," he will say.

"Yes," you will say. "Moreover, the Marlboro box has a flip-top, and so do you."

"But I don't have a flip-top," he will say.

"But you will," you will say. "Just light a Marlboro, and taste that tasty taste, and you will surely flip your top."

Well sir, you will have many a good chuckle about that, you may be sure. Then you will say, "Goodbye, sir, I will return soon again to brighten your lorn and desperate life."

"Please do," he will say. "But next time, if you can possibly manage it, try not to come at four in the morning."

Redmen Face Undefeated UNH For YanCon Crown

by STEVE HEWEY '63

UMass wants the Beanpot. And in order for the Redmen to walk away with undisputed possession of this little ceramic jug, which signifies the Yankee Conference football championship, they will have to topple the visiting University of New Hampshire Saturday afternoon at Alumni Field. UMass has never owned this trophy outright. The best it could do was to share the prize with UConn in 1960. The New Hampshire Wildcats, on the other hand, were undisputed YanCon champs in 1947, '48, '50, and '54. In 1953 they split the honors with U.R.I.

UMass Has Edge

The Redmen, fired up over their shocking win over Villanova last Saturday put a perfect YanCon slate of 4 wins and no losses on the line when they tangle with UNH, also undefeated but tied once (6-6 with URI). UMass comes into this game as the favorite but funny things can happen in a title game. The Redmen cannot afford to let down. Last week UMass played the role of the giant killer and UNH will roll into Amherst with the same idea in mind.

Five sophomores will probably get the starting nod from Coach Fusia tomorrow afternoon. Bob Burke, ECAC tackle last week, will be at left tackle. Joining Burke in the forward wall will be Pete Pietz at left guard and John Hudson at left end. In the backfield Jerry Whelchel will be calling the signals as he has done so well all season long. Leo Biron will be operating from the left half slot. A newcomer to the Redmen starting eleven is right tackle Bruce Jordan, filling in for the injured Paul Graham.

Explosive Offense

The Wildcats will have two headaches to take aspirin for Saturday. One is the stubborn Redmen line which will be heavier than theirs. The other is the Redmen backfield loaded with talent and perhaps the most explosive in New England. This UMass line is the same one that preserved a one point win over Villanova by halting the Mainliners inches away from the goal for three straight plays. Villanova's forward forces outweighed the UM line by almost 10 lbs. a man.

Coach Vic Fusia has a whole host of ball carriers he can count on in any situation. Laboring without the services of halfbacks Loren Flagg and Sam Lussier who were both starters earlier in the season, the Redmen had to call upon Leo Biron, Dick Lewis, Ken Kezer, and Phil deRose to pick up the slack. These boys came through and came through well. Art Perdigao and Dick Warren operating at the fullback position found Mike Ross giving them competition last week at Villanova. Besides getting off a half dozen booming punts (38.1 av.), Ross carried the ball for a couple of key gainers, one a 53 yarder.

MIKE ROSS

Last Call

Flagg and Lussier, both Seniors, will have their last chance to see action in a Redman uniform this Saturday. Both have healed well enough to see spot duty against UNH. As an interesting sidenote, Lussier has compiled more yardage in one game than UNH's top ground gainer, Dan Sereika, has picked up in 7 games.

Jerry Whelchel needs but 105 yards this Saturday to crack the 1000 yard mark in total offense. Whelchel has completed 42 of 79 passes for 716 yards. On the ground he has picked up 179 yards for a total of 895.

BAKER'S DOZEN

by NEIL BAKER

BIG GAME

The University of New Hampshire Wildcats will visit the UMass campus tomorrow in a contest which will decide the winner of the Yankee Conference Beanpot. The Redmen have employed a powerful offense led by their amazing soph quarterback Jerry Whelchel. Whelchel, 42 for 79 in passing and 179 yards rushing, has passed and engineered the Redmen to a 6-2 season so far this year. Sam Lussier is the Redmen's top ground gainer with 518 yards in six games, since being injured in the BU game. The team as a whole has piled up a 2295-2040 advantage over opponents in total yards gained.

The Wildcats, meanwhile, have been led by their talented soph qb Lloyd Wells. Under his guiding arm, he has directed UNH to an undefeated season. The Wildcats have depended greatly on its tough defense and good punting to stay unbeaten. It's a battle with a winner take all, and UMass is the team to do it.

YAN CON

There is only one other YanCon game on tap tomorrow as the Huskies of UConn entertain the Rhody Rams. This is a rivalry that dates back to 1897 and is the 52nd meeting of the two schools, UConn on top 23-22-6. Smart money on the Huskies for #24.

SIX STATE ACTION

Offensively minded Boston College takes on defensively minded Boston University. The Eagles, looking high for a Gator Bowl bid, will spare the Terriers nil . . . Our playmates from across town entertain Williams. It takes a lot to score on the stingy Ephmen. Amherst has it . . . A big eastern contest finds Penn State at Holy Cross. Penn (7-1) is probably the best in the east and still should be after Saturday . . . The Yale Bowl will be swarming with over 50,000 football fans Saturday as the Eli's entertain Princeton. As in Japan, it's the year of the tiger . . . Harvard will have no trouble with the Brown Bruins at the stadium . . . Tufts, trying to recover from their two successive losses, should be well enough to take on the Coast Guard.

CROSS COUNTRY CARD

Pittsburgh has developed a pattern, like the stripes on a jailbird's uniform. One week like a champ, the next resembling a chump. It's champ week again, but not against Army . . . Southern Cal is floating towards a Rose Bowl. But beware the Navy, yet not enough . . . Moving east Northwestern will recover enough to beat Michigan State . . . The Oregon swifties over Ohio State in a tight squeeze . . . And lastly, Alabama's defense over Georgia Tech and Billy Lothridge.

SUMMARY

UMass over UNH
UConn over URI
BC over BU
Amherst over Williams
Penn St. over Holy Cross
Northwestern over Mich St.
Princeton over Yale
Harvard over Brown

can be achieved on status quo. However, U.N. does play an important role in other fields. It is a meeting place for all the statesmen of the world and provides a place for personal contacts. It does initiate certain policies and discuss them. In other words, it is a debating place for all international issues and so public opinion is changed by these debates in the General Assembly.

Honors Colloquium

The student members of the Colloquium represent a mixture of the entire campus. Christine Camandona is majoring in nursing, Bonita Goldman in History, Carol Hermsdorf in Chemistry, Charles Kellogg in Wild Life, Charles Lidman in Math, Doris Loesser in French, Dawn Magi in Floriculture, Walter Tordoff in Zoology, Susan Tracy in Pre-Veterinary Medicine, and Robert Hallock in Physics.

All of the members of this Colloquium are majoring in different subjects, but all have a common interest in exploring the new and questioning the old.

Faculty members participate in the discussion, but do not lead it. In fact, this particular Colloquium has adopted the practice of having two student members lead the discussion each week.

The general conclusion of this group was that organization is a necessity for progress, but the problem is to beware that organization doesn't trample the individual. Note was also made that Whyte had painted only one side of the picture, and as the Colloquium members decided, things really are not as bad as Whyte makes them out to be.

The group also agreed that there is a great deal of individuality within a given organization. After all, man himself is the greatest masterpiece of organization on this earth, and each man retains the capability of being an individual.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: ED MULLETT

Ed Mullett (B.S.E.E., 1956; M.S.E.E., 1962) is Project Engineer with the New England Telephone Company in Boston. Ed is assigned to the State Area Radio Transmission Group which planned and designed the Company's first major microwave system to be used for message service.

On another project, he made design and cost studies for the first educational television system in New England.

Ed's career has presented many unusual engineering challenges and rewards and a chance to get his Master's Degree at company expense.

Ed Mullett and other young engineers like him in Bell Telephone Companies throughout the country help bring the finest communications service in the world to the homes and businesses of a growing America.

Building To Be Named For UMass Trustee

The new Men's Physical Education Building at UMass, scheduled to open in September, 1963, will be named for one of the nation's outstanding educators.

Named For Trustee

The three and a half million dollar facility will be named for Dr. Frank L. Boyden, headmaster of Deerfield Academy, chairman of the board of trustees at the University, and member of the board of trustees at Amherst College.

A member of the University's board of trustees between 1943 and 1949, Dr. Boyden was reappointed in 1953. He became chairman of the board in 1960.

Dr. Boyden, in his devotion to the cause of bettering education in America from the start of his long career, became interested in the University while he was a student at neighboring Amherst College at the turn of the century.

Long a firm believer that young men must have proper physical training to augment the rigorous mental exercise demanded by modern schools, Dr. Boyden is noted for his support of Deerfield athletic teams and for sound physical education programs in general. Despite his 83 years, the dynamic educator still exercises by driving his horse and buggy around the campus at the academy.

Cited By Magazine

Newsweek magazine, in a tribute published in its issue of Feb. 19, 1962, said of Dr. Boyden that his approach to education is a personal one. Students feel free to drop into his office at any time to discuss academic or personal problems. The results: almost 20 preparatory schools are now headed by men who were either students or teachers under Dr. Boyden. In his 60 years as headmaster Dr. Boyden has transformed the country day school of 14 students into a renowned academy with more than 500 students.

His work as chairman of the board at the University has received major recognition from educational, civic and other groups throughout the Commonwealth. His deep interest in student life at the University has brought expressions of great respect and affection from generations of undergraduate and graduate students. In tribute to his

Literary Society Organizes, Forms Tentative Schedule

The Literary Society, organization for students interested in programs concerning poetry, plays, and other literature, held its first meeting on Wednesday evening in the Faculty Lounge of Bartlett Hall.

Newly elected officers of the Society are: Gilbert Black, graduate student in English, president, Catherine Treadwell '64 and Audrey Rayner '63, vice-presidents; Pamela Brady '65, secretary; and Carol Rosch '65, treasurer.

Under the direction of Arnold Silver, advisor to the Society, those present discussed types of programs and established a tentative schedule of events for the remainder of the semester.

According to Silver, the Literary Society, which was once a very active organization for students and professors alike, has lost Faculty membership to the Mass Review, which was formed three years ago. In setting up the new program, Professor Silver and the officers are hoping to re-activate the organization by drawing a membership which will be responsible for setting up a program of general interest to the campus community and specific interest to literary-minded persons.

Among suggestions brought into discussion were: forums, debates, faculty lectures, play-readings, and poetry discussions. A collaboration with similar organizations at Smith, Mt. Holyoke, and Amherst Colleges was also considered, for four-college co-operative programs.

Students interested in joining the Literary Society are asked to submit their names to Mr. Silver of the English Department or Pamela Brady in Crabtree.

Index Notice

Seniors are reminded that if they wish to appear in the Index and have not yet had their pictures taken, they must sign up at the Index Office in the S.U. on later than 5 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 20.

The proofs of the pictures must be returned Monday, Nov. 26, in the Index Office.

A spirited freshman rope-pulling squad muscled its way to victory Saturday morning over an undermanned sophomore team. The well-organized frosh led by their president, Bernie Dallas, never gave the upperclassmen a chance as the two classes pulled against each other during half time of the freshman football game. A rematch has been promised for later in the year, at which time it is expected that the sophomores will have a larger turnout.

Dr. Lederle Praises Mass. Legislature In Recent Talk

President Lederle urged in a speech Wednesday that the Commonwealth's "hidden abundance" — its young people — be given every chance to become "the great resource of brainpower that it has every potential for becoming."

Speaking before the annual convention of the Massachusetts Farm Bureau Federation in Chicopee, Dr. John W. Lederle said that students are increasingly turning to public institutions for their higher education. "They should, therefore, certainly have an outstanding University of Massachusetts to which to turn and in which to prosper."

Dr. Lederle praised the Massachusetts legislature for bringing the University "a very long way toward excellence." He said that legislative support in recent years has reached "such an extent that we now have confidence to strive to be, not just good, but the best in the United States."

Lederle said that he sees this aim as the legislature's mandate. "We have every right to this ambition," he asserted. "We are determined to open up ever-greater opportunities for our Massachusetts young people, and we are not deterred by the statistics showing that Massachusetts higher educational facilities will be short some 47,000 places by 1975" for the qualified high school students who will soon be applying for admission to college.

Dr. Lederle said that the University and other public institutions of higher learning "must make room for many of these young people. But merely making room is not enough. Our best thinking must be directed toward achieving an optimum equating of quantity and quality."

Dr. Lederle applauded the work of the legislative Master Plan Study Commission currently scrutinizing the entire educational structure in Massachusetts. He urged that the work be based "on a bedrock of quality, the highest possible quality."

Any attempt "to cut corners in this very serious business of education in the latter 20th century," the president said, "can bring us to disaster as far-reaching as any experienced in our history."

The president urged that "there be no slowdown and no impediments henceforth to the reasonable and orderly development of Massachusetts education from the lowest grades to the University graduate programs."

Noting that the Land-Grant Act of 1862, under which the

Ronnie Drumm Orchestra To Perform At Mili Ball

Scott Phillips, Military Ball Publicity Chairman, announced today that music for the Ball, which will take place December 8, will be provided by the Ronnie Drumm Orchestra.

While only recently organized (in 1958), this band has become recognized as one of the top dance bands in the United States today, Phillips said, winning the National Dance Band Contest in 1959 and 1960. This contest, which is sponsored by the American Federation of Musicians, is judged by leaders in the dance band field, including Les Elgart, Richard Maltby, Vincent Lopez, and Woody Herman.

This band, which has attracted dancers from Boston to Los Angeles, including New York and Las Vegas, is under the direction of Ronnie Drumm, whose ability as a trumpet player and band leader have been compared to that of Harry James and Louis Armstrong. The band, whose theme is "Music with Danceability," has been endorsed by such notables of the music world as Sammy Kaye, Woody Herman, and Jack Teagarden, while Downbeat magazine called it an "excellent new sounding dance band . . ."

RONNIE DRUMM

This year's Mili Ball should be particularly enjoyable, Phillips said, not only because of this fine orchestra, but also since formal invitations and color photographs are provided free.

Time Added To Commons Breakfast

Late breakfast at the Dining Commons and Butterfield and Greenough dorms will go into effect on a trial basis between Thanksgiving and Christmas vacations.

The breakfasts will last until 9:45 p.m., announced Student Senate Chairman of the Ad Hoc Committee on the Dining Commons, Charles Kessler.

If the experiment is successful, said Kessler, the late dining plan will be continued.

The breakfast will be open only to meal ticket holders and will include coffee, milk, cold cereal, and occasionally donuts, toast or English muffins.

Kessler said extra student help would be needed at the Commons to serve the last breakfast plan.

APO To Sell Flowers For Military Ball

Jim Farrow, president of Alpha Phi Omega, has announced that APO will be selling corsages for the Military Ball, acting in co-operation with the Ball committee.

In conjunction with the "Name the Buffet" contest being sponsored by the Ball committee, Farrow announced that in order to make this an expense free weekend for the winner, APO will refund the price of his date's corsage if it was purchased from that organization. (The Ball committee is giving away a set of tickets for the Ball and Buffet to the cadet, either Armor or Air Force, who submits the most appropriate and original name for the Ball).

Orders will be taken for the corsages in the lobbies of the dorms from 9-11 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday, Nov. 26, 27, and 29, and on Monday and Tuesday, December 3 and 4. The corsages will be delivered to the dorms late enough on Saturday afternoon, Dec. 8 to avoid spoilage, but in sufficient time for the Ball.

The variety of flowers available for corsages includes: roses, sweetheart roses, orchids, cymbidium orchids, Eucharist lilies, gardenias, camellias, and carnations. They are available in colors ranging from pure white to bright red, and including yellow, pink, blue, green and varigated white and red carnations.

An Afternoon's REVIEW

The sun had set, the snow was beginning to accumulate, and the music played happily on. It was that seldom found, near perfect mood—students, songs, snow—the type of afternoon that lingers as one of those pleasurable after-images of college life. Until now, we have directed our reviews to the literary or the dramatic, but at the risk of being labeled "schmaltzy," we comment on a Sunday in the Student Union. Those who wandered into the lobby yesterday were drawn to the Cape Cod Lounge, into a casual assembly surrounding the guest for "The Music Hour," Tony Ravosa and Combo. The "hour," which lasted the better part of the afternoon, was arranged by the Arts and Music Committee, and certainly merits editorial praise. It was unfortunate that the gathering was not widely publicized, but the afternoon must be applauded as a complete success. We hope any coming attractions are as spontaneously enjoyable. —D.B.A.

Studies Studies

Outwardly impressive attractions in the new men's dormitories—Brett and Gorman —are the studies on each floor. These are carpeted, teak furnished, well lighted, and convenient, but are they necessary? From some (limited) observations, these studies are not being used enough to warrant the cost and space they envolve. Sporadic checks of the number of people using these plush studies, found only three people per room at 8:00 p.m. during the week, and even fewer during the day and on "off" nights.

Brett dormitory has eight such studies, most of which are almost two "sleeping quarters" large. That is, four people could be roomed in the same area where only three people now find refuge for study. The merits of dormitory study areas are numerous: a place to escape a roommate's conflicting plans, an all-hours work room, and a means of removing the burden from public buildings like the library, to cite a few. The case at hand, that merits much further investigation by the housing department, is whether these many rooms, or one or two large study areas, are more efficient.

With new, comfortable, rooms, the students themselves exhibited an interesting behavior. Study furniture began disappearing —carried to the individual rooms—until fines were threatened for those who took the furniture. This suggests a preference for the seclusion of one's own room, and perhaps one comfortable chair per room could solve a good part of the study problem.

There is definitely a need for a thorough cost, space, and students' habits, evaluation. What looks and sounds impressive on paper and in construction, is only as good as the purpose it serves once established. The idea of one or two large studies per dormitory is strongly appealing after only casual observation. The new multi-floor dorms about to be built might profit from some rapid research on this subject. —D.B.A.

Shelter From Terror

It seems a shame that a state which is desperately seeking new sources of revenue and whose public institution for higher learning can not even afford to fully support its band would throw so much money away to build fall-out shelters and to train people in their use. Thrown away, not only because shelters would probably be useless in the event Westover was hit by any megaton weapon, but also because most people, if they knew the conditions which they would have to face, simply wouldn't want to survive a nuclear war.

Is this money to be wasted so that legislators might perpetrate a hoax designed to soothe the blind terror which suddenly swells from the frenzied breasts of the citizens of said state when, in moments of world crisis, nuclear war seems quite horribly possible? Law makers of any state in the Union might do well to consider the reasons for which the Congress, wherein it has representation, completely killed the National Civil Defense budget for the current fiscal year except in so much as was necessary to prepare for natural disasters.

Yes, We Have No Alma Mater

The sense of tranquility is most often felt at the end of a class day, walking across the campus in the shadows of the twilight. At five o'clock each day this spirit is accompanied by the bells, ringing from Old Chapel, in "When Twilight Shadows Deepen."

In direct contrast to this sense of calm is the period immediately before a football game. Alumni Field is packed with an ineffable spirit of anticipation and enthusiasm. Everyone stands and is asked to participate as the band plays "When Twilight Shadows Deepen."

This song, sung at rallies and more serious occasions, has both the spirit and familiarity which draws the students into a unified bond of emotion. This song expresses the combined feelings necessary in an alma mater. Yet this song is not officially the alma mater of our school. Although the Handbook states the alma mater to be "Sons of Massachusetts," a song which is rarely played and of which few know the words, there is no record of any song having been declared as an alma mater.

During our Centennial year, we have great need to link both alumni and students to this common, yet unofficial expression of spirit. We should have an alma mater. The title of alma mater belongs most clearly to "When Twilight Shadows Deepen."

The alma mater issue will be discussed in the Student Senate November 28. If you have an opinion on this subject, see your Senator.

THE CRISIS OF THE UNITED NATIONS AND ITS CAUSES

by SEVA SUD

I have discussed the disability of the Security Council and the reasons for the defectiveness of the General Assembly, which threaten the very existence of the United Nations. Now, I will discuss another serious problem created by the sudden death of its Secretary General, Mr. Dag Hammarskjold. In order to understand the consequences of this event, it would be appropriate to find out the Constitutional position of the Secretary General as stated by the U.N. Charter.

Article 97 provides: "The Secretary-General shall be appointed by the General Assembly upon the recommendations of the Security Council. He shall be the chief administrative officer of the organization."

According to this provision, the appointment of the Secretary-General involves two things. First, recommendation of the Security Council, which means if the decision is vetoed in the Security Council by any of the five permanent members, then there can be no appointment. Secondly, the election in the General Assembly must have a two-thirds majority of votes for appointment. Mr. Dag Hammarskjold was successfully elected by the General Assembly and approved by the Security Council and he was reappointed a second time on the same grounds. However, a year ago the activities of Mr. Dag Hammarskjold displeased the Soviet Union with regard to Congo issues and since then Mr. Krushchev has wanted to replace the post of a single Secretary-General by three Secretary-Generals, called Troika. According to Mr. Krushchev the Secretary-General is supposed to be impartial and since there can be no such impartial person, he suggested the appointment of three Secretary-Generals on ideological bases, one representing the Western world, the second representing the Communist world, and the third representing the uncommitted nations of the world. He further suggested that this Troika would work under a veto system.

With regard to the functions of the Secretary-General, Article 100, Paragraph 1 provides: "In the performance of their duties the Secretary-General and the staff shall not seek or receive instructions from any government or from any other authority external to the organization. They shall refrain from any action which might reflect on their position as international officials responsible only to the organization."

With this background we can go on to discuss the crisis in Mr. Hammarskjold's death.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THANKS AGAIN

To the Editor:

As student chairman of the University Blood Drive, I should like to take this opportunity to thank the many people who helped to make this year's drive the most successful on our campus.

Special thanks go to Mmes. J. Henry Korson, Harold Watts, and Arthur Levine of the University Women, who coordinated and directed over 100 volunteer women, and to the officials of the Student Union for their help in the relocation of the bank in the Union.

It would be impossible to list the recruiters in all the dormitories, fraternities, and sororities, but many thanks go out to them for the fine job that they did. To the large number of students and women who donated their valuable time by working as hostesses and aids at the bank, my thanks are extended.

And last, I would thank the some 1200 students, faculty members, and employees of the University who volunteered to give blood.

SELF DEFENSE

To the Editor:

In your issue of November 14, you published an article under the caption: "Mrs. de Kerpely Reviews Prof. Johnson's Book." Out of respect for Prof. Johnson's work, and in defense of my own reputation for literacy, I would like to make it clear to your readers that only a portion of the article in question was written by me, and that even this portion, which was lifted out of context from the body of my original review, was mutilated in such a manner that what appeared in your pages, under my name, had lost not only its meaning, but also its grammatical construction.

Research Grad Students Represent Six Nations

Research is the specialty of the eight foreign scholars now in the College of Agriculture at UMass.

Representing six countries, the visitors plan to stay for periods of six months to four years, according to Dean Arless A. Spielman.

Two of them, Eiichi Tanikawa, a visiting scientist, and Hiroshiro Maruyama, a post doctoral fellow, come from Hokkaido University in Japan.

Tanikawa, who arrived in July, is a well-known marine food technologist in Japan.

He is working with the department of food science and technology in the development of research programs to preserve marine foods with low temperatures. He is also helping to adapt new techniques in refrigeration and canning—which he developed in Japan—to conditions in the United States.

Maruyama has an assistantship with the department of agricultural and food economics. Interested in all phases of American agriculture, he is presently studying American methods of teaching and marketing.

Mrs. Alina Palacz of Poland, a post doctoral fellow in the department of agronomy, is making a scientific study of weed life as it relates to environment.

Working at the cranberry station in East Wareham is Satendra Khera of India, a research physiologist. His specialty is nematology, the study of microscopic worms.

Veterinarians Nebhan Chandiramani of India and Ernest Morin of Canada are studying poultry diseases in the department of veterinary science.

Chandiramani, who has been here for four years will probably return to India next June. Morin plans to become a permanent resident.

Fahmi Ramadan, a visiting scientist from Egypt, and J. Ian Anderson, a post doctoral fellow from Scotland, are in the Institute of Agricultural and Industrial Microbiology.

Ramadan, one of the outstanding investigators of water pollution, is administrator of the water pollution unit at the National Research Centre in Cairo.

While at the university he is investigating various aspects of water microbiology and conducting several graduate seminars.

Anderson is studying the microbiological aspects of frozen food. This winter he will begin research in marine bacteriology.

Recognized Educator

The new three-story University building, in addition to serving the freshman and sophomore physical education curriculum and the program for majors in recreation and physical education, will also be used for the University's extensive intramural program.

The main gymnasium will be on the third floor and will have more than an acre of floor space. It will hold six regulation basketball courts which, under a multiple use system, will be convertible to 12 volleyball courts or 24 badminton courts. The building will be unique in that no floor space will be wasted on bleachers or stands.

Other facilities will include a swimming pool, physiotherapy area, weight-training and conditioning laboratories, bowling alley, auxiliary gymnasium, wrestling room, squash and handball courts, classrooms, laboratories, seminar rooms and a remedial therapy laboratory for physically handicapped students.

Scheduled for occupancy in September, 1963, the new facility will be officially dedicated at special ceremonies to be announced at a later date.

Only Certain Students Able To Finish College Studies In Less Than 4 Years

Following is the last in a series of three articles written by members of the Provost's Office staff on the prospect of obtaining an education in three years. According to William C. Venman, Assistant to the Provost, the articles are a result of concern on the part of President Lederle and Provost Woodside about this possibility.

Who Should NOT Plan This

Completing a college education in three years or less is definitely not for every student. A student who is not certain of his career goal at the time of his entrance probably should take more time to reflect on various possibilities than is available in three crowded years.

A student whose health is precarious or who is easily upset emotionally may be well advised to take the normal four years to get his degree.

A student who has trouble with his studies probably would do well to take somewhat more time at them, perhaps even more than the usual four years, but within the ten semester limitation. Failing even two or three courses can throw the best laid plans to complete an education in three years awry.

How Does One Plan Course

The first thing for a student to do is to make certain that he knows himself what he wants to do. Next, he should check the catalog for ways in which this might be possible, choosing with the aid of his advisor and others, if necessary, a possible course of action, with the courses he plans to take and when he plans to take them.

It is best to take required courses in the summer session insofar as possible, for there is greater likelihood that they will be offered then. Also, he should see if there are any courses which he might take by special examination.

Often he may find that with independent study he may prepare himself for an examination without actually attending the course. Perhaps his high school offered courses of a calibre which qualified him for advanced placement.

Upon successful completion of the more advanced course, he will receive credit for the course bypassed.

Finally, he must review his plans as he goes along to anticipate probable trouble spots before they occur. He must keep track of the University requirements and the requirements of the school or college or department in which he is majoring. (Don't get caught short at the end needing one or two courses which are not offered when you want them.) He should see his advisor regularly, and be prepared to ask for help wherever it is available.

The University is here to help you educate yourself, not to hinder you.

Young Republicans Hold Meeting; Plan Promotion

The University Young Republicans, unenthusiastic about the New Englnd election returns, held a meeting of the Executive Board Tuesday night to initiate a promotion program for the Republican Party, a club spokesman said.

Public Education Program (PEP) will use all channels of media at its disposal to inform the voters of the Party's philosophy, program, personality and its record in the next session of Congress.

The Club's newspaper, The Prism, will make slight changes in its format in line with the PEP policy, said Bob Morgan '64, editor-in-Chief. The Prism will continue to print student editorials, but will also enlarge its coverage of Washington and Beacon Hill.

A monthly forum for discussing current issues will be inaugurated after the holidays. Two guest speakers will deliver postmortems on this Fall's Republican election efforts, from statewide and national viewpoints, early in December.

The Young Republicans will also sponsor debates, films and social events in order to express their views. They hope to work closely with the Amherst Republican Town Committee and the Republican State Committee in their effort to reach the Independents and the Democrats of this state, the spokesman said.

Frosh Trounce Kittens; End Season Unbeaten

A pair of touchdowns early in each half had the Freshmen footballers leading before New Hampshire cut the final margin to 28-14, giving the Little Redmen an undefeated season. The Frosh started off the same way they did last week in their 29-0 rout of Connecticut with touchdowns the first two times they had the ball.

The first score came on a 33 yard drive that started when Fred Hupprich and Bob Pantanella recovered a Wildcat fumble. Don Eaton and Lou Zangrilli carried downfield in seven plays before Eaton swept around his right end for the touchdown from two yards out. Bob Taylor threw the block that allowed Eaton to score his fourth six pointer of the year.

That second scoring march started moments later when the Redmen forced a New Hampshire punt. A pair of Bob Taylor to Bob Meers passes picked up a first down, and seven plays later UMass had another six points on the board. A 22 yard gallop by Zangrilli and a nine yard run by Eaton put Mass in the shadow of the goal line, and Taylor hit Milt Morin in the end zone with the score. Morin had trouble getting clear, but the Mass line gave Taylor all the protection he needed so when Big Milt broke free, Bob let fly with his eighth scoring throw of the season.

The rest of the half turned into a punting contest as each team could only pick up one first down, but Mass scored once again, midway through the third period, when they took possession on the New Hampshire four. Taylor got knocked for a loss of eight yards, but he picked up the lost yardage with a pass to Meers and he scored from the three on a rollout. Dick Varrichione booted the point after touchdown.

Wildcat quarterback Paul Lovallo returned the kick to his own 35, but two plays later Bob Carney and Bill Connor caused New Hampshire halfback Mike Yankowski to fumble. The first Mass play went for a loss of five, but second team quarterback Steve Trbovich lofted a 35 yard pass that Don Young pulled down in the end zone for the last UMass tally. Once again Varrichone booted the point and the Little Redmen had 28 points.

An exchange of punts gave New Hampshire the ball on the Mass 48 in the final quarter, and seven plays later Lovallo scored from the ten on a rollout. The big play on the march was a first down pass to John Joyce. Lovallo called the same play on the conversion attempt with the same success. Mass recovered a New Hampshire on side kickoff, but Pete McKenney fumbled on the next play and once more the Wildcats were in command. One play, a long bomb from Lovallo to Joyce that covered 55 yards, had the second Cat score on the board in a matter of seconds. The conversion was no good, and the clock ran out four plays later.

KAPPA SIGMA—INTRAMURAL CHAMPION OF UMASS AND UNH

Kappa Sigma Crushes UNH's LCA For Intramural Crown

Following the rally on last Friday night, Kappa Sigma beat the intramural champion of New Hampshire, Lambda Chi Alpha, by a crushing score of 39 to 14. The Wildcat team from New Hampshire had been undefeated in league play for the last two years with only 21 points being scored against them during this time.

Last year this same team beat Baker "A", our intramural champion, by a score of 14 to 0, in a hard fought game with the final two touchdowns being scored in the last two minutes. For the previous three years in a row, New Hampshire teams have won the rival football games between our two schools. This year KS brought the championship trophy home with a stunning victory.

Without a doubt, KS played its best game Friday night against the best team New Hampshire could field. On the opening kickoff, KS showed a preview of what the rest of the game was going to be like, with Rod Corey scoring a touchdown behind spectacular blocking in only 7 seconds. A few minutes later, KS again scored with a 25 yard pass from Crane to Schmoyer with Corey catching a short pass for the extra point. Still later in the first half, Hughes caught a perfect pass from Crane for another TD.

Just before the end of the first half, the hustling defensive team of KS caught the Durham, New Hampshire boys dawdling in their end zone, to notch a two point safety. The score at the end of the first half was KS 21 and the stunned LCA Wildcats 0.

In the second half, New Hampshire finally showed some of its potential, scoring two touchdowns with extra points. However, KS continued to score with Hughes grabbing another TD and Harrington also catching two end zone passes to end the game with a final score 39-14.

COLLEGE ROUNDUP

by AL RICE '66

If the saying "misery loves company" is true, then UMass fans have a lot of company this week. Two highly favored teams had undefeated records and conference championships shattered, and three others had bowl hopes go up in smoke.

The upset to end all upsets was the Georgia Tech victory over Alabama. The Crimson Tide had not lost in 27 games and were rolling to their second straight national championship before Billy Lothridge and the Engineers beat them 7-6. That game was won in the last period when Alabama gambled on a two point conversion which failed and then had a pass intercepted killing a late rally.

Missouri also had a winning streak snapped by losing 13-0 to Oklahoma. The Sooners held the tough Missouri rushing offense in check for the whole game while their own, led by number six rusher in the country, Joe Don Looney, rolled to touchdowns the first time they had the ball in each half. Right now Bud Wilkinson's boys are leading the Big 8 and are headed for the Orange Bowl, but they must beat the tough Nebraska team next week. Nebraska has lost only once this year.

Northwestern had their Rose Bowl hopes shattered by Michigan State when the Wildcat's pass defense allowed Tom Myers to be thrown for losses totaling 48 yards. At the same time Wisconsin won 35-6 over Illinois to clinch the Bowl berth. The Badgers' halfback, Lou Holland, scored four times tying a Big Ten record.

Dartmouth, Southern Cal, and Mississippi remained unbeaten although all three came close to losing. Dartmouth won over Cornell 28-21 but trailed most of the way. Navy led Southern Cal, Wisconsin's opposition on New Year's Day at Pasedena, after one period and continued to plague the Trojans throughout the game before losing 13-6. Mississippi downed Tennessee 19-6 behind two Louis Guy touchdowns.

Here in Massachusetts, Tufts ended the season with a three game losing streak as they lost to the Coast Guard Academy 9-8, Amherst downed Williams 7-0 to take the Little Three title, Holy Cross got murdered by Penn State 48-20. Penn State has the Lambert Trophy wrapped up and is headed for a bowl game, though they haven't decided just which one yet. Another bowl candidate, Boston College, flooded BU with passes to win 41-25. The Terriers had the leading pass defense in the nation until they met up with Jack Concannon and Art Graham. Connecticut ended the Yankee Conference season with a 27-0 win over Rhode Island.

Wildcats Upset Redmen 16-14 To Win Beanpot

Field Goal Margin Of 16-14 UNH Win

by STEVE HEWEY '63

For the second straight year a field goal has spelled doom for UMass hopes of annexing its first Yankee Conference crown. Substitute center Bob Towse drilled a dead center 33 yard kick through the posts midway in the final period to enable his UNH mates to emerge from the showdown contest still undefeated and once again Yankee Conference champs. Last year a Maine 3 pointer halted UM, 10-7. Saturday's field goal provided the margin of victory for the Wildcats, 16-14.

New Hampshire surprised everyone by running up a 13-0 command at halftime and from then on they never gave up the lead. For its first score the Wildcats rambled some 70 yards in 9 plays in the opening period. The running of halfback Don Sereika and the southpaw tossing of QB Lloyd Wells enabled Coach "Chief" Boston's undefeated eleven to move almost at ease through the poor tackling Redmen defenses.

Wells To Sereika

En route to paydirt Wells picked up a first down on a keeper and so did Sereika on an off tackle slash. Wells went to the airways, hitting Sereika on the 30. A Wells to Dick Benz toss put UNH on the UM 15 with a first down. Paul Majeski nabbed Wells for a 5 yard loss only to have Wells come back on the next play and fire to HB Jim Edgerly on the 14. On third down and 9 Sereika grabbed a Well's toss and danced and sidestepped through the UMass defense for the tally. The kick was good and UNH led 7-0.

UMass just could not seem to get started in the first half. The 500+ arm of Jerry Whelchel could not click although several of his early tosses were on target but could not be held. Even the entrance of Sam Lussier into the Redmen backfield for the first time since the BU game could not spark a UM scoring drive before the half ended.

Wildcats Capitalize on Fumble

The Wildcats added another score in the first half by capitalizing on one of football's biggest breaks. Deep in his own territory UMass punter Mike Ross had trouble controlling a snap from center and had to run with the ball. He was tripped up on the 15 and the Wildcats took over on downs. Wells and Sereika teamed up to move the ball to a first down and goal to go. The 5 play scoring drive was peaked by an off-tackle score by fullback Dick Eastwood. Paul Majeski crashed through to smother the point-after try.

UMass came out in the second half steamed up and, as its fans hoped, ready to roll. But HB Ken Kezer lost the handle on the ball after legging the kick off to the 36. Left tackle Bob Weeks gathered it in for UNH. But a half dozen plays later UM's Bob Tedoldi slammed into Lloyd Wells, jarring the ball loose. John Hudson jumped on it on the UNH 47 and the stage was set for UM score number one.

After Leo Biron could find no daylight, Sam Lussier carried for 5 straight plays and drove to the 25 picking up 2 first downs en route. Whelchel and Biron ground out yardage to the 15. Once again as he has so many times all season Sam Lussier balled the Redmen out of a tight spot. On fourth and one Sam actually flew over the UNH line down to the 12 and the first down. On the following play Whelchel rolled around the right side, got some good blocking and spun his way forward to the 4. Art Perdigao cracked through to the one. Then into the end zone went Lussier on the off tackle slant to put UM only 7 points down. George Pleau had his kick attempt smothered.

Towse Boots Field Goal

Leading 13-6 in the fourth period the Wildcats took over on downs on their own 28 and began the drive that set up the game clincher. The backfield of Wells, Sereika, Eastwood and Edgerly took turns at running and moved to the 46. On 3rd and 4 Dan Sereika took off for the best run of the game on the scissors play. Wells faked to right half Edgerly who ran through the left side of the UM line. Sereika, running from the left slot took the handoff, and went up the middle. Once in the UM secondary he cut to the side and had galloped 33 yards down to the Redmen 22. On fourth down and 4 Bob Towse trotted in, and from the 23 lifted the ball through the posts and the Wildcats to victory and the Beanpot.

Trailing 16-6 UMass marched 68 yards in 14 plays to come close but not close enough. Biron took the kick to the UM 33. Biron, Whelchel, Lussier, and Warren divided the carrying chores and after 2 first downs were on the New Hampshire 39. It was at this point that Whelchel at long last decided to take the game to the airways.

Whelchel Sneaks Over

Paul Majeski plucked a Whelchel toss from the air on the 29. A Whelchel to Biron toss went astray. Whelchel found Lussier with a pass but the play actually lost a yard. On third and eleven Whelchel hit Majeski on the 3. In two plays Lussier bulled his way to the one. Whelchel on the sneak gave the Redmen the TD. If anyone had been wondering all season if the Redmen had a play in stock should they have to go for the 2 point conversion soon found out that they did: the option.

Jerry Whelchel rolled out to the right as if to run it in but found Leo Biron all alone in the endzone. Biron gathered in the pass for the two points and UMass trailed only by 2, 16-14. But the too much time that was wasted on the ground in the last touchdown drive proved costly to the Fusiamen.

They tried an outside kick hoping to get the ball and score in the precious time left. The trick failed as Bob Weeks fell on the ball. New Hampshire, realizing that victory was only a matter of time, let the clock wind up the game.

Individual game statistics show that Sam Lussier was top carrier for UMass with 42 yards in 16 trips. For UNH Dan Sereika turned in a start performance with 73 yards in 14 carries including one TD. In the quarterback duel Lloyd Wells of UNH hit on 5 of 7 pass attempts while Jerry Whelchel was a sub-par 3 for 11.

Redmen halfback Sam Lussier, playing his last football game in a UMass uniform, flies over the Wildcat line to pick up a crucial first down in the fourth period.

UMass fullback Art Perdigao bulls his way over the UNH line to the Wildcat one yard stripe. On the next play Lussier ran an off tackle slant into the endzone for the first UMass score of the afternoon.

Brouillet Erases Keefe's Mark; Meet Today In N.Y.

by JIM RYAN '65

Bob Brouillet, running his finest race of the season, led the Redmen Harriers to a 16-44 trouncing of UNH Saturday afternoon on the UMass course. "Digger" put on a tremendous display of stamina and strength, covering the 4.6 miles in 23:58, the fastest time ever posted for the course.

Brouillet's amazing time was eleven seconds better than the old record of 24:09 set earlier in the season by Central Connecticut's Jim Keefe, the number one cross country man in New England and one of the best runners in the East.

The Redmen depth was too much for the weaker UNH team as Coach Footrick's boys took five of the first six places. Jim Wrynn finished second and also posted his best time for the course, 24:18. Wrynn had held the course record for a UMass man, 24:23, until Saturday. Dick Blomstrom placed third and turned in his fastest time of the season, 24:41. Dave Balch was fourth and Ken O'Brien finished sixth for a team total of 16 points. Other UMass finishers were: Pendleton, 8th, Ramsay, 10th, Young, 11th, Thompson, 12th, and Sisson, 13th.

For the three seniors on the squad—co-captains Dick Blomstrom and Dave Balch, and Ken O'Brien, this was their last dual meet. These three men have been the backbone of Coach Footrick's teams for the past three years, teams that have won three straight Yan Con Championships and the 1961 New England Championship, in addition to the many dual meet victories. All three are outstanding runners, and will be sorely missed next year.

The Redmen will compete in their final race of the season today, traveling to Van Cortland Park in New York City, scene of the 54th annual IC4A Championships. Coach Footrick looks forward to a good showing from his boys on the 5 mile course, as most of the Redmen are even better at a longer distance.

The IC4A's may turn into a dual meet between Bob Brouillet and Jim Keefe. The New York races will give "Digger" another opportunity to run against the Connecticut speedster who beat him earlier this year, and this time the order of finish could be reversed.

Norton Keeps Tennis Title

Paul Norton, Head of the Art Department, has successfully defended the Intramural Tennis crown which he won last year. Bill Martin a sophomore from TEP and Mr. Norton emerged from a field of 38 participants to meet in the final match.

Norton won the first set 6-4 and appeared to have things in control, but Martin came on strong in the second set. Martin had Norton 5-4 and 6-5 before he succumbed to a tremendous rally by Norton, losing 8-6.

Is Federal Aid To Higher Education Bane Or Boon To American Colleges?

(More than $1 billion in federal funds goes each year to institutions of higher education. This aid program has been both praised and criticized. Last week, the Brookings institution completed a report which attempts to assess the government's effect on higher education. The report was prepared at the request of the U.S. Commissioner of Education. Below are some of its findings. Part two of this story will deal with government reaction to the report, and the changes in federal aid to education which may result.)

Federal aid to education can be harmful as well as beneficial according to a report presented to the U.S. Commissioner of Education last week.

The report was prepared by Harold Orlans of the Brooking Institution, an "independent, nonpartisan organization dedicated to fostering sound public policy."

Federal aid to higher education amounts to about $1 billion annually. Much of it goes to support scientific research and to pay the salaries of faculty and student researchers. Usually federal aid for research is administered through a government agency interested in the results.

Among the agencies which give large scale support to universities for research are the National Science Foundation, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the National Institute of Health, the Office of Naval Research, and the Atomic Energy Commission.

Four Problems Raised

Four problems raised by the Brookings report are now being seriously examined by government officials who may use it to revise federal aid to education:

1) The sciences receive by far the greatest share of federal aid, and that often goes to a few very large universities.

2) Small schools, and many large ones are unable to draw and keep top teachers or researchers, who want to go to the few schools that are able, with large federal grants, to support the best research.

3) Even the schools that get the big research grants find them a dubious blessing. Instead of teaching, many of the top professors spend nearly all of their time on research.

4) The availability of money in some fields and lack of it in others is having quite an effect on some students. A number of top students seem to be drawn to a field because of the lucrative rewards offered, courtesy of the federal government.

Much of the trouble can be traced back to the hurried start given federal aid to education by the Russian "sputnik" in 1957. Congress responded to the apparent "science gap" rather quickly, and perhaps without enough reflection.

Federal funds, the report said, made the most striking and direct improvements in scientific research and education at a few leading graduate and professional schools. Federal support allowed these schools to improve the quality, number, and salaries of faculty in the sciences and some social sciences.

Acting like a "magnet", the federal funds for university programs drew the best brains to participate in the most promising research programs. On the surface, this was a step in the right direction. Only 6,000 American students were enrolling in engineering courses this year; Russian schools graduated 160,000 last year.

Schools of Art and Humanities Suffer Most

So the attempt to beat the Russians in science is drawing talent from non-science fields. Suffering most are schools of art and humanities. There, few federal funds are available.

Federal grants have also influenced science education, by making research more lucrative. Instead of lecturing, the top professors are bottled up in their laboratories. Some give one or two lectures a week to graduate students, but real importance, and larger salaries are attached to research. Thus, the undergraduate in science frequently gets his lectures and lab work from a graduate student who didn't "make" the research team.

In the cut-throat battle for science professors, it's not unusual for a top school to use a federal grant and university budget to come with a $19,000 a year salary as a drawing attraction.

And money comes easy to the bright graduate student in science. He generally has little trouble in getting a stipend that will more than see him through his PhD. The equally intelligent humanities student finds almost no government programs to help him through graduate school.

Perhaps the most serious drawback reported is that federal funds are, by and large, motivating the most able students to the field promising the largest rewards. Although no massive enrollment increases in science fields were found, the Brookings report said that the best students tend to be concentrated in the science departments of the most eminent universities.

CLUB DIRECTORY

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

Freshmen and sophomores of the School of Business Administration are required to attend a meeting on Counseling Day, Thurs., Nov. 20, at 11 a.m. in the Public Health Building auditorium. At this meeting information with regard to preregistration for courses next semester will be given out.

COMMITTEE FOR NON-COMPULSORY ROTC

There will be a meeting on Mon., Nov. 19, at 8 p.m. in the Plymouth room of the S.U. The advantages of voluntary ROTC will be discussed. All who are interested in voluntary ROTC please attend.

CONCERT ASSOCIATION

Members of the executive board can pick up their complimentary tickets from now until Nov. 27 in the RSO office.

EQUESTRIAN CLUB

There will be a meeting of the Program Committee on Mon., Nov. 19, at 7 p.m. in Worcester B room of the S.U.

FIGURE SKATING CLUB

There will be a meeting of all those interested in forming a figure skating club on Thurs., Nov. 29, at 11 a.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U. Plans for the coming season will be discussed. The future of the club depends on attendance at this meeting.

HILLEL FOUNDATION

There will be a rehearsal of the Hillel dance group on Mon., Nov. 19, at 6:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers of the S.U. All interested are urged to attend.

MATH CLUB

The math club is sponsoring a trip to the MIT computer center on Sat., Dec. 1. Transportation will leave at 9 a.m. and will arrive back at 6 p.m. There will be a fee of $1-2 if transportation is by bus. This will depend on the number of people going. Those definitely planning to go should sign up outside the Math office in Machmer. Please indicate access to a car. The deadline for signing up is Tues., Nov. 27.

NEWMAN CLUB

Members are reminded that flashlights will be needed for the living rosary on Dec. 16. Those planning to participate should bring a flashlight back from Thanksgiving vacation if they don't already have one here.

Anyone interested in being a member of the Newman Center choir, please come to the organizational meeting on Mon., Nov. 19, from 7-9 in Old Chapel Auditorium.

STOSAG

There will be a meeting on Mon., Nov. 19, in room 220 of Stockbridge Hall. Freshmen and seniors needed.

SPORTS PARACHUTE CLUB

There will be an important meeting on Mon., Nov. 19, at 8 p.m. in the S.U. All those interested are invited to attend.

Pres. Lederle Compliments Firefighters

UMass student volunteer firefighters who aided in fighting the Abbey fire have been commended for their work by President Lederle.

In a letter to Chief Richard Floyd, President Lederle extended appreciation for their work.

He wrote: "From every report which I have received concerning the work which members of your department did at the 'Abbey' on the evening of the 27th, I am convinced that your group deserves the highest kind of commendation.

"I hope you will extend my appreciation to yourself and all the members of the department who so valiantly assisted on that evening."

Volunteers aiding at the Abbey fire were Theodore Gerber, Elwin McNamara, John Brooks and Steve Bowman.

Blood Bank At UMass Has Successful Drive

At the Annual University Blood Donor Days, held last Tues., Wed., and Thurs., Nov. 13, 14 and 15 in the Commonwealth Room of the SU, 641 pints of blood were collected by the Hampshire County Chapter of The American Red Cross.

Sponsored by the Campus Religious Council, in conjunction with the University Women, this year's blood bank turned out to the the most successful of all blood banks held on the UMass Campus.

Not only was the blood bank successful because of the large number of donators, but it was also a success because of its new location. After several years in Arnold Dormitory, the bank was relocated this year in the Commonwealth Room. This move provided a more easily accessible location for the donors, along with offering the many facilities of the S.U.

Several persons, however, failed to give blood because they arrived after the closing time of 2:45 p.m. For these people, and others who desire to give blood, officials have announced that there will be another blood bank held Dec. 4 and 5, from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Amherst College. Information can be obtained by contacting the Hampshire County Chapter of the American Red Cross, in Northampton.

Dr. Lederle ...

University was founded, has proved "the most dynamic force in smashing the roadblocks barring the full development of democratic educational resources in this country," Dr. Lederle said that the nation's Land-Grant colleges have contributed a new and different kind of institution—the multipurpose public university.

Curriculum Committee Looks At Distribution Requirements

by GORDON HACKETT '64

The following is one in a series of articles about the workings of various Student Senate committees. They will be written by members of the Senate Public Relations Committee who are qualified to write authoritatively on the various matters chosen for the articles.

The primary function of the Student Senate is to act in the best interests of those whom it represents: the students of UMass. This means that the Student Senate must, with all the authority given to it, secure and maintain the rights and privileges of all students.

For this purpose it is divided into various committees whose function it is to deal with the major areas of concern, such as finances, budgets, activities, and so on. Still, just as it is the duty of each of these committees to secure the rights of students, it is also their duty to guard the interests of those others concerned in this instance, the faculty of the University. The committee that is most closely associated with students and faculty is the Curriculum Committee.

The Curriculum Committee concerns itself with points in those courses offered at the University that are the subject of concern of students taking these courses. The committee itself is composed of from five to eight student members with two faculty advisors who, ideally, should also be members of the Faculty Senate.

To deal with problems that may be brought to its attention the committee may inquire itself into the problem or issue questionnaires to students and faculty to determine the extent or seriousness of the problem and then to forward its recommendations to the persons most properly qualified to correct the problem.

The committee this year has been inquiring into the distribution requirements, especially in Arts and Sciences, trying to determine whether or not two semester courses might be made requisite for only one semester. It has also been inquiring into a recommendation of the latest Swap Conference that students engaged in extra-curricular activities be given special attention when applying for loans, according to the extent of their activities and the importance of their position in these activities.

The Curriculum Committee may deal, not only with existing problems, but also with recommendations for instituting new courses or making courses at other schools available. For instance, in the past few weeks the Curriculum Committee has been working on a list of courses at the other three colleges in the area that might be offered to students here at the University, as well as a list of courses offered at the University that might be offered to the students of Amherst, Mount Holyoke, and Smith. It is the hope of the committee that these lists will be available by Counseling Day.

Colloquium Now Open To Qualified Freshmen

by NEAL ANDELMAN '63

Qualified freshmen will be accorded a unique educational experience in the second semester. On the basis of their mid-term grades first year students are being invited to announce themselves as candidates for Freshman Honors Colloquia membership. This membership will be determined by student willingness to become an Honors Colloquia participant, an appraisal of student performance by professors acquainted with their work, and by an oral interview in which the Honors staff will have an opportunity to meet contacted students.

Letters of invitation will be received tomorrow by selected members of the class of '66. A student who does not receive such a letter, however, is still eligible for membership. Dr. Louis Greenbaum, Director of the Honors Program, "extends an invitation to all freshmen who may not have received a letter due to the vagaries of mid-term reporting, and who are interested in participating to contact me in B366 at once."

To date the Honors Program has not refused admittance to a single qualified student who assumed the initiative of making application independently.

"The Colloquia provide stability and purpose in the educational lives of able and eager students from the freshman to the senior year," noted Dr. Greenbaum. "Admission to the Honors Colloquia is not, and should not be, restricted to the chosen few—solely for those with the highest scholastic credentials. Intellectual earnestness and devotion are just as important as a student's grades, and the recruitment process will take this into consideration."

The Honors Program encourages students who think they are qualified to inquire about the possibility of entering Honors work. The program provides an opportunity for students to gain intellectual rapport between students and professors of their own and diversified fields of interest.

"The Honors program," stated Dr. Greenbaum, "however small and demanding, and however much it operates at the very heart of what a University is and hopes to educate, is not a privileged clique, and, on the contrary, wishes to attract as large and diversified a group as the interests of many students will permit."

This kind of learning, which draws from many fields and the literature of many specialties, is of particular value for students concerned with education, not merely the acquisition of more

Committee Re-Established To Plan S.U. Expansion

William Scott, Co-ordinator of Student Activities, has announced the reactivation of the Student Union Planning Committee for the future expansion of the Union.

According to Scott, President Lederle re-established the Planning Committee in October due to the planned growth of the University and the increasing demands being made on the existent facilities of the S.U., which has clearly indicated a need for early expansion.

The purpose of this committee is "to review, update and expand the report of the original committee, which was appointed in May, 1959."

A fiscal analysis of the costs of the expansion is also being worked on, in order to present this aspect of the report to the Board of Trustees as soon as possible.

The committee, which has met three times since its reactivation, has formed sub-committees to survey the needs of the Union in the light of its "astounding growth and future development."

Student survey forms, which are being distributed to ten per cent of the student body, will also be available for all interested students on the Lobby Counter of the S.U. The forms are aimed at engaging the attention of every student on campus in helping the committee to plan the future expansion of the building, and in aiding in the determination of adequate, practical, and pleasing facilities.

The questionnaire form includes every aspect of the present Student Union and possibilities for innovations in the Expansion program.

Moliere's "Best" Story To Be Presented

Seventeenth century French comedy will come to Amherst on Friday and Saturday, December 7 and 8, when the University Theatre of UMass presents Moliere's Tartuffe, the Theatre's second production this year, on the stage of Bowker Auditorium.

This play, the satiric story of the undoing of a hypocrite, has been called one of Moliere's best. Critics have said that Moliere's great comedies are so rich and vital a part of our dramatic heritage that they have come to exemplify a kind of perfection in their art, unrivalled anywhere in world drama.

This particular production, directed by Professor Cosmo A. Catalano, will feature Peter Avratin as the incorrigible Tartuffe, and Frank Powers, Nancy Baker, Louise Aceti, David Manley and Deena Ferrigno in the other major parts.

Tickets for this production will be on sale at the SU ticket office weekdays 11-1, 2-4 p.m., beginning December 3. Tickets may also be ordered through the University Theatre, Speech Department, Bartlett Hall.

A special high school matinee will be presented on Saturday, December 8, at 2:15, for which prices will be reduced for high school students.

Season ticket holders are urged to exchange their coupons for reserved seats on the special exchange date: Monday, December 3.

IFC Rushing Is Extended Until Nov. 30

IFC rushing has been extended to Friday, Nov. 30. Those who had marks withheld will be allowed to pledge if they get a note signed by their instructor with the missing grades.

Rushees are asked to bring their note and rushing card designating three fraternities, in order of preference, to the Dean's office by 4 p.m. Friday.

Mili Ball Finalists Go To Fort Devens

The five finalists for Honorary Colonel of the Mili Hall—Carolyn Young, Kathy Manning, Patt Jones, Judi Furnans, and Elizabeth Van Gelder—were given a tour of Fort Devens recently.

Accompanying the girls were Capt. Charles B. Huggins and Capt. Green B. Williams and two Advanced Armor ROTC Cadets. The tour began with an introduction to the 2nd Infantry Brigade commander and then to the commander of the 77th Armor Battalion. A tour of the Battalion followed, including a visit to the Tank Motor Pool, and rides in an Armor Personnel Carrier, a VTR (Vehicular Tank Retriever) and a medium tank.

Following the tour of the tank pool, the girls were shown slides concerning military life and activities in Europe, accompanied by a running commentary by Lt. James Warron. A fall parachute exhibition was included in the day's activities, as was dinner in the company mess hall, at which the girls discovered that Army "chow" isn't bad at all.

The day's events were climaxed by a short visit to the Officers Club.

English Dept. Presents "Meet The Author"

The UMass English Department announces its fifth annual Meet-the-Author coffee-hour series, being held through Friday, at 4 p.m., in the Colonial Lounge of the S.U.

The series is planned to synchronize with the University Store's annual Book Fair, a Christmas display of books, records and prints shown in the Commonwealth Room. Each afternoon the author of a current book being displayed at the Book Fair tells about its writing. Afterward informal discussions are held over coffee.

Monday, Arnold Silver, editor of The Family Letters of Samuel Butler, published this fall by Jonathan Cape in England and Stanford University Press in the U.S., described his adventures in collecting and editing hitherto unpublished letters which throw light on the relation between the novel The Way of All Flesh and

"Thee Our Alma Mater"

Tonight the Student Senate will discuss a bill which proposes the changing of the University Alma Mater from Sons of Massachusetts to When Twilight Shadows Deepen.

The original proposal to change the Alma Mater was suggested at the last SWAP conference. It was felt by the SWAP delegates that When Twilight Shadows Deepen is a more appropriate song to represent the University. It is by far the more popular of the two songs.

Regardless of which one becomes our Alma Mater, we urge that every student learn the words and sing them on proper occasions. We feel that the University appears quite ludicrous when the band plays When Twilight Shadows Deepen at a football game and only a very few voices sing along.

The following is the text of When Twilight Shadows Deepen:

When twilight shadows deepen,
And the study hour draws nigh,
When shades of night are falling,
And the evening breezes sigh,
'Tis then we love to gather
'Neath the pale moon's silv'ry spell
And lift our hearts and voices
In the songs we love so well.
Song of old Massachusetts
Devoted sons and true;
Bay State, my Bay State,
We'll give our best to you.
Thee our Alma Mater,
We'll cherish for all time;
Should old acquaintance be forgot,
Massachusetts — yours and mine.

—F. D. Griggs '13

If any student feels strongly about the proposed change in Alma Maters, we suggest that he contact his Senator before tonight's meeting.

Preventive Medicine

Well, it's over. The quarantine is ended. The soldiers have started to come home. The front page stories all go to the Indian-Sino war. The Cuban crisis is forgotten.

BUT is it over? President Kennedy has pointed out that no permanent measures have been taken to prevent a reoccurrence of the military buildup that was the original cause of this crisis. As if to emphasize this statement, Castro has said that Cuba reserves the right to procure any weapon that it deems necessary for its security. We will do well to remember that Cuba, during the latter stages of the crisis, deemed it necessary to have several very offensive type bombers for its security. If bombers and missiles are necessary now, why not at some time in the future?

The point is plain. No inspection system has been activated. No specific preventive measures have been taken. What went before may all have been wasted. There is, therefore, only one guarantee that there will be no such recurrence. That is, that the people of the threatened, free nations of the world do not surrender their vigilance. We have shown once that we will not be intimidated. We must now show that we have the tenacity to maintain our watchfulness so that we will never again face those same threats. R.J.M.

Darkness Over The Land

We said it before and we may say it again. Why do the students of the University, a center of mental enlightenment, have to go about each night in darkness? At sometime in the dim past, and if we can go on present example it must have been very dim, the University spent a good deal of money for street lights. Why don't these ever get turned on?

Recently more money was spent to put up nice looking lamps in the parking lot behind the Student Union, yet, on Sunday night, when many parents and friends of the University were here with their student friends, these too were conspicuous by their lack of light. Why the darkness?

We have heard stories about the trip through the back, black alleys that lead from the libe to the girls' dorms after late libe. The casualties to date have been limited to wet feet, muddy shoes and lost courses, but when will they get worse? Does it take a broken leg or some such thing to bring light to the back paths of the University? Besides, if someone did get hurt in this lost path, we have been assured that the injured person could lie all night and not be found in the utter blackness. After a personal tour of the area, we believe it.

We are part of a great, and growing, institute. Why can't we have light to see where we are going? R.J.M.

The Crisis Of The United Nations And Its Causes

by SEVA SUD

The death of the Secretary-General on September 18, 1961, not only saddened the delegates who gathered for the annual meeting of the general assembly, but also let loose powerful contending forces from the Communists, neutrals, and Western Allies, each attempting to dominate the future course of the U.N. These cross-currents threatened to turn the session into a combination of circus and cold war. The Russians, who had begun an all out attack on the U.N. the year before, came to New York, again ready to push the assault. The vacancy in the Secretary-General's office gave them a wide opening for their anti-U.N. attack. An Indian visitor to New York said, "Dag Hammarskjold's death is a God given opportunity for the Russians to create more chaos in the U.N."

The neutrals, who now outnumber the west and the Communists in the General Assembly, have been pressing for a general reorganization of the Secretariat and the Security Council to give them influence proportionate to their numbers. Hammarskjold's passing will speed this movement.

The western allies are maneuvering to retain their influence in the U.N. and to preserve it as an effective, if limited, tool of diplomacy.

In this struggle the balance of power lies with the neutralists, since the west and the Communists line up on opposite sides in most important issues. If the unaligned nations are willing to resist Russian intimidation, the U.N. will continue to have some importance on the world scene. If they succumb to Communist pressure, it may remain in existence as a debating forum but it will have little effect on international politics.

As the battle began, the task of filling Hammarskjold's post was added to an agenda already loaded with highly charged issues; such as disarmament, colonialism, Communist China, and the Congo. These were set aside for the moment. Even before electing Mengi Slim, of Tunisia, president of the assembly, the delegates turned their attention to the question of a successor for the Secretary-General. Within one week of his death there appeared to be three courses of action.

IN MEMORIAM

A great lady has died. As we carry on our everyday lives without her we find that we miss and need her very much. We miss her rich sense of humor and her wonderful young spirit, a spirit so youthful that at sixty-seven she enjoyed trick-or-treating with girls in the dorm. And we need her concern and sympathy, so deep and genuine that she was always ready to listen to and understand any girl.

We are grateful that such a gentle woman touched our lives, that such a vital person cared enough to become a friend to all of us.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

I don't know whether my sense of hearing has sharpened within the last couple of weeks. However, there is one thing I definitely know and that is the noise emitted by the juke box has approached blare maximum. Not only that, the selections available are becoming less and less typical of songs, and are showing signs of reducing themselves to garbling nonsense expounded by thirteen-year-old boys trying to sound like thirty-year-old men and young girls imitating the last stages of strangulation. But, the thing that really tops it is the multitude of oohwees and ooaahs which are used as substitutes for civilized vocabulary.

I think it is about time that these atavistic tendencies are checked and an attempt to supply more bearable music is begun.

MAE

THE DARK AGES

To the Editor:

I was walking back to my dormitory last night and I tripped over a mound of dirt and fell into a mud puddle. I think that this University can afford to turn on the lights so that the women students will not have to run an obstacle course in the dark to return to their dormitories.

I am sure that the Dean of Women would not approve of unchaperoned women students walking across the unlit campus.

Dr. Lancaster To Speak At Meeting Of UM Engineering Staff Members

An outstanding authority on engineering education will speak at UMass tomorrow in the first of a series of programs on effective teaching for engineering staff members.

Dr. Otis E. Lancaster, George Westinghouse Professor of Engineering Education at the Pennsylvania State University, will be the featured speaker tomorrow at 11 a.m. in Room 132-134 of the Engineering building. President Lederle will open the meeting with a brief welcoming address.

Dr. Lancaster, active for many years in research and teaching of aeronautical engineering and in general engineering education, will speak on "Research in Engineering Education."

The UMass School of Engineering plans to hold general meetings on effective engineering education throughout the year, inviting well-known educators from outside the engineering school. Practical workshops will also be set up, giving individual participants a chance to practice various teaching techniques and study student learning processes.

Volunteer Work Here To Stay, Says Editor

Thanks to an abundance of leisure time and the conviction that at least part of it should be devoted to the common good, volunteer work in America is here to stay, says Mrs. Marion K. Sanders, associate editor of Harper's Magazine, New York City.

Mrs. Sanders was the lead-off speaker at a three-day conference on "The Volunteer in Today's Culture" at UMass recently. About 100 professional group workers and volunteers attended the meeting sponsored by Cooperative Extension and the Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

"We still go compulsively to endless rounds of meetings, join in innumerable drives and — at the first peal of the telephone— organize groups to demand a new traffic light or investigate a drainage problem in a suburban development," she says. "What is disturbing, however, is that this hyperactivity is largely confined to middle class people and on the lower economic levels there has been a steady erosion of the hope and faith in the future which stimulate voluntary, organized action."

Mrs. Sanders says that what passes for "civic activity" in the comfortable middle class world is becoming increasingly "privatized" — only members of the group itself benefit from its activities.

"If this trend continues, we are in danger of losing something important."

One of the dimensions that volunteer work needs, she says, is its becoming a means of breaking down the barriers between classes, of bridging the gap between slum and suburb, and between the educated and the ignorant.

"Volunteer work may offer one of the most promising answers to the great and growing problem of mass leisure, not only for the well-to-do, but workers and youth as well."

Harriers End Season 8-3; Finish Seventh In IC4A's

by JIM RYAN '65

Coach Bill Footrick's varsity cross country team completed their season last week by placing seventh in the IC4A Championships held at Van Cortland Park in New York City. The Redmen defeated 16 of the 23 teams entered in the meet, including such cross country powers as Manhattan, Penn State, Navy, Army, and Harvard.

Villanova University was the team winner with a total of 49 points, and also produced the individual winner, Vic Zwolak, who set a new record of 24:47.3 for the five mile course.

Junior Bob Brouillet climaxed a brilliant season, during which he lost only twice in dual meet competition, by placing 15th in this race. Senior co-captain Dave Balch ended his varsity career in cross country by placing 32nd. Jim Wrynn finished 44th, Ken O'Brien was 59th, and co-capt. Dick Blomstrom placed 90th to give UMass a total of 240 points. Other UMass finishers were Bob Pendleton and Bob Ramsay. A total of 158 runners finished the race.

The Redmen thus completed another excellent season during which they compiled an 8-3 record in dual and tri-meets, won the YanCon Championship for the third straight year, placed second in the New Englands, and finished seventh in the IC4A's. The three losses were to Harvard by one point, Army by three points, and Springfield by two points, while the wins were all by considerable margins.

Coach Footrick will have only one man back next fall from his top six runners. Leaving will be co-captains Dave Balch and Dick Blomstrom, Ken O'Brien, Jim Wrynn, and Bob Pendleton. These five men, along with Bob Brouillet, were the backbone of this season's squad and will be sorely missed next year. Junior Bob Brouillet will be back along with sophs Tom Panke, Bill Young, Bob Ramsay, and John Lavoie. In addition, Coach Footrick will have an excellent group of freshmen to strengthen his next cross-country team.

Basketball Rally Kicks Off Hoop Season Friday Night

by JIM TRELEASE '63

The first basketball rally in the University's history will open the 1962-63 hardcourt season Friday evening at 7:30 in the Student Union Ballroom.

Defending their first Yankee Conference championship, UMass cagers will be unveiled before an expected crowd of 2,000. Last season's New England Coach of the Year, Matt Zunic, will attend with his 13 man squad and address the student body. Also holding speaking roles will be his popular co-captains Pete Bernard and Rodger Twitchell.

Zunic, one of the East's most dramatic and colorful mentors, will discuss this year's prospects and speculate on the conference race. A hot YanCon feud is already boiling before the season's start. Rhode Island Coach Ernie Calverly's statement, "UMass shows me nothing this year," was met with sharp rebuttal from Zunic this week and Friday night's festivities are certain to keep the coals hot.

Following the rally, which will start with the usual parade down the hill and into the Ballroom, Taj and the Electras will provide the entertainment for the Rally Rock. The rally is free of charge and the dance 50 cents. Students are also reminded that BOTH functions will take place in the Ballroom and not outside as during football rallies.

Pistol Team Places In NE Match

The UMass varsity pistol team took second place in the collegiate division of the New England Air Force Gallery Championship matches held recently at Bedford, Mass.

Competition came from six teams from three schools. A four man team led by senior shooters Frank Fluet and Jim Vermicren posted a total of 1045 to put UMass in second place behind Coast Guard Academy. The UMass "B" team placed fifth in the meet.

Home and away matches are scheduled against MIT and Coast Guard Academy later this year. Also scheduled is a trip to West Point to participate in the National Rifle Association Intercollegiate sectional matches.

Speaking Of Sports

by BARRY BROOKS '63

The familiar shriek of "Be Reasonable—Do It My Way," can be heard echoing forth from within the walls of the dimly-lit Cage these days as Coach Matt Zunic prepares his basketball squad for the season's opener this Saturday night at 8:15.

Zunic, attired in the familiar red socks and red tie, should be true to form with a new repetoire of bench antics when his Redmen open the 1962-63 campaign against the Stonehill College cagers.

A lot calmer off the court, the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde New England Basketball Coach of the Year will naturally be aiming to retain the Yankee Conference Title. However, Connecticut, with returning starters Ed Slomcenski, Gerry Manning, Bob Haines and Capt. Andy Czuchry will again be the team to beat.

The "Torture Chamber"

After Saturday's tap-off against Stonehill, Coach Zunic will lead his roundball squad to familiar surroundings to meet the Boston University Terriers on December 4. In seven years at B.U., Zunic posted a 97-58 record. Rutgers travels in from New Brunswick, N.J. on Saturday, December 8. The Redmen then prepare for their first big game on the 12th against the UConn Huskies at the "Torture Chamber" at Storrs.

In The Garden

Providence College, Holy Cross, St. John's and Canisius as well as an invite to the Trenton Invitational Tournament and a return visit to Madison Square Garden will give the team some top-flight competition. Zunic hopes these major foes will give the team the experience it needs before he runs into the heart of the YanCon schedule in early February.

At this stage of the season, it appears the Redmen have excellent potential, but a lack of experience as well as a tougher schedule (the toughest in the school's history) will make it difficult for the team to surpass last year's record.

Double Dribbles

Matt Zunic has been New England Coach of the Year twice in the last four years, and president of the N.E. Basketball Coaches Association twice in five years . . . A good freshmen team will provide plenty of excitement for those who arrive at the Cage early (6:30) . . . Joe Paradise (he's the scoreboard operator) hasn't missed a home basketball, football or baseball game in twenty-five years.

formal learning.

"The emphases are unique—not memory alone, not formal assignments, but higher objectives in education: self-involvements, the cultivation and definition of one's own responses to issues, the refinement of one's values, and the willingness to realize individual growth through maturing intellectual awareness, analysis, formulation and articulation."

Students accepted into the Honors Program will study in groups of ten, aided by two professors especially chosen for their teaching and scholarly distinction. Both students and teachers will be distributed among all nine colleges of the University.

Meetings are scheduled once a week for two hours—usually in the late afternoon or early evening.

The following rewards are accorded Colloquia members: semester academic credit, stack passes to Goodell Library, use of HILC (Hampshire Inter-Library Center), an Honors Study Room in Goodell Library, printed calendar of coordinated events of the four valley colleges, and inter-Colloquia social meetings.

"This kind of educaton takes particular note," said Dr. Greenbaum, "of a student's total development—not only the mind, but also the person is the principal end of the educational process."

Whelchel And Pleau Top Redmen Scorers

by STEVE HEWEY '63

UMass football, 1962 version, has bid farewell to its followers on a rather perplexing note. Many fans wonder how Coach Vic Fusia's Redmen could upend the likes of Bucknell and Villanova and yet let the Yankee Conference crown slip through their fingers to the University of New Hampshire, 16-14, in the season's finale. But this is what makes football interesting: its frequent unpredictability.

For the Redmen this Fall's grid campaign was as interesting as it was unpredictable. Slated by most pre-season observers to have a rough time wading through a schedule featuring some of the East's stronger elevens, Coach Fusia and Co. surprised them all by ending the season with a 6-3 record.

Sophs Sparkle

It was said before the season started that if the sophomore-studded squad could quickly reach maturity and find a good quarterback to make them go, 1962 could be something more than a building year.

The sophs came through and came through well. In each game at least three were in the starting eleven, and when UMass traveled to Villanova to face the most rugged of this season's Redmen foes Coach Fusia had no less than ten sophomores on the field at one time.

The quarterback question? By the time the final gun had sounded to end the season opener with Maine it was known by all concerned that in Jerry Whelchel the Redmen had found the man they were looking for to call the plays.

To single out the oustanding sophomore performers is no easy task, but these boys deserve, some special mention: Dick Bourdelais and John Hudson, both ends; tackle Bob Burke, who led the Redmen in fumble recoveries with five; Pete Pietz, who started at guard all season long; and the backfield performers, Leo Biron, Dirk Lewis and Phil deRose.

When football season rolls around again at UMass next year, the absence of several star Redmen will be felt. Sam Lussier, Paul Majeski, Tom Kirby, John Kozaka, Ken Kezar, Loren Flagg, Art Perdigao, George Pleau and Matt Collins will have left the gridiron scene via graduation.

Lussier—3-Year Star

Sam Lussier will long be remembered at UMass. Running from the halfback slot for three seasons, Lussier was the first Redmen ball carrier to amass better than 1500 yards for a career total. 1962 was a banner year for Lussier. Against UConn he set a modern UM rush record for one game with 175 yards, only to better the mark the very next week at URI by piling up 176 yards. Despite a leg injury that put him on the shelf for several games this past season, he still led the team in rushing with 560 yards in 104 tries for an average of 5.4 per game. Sam also scored three TD's, led the team in pass receptions with 14 and pass interceptions with three.

Paul Majeski deserves special merit for his continuous fine play at end. There are many quarterbacks around that no doubt still remember his number 82 bearing down on them time after time. Speedy Loren Flagg had his day of glory at Bucknell. He scored all three UMass touchdowns, one on a 90-yard kickoff return and the other two on passes from Whelchel, all good enough to get him an ECAC berth for the week. Another ECAC nominee, Ken Kezer, closed out his last season in a Redmen jersey as runner up in the rushing department with 215 yards on 38 attempts—a 5.6 yard average.

Whelchel Leads Scorers

Jerry Whelchel led all Redmen scorers with 36 points on six touchdowns. George "The Toe" Pleau placed second in this department with 25 points on conversions (16 for 22) and field goals. Sophomore Leo Biron was third with three touchdowns and a two-point conversion for 20 points.

Whelchel, whose fine first year showing could get him All Yan-Con billing at quarterback, took to the air 90 times this season completing exactly half. His tosses went for a total on 751 yards and accounted for 4 touchdowns.

Engineering Honor Society Holds Initiation Of Thirteen New Members

The fall initiation of the Massachusetts Zeta Chapter of Tau Beta Pi was held Tuesday, November 13 in secret ceremonies in the Engineering Building. Six juniors and seven seniors were welcomed into the national engineering honor society.

Juniors elected are David C. Foster, Leon W. Heselton, Ivan G. Most, Bruce K. Norlund, Robert M. Wade, and Reynold W. Wells.

New senior members include Jack J. Derletian, Russell F. Feener, Francis A. Fluet, Martin T. French, John Niejadlik, Jr., David J. Robave, and William T. Ziemba, Jr.

The candidates, chosen by secret ballot, were selected from the top one-eighth of the junior and the top one-fifth of the senior classes in engineering.

Although excellence in scholarship was required, such qualities as exemplary character, breadth of interest—both inside and outside of engineering—adaptability, and unselfish activity were emphasized.

Climaxing the initiation ceremonies was a stag banquet, which was attended by the entire student membership, now totaling 38, honoring the new members. Many faculty members were also present at the affair which was held at the Williams House in Williamsburg.

The evening was highlighted by the presentation of an award to Robert M. Wade for the winning pledge essay, and a presentation by guest speaker William F. Field, Dean of Students, on the subject "The Student and the Master Plan."

Alma Mater Change Approved By Senate

by CONNIE AVALLONE '64

"When Twilight Shadows Deepen" was officially made the University Alma Mater at Wednesday night's Senate meeting.

The familiar campus melody, written in 1913 by F. D. Griggs, was unanimously approved by the senators to replace "Sons of Massachusetts" as UMass' Alma Mater.

According to Senator Betsy Robicheau, "Sons of Massachusetts" was never officially the Alma Mater, and "When Twilight Shadows Deepen" was chosen because over the years it has become familiar to students.

Senate President Don Cournoyer ('63 Fraternities) conducted the first half of the meeting under what he wrongly believed to be a quorum.

A delay occurred before the meeting could be recalled after a brief recess while the senators waited for the arrival of the members needed to constitute a quorum. President Cournoyer delivered a short statement, approved unanimously by the senators, that the proceedings of the meeting prior to the recess were legal.

Senator Cournoyer said he "had hoped this type of thing (unexcused absences) would not happen this year."

It was entered into the minutes that the President reprimanded Senator Paul Donahue ('65 At-Large), for two absences.

Any senator who does not attend meetings is "not doing his duty or representing his constituents", he said.

It was announced that Ross Jones ('65 Brett) was appointed chairman of the Budget's Committee, and a special election would be held soon to elect a replacement for Richard Buck who resigned as married dorms senator before vacation.

Pan-Hel Has New Rules For Rushing

The Panhellenic Council has announced several motions recently passed in regard to this year's formal rushing.

On November 26 it was moved and passed that:

(1) Any girl who has completed at least one full semester at UMass must have obtained a 2.0 cumulative average and a 2.0 semester average the previous semester in order to be pledged.

(2) There shall be no eligibility requirements for first semester freshmen and first semester transfer students for 1962 formal rush.

(3) Any girl who is rushing and who has completed at least one full semester at UMass is urged to go to theme party and closed dessert and required to preferential bid in order to be pledged.

Changes in schedule have been made.

Closed date: December 2—Sigma Delta Tau
December 3—Sigma Sigma Sigma

Theme Party: November 30—Sigma Sigma Sigma
December 1—Lambda Delta Phi

Iota Gamma Upsilon is hostessing all their parties at Memorial Hall and Sigma Sigma Sigma is holding all rushing events at Theta Chi fraternity.

Council officials urge all women to contact the Panhellenic representatives for further information in regard to the 1962 formal rush.

COUNSELING DAY

Tuesday, December 4th, has been set aside as Counseling Day. No Holiday, this day is specifically designed to allow adviser and student adequate time for consultation and preregistration for the next semester. Thought and care on this date promote an effortless and speedy registration in January.

Many schools and departments are making special arrangements. Students are advised to check departmental bulletin boards for particulars prior to that date.

Baritone Wolfram To Perform

Renowed baritone Karl Wolfram will be heard Sunday at UMass in a concert of German songs of the past six centuries.

The singer's performance, sponsored jointly by the department of music and the department of German and Russian at the University, is scheduled for Sunday at 8:15 p.m. in the School of Education Auditorium.

Mr. Wolfram, whose repertoire ranges from works of the 15th century to the present, accompanies himself on a 16th century ivory lute and on the theorbo, a seldom seen lute-like instrument.

For his concert, Mr. Wolfram will present a chronological selection of serious and humorous songs.

Buffy St. Marie In Abbey Benefit Tuesday At 8 p.m.

Beverly (Buffy) Sainte-Marie, graduated from UMass last June, will return to campus this week to perform in concert Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium.

A benefit performance for the Abbey, sponsored by the Pioneer Valley Folklore Society, the program will be open to the public with an admission charge.

Miss Sainte-Marie is well versed in the folk idiom and while at the University she often sang in student concerts and at the Saladin Coffee House. She is currently appearing at coffee houses and night clubs in New York.

Adelphian Alumni Sponsor Special Seminar Saturday

WILLIAM BIRENBAUM

UMass student leaders will join with faculty, administration, and alumni tomorrow in a special seminar to examine the problem of maintaining high academic tone at an expanding university.

Sponsored by the alumni chapter of Adelphia, the seminar will bring outstanding educators to the campus to explore the problem, "How to Improve the Academic Atmosphere in an Expanding University." The seminar will begin at 9 a.m. in the S.U. ballroom.

Keynote speaker will be Dean William Birenbaum of the New School for Social Research in New York City. He will speak on "Forms and Content in the American University."

Four panelists have been drawn from different segments of the academic world. Mr. John W. Haigis, a member of the University Board of Trustees and President of the Haigis Broadcasting Corp. in Greenfield, will discuss "Localism versus Universalism in a University." Dr. Edward C. Moore, Dean of the University's Graduate School, will talk on "Studying the Past versus Studying the Future." Mr. Francis C. Pray, vice-president for operations and administration, Council for Financial Aid to Education, Inc., will discuss "Student as Pupil versus Student as Scholar." Dr. David C. Knapp, currently Ballard Forest Research Fellow at Harvard University, will speak on "Teacher as Teacher versus Teacher as Scholar."

General chairman of the seminar, a Centennial event, is Maxwell H. Goldberg, executive director of the University Centennial, who will return to the University for the event from his new post at the Pennsylvania State University.

The day-long seminar will open with remarks by Dr. John W. Lederle, President of the Uni-

Summer School Shortened To One Session This Year

by AUDREY RAYNER '63

Dr. William Venman, Director of Summer School, has announced that there will be only one session of classes next summer.

The reason for this change of UMass academic schedule is that the American Institute of Biological Sciences will hold a convention of five thousand persons on campus starting August 24.

Reducing the usual ten-week period for summer school, Venman said, eliminates the time necessary for two five-week terms. Consequently, he went on, there will be one session, with some courses being held for eight weeks and others for six.

Engineering courses will not be affected by the convention, which, according to Venman, was planned seven years ago, before the University was offering two summer sessions.

Although many possible solutions to the problem were discussed, Venman stated, the six- and eight-week courses provided the most logical answer.

Summer school will begin on June 24 (the earliest date possible for faculty) with eight-week courses ending August 16 and six-week courses stopping on August 2.

Students will be allowed to take either eight-week courses, six-week courses, or a combination of the two. Those who enroll only for the shorter session will be limited to six credit-hours. Students in the longer term may take eight or nine credit-hours.

Underclassmen who sign up for required physical education are allowed one credit-hour more than the requirement, Venman stipulated.

The Director stressed that seniors who need credits to graduate will be given every assistance, and will be allowed to take "an excess of courses" in order to receive their diplomas.

Sequences of several courses will be offered; students may take these sequences at the same time, with the exceptions of elementary German and Russian courses.

The same courses held last summer will be offered again this year, Venman said. The Director is hoping to have a flyer published on summer school information sometime this December. The regular catalogue will be ready by February, he said. Until the information is published, students who want answers about summer school should see Dr. Venman concerning courses, times, and enrollment.

Dr. Venman emphasized the fact that the situation is highly unusual, and will probably not occur again.

Concert Band Performance Sun. At 4 p.m.

Prof. Joseph Contino and solo clarinetist Allen Blustine check score of selections for Sunday's concert by the UMass Concert Band at 4 p.m. in Bowker Aud.

History Club To Sponsor Discussion

A panel discussion on the 1962 Ecumenical Council will highlight the meeting of the History Club which will be held on December 2 at 8 p.m. in the S.U. Council Chambers.

Members of the panel will include Dr. Schafer Williams, Dr. Vincent Ilardi, and Dr. Louis Greenbaum while Dr. Franklin Wickwire will serve as moderator.

As the opening speaker, Dr. Williams will define a council and speak on its importance and relationship to the Church in Medieval times.

Renaissance and Reformation positions of the council and the successes and failures of the Council of Trent will be discussed by Dr. Ilardi while Dr. Greenbaum will talk on the council and the Church in the Enlightenment.

The successes and failures of the first Vatican council and the need for a second council will be Dr. William's topic.

A question and answer will follow the discussion and refreshments will also be served.

A business meeting at 7:30 p.m. will precede the panel discussion.

"WHAT PRICE GLORY"

We have recently discovered, to our great dismay, that there will be only one summer session this year instead of the usual two. The reason for this unexpected change is that about 5,000 delegates to a scientific convention will be on campus and will be using the University's facilities.

What will happen to seniors who need courses in both semesters of summer session to graduate? What will happen to those students who are trying to finish their education in three years by attending two summer school sessions? What will happen to the many Massachusetts residents who are not regular University students but who take courses at the University in the summer?

The Provost's office and other members of the administration are attempting to cope with these questions. Some courses in summer session will be extended to eight weeks; th others will be for six; some students will undoubtedly attend summer schools at other Universities. But these makeshifts in no way excuse the inconvenience or hardship that will be caused to many citizens of the Commonwealth.

We would like to know why the student body has not been informed of the change before this time. Certainly there will be a good deal of advantagous publicity given to the University because of this convention, but "what price glory?".

This convention had been planned a great deal in advance. Why wasn't it made quite clear to the students that there would be only one summer session this year? When asking this question we assume that the administration was aware that we would have a major convention on campus this summer.

We would also like to ask why those in charge of the summer school did not take the convention into consideration when inaugurating the double session of summer school in 1958? According to an officer in the Provost's office, it was decided seven years ago to have the convention at the University of Massachusetts.

We hope that a minimum of students, especially seniors, will be seriously affected by the single summer session. We can only remind the powers that be that when planning future conventions either during summer session or during the regular year, it be kept in mind that the University of Massachusetts is a public institution dedicated to "higher education, more widely disseminated."

"A POOR SHOW"

It would seem that some of our Student Senators have fallen victim to spring fever at this early date. The absenteeism that plagued the Senate in the latter part of last year has already reappeared. Wednesday night proceedings were held up for over 40 minutes pending the arrival of sufficient Senators to make up a quorum. It was, as President Cournoyer said, a "poor show."

We feel that it is a grave evasion of responsibility for any senator to absent himself without good reason. There are, at the present time, senators who have used two of the three unexcused absences allowed by the constitution. Three unexcused absences are given. The rules for excuses are liberal even to the point of being "soft". However, it is not the number of meetings missed that we are concerned with; rather it is the fact that these senators are not doing their duty. We ask the constituencies of all senators to take note of their representative's absenteeism, if any, and to take any action necessary to assure that they will have a voice in the senate. An absent senator is no senator.

Finally, we would remind all senators of President Cournoyer's promise upon his election: "The Senate will roll, or heads will roll."

Mortar Board Comments

Editor's note: The opinions expressed in this column are those of the Mortar Board, and do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the Collegian.

A perennial problem for the women students living in the dormitories is that of utilization of the kitchenettes in their respective dorms. Many students feel that the present rule as stated in the handbook should be modified to allow full usage of these facilities. The rule states, "Kitchenettes shall be open from 9 p.m. to the next morning unless the privilege is abused."

In a recent interview with Miss Curtis, Dean of Women, the administration's policy and reason for this rule were outlined.

When the dormitories were planned, she said, it was found too expensive to allow each dorm its own dining area. This would have been the ideal situation but the money was not available.

Kitchenettes were put in for dorm social activities, such as teas, coffee hours and dorm parties. They were not equipped to handle full meals for various numbers of students.

Kitchenettes are especially lacking in garbage disposal and food storage facilities, presenting a public health nuisance when many are using it to prepare meals, Miss Curtis said.

Suitable storage space in the rooms is not available and unless food is stored in tight containers, it will attract pests and insects.

Hot plates and coils are not allowed as supplements of kitchenette facilities because of the obvious fire hazard, she said.

The only place in the dorms where a full meal can be prepared is in the Head of Residence's apartment.

Miss Curtis pointed out that the plans for the new dorms being built in the east area of campus call for a separate dining area for those dorms, fully equipped with a snack bar and recreation facilities.

Three major arguments for full use of the kitchenettes have been mentioned by University women interviewed:

1. Light meals are often desired, especially when studying and pressed for time.
2. Many girls cannot afford to eat three full meals out and supplement their diet with canned food brought from home.
3. During inclement weather or on weekends, girls do not like to go out for a meal when they can provide for themselves in the dorm. Also, when a girl is not feeling well, she usually just goes without food or gets candy from the machines instead of going out.

Miss Curtis answered these three points. She said that sandwich machines were put into most of the dorms to enable the girls to obtain a light meal, and any girl who is in college should have prepared herself for expenses of meals before she came. A budget is a good thing to have in regard to expenses, she said. Any girl desperately short of money should apply for a loan at the Scholarship and Loan office or come and speak to the Dean personally.

It is regrettable, she said, that there is no closer place to obtain meals; the administration is sympathetic but the situation cannot be changed.

Some of the women's dorms do have larger stoves and refrigerators with garbage pails and more complete facilities for preparing food than others. Mortar Board would like to suggest a policy of independent control of kitchenettes for each respective dorm. If the dorm does not have the facilities it obviously cannot allow open kitchenettes. However, those dorms that feel they can handle the problems should be allowed to try. Our reasons for suggesting this policy are as follows:

1. Some facilities are being wasted and could adequately handle light meals.
2. Any woman student in this school should be up-to-date on her nutritional needs and be able to prepare a well-balanced meal.
3. Any woman student in college should also be able to shoulder the responsibility of keeping the kitchenette clean and free from pest-attracting refuse.

We are not suggesting open kitchenettes for four course meals, only for light meals, with supervision by some responsible person, counselor or otherwise, and strict rules as to upkeep.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

EVERY LITTER BIT ...

To the Editor:

Are you a University of Massachusetts litterbug? If so, don't feel bad or guilty about it. Are we to carry our Hatch "take out" order refuse around in our pockets or pocketbooks? I believe that our campus has the proud distinction of being the only campus in the Yankee Conference that has won the title of the "Wasteland." We have two alternatives . . . . we can ask the maintenance department to place some well anchored litter containers around the campus . . . . or . . . . we can hope for frequent and long lasting snowstorms.

Anaximines

WHO IS GUILTY?

To the Editor:

As you have probably heard, as a result of the hearing held by the Board of Selectmen on the liquor violation our license for the sale of alcoholic beverages has been suspended from Nov. 26 to Dec. 3.

A poll taken among a dozen or so Amherst people by the Journal-Record indicated that people are against reducing the drinking age limit. I wonder how many fathers and mothers know that under the law they are just as guilty as we are when they serve their own "under 21" children wine at a wedding or a bottle of beer after work.

Some kinds of alcoholic beverages are enjoyed by the majority of people these days; it's an accepted way of life. Good parents should teach their children how to drink in moderation at home, before they go away to school.

We at The Village Inn will try to operate under the law serving those "over 21" good food and drink in a clean, friendly, happy atmosphere.

The Village Inn

CONVENTIONS VS. EDUCATION

As many students probably do not know, there will only be one session of Summer School this year. Due to a National Biological Conference, many students will have interrupted plans, maybe not being able to graduate with their class, or to fulfill a planned accelerated program in undergraduate work in hope of getting an earlier start on graduate work. Many school teachers who have only the summer to do graduate work will have to go somewhere else for half the summer.

Summer School is a major factor in many students' educational plans, but now those plans are being interrupted by a group of non-concerned frog-dissecting biologists. What do they or the administration care if a person may have to spend an extra semester here to fulfill his or her educational goals? Also, if you do attend only one session this year, what are you going to do for the rest of the summer? It's hard to get a job for half a summer or to arrange a program that doesn't conflict involving two different Summer Schools.

The whole idea boils down to: What is the University of Massachusetts for? Is it a convention center or an education center? It's sometimes hard to find out when you count the number of symposiums, conferences, councils, synods, and colloquia that meet here during the year.

I feel the administration should have considered the student body when deciding on a question of this nature. I admit UMass will make the headlines next summer with this conference, but how about the students that will have to turn down a job because they must return next fall to complete their requirements?

Chicago is called "Convention City." Maybe we should call Amherst "Convention Town."

Polymer Institute Holds Advisory Board Meeting

The Advisory Board of the Polymer Research Institute at UMass is meeting today at the University to review the Institute's research program and discuss general policies.

Established early this year, the Polymer Research Institute is devoted to advanced studies in the field of plastics.

The Institute is directed by Dr. Richard S. Stein, Commonwealth Professor of Chemistry at the University, and is staffed by an international team of scientists.

Dr. Stein, a leading authority on plastics, will open today's advisory board meeting.

Following talks by Mr. John Haigis of the University's Board of Trustees and Dean Edward Moore of the U. of M. graduate school, P.R.I. staff members will report on current research.

Dr. L. R. Moody of the General Electric Co. in Pittsfield will speak on "An Industrial View of Sponsored University Research."

The meeting will conclude with an open discussion of programs and financial policies.

Speech Department Member Has Contribution Published

Dr. Orville K. Larson, associate professor in the Speech Department at UMass and a frequent contributor to theatrical journals, is currently represented in the October and November issues of Players Magazine. Prof. Larson has produced a translation, with commentary, of Nicola Sabbattini's descriptions of stage machinery from Pratica di fabricar scene e machine ne'teatri which was published in Ravenna in 1683.

Sabbattini's Pratica, which is devoted to the planning and building of 16th and 17th century Italian court theatres, its scenery and stage machinery, is generally regarded as the first comprehensive technical manual in the literature of the theatre.

Prof. Larson has translated and interpolated Sabbattini's instructions for creating stage machinery into clear and concise explanations of how the machines worked.

Prof. Larson is a specialist in the history of theatrical machinery, especially of the Renaissance and Baroque periods. Many of the Sabbattini drawings accompanying his explanations are included in Prof Larson's translation and commentary.

UM Hosts Centennial Convention

More than 100 speech teachers from universities, colleges, elementary and secondary schools attended the 22nd annual convention of the New England Speech Association recently at UMass.

Planned as part of the University's Centennial year program, the convention included a debate, speech therapy demonstrations, and discussions. The program was under the direction of Dr. Inez E. Hegarty, associate professor of speech at the University and President of the New England Speech Association. Dr. I. Moyer Hunsberger, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, greeted the convention delegates on behalf of the University.

Friday's program will conclude with general sessions, or high school speech festivals and on research in speech.

Saturday's schedule includes "cracker barrel workshops" in broadcasting, forensics, oral interpretation, speech and hearing and fundamentals of speech.

AROUND THE COLLEGE CAMPI

by J. D., Exchange Editor

It is no mere co-incidence that the exchange editor and the feature editor are the same person, and that the first of the Collegian's new feature columns is an exchange column.

Does the name of this column puzzle you? Well, . . . one alumnus, two or more alumni, . . . therefore, one campus, two or more campi—okay?

The format is simple: the name of the school is given in boldface type, and the current news from that campus follows. Let's go first to:

RENSSELEAR POLYTECHNIC INSTITUTION—On the R.P.I. campus, students noticed a poster tacked to a tree announcing that a Valentine's Day party would be held on 27 October at the Zeta Beta Tau fraternity house. It read, "We are accelerating our social program due to the current world situation."

* * *

BOSTON UNIVERSITY—One Sunday morning, the boys at Beta house awoke to find their front door missing, and the house decorated with blue and pink toilet paper. When interviewed, the house president admitted that he suspected the co-eds in the Freshman Women's Dorm across the street. Several weeks before, the door had also vanished, but reappeared the following night. The president's only comment about the incident was that he hoped to have the door back before winter set in.

* * *

TUFTS UNIVERSITY—The boys of the Tufts Student Council have advised the girls of the Jackson Student Council to try to do something about the problem of telephone tie-ups in the girls' dormitories. Tilton Hall, with "the most primitive facilities," has three phone lines for 144 girls. The average is one incoming phone for each thirty-five girls.

Incidentally, here at UMass a dorm such as Arnold, with nearly 250 girls, has only three phones; that comes to about one per eighty-three girls. Some people don't know when they have it good!

TRINITY COLLEGE—In a 78-page document sponsored by the student senate, students attacked the college left and right. Professors were criticized for being too easy-going and ineffectual. The department of fine arts was accused of being concerned with "education of the student for polite conversation." In addition, students admitted that the school's honor system was openly flouted, and that most men leave Trinity "with less religious reverence than was theirs upon entrance."

* * *

That's all for today; watch the Collegian for more news from "Around the College Campi." Next time we'll hear about turtle racing at Texas Christian, a greased pig race at M.I.T. fallout shelters at Carleton College.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: ALAN DANN

"My machine wants to talk to yours" is a familiar line to Alan Dann (A.B., 1955). Alan is a Staff Assistant for Data Communications Sales in Southern New England Telephone Company's New Haven Office.

Alan came to his new promotion well prepared. He began his three years with the company as a Commercial Representative recommending communications services to businesses. Later, he handled an assignment that taught him what he needed to know about computers. This led to his most recent promotion.

Alan Dann and other young men like him in Bell Telephone Companies throughout the country help bring the finest communications service in the world to the homes and businesses of a growing America.

SORORITY NEWS

CHI OMEGA

The Chi Omega sisters are certainly excited and proud to find the U.N. Carnival trophy beaming from their mantlepiece. It represents the winning contribution to the U.N.E.S.C.O. Fund earned from their booth, "Mash a Seniorita." Special thanks go to the Phi Sigs who prepared the scene of slaughter. (The sisters are still washing potato out of their hair, however.)

With Phi Sig, Beta Phi, SAE and Theta Chi, the Chi O's have shared exchange dinners during this fall. The sisters sincerely enjoyed themselves on all these occasions and hope for many more such "fun times."

The six o'clock alarm has begun its job at Chi Omega by raising several elementary and secondary education majors from their beds each morning and sending them to several neighboring towns where they are practice teaching. Each evening they return exhausted, but enthusiastically relating the exciting incidents of the day. Earlier in the fall, in preparation for their teaching, the education majors put on a special supper for the sisters. It was "Chi O's First Grade" with lollipops, balloons, bibs and candy striped cups.

This ingenuity set the pace for more suppers to be put on and the next to follow was a "Chi O Victory Banquet" in honor of the rugged Chi O's grid work against the S.D.T's. A training table with the players in full form, as well as megaphones and pennants decorated the dining room.

In spite of the despair that UMass felt after having the beanpot snatched from us on Nov. 17, the Chi's made a successful attempt at good sportsmanship by entertaining a singing houseful of Chi O's from U.N.H. and their guests. The Mu Alphas enjoyed coffee and donuts served by Mrs. Young and we all exchanged many songs and ideas.

Now that we have all returned from a wonderful but short Thanksgiving at home, the sisters have been looking back on their first thanksgiving dinner this year with a turkey and all the trimmings at the House, where they were very surprised to find two Scotchmen donned in kilts as guests. Thomas McGuffog who has his masters in economics, and Iain Anderson who has his doctorate in microbiology are both from areas near Glasgow, Scotland. They were very Scotch, indeed, as we gathered from their speech and their lively Scotish dance lesson given to the sisters in the living room following dinner. It was wonderful to share such a warm evening in our home with those so far from home.

LAMBDA DELTA PHI

Lambda Phi initiated three new sisters before vacation. They are Dottie Johnson, Candy Smith, and Beverly Trull; all of the class of '65.

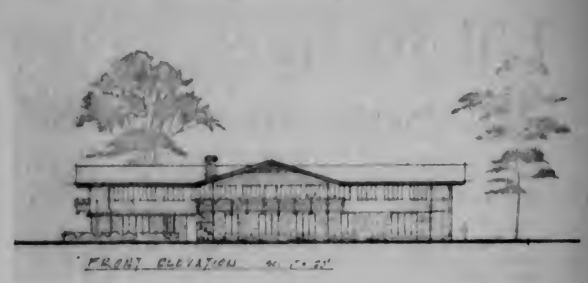
We are proud to present Janet Wood '65 as a candidate for Winter Carnival Queen.

Kappa Sigma Welcomes 14 New Pledges

Kappa Sigma is very proud to welcome its new pledges. They are: Warren Bacon, Wakefield; Bill Cleary, Worcester; Dennis Della Piana, Malden; Bob Ellis, Beverly; Walt Gustavsen, Danvers; Peter Hurd, Natick; David Kelley, Hamilton, N.Y.; Wayne Morgan, Natick; Milt Morin, Leominster; Hank Murray, Somerville; Bob Pantanella, Waltham; Ernie Ross, Scituate; Walter Ross, Somerville; Walt Rozanski, Worcester.

They were pledged at Pledge Chapel on Monday, November 19th. All fourteen pledges were guests of the brothers to a Banquet at the house.

The brothers of Kappa Sigma would like to thank the sisters of Kappa Alpha Theta for the very successful and enjoyable Pizza Party held Friday, November 16th.



Architect Completes Plan For New Alpha Chi House

This spacious contemporary structure, to be located on Nutting Avenue, will be the new home of the Alpha Chis come next September, when the two story building will house 40 to 50 girls. However, there are accommodations for 72, allowing the house to expand with campus growth.

The terraces, outdoor fireplace, and two sun balconies promise to be a source of pleasure during the warm months, while the interior will provide ample room for studying and socializing all year.

The large living room has a fireplace and music alcove. A television lounge, library, and recreation area have also been provided.

The sleeping quarters on the second floor are of two types—ten large rooms sleeping four apiece and a "harem" which accommodates 32. There will be eight study-dressing rooms for those who sleep in the "harem". Also, on the upper level are a lounge, snack room and 2 cedar closets for storage of formals.

Playboy Magazine Views Fashions For College Men

This fall, styles in campus wear have been subtly subdued by the dominance of the classic Ivy silhouette from Maine to California.

Style-conscious collegians would be well advised to brief themselves on a few of the Ivy-inspired trends which promise to make a splash on a nationwide scale. Along with ubiquitous olive, navy blue will be setting the understated color tone in suits and slacks, headgear and outerwear, with low-key grays and browns in their accustomed complementary roles, plus a bright accent of tans and whites for warmer climes. Disporting itself in all these shades, the resurgent three-piece suit, a fixture of the Thirties, has quickly become an impeccably correct campus uniform — with jacket, trousers and matching vest available in winter — and summer-weight solids, stripes, muted plaids and midget herringbones.

From a strictly material viewpoint, alpaca, cheviots and Shetlands will be coming on strong north of the Mason-Dixon in sweaters and outdoor-coat linings. In suits, slack and sports-coat fabrics, worsteds, flannel, wool blends, even cashmere and mohair.

Topping off the campus wardrobe in every college quarter—for the man with a head for hatwear—will be a nationwide line of smart university hats with welt edge, center crease, narrow brim and tapered crown in rich brown or olive felt; a heady assortment of tweeds, corduroys and tyrolean velours for jauntier predilections; and a shape-holding, collapsible rain hat storable in the coat pocket.

L'il Redmen Engage Stonehill In Season's First Encounter

by NEIL BAKER '66

The UMass Freshman basketball team opens its season this Saturday night at 6:15 p.m. when they meet the Stonehill Frosh at Curry Hicks.

13-1 Last Year

Coach Jack Leaman, in his second year as freshman coach, predicts another successful season for the Little Redmen. Last year, the squad finished with a 13-1 record, losing only to the Holy Cross frosh, a perennial New England hoop power. Their victories included double dominations over the UConn frosh, American International, and Holyoke Junior College. The hoopers also scored an impressive victory over Western Mass. Bus Lines, one of the top amateur teams in New England.

The Little Redmen have a 17-game schedule that includes a trip to the West Point Freshman Tourney in which UMass has competed twice previously. The tourney is a four team battle, with St. John's (NY), West Point, and Manlius Prep filling out the series opposition. New games scheduled for this season include a home and home series with the Rhody frosh and Westover Air Force Base.

Coach Leaman has announced a probable starting lineup of Tim Edwards, 6-4, and Ira "Ronnie" Gamble, 6-6, at the forwards, Jeff Boyle, 6-6, at center, and Jack Forst 6-4, and Craig Farnsworth, 6-0, in the backcourt.

The remainder of the roster shows Ed Driscoll (6-2, 180, Whitinsville), Harold Dupee (6-4, 185, Cambridge. Harold was a member of the 1961-62 state basketball champions, Rindge Tech), Mike Emerson (6-4, 200, Leicester), Paul Gullicksen (6-4, 170, Quincy), John Hall (6-2, 165, Mattapoisett), Bob Higginbothem (6-3, 187, Attleboro), John Hill (6-0, 170, Woburn), Bob McNeil (6-0, 145, Leicester), Ronald Merrill (6-0, 158, Ridgewood, N.J.), Bill Nolan (6-0, 173, Quincy), and Ken Rowe (6-0, 165, Milton).

The team plays a total of nine home games. For any team to do well, it must have support. This is a good team, maybe the best frosh team in UMass history. Come to the game Saturday and give the team the support it deserves.

Intramural Basketball

Dorm rosters are due Monday, December 3, by 5:00 p.m. and independent team rosters are due by Dec. 18, at Mr. Cobb's office in the Cage.

Dorm games will start the week of Dec. 10 and IFC games will start Tuesday, December 4.

Southern Conn. First UM Gymnast Foe Of Season

The 1962-63 University of Massachusetts Gymnastic Team will open its season with a home meet against Southern Connecticut State College on Saturday, December 1 at 2:00 p.m. in Curry Hicks Gymnasium.

The team will be led by Co-captains David Yates '63 and Bruce McCracken '63, and will rely heavily on the services of veterans Tom Astaldi '64, Felix Mosakewicz '64, and Eddie Frado '64.

Southern Connecticut should field one of its strongest teams ever, and the meet promises to be a closely fought affair right through the last event. They are led by Dan Sternback and Greg Speck, both of whom have had extensive A.A.U. and Y.M.C.A. competition. Sternback is the present New England champion on the rings.

Coach Erik Kjeldsen, starting his first season as UMass gymnastic mentor, feels he has three key performers who will probably determine the success of the team this winter.

Dave Yates, Bruce McCracken and sophomore Dave Williams are the three men Kjeldsen is counting on to produce the majority of Redmen points.

Yates, a three year veteran of the team will compete on the high bar, floor exercise and the long horse. Co-captain McCracken will compete on the side horse, parallel bars and the high bar. Sophomore David Williams, the only other three event man for the UMass gymnasts, will be competing on the side horse, parallel bars and rings.

Other Redmen gymnasts likely to see action on Saturday are: Junior Frank Dogil and Sophomores Stanley Brallier, Joseph Parner and David Feindel.

Call For Indoor Track Candidates

by JIM RYAN '65

There will be an important organizational meeting on Monday, Dec. 3, at 5:00 p.m. in Room 10 of the Cage for all persons interested in participating in indoor track this winter. This will be the only meeting held this winter before the indoor track season starts in January.

The indoor track team will be led by senior co-captains Dick Ward, high jump and weight man, and Ken O'Brien, middle distance runner.

Other returning veterans will be Dave Balch, Bob Brouillet, Jim Wrynn, Dick Blomstrom, Tom Panke, and Bill Young in the mile and two-mile runs. In the 600 and 1000 yard events Ken O'Brien and Bob Pendleton are both standouts. In the dashes Loren Flagg and Craig Erickson will be back from last year's squad. Running the hurdles will be Art Resendes, Don Klein, George Lake, and John Harrington.

Coach Bill Footrick will have an exceptionally strong team this year in both the middle and long-distance runs, and in the weight events. He has four excellent weightmen in Dick Ward, George Giddings, "Gus" Anagostopolus, and Al Richardson.

Redmen Vs. Rockpilers In Saturday's Season Opener

by STEVE HEWEY '63

Just when New England weather gets cold enough to make it kind of uncomfortable for the average sports fan to sit outdoors each Saturday afternoon along comes the basketball season giving our sports fan a chance to move inside where it's warm and witness one of America's fastest growing spectator sports. Here at UMass the picture is no different.

Even before the Redmen football season was half over, UMass hoop coach Matt Zunic had his varsity squad hard at work. And tomorrow night, sports fans will have a chance to be on hand when Zunic unveils the 1962-1963 version of the UM hoopsters, sending them against Stonehill College of North Easton, Mass.

Zunic, formerly head coach at Boston University and now in his fourth year at the same task here at UM (45W-29L), finds himself with a headache even before the season actually begins. The reason: he is coaching the defending Yankee Conference basketball champions and the champs are always the ones the opposition guns for. Whether this will help or hinder Redmen chances of grabbing another YanCon title and improving upon last year's 15-9 record remains to be seen.

The Rockpilers

As for tomorrow's opposition, papers in the area around Stonehill College point to UMass as the most challenging foe on the schedule and perhaps in Stonehill history. While the same could hardly be said about Stonehill from the UMass standpoint, here is a chance for the Redmen to show Zunic and the fans what they can and can't do before the schedule gets rough.

Stonehill College, known to its followers as the Chieftains or the Rockpilers, finished out last season with a respectable 17-10 account. It is a member of the Southern New England Conference, one of the strongest small college leagues of its kind in the East. Chieftain head coach is Fran O'Brien, onetime captain of the Tufts University five.

UMass finds itself starting the current campaign without a senior on the squad. Forward Rodger Twitchell (6'6) and backcourt ace Pete Bernard (5'8) are the only two returning lettermen and they are both juniors. This year's squad also carries three other juniors; Eliot Gventer (6'5), Mike Johnson (6'7), and Dan Laakso (6'4).

Twitchell and Bernard

Zunic will build his team around Twitchell and Bernard. In 24 contests last season Twitchell averaged an even 17 points as a soph. He was also named to the '61-'62 All-Conference first team. Pete Bernard ended up the season last year with a 12.5 clip. Zunic seems pleased with the way his first year men, up from last year's 13-1 Frosh team, are coming along.

Clarence Hill (6'1) from Washington, D.C., high scorer for Jack Leaman's Little Redmen last season, appears to have recovered well enough from a head injury suffered in an early practice session to come a long way in recent workouts. He will probably get the starting nod at guard along with Bernard for tomorrow's opener.

Charlie O'Rourke (6'7) is another Soph that Zunic pointed to as having progressed very well and he also may draw starting duty vs. Stonehill. Another boy to watch is Soph forward Jack Reynolds (6'4) from Canton, Mass.

Kingston And Painter Out

Injuries keep the Redmen varsity from top-notch shape going into the season's opener. Sophomore guard Charlie Kingston (5'11), has been ailing with a foot injury and just rejoined the practice sessions this week. Also on the disabled list is 6'5 Jim Painten, a Soph who can go both ways at guard and forward.

The probable starting Redmen lineup for tomorrow's clash will be Twitchell and Johnson at the forward positions, O'Rourke at center and Bernard and Hill in the backcourt. Stonehill Frosh vs UM Frosh at 6:30 while the feature goes on at 8:15. Place: Curry Hicks P.E. Building.

Frosh Cross Countrymen End Year With 7-0 Mark

by GENE COLBURN '64

The University of Massachusetts freshman cross-country team has just completed its second and perfect season in dual-meet competition in 3 years. Once again the number one man on the freshmen team is expected to be a big help to the varsity. Bob Molvar had a fantastic season, rivaling the season record-maker Bob Brouillet had as a freshman. Brouillet never finished lower than second in dual meets, was sixth in the New Englands, and thirteenth in the IC4A's. Molvar matched this record exactly but was twelfth in the IC4A's.

One good runner does not make a team though, and the little Redmen had a great squad. Whenever a little something extra was needed the frosh came through. This "spark" enabled them to defeat such formidable powers as Army and Harvard. After being beaten by Brown in the New Englands, the freshmen went to the IC4A's and there finished ahead of Brown. They came in behind Providence College, who won the New Englands and who tied for first with Villanova in the IC4A's. This kind of fight enabled the frosh to establish their 7-0 dual-meet record.

Close behind Molvar was Clayton Berry. Berry was a consistently good runner all season, and always did well in the big races. Ron Larsen had an up and down season, but did his best when it was most needed. Carl Lopes, Don Campfield, John Sheehan, and Ron Oakland completed the top 7 freshmen runners. Clarence Hill, Don Cheney, Steve Collins, and Dave Sullivan rounded out the other runners.

Sullivan could probably be called exemplatory of the entire team. Before being injured early in the season "Sully" was the number two freshman runner. A broken foot sidelined him for a month. Instead of just waiting for the foot to heal, he did everything he could to get in shape. As a result of his efforts, Sullivan came back at the end of the season and was a great help to the team in the New Englands and in the IC4A's.

An "exciting re-assessment of the life of the Commonwealth" is evident at UMass, Dr. William Birenbaum, Dean of the New School for Social Research in New York City, told 100 students, faculty, administration and alumni attending Saturday's seminar sponsored by the alumni chapter of Adelphia.

The theme of the seminar, a part of UMass' Centennial celebration, was the improvement of the academic atmosphere at an expanding university.

Outcome of the re-assessment, Dr. Birenbaum said, depends on "the wisdom of its administration and faculty in evaluating the aspirations of the people of this state.

"The expanding university is a simple function of the expanding universe," the New York professor said. "There are no simple boundaries to the campus—the education of the new earthman cannot possibly be contained in a few ivy covered grey stone walls.

"A new arrangement of total urban resources is called for. The excitement of rapid change must be captured in the way the university is built—with few exceptions, no campus building should be constructed to endure for more than a decade."

Dr. Maxwell Goldberg, professor of humanities and Associate, Director for the Humanities at the Center for Continuing Liberal Education, College of Liberal Arts at Pennsylvania State University, was chairman. Dr. Goldberg, a familiar figure to UMass upperclassmen, was formerly Director of the Centennial Program at UMass.

Other speakers included John Haigis, UMass trustee; Edward Moore, dean of the University's graduate school; Francis Pray, class of 1931 and vice-president in charge of operations and administration for the Council for Financial Aid to Education, Inc. and David Knapp, former dean of the College of Liberal Arts at the University of New Hampshire.

Closing remarks were made by UMass Provost Gilbert Woodside.

Dinner followed the morning seminar. In the afternoon those present were broken up into five groups to discuss points brought out at the morning session.

The discussions lasted until about 3:30 p.m.

Ex-Sudanese Ambassador To Give Talk

A veteran of 35 years in the U.S. Foreign Service will give a major public lecture at UMass this week. In his new role as Visiting Distinguished Professor of Government at the University, James S. Moose, Jr., former Ambassador to Syria and the Sudan, will speak on "The Soviet Union and the Middle East."

The talk will be given Wednesday at 4 p.m. in the Middlesex Room of the S.U. The public is invited to attend without charge.

A native of Arkansas, Mr. Moose attended Kentucky Military Institute and then went on to the University of Missouri where he received an A.B. degree in chemistry. After a brief stint in farming, he went to the University of Mexico to study Spanish.

He then spent three years in the National School of Living Oriental Languages in Paris

In his foreign service career, which began in 1928, Prof. Moose held positions in Salonica, Greece; Paris, France; Beirut, Lebanon; Baghdad, Iraq; Tehran, Iran; Jidda, Saudi Arabia; Washington, D.C.; Damascus, Syria; and Khartoum, Sudan. During this time he held a number of posts, including minister, member of the Foreign Service Inspection Corps, Chief of the Division of African Affairs of the State Department, and finally Ambassador.

Prof. Moose admits that things are rather quiet in the Middle East now, but asserts that attention will be returned to these countries since "all negotiations in the Middle East ride on a sea of oil."

Major American Writers To Appear In Symposium

Three major American writers will take part in a special symposium to be held at UMass Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 4 and 5.

Authors Philip Roth, Ralph Ellison and William Manchester will give their views on "The Novelist and the American University."

Each of the three, considered among the most provocative writers in America today, has published a novel dealing with the contemporary college or university scene. All three have caught the attention of readers because of their hard-hitting style and their ability to draw powerful characterizations.

Roth, Ellison and Manchester will give their talks at 8 p.m. on Dec. 4 and 5 in the S.U. Ballroom. Held under auspices of the University of Massachusetts Alumni Memorial Lecture series, the symposium is a public event with no charge for admission.

The discussion will concern itself in great part with the question of the novel in relation to academic life, academic freedom, and the idea, nature and purpose of a university in an age of crisis.

Philip Roth, widely hailed as a major novelist of this generation, is the author of "Goodbye, Columbus," a famous collection of short stories that made Roth nationally known, and of "Letting Go," his novel dealing with the academic scene.

Ralph Ellison, considered by many critics as one of the very top novelists of today, wrote "The Invisible Man", which ranks with the best novels of Faulkner and Hemingway. "The Invisible Man" won the National Book Award in fiction in 1953. Since that novel, Ellison has been working on a second major novel which has been published in excerpts in magazine articles.

William Manchester, a graduate of UMass, has produced three outstanding books of biography—on H. L. Mencken, the Rockefellers, and (most recently) President John F. Kennedy. Manchester's "The Long Gainer," a vigorous novel on university life and problems, received excellent reviews.

Roth currently is visiting lecturer at Princeton University. Ellison, who has been a sculptor and a professional photographer, is also on the Board of Directors of Jazz Inc. Manchester, formerly a newspaperman with the Baltimore Sun, is presently a managing editor at the Wesleyan University Press.

The Alumni Memorial Lecture series was set up by UM graduates as a permanent tribute to the University's war dead.

Humorist-Pianist H. L. Scott To Give "Concert For Fun"

Humorist-Pianist Henry L. Scott will appear here Tuesday, December 11, sponsored by the Distinguished Visitors Program. His "Concert for Fun" will be the DVP's second program this year and is open to the student body without charge.

HENRY L. SCOTT

Scott's career represents a long and impressive aray of theatre appearances, short pictures for Paramount, radio engagements, a season at New York's famed Rainbow Room, a debut at Town Hall as America's First Concert Humorist and the first one-man show of its kind on Broadway.

The props used during his concert include an orange, a wig, and his mittens . . . but each of these is used only momentarily during his concerts.

He writes all of his musical sketches, arranges most of the popular compositions played on his program and originates the ideas for his comical performances.

The classical portion of the concert consists of compositions by Chopin, Scarlatti and Liszt. The popular group ranges from boogie-woogie to ballads, while on the humorous side are such titles as "The History of the Lost Chord", "Chopin in the Citrus Belt", and "Rythm at Any Cost".

He spent considerable time in special interpretive studies at the Mannes school in New York where he developed the individuality he shows in this rendition of the classics.

At one point, in order to better understand South American rhythms, he got a job on a cruise ship and spent all his shore time around dance halls of Coloan, Nassau and Trinidad.

DVP Adopts New Policy On Tickets

Because of the increase in enrollment at UMass, accompanied by the lack of a suitably sized auditorium, the Distinguished Visitors Program has adopted the following policy in regard to admission to its presentations. To insure to the undergraduate student the opportunity of attending these performances and being assured of a seat, the committee has decided to issue free tickets a week before each event. The tickets will be given out to the students only upon presentation of an I.D. in the RSO Office from the hours of 10-12 a.m. and 1-4 p.m. for the first three days of the week preceding the production. In the latter part of the week tickets may be obtained by faculty, administration, graduate students, and residents from the surrounding communities. The tickets for the performance of Henry Scott in Bowker Auditorium, at 8:00 p.m. on Tuesday, December 11, will be given out from Dec. 5 to Dec. 11. Tickets will be issued on a first come first serve basis.

H. Gelfman To Speak At SZO Event

Harold Gelfman, president of the Anti-Defamation League and an active participant in Jewish and Zionist affairs in the Northampton community, will speak here tomorrow as guest of the Student Zionist Organization. The program will be at 8 p.m. in the S.U.

The topic of his talk will be anti-Semitism and what is being done to combat it. Discussion will follow the talk, tying in the active role SZO is taking in this question.

Tomorrow's program will bring to a close a program of semester discussions on the topic—The Jewish Question in the diaspora, sponsored by SZO. The programs have included debates, discussions, panels and lectures. A few meetings were devoted to a study of Israel.

Next semester's program, SZO officials said, will emphasize Israel to a greater extent.

Buffy Sainte-Marie, folksongstress and entertainer, who will appear on campus tomorrow evening in concert. Her performance will be the final Abby benefit. Tickets for the concert tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Bartlett are 75¢ and may be obtained at the door.

A RESURRECTED BILL

RSO has recently pased a motion which will be introduced to the Student Senate this Wednesday. The motion, a resurrected form of last year's "2.0" bill, would require that an officer maintain a graduating average in order to hold an executive position in any Recognized Student Organization.

Proponents of this bill will undoubtedly argue that they are trying to protect the individual student and the organization to which he belongs. It will be argued in the Senate that organizations will be jeopardized in regard to leadership if this bill is not passed. It would seem to us that if an officer does not maintain a graduating average, and hence may no longer serve as an officer, then the organization is still just as leader-less as if that same officer had flunked out.

We do not believe that such a bill is in the best interests of the student. To quote Mr. Francis Pray, "If you hold someone's hand for four years, then you'll probably have to hold it for the next forty years." We doubt that the Student Senators are willing to hold hands for the next forty years with RSO officers affected by this bill.

If RSO and the Senate are trying to protect the individual, then we fail to see why the bill includes only the officers. Certainly the two bodies mentioned above realize that non-officer members of an organization often put in just as much time and effort, if not more, then the officers of that organization. Why not include every member of an RSO organization as well as the officers? Since dormitories are RSO organizations, then students wouldn't be able to live in dormitories unless they maintained a graduating average. Reductio Ad Absurdum.

Students often complain that the administration places too many restrictions upon them. We hope that these same students will contact their Senators and tell them to vote NO on the graduating average bill. There are more than enough restrictions now on the student body, and we fail to comprehend why the Student Senate or RSO should attempt to place another restriction, and an absurd one at that, on the student body.

THE CAGE

We are constantly amazed at the physical condition of the Curry Hicks Gymnasium. When it rains the roof leaks, if you stamp your feet the wooden stands will collapse, and sometimes the lights come back on after the playing of our National Anthem.

Might we suggest that when the new men's physical education building is completed that the entire University family attend a literal House Warming Party—at the old cage.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE SONG OF THE TEMPORANCE UNION

To the Editor:

I always get a big kick out of the letters written to the editor, but after reading that letter "Who is Guilty?", by Brad Parker, I just had to write this letter. How on earth could you print that Garbage? Especially that paragraph "It's (drinking) an accepted way of life. (BALONEY) Good parents should teach their children how to drink in moderation at home, before they go away to school." (By "school" does he mean elementary?) That's nothing but a lot of ROT. What kind of parents are "good" when they give their children liquor—Everyone knows that any kind of alcohol is absolutely injurious to the human body. It makes you sound like you're for babies boozing when you print corrupt letters like that.

And what kind of citizen are you—printing that drinking is an accepted way of life for college students? That's so putrifying that I'm getting sick just thinking about it. By printing that letter you have really degraded the college.

Norman Komich '66

Yes, reader Komich, we are for babies boozing. We also agree (as everyone knows) that any kind of alcohol is absolutely injurious to the human body. —Ed.

YES, VIRGINIA, THERE REALLY IS A SANTA

We have just heard from a very reliable source that there is to be no Christmas tree in the Student Union lobby this year, because it is a fire hazard.

Why, we ask, don't they use the fire proofing spray that is made specifically for the purpose of eliminating this hazard?

We feel that by not having a tree in the lobby, that much of the campus spirit is lost. It is bad enough that we have been limited in our dorm decorations this year . . . now this! Of course we realize that it is for the welfare of the student body but can't someone get out a spray gun?

Letters To The Editor

LINES OF DEFENSE

With the finesse of a bulldozer and apparent military consultation on deterrent weapons, the administration has finally stopped student progress. In the mudflat before South College, ruts have cleverly been scraped across the slanting path 'twixt Union and Bartlett. A well placed triple line of bushes and shrubs, some lying close to the ground, some boldly flung face high, are a second line of administrative defense. Among these bushes, Venus Flytraps will be placed for the summer enjoyment of those gazing languidly from the office windows of South College. The final student stopper is by all means the most effective. Those pondering the previous frustrations will be turned back by newly placed signs that read "DANGER--MINES."

M.U.D.

HATCHINGS

To the Editor:

I would like to comment on a letter in the November 28th issue of the Collegian. The letter dealt with the juke box in the "Hatch," criticizing the music being played and suggesting that the "garbling nonsense" be eliminated. I believe, as do many other students on this campus, that this music is relaxing, helping many "unwind" from the strain of classes while having a snack in the "Hatch."

If MAE does not like the music played in the "Hatch," I suggest that he, or she, no longer remain in the "Hatch."

Robert F. Hobbs '66

To the Editor:

It is my suggestion to those persons who do not like "the noise emitted by the juke box," that they do their dining elsewhere. If this music disturbs them so much, the simple solution would be for them to retire to the upper quarters of the Student Union. I might mention the fact that these "atonistic tendencies" that were mentioned in a previous letter to the editor are enjoyed by many students on this campus.

I hope this letter does not discourage the silence seekers from writing any more amusing letters to the editor.

Jack Mehauf

To the Editor:

Several weeks ago there was considrable adverse criticism concerning the Union dining room murals. The issue appears to be closed but justice now demands additional comment on the music that is heard in the Hatch. How can the murals be so vehemently criticized without some of the same criticism being made to apply to the low level of musical taste that is exhibited?

Music is no less an art than is painting and thus has standards by which it can be judged as poor or good. Some of the music, not all of it, which is heard coming from the Hatch juke box, is unintelligible, poorly performed, and appears to be preoccupied with the difficulties associated with growing up. If this sort of thing appeals to the university student, someone is missing the point.

The student's responsibility at an institution of higher learning is a big one. It consists of educating himself with the guidance and means put at his disposal. The educational process cannot end with class work. It must necessarily extend into the remaining aspects of a student's life. A person cannot be considered mature or educated if he retains a high school attitude toward religion, politics, and music, for example.

Most of us enjoyed the recent concerts conducted by Arthur Fiedler here and Eric Leinsdorf at Smith. There is no reason why we cannot have more music of this calibre in the Hatch, at least during dining hours when a great many of us find it convenient to eat there. If good music can be piped into the Hatch on Sunday morning, it can just as easily be provided during meal hours.

If the present musical taste persists, by all means remove the murals. If they must be replaced, replace them with something every adolescent can understand. This would be consistent with the atmosphere created by the selections played on the jukebox. We are not forced to look at the murals, but we cannot close our ears to the music.

Third Program Of Poetry Features Morgan, Barron

Janet Morgan and Leon Barron will read their poems at Jones Library, Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. for the third poetry program of the Amherst Art Center this season.

Mrs. Morgan, wife of Professor Charles H. Morgan, Head of the Fine Arts Department at Amherst College, spent some six years in Athens, where Prof. Morgan was Director of the American School of Classical Studies; while there, she co-authored a metrical version of Euripides' The Trojan Women.

Mrs. Morgan's poems have appeared in The New York Times, Gourmet Magazine, Audubon Magazine, The Living Church, Amherst Poets 1959, Poems 1960-1961.

Leon Barron, an assistant professor of English at UMass, is a graduate of Boston Latin School and the University.

Prof. Barron is a fiction editor of The Massachusetts Review.

His poems have appeared in that periodical, in Folio, Liason, College English, Northampton

Univ. Theatre To Present Tartuffe

When the curtain goes up on the University Theatre's production of Tartuffe, the audience will be put in touch with a playwright truly identified with the theatre as a performing art.

Jean-Baptiste Poquelin (Moliere) received his early training in the theatre by traveling the provinces of France for 12 years in the company of a small group of players. During this period he came in contact with the Italian actors of a commedia delle arte from which he learned the arts of pantomime and improvisation.

In addition to acting, for which he received great acclaim, he also managed his troupe, recruited its members, directed the plays, designed the sets, selected the costumes, and attended to all business matters. The wonder is that this manager-producer-director-actor had time to be a playwright with 33 plays to his credit.

Moliere died at the age of 51, having risen from relative obscurity to the status of official playwright of the Court of Louis XIV.

Tartuffe will be presented in Bowker Auditorium on Fri., Dec. 7 at 8:15 p.m. and Saturday, Dec. 8 at 2:15 and 8:15 p.m.

Frosh Win In Triple Overtime; Gamble, Edwards Top Scorers

by NEIL BAKER

The freshman basketball team opened its season on an exciting note as they nosed out the Stonehill College frosh in triple overtime before a capacity crowd at Curry Hicks Cage.

The fleetfooted Redman five were consistently slowed down by the ball-control minded Rockpilers. Stonehill guard Gerry Cunniff, and guard Ken O'Donohue were very effective in freezing the ball in the backcourt. Time after time the visiting frosh slowed down the UMass team by passing the ball in the backcourt, thereby drawing a barrage of boos from the partisan crowd.

Fight Stops Game

Outplayed in the first half and trailing 25-22, the fired up Little Redmen returned and shot to a 34-26 lead on the strength of four field goals by Tim Edwards and a pair of two pointers by Bill Nolan. But Stonehill quickly recovered and, along with their ball control offense, pulled to a 44-42 lead. With four seconds left in the game and UMass ahead by two points, Ken O'Donohue was driving for a layup and was fouled by Ronnie Gamble. A fight broke out between the two, and before the smoke had lifted O'Donohue had been awarded two foul shots and converted them both.

It was all big Ronnie Gamble in the three overtimes, as he literally carried the team with 23 points in the extended time. The Redmen club came back in both the first and second overtimes after falling behind.

Rockpilers Routed by 11 Points

The third overtime started with a basket by Gamble which was countered with two foul shots by Stonehill forward Paul Toner. Gamble then proceeded to throw in two more field goals to start an eleven point explosion which completely routed the Rockpilers.

The game ended with an 84-73 verdict in favor of the Little Redmen.

Ronnie Gamble was the game's high scorer with 27 points, followed by Tim Edwards with 26. Stonehill had four players in double figures, a trait attributed to the Boston Celtics and their team balance. Little Ken O'Donohue (5'7) was high scorer for Stonehill with 19 points. Bill Nolan came through with some key baskets, ending the night with nine points.

TRACK REMINDER

There will be an important organizational meeting for all indoor track candidates tonight at 5:00 p.m. in room 10 of the Men's Physical Education Building. Anyone interested in trying out for the team should be at this meeting.

Intramural Basketball Starts Tomorrow With IFC Games

INTRAMURALS

The intramural basketball season will get underway tomorrow night at the cage with TEP vs TC and SAE vs ATG at 8:45-9:30 p.m. and PSK vs PSD and AEP vs TKE at 9:30-10:15 p.m.

The IFC teams will also play Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Last year campus basketball champion, the Flicks, came from the independent league, winning consistently during the season. This year all independent teams must be sponsored by recognized student organizations to enter a team in the basketball league. Rosters must be in by December 18, in room 8 at the cage.

Redmen Beat Stonehill 47-42; Face B.U. Terriers Tomorrow

by STEVE HEWEY '63

Visiting Stonehill College threw a scare into the University of Massachusetts Saturday evening before finally bowing to Matt Zunic's Redmen, 47-42, in the season's opener for both squads.

It was a long night of basketball for the capacity crowd that jammed Curry Hicks Cage to the rafters. After waiting 45 minutes because of the extended frosh game, both varsity clubs had another 20 minute delay before the feature got under way.

The overhead court lights were dimmed for the playing of the National Anthem and when it was over the lights were still out. It took 20 minutes to get the court illuminated enough to play ball and then the court was still dimly lighted for a while.

UMass jumped into an early 4-1 lead but could not get Stonehill to play its brand of ball. The Chieftains played a slow, ball-control game, trying to work a front man free near the basket. And it was working. Sophomore center Dick Munson hit on a pair of jump shots from close in and Stonehill moved out in front 9-6 at the 12:18 mark. The Redmen found the lanes clogged and had trouble breaking up the Stonehill defense by hitting from the outside. Meanwhile Munson and guard Bill Creedon combined to boost the Stonehill lead, 15-6, with 9:38 left in the half.

Big Mike Johnson, UM forward, cut the visitors' bulge to six points, 17-11, on a driving layup and Stonehill called a time out. With time back in, a traveling violation gave the ball to the Redmen with 4 minutes to go. Clarence Hill missed on a jumper which would have cut the Stonehill lead down to four. But a minute later Rodger Twitchell hit on a jump shot and Charlie O'Rourke added one from the line to bring the Redmen within one point, 19-18 with 2:35 remaining.

Then Stonehill began that slow stalling game again trying to work the big man free. This time it was Munson again whose layup with 17 seconds to go opened up a 24-20 lead for Stonehill at the half.

Two quick baskets by the Redmen knotted the count 26-all minutes after the second half got under way. But a free throw by George Peterson and a leaping layup by Munson opened the Stonehill margin to three, 29-26.

Forward Jim Fallon's only two points of the night, a jumper from the corner combined with Peterson's driving layup, put Stonehill in front 35-30 with 12:40 showing on the clock.

A free throw by Twitchell and Charlie O'Rourke's jump shot from close in shaved the visitors' edge to 35-33. But Bill Creedon and Munson teamed up to make it 39-36, Stonehill, with exactly 9 minutes to go.

UMass came back with a five point splurge on a pair of Twitchell baskets and Clarence Hill's charity toss to go ahead, 41-39, at the 4:50 mark. Stonehill quickly regained the lead, 42-41, on Bill Creedon's 3 point play but that ended Stonehill's scoring for the night. Little Clarence Hill took a pass from Rodger Twitchell and tossed up a jumper to put the Redmen ahead to stay.

Redmen co-captain, junior Rodger Twitchell, outjumps Stonehill's Jim Fallon '64 (15) to throw in two of the twenty points he scored in UMass' 47-42 victory over the Rockpilers.

It was Hill again for UMass on a layup that opened up a three point spread, 45-42. With a minute and a half left Stonehill had to abandon the slow game they had been using all night and try to score in a hurry. Bernard and Hill kept the pressure on the Stonehill backcourt as they tried to feed the ball in close. George Peterson got off a hurried shot and Mike Johnson swept the boards clean. UMass, in control 45-42 with 1:05 left in the game, called a time out.

Time back in, Ed Pare replaced Jim Swan in the Stonehill backcourt and he immediately drew a foul. Pare missed the free throw, got his own rebound but was called for traveling. Pete Bernard was also called for steps and the Chieftains were in possession again with 36 seconds showing on the clock.

After taking timeout, Stonehill fed Peterson in the corner for a jumper that was off target. Johnson pulled in the rebound amidst a flurry of elbows and was fouled. Several punches were traded between Johnson and Stonehill's Jim Fallon and little Pete Bernard was ready to keep the odds even.

After the officials restored order Johnson stepped to the line on a one and one and converted both to wrap up the scoring.

Stonehill's George Peterson was supposed to be the boy to watch according to advance billing. But the most impressive performance by a Chieftain player was turned in by Sophomore center Dick Munson. Munson clicked on 8 of his 12 floor shots and led his mates with 20 points. He was Stonehill's big man on the boards.

Rodger Twitchell picked up where he left off last season by dumping in 20 points to lead the Redmen scorers.

Tuesday night will find the Redmen at Boston University for their first road trip and then it's home again for a contest with Rutgers next Saturday.

Mili Munch To Be Theme Of Military Ball Buffet

Preparations for the Military Ball this coming Saturday are continuing at a rapid rate this week.

The Buffet committee has selected Armor Cadet Gerald Girouard as winner in the "Name the Buffet" contest. Cadet Girouard topped all entries with his theme suggestion of "Mili Munch".

(Informants at Dickinson Hall explained that a mili munch is a midnight version of the more familiar brunch.)

Ticket sales for the buffet have been extended to Wednesday.

Tomorrow and Thursday from 2 to 4:30 p.m., any person who has purchased a Ball ticket may take a tank ride with his date by presenting his ticket at the front entrance of the ROTC building.

Alpha Phi Omega corsage sales are continuing in the S.U. lobby daily from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and in the dorms from 9 to 11 p.m. tonight and tomorrow night.

Brown U. Chemist To Present Lecture On Electrophoresis

Dr. Robert L. Kay of Brown University will speak at UMass Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Peters Auditorium. The topic of his talk will be "Electrophoresis".

Dr. Kay received his Ph.D. at the University of Toronto, and has spent four years as a research assistant with the physical chemistry section of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

Since that time he has been with the Chemistry Department at Brown University, and is presently an assistant professor of chemistry.

The talk is open to the public.

SENIORS

Seniors who have not returned their proofs to the Index photographer have been asked to send the proofs they have selected to the Lincoln Studios, 142 Pleasant St., immediately if they wish to be included in the 1963 Index.

Seniors may also order sets of photos from Lincoln Studios by indicating those desired and enclosing a check for the correct amount. The $2.50 sitting fee is deductible when ordering photos.

Seniors ought to indicate what retouching they desire.

Army's Special Forces Training Is Available

Special Forces training is now being offered to UMass ROTC Cadets who can qualify for the select Bay State Special Forces, formed this semester as part of the Army ROTC Brigade.

Up until this Fall, Special Forces training was available to individuals already in the Army Special Forces.

Special Forces, the U.S. Army's famed beret-wearing guerrilla warfare unit has received world recognition for the valuable work it performs for the free world in many specialized fields.

Training is being offered in hand-to-hand combat (judo and karate), first aid, land navigation, weapons, guerrilla and counter guerrilla warfare, patrolling, communications, and many other specialized skills.

The unit is commanded by Cadet Lt. Colonel Thomas P. Leavitt '63, assisted by Cadet Captains Harry Lane '63 and Thomas Best '63 as executive and training officers respectively. The Unit's advisor is Captain John G. Keliher of the R.O.T.C. instructor group, a paratrooper who has had experience in guerrilla operations.

Colonel Leavitt told the Collegian that the enthusiasm for an organization of this type was clearly demonstrated by the fact that over 230 cadets volunteered for the 47 openings.

Through vigorous screening which included a physical fitness test, a drill test, athletic medical exam, and personal interviews, the top 47 cadets were selected to receive this training and wear the distinctive unit beret and boots of the Special Forces.

All four university classes and nearly all of the UMass athletic teams and men's dorms and fraternities are represented in the unit.

The Bay State Special Forces meet twice weekly, at 11 on Tuesdays and Thursdays, for training. They also conduct field operations one weekend a month. This coming weekend, for instance, the unit will go to Fort Devens to practice some of its newly learned skills.

UMass Chorale Will Usher In Christmas With Concert

The 65-voice University Chorale will usher in the Christmas season with two concerts Sunday, Dec. 9.

Directed by Dr. John R. King, the Chorale singers will perform J. S. Bach's "Magnificat" and Vaughan Williams' "Fantasia on Christmas Carols." The program will also include several separate Christmas carols.

Scheduled for 4 p.m. at Bowker Auditorium on the University campus and for 8:15 p.m. at St. James Episcopal Church in Greenfield, both concerts are open to the general public.

The six soloists scheduled to appear with the Chorale include the talented Dorothy Ornest Feldman of Amherst, Malama Providakes and Gordon T. Gurney of Worcester, Curtis Paine of Turners Falls, and two University of Massachusetts graduate students, Donald Paine and David Hartwell.

Accompanying the Chorale will be Philip A. Beaudry, organist and choir director at Notre Dame Church in Worcester.

Two University undergraduates, Paulette LaPlante and Norma Wolfson, will also appear. They are flutists who regularly perform with the UMass Concert Band. Joseph Contino, assistant professor of music at the University, will play the clarinet in the "Quia Respexet," soprano solo of the "Magnificat."

Director King, professor of music at the University, was educated in England and at the University of Toronto. He came to UMass in 1956. He has conducted choirs and orchestras at the universities of Cambridge and Birmingham in England, at Toronto, and at Western Reserve University in Cleveland.

The Bach "Magnificat in D Major," first performed at Leipzig in 1723, has been called one of the greatest choral works ever written.

Mr. Williams' "Fantasia," a relatively recent composition, is largely based on traditional English Christmas carols from Herefordshire, Somerset and Sussex.

Distribution Of Caesura Begins Mon.

The first issue of Caesura, the University's literary magazine, will not be circulated in the usual manner this year.

In an effort to make circulation more effective, copies will be distributed to freshmen and sophomores by English department faculty members.

The distribution of Caesura in English classes will begin Monday. The venture is being undertaken voluntarily by the English department, which has no official connection with the student-published magazine.

Upperclassmen will be able to obtain copies of Caesura starting Monday in the lobby of the S.U.

Caesura, which was formerly known as The Quarterly, is published three times a year by the University students.

Campus Varieties workers (from l. to r.) are Bev DeMarco, director; Paul Theroux, author; Judith Clark, Reveler co-ordinator. Missing are Linda Fisher and Bobbi Hanna. Production is now getting underway for Theroux's play, "The Kidney-Shaped Heart."

Professor At Smith College Will Be Colloquium Speaker

An outstanding educator with extensive experience in working with international programs and organizations will be the colloquium speaker at a major centennial program of the UMass School of Physical Education tomorrow at 11 a.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

Dr. Dorothy Ainsworth, Professor Emeritus of Physical Education at Smith College, will address the students and faculty on "International Relations in Health, Physical Education and Recreation."

Honored by heads of states throughout the world, Dr. Ainsworth holds the Gold Medal from the Ling Society of Sweden, the Medaille d'Or from the French Ministry of Education, Finland's Cross of Honor, and the Order "de Merite Sportif" as well as the Gulick Medal of the American Association of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation.

Professor Ainsworth, Phi Beta Kappa key holder, author, lecturer, and consultant has contributed to the international growth of physical education, health, and recreation programs for nearly five decades.

An informal reception for Dr. Ainsworth will be held by the School of Physical Education faculty at 10 a.m. in the lounge of the WPE building, and a question-answer period will follow a luncheon in the Colonial Lounge of the S.U. from 1:15 to 3:30 p.m. for faculty members and students. The 11 a.m. colloquium address is open to the University community without charge.

S.U. Dance Friday To Be Sponsored By Class Of' 64

The Class of 1964 will sponsor a dance this Friday evening in the S.U. Ballroom, proceeds to go to the Class of '64's Scholarship Fund, class officials have announced.

The "Civilian Stomp" will be held between 8 and 12 p.m. Friday. Music will be provided by the Storms, instrumental combo.

Admission at the door will be 50 cents.

SOPH EXEC COUNCIL

There will be an important meeting of the Sophomore Executive Council on Thursday, Dec. 6 at 11 a.m. in the Hampden Room.

Prof. Johnson To Lecture On 'Tartuffe'

In connection with the University Theatre group's upcoming production of "Tartuffe", Prof. Robert Johnson of the University's Department of Romance Languages will lecture on "Tartuffe, Moliere's Terrible Tribulation." Open to the public, Prof. Johnson's talk is scheduled for 4 p.m. tomorrow in Bartlett Hall Auditorium.

Performances of "Tartuffe" are scheduled for 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday at Bowker Auditorium in Stockbridge Hall. There will be a high school matinee at 2:30 p.m., Dec. 8.

The play is a richly humorous, scathing attack on hypocrisy.

Tartuffe, the rascally hypocrite, deceives a wealthy businessman, Orgon, takes over his household for a time, and finally is imprisoned for fraud.

"Tartuffe" is the University Theatre's second major effort of the academic year. George Bernard Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion" and T. S. Eliot's "Murder in the Cathedral" will be pre-

NOT FORGOTTEN

Alumna Buffy St. Marie's benefit concert last night for the women of the Abby was typical of the individual responses to the catastrophe made by friends of the University. Our faculty, alumni, university employees, undergrads, and townspeople contributed goods and money through donations to the Abby Emergency Fund and to particular girls. Groups such as dormitories, religious organizations, WMUA, the Class of '63, the Pan-Hellenic Council and a score of others added to the money raised by Student Union Dances and the Senate.

Emergency Fund as of December 2:
$2,000.00 from Senate Stabilization Fund
2,703.69 by groups
521.00 from single parties

$5,224.69 Total Resources

Directly after the fire, the Financial Aid Office made possible emergency loans for the women's immediate use in excess of $1500.00. These loans will be partially paid by the fund after individual cases have been reviewed and insurance claims settled. The office is now in process of evaluating the outstanding loss in bills and loans to each student.

University Trustees have made available, upon review of the Financial Aid Office, a fund in the form of Grants-in-Aid to supplement the remaining deficits. This tedious job began last Friday.

The money which has been given and is yet to come will be used in a most judicious manner by men who have intimate knowledge of each student's need and know the extent of insurance payment for her. Although the girls have felt a heavy loss, not one to date has left school for lack of money.

University Concert Band

Symmetry And Talent

by CHARLES ROUNDY

Sunday at 4:00 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium, the University Concert Band held its first performance. The Band played a well-selected program, with a good deal of variety. Although the program began slowly, it closed with a rapid succession of admirable presentations.

The first few pieces were musically acceptable to all but the expert although it seemed at first as though the concert would fall flat. Robert Russell Bennett's Symphonic Songs, a variety of expressions of moods which few composers could capture musically, flooded the audience and the band obviously was caught in the atmosphere it was working to create. From then on, the music became more and more enjoyable for both artist and admirer.

A most interesting number was the Copland Lincoln Portrait—one in which a narration was set against melancholy but yet majestic strains after an instrumental biography of that great President. Dr. Seymour Rudin of the English department read the narration, setting the proper tone to make the number a memorable one.

There is something forever captivating about a march, and the program included an exuberating medley of three. One must commend the brass and percussion sections of the band for their essential and well executed performance. Washington Gray's by C. S. Crafulla is a march which was especially suited to the band's talents; its lightness was well received.

A Caribbean Fantasy made a favorable impression on the audience. Beginning with a calypso beat, which gathered gusto, and continued by a typical Latin American theme it was carried by a cornet solo, played by Richard Knon, to an aroused climax. This John J. Morrissey artifact is enticing and thrilling.

Richard Rodgers' background music for Victory At Sea, and Alfred Lowe's successful inauguration of the Redmen March concluded this distinguished program of symmetry and talent.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Reserved For Student Use

To the Editor:

After a hard day of bookin' it Monday, a friend and I went down to the Student Union to relax while bowling. "All work and no play," as they say, "isn't good," but we weren't to do any bowling that night. There was a sign reading "Reserved for League Use," on the door to the alleys. The men in this league weren't students, yet this invasion is evidently quite common. These men have access to cars and therefore other alleys that students here, lacking transportation, don't have. What were they doing here?

I transferred to UMass, and may be laboring under a misconception, but I always understood a student union to be for the use of the students of the school, a place where they could relax and not have to compete with the general public for the use of recreation facilities. Perhaps I am wrong, but the sign on the front of the Union would tend to support my belief, and as students of UMass, we all did pay a student union fee. If this fee gives us no prerogatives to the use of the Union what does it do?

I don't begrudge the local gentry their right to relax, but not at our expense. The only "Reserved" sign that belongs in the Union is "Reserved for Student Use."

Bloody Good, That Rot

To the Editor:

Re: juke box controversy in the "Hatch"—I say to all you profoundly-motivated music scholars, keep the status quo! I hold that classical music is the ultimate form, and that J.M. and R.C. are great for parties, but every type of music has its place. By George, when I come to the Hatch from studying for my nightly coke frappe, that degenerate rot just hits the spot.

Skip Brack '66

A New Suggestion

To the Editor:

The ever-blaring Juke box in the Hatch is one more distraction for those who must eat in the confusion of the Hatch. The juke box is not allowed on during the morning breakfast hours, but, it is on continuously for the remainder of the day. I would like to suggest a solution which could be tried on a trial basis.

Why can't the juke box be turned off during the evening meal hours and the student radio station played in the Hatch in the same manner in which it is heard on Friday nights? WMUA's evening program from 4:30 to 7:00 p.m. consists of up-tempo popular album music and is presented in uninterrupted segments. The programming on WMUA is determined by student preference as shown by their yearly polls. Wouldn't it be interesting to hear the latest campus news instead of hearing some New York or Connecticut stereo station being played on top of the Juke box as now happens?

Fern

Cold Winter Ahead

To the Editor:

Metawampee appears misinformed. The new physical education building will be used only for intramural sports. The old cage will be used for varsity sports. It will be some time before we may attend his house warming party.

L.K.

A Program of Merit

To the Editor:

Recently, the Council of Fine Arts presented another in a series of "music hours" in the Student Union. I would like to express my deep appreciation to the Council for bringing these fine sessions to the University.

This particular session, featuring the band of Tony Ravosa, was an excellent source of entertainment for me and, I am sure, for the many students who attended. In picking Mr. Ravosa and his group to appear at one of these "music hours," the Council made an excellent choice. Aside from the unavoidable noise and interference from the lobby of the Union, the program was an enjoyable, carefully planned presentation.

ASTERISK —

A Footnote To Contemporary Propaganda

by

by M. PALTER '63

Bostonians, perhaps more than others, have a growing sense of the failure of the mass media in the United States to live up to acceptable journalistic standards of reporting. Except for the few who are privileged enough to hear Louis Lyons from time to time or who can intelligently dissect the Christian Science Monitor or the New York Times, the general population can be said to be subtly manipulated. Indeed, lest I be misunderstood, I am not saying that either the Times or the Monitor is a great newspaper, but rather that they offer a marginal amount of necessary information.

In America, objective reporting has given way to the "slant" or, indeed, to the outright lie. Our national "news" magazines exhibit this quality. Certainly television adds to this deplorable situation.

But what has caused this situation? One reason, as A. J. Liebling has pointed out, is the growth of one-paper towns. In an atmosphere such as this, the citizenry is subject to the control of a few news "analysts." Yet, one might say, what is the difference between a one-paper town which offers the interpretations of ten such men or a four-paper town which, except for relatively meaningless party tendencies, offers the same types of interpretations of forty? Even this ratio is not valid if we consider the fact of limited news service organizations. For instance, in the Chinese-Indian border dispute, we are offered dispatches from U.P.I., A.P., Reuters, and perhaps one or two more agencies. This means in effect that five or six foreign correspondents shoulder the entire responsibility for reporting!

Certainly, the tremendous expense involved in running a competent newspaper mitigates against wide coverage. In addition, one must concede that the principle advertisers influence this coverage, especially on the state level. This problem in mass communication was manifested quite lucidly in the controversy which grew out of the Hiss appearance on the Howard K. Smith program which was carried by the American Broadcasting Company. The Schick Safety Razor Company threatened to cancel its $1,000,000 advertising contract unless A.B.C. instituted the proper "corrective" action. The Kemper Insurance Company also threatened to cancel its contract.

I am not here suggesting that these companies did not have the right to cancel these contracts or, more correctly, future contracts. I am rather attempting to illustrate the unfortunate relationship which has developed between advertiser and communications media.

The fact that a large segment of the American people supported the claim that Hiss had no right to speak against Nixon brings up another, and more important, problem: civil liberties. It is not the Birch society or like organizations which constitute the principle threat to civil liberties in the United States, but rather the American People themselves who, from time to time, have exhibited anti civil libertarian tendencies. This was of course strikingly manifested during the 50's. It is perhaps a psychological problem which revolves around the tendency of people to believe what they want to believe and even to restrict their thinking to what they have been cajoled into characterizing as "respectable."

Thus, news, whether in the newspaper or on television, caters to generally held notions of good and bad, right and wrong, and even funny and sad. Dissent in America is generally to be found only in intellectual circles or among habitual iconoclasts. Indeed, even the later have become relatively sterile.

This is not to say that people, especially Bostonians, do not have the vague notion that they are being manipulated, whether by their government or by the press. Whereas most of these people will immediately offer cynical comments upon the Hearst press (for example) they will nevertheless read and believe the very newspapers which they condemn!

The United States is perhaps unique in Western democracies for while it pretends to the greatest degree of journalistic freedom, it is the home of the least. There is very little difference between conscious suppression or misinterpretation of news and its passive, more subtle counterpart.

While this situation conduces to what some believe is the necessary conditioning of an entire people during a period of Cold War, it undermines the very democracy from which it springs.

WMUA Staff Meets Tonight

There will be a WMUA station meeting tonight in the studios. All members are expected to attend and all others interested in the activities of WMUA are invited.

Up-to-the-minute details on the expansion of its news coverage can be heard daily on WMUA and complete details can be found in the Collegian.

Vern Pero, WMUA Public Relations Director, expressed thanks to the many organizations on and off campus for their support and endorsement of the policies concerning the broadcasting of announcements concerning campus activities.

WMUA officials said anyone wishing to publicize any campus activity on WMUA is urged to call at the University Program Office in the S.U. and fill out the publicity forms there. These are duplicated and sent to both WMUA and the Collegian.

This year WMUA and the Redman sports network are again broadcasting all the games on the Redman basketball schedule. Play by play man Jimmy Trelease and color man Barry Brooks are again bringing you complete coverage of all the action in what looks like a tight and action packed schedule. If you can, go to the game. If you can't, join WMUA for all the drama of Redman basketball.

COMMITTEES:
AN AGONIZING RE-APPRAISAL

To those of you who stay out of your student government because you believe the committee system is just an excuse for inaction, let me cite an example to prove that a committee, properly led and directed, can be a great force for good.

Last week the Student Council met at the Duluth College of Veterinary Medicine and Belles Lettres to discuss purchasing a new doormat for the students union. It was, I assure you, a desperate problem because Sherwin K. Sigafoos, janitor of the students union, threatened flatly to quit unless a new doormat was installed immediately. "I'm sick and tired of mopping that dirty old floor," said Mr. Sigafoos, sobbing convulsively. (Mr. Sigafoos, once a jolly outgoing sort, has been crying almost steadily since the recent death of his pet wart hog who had been his constant companion for 22 years. Actually, Mr. Sigafoos is much better off without the wart hog, who tusked him viciously at least once a day, but a companionship of 22 years is, I suppose, not lightly relinquished. The college tried to give Mr. Sigafoos a new wart hog—a frisky little fellow with floppy ears and a waggly tail—but Mr. Sigafoos only turned his back and cried the harder.)

But I digress. The Student Council met, discussed the doormat for eight or ten hours, and then referred it to a committee. There were some who scoffed then and said nothing would ever be heard of the doormat again, but they reckoned without Invictus Millstone.

Invictus Millstone, chairman of the doormat committee, was a man of action—lithe and lean and keen and, naturally, a smoker of Marlboro Cigarettes. Why do I say "naturally"? Because, dear friends, active men and women don't have time to brood and bumble about their cigarettes. They need to be certain. They must have perfect confidence that each time they light up they will get the same gratifying flavor, the same Selectrate filter, the same soft soft-pack, the same flip top flip-top box. In brief, dear friends, they need to be sure it's Marlboro—for if ever a smoke was true and trusty, it's Marlboro. Get some soon. Get matches too, because true and trusty though Marlboros are, your pleasure will be somewhat limited unless you light them.

Well sir, Invictus Millstone chaired his doormat committee with such vigor and dispatch that when the Student Council met only one week later, he was able to rise and deliver the following recommendations:

1. That the college build new schools of botany, hydraulic engineering, tropical medicine, Indo-Germanic languages, and millinery.

2. That the college drop football, put a roof on the stadium, and turn it into a low-cost housing project for married students.

3. That the college raise faculty salaries by $5000 per year across the board.

4. That the college secede from the United States.

5. That the question of a doormat for the students union be referred to a subcommittee.

So let us hear no more defeatist talk about the committee system. It can be made to work! © 1962 Max Shulman

You don't need a committee to tell you how good Marlboros are. You just need yourself, a Marlboro, and a set of taste buds. Buy some Marlboros soon at your favorite tobacco counter.

Court Once Banned Moliere's "Tartuffe"

Tartuffe by Moliere, to be presented this weekend by the University Theatre, has an interesting stage history.

The play was first presented on May 12, 1664 before King Louis XIV at Versailles. It is said that the King enjoyed the play, but that others did not; and the comedy was banned from future performances by the powerful religious influences in the Court.

Chroniclers of the day tell us that Tartuffe was condemned and banned as a work 'absolutely harmful to religion and capable of producing very dangerous effects."

Because of the King's interest in the play Moliere tried on three separate occasions to have the ban lifted, and on February 5, 1669, five years after its first performance, the King granted his personal authorization for the performance of the play.

Four days later Tartuffe was presented in the same version that will be used for the University Theatre production.

Tartuffe will be presented this weekend in Bowker Auditorium. Curtain time for the evening performances will be 8:15; the Saturday matinee will be held at 2:15. Tickets are on sale at the Student Union box office 11-1, 2-4 p.m. All seats are reserved.

The University Theatre announced today a last-minute replacement in the title role of Tartuffe.

Last Sunday, Hal Hinds started rehearsing the role of the arch-hypocrite, Tartuffe, when the actor originally cast was hospitalized with a collapsed lung. Mr. Hinds will be remembered for his performance of Mosca in last year's Roister Doister production of Volpone.

Coaches Give Towel General Workout At Boston Luncheon

by BARRY BROOKS '63

No New England basketball team will have a winning season if one is to take seriously the opinion of various New England college coaches and publicity men as they spoke on their team's prospects for the coming season at the first weekly basketball writer's luncheon in Boston yesterday.

Coach's Game—Pass the Towel

Charlie Law, coach at Suffolk, had first crack at the crying towel. "At 2:30 I have two starters practicing, at 3 o'clock three more show up. At 3:30, four more show up, and the first two leave. We do have the full squad together, however, for fifteen minutes on Wednesday after noon. The first game of the season I had to introduce some of my ball players to each other." Law went on to say, for the eighteenth year in a row, "I'll make the same prediction. We've got no height, no speed, little talent. And little personnel." (By the way, Suffolk won their opener 89-66.)

John Burke, head mentor at B.U., increased the gloom when he noted that he had to go with four sophomores, against New Hampshire last Saturday. (B.U. lost 64-63.) Burke did, however, praise "a real fine pivot man", six-nine soph Dick Moreshead, who had 21 rebounds and 16 points.

Floyd Wilson of Harvard had nothing but praise for Amherst College's coach Rick Wilson. He reminded the press that Rick Wilson's zone presses and offensive tactics always give the opponent a lot of trouble. In a final note the Harvard coach emphasized the return of position basketball, and that the thirty-second rule does not belong in college.

No Seniors on Redmen Squad

Dick Bresciani, representing coach Matt Zunic, reviewed last Saturday's Stonehill game. He gave a general rundown on UM personnel. He pointed out that the Redmen are operating without any seniors and are faced with a tougher schedule.

Tony Williams, captain of the 1963 Redman baseball team, then asked Providence College coach Joe Mullaney about Bob Kovalski's (6'7" soph sensational from Hatfield) chance of breaking into the starting lineup. Mullaney stated that "Kovalski has a lot of potential" but that he is currently starting Carl Spencer. He feels that the 6'4" senior deserves a starting position in the early season games so that he won't be putting pressure on soph Kovalski. But Kovalski will be playing a lot.

Mullaney then moaned about the toughest schedule in the school's history, that includes St. Louis, St. Bonaventure, Miami of Florida, DePaul, Holy Cross, and Dayton.

Eagles Have No Wings

Frank Power, in his first and last year as head coach at Boston College, jokingly said, "Who else can say that Cousy is their substitute." The Eagles, who have only two returning lettermen, will have to play control basketball in order to meet the schedule demands.

Dick Dukeshire of Northeastern continued to move the crying towel around the table, as the team swept their first two games by lopsided scores. Fran Ryan, a 6'6" junior, "makes the team go and is pro material" according to Dukeshire.

Phil Phillips of Brandeis lacks height and rebounding strength, since two of his starters left for Israel. Phillips doesn't ask for a 6'9" or 6'10" man, just an ordinary 6'3" man. Brandeis shot 30% against Northeastern Monday night, and "you don't win grammar school games shooting like that."

This general picture of New England basketball should not be taken too seriously, since it is generally understood that each coach never likes to count his blessings in public. Most of the N.E. teams have a tougher schedule, better personnel, and will make a respectable showing to the rest of the nation.

Harvard And AIC Replace Dartmouth, Villanova In '63

Harvard University and American International College will be new opponents on the 1963 University of Massachusetts football schedule according to information released yesterday by Director of Athletics, Warren P. McGuirk.

The Crimson and Aces replace Dartmouth and Villanova from the 1962 plate and in addition to five Yankee Conference games, Coach Vic Fusia's Redmen will play independent games with Boston University and Bucknell.

The complete schedule: Sept. 21 at Maine; Sept. 28 at Harvard; Oct. 5 at Bucknell; Oct. 12 at Connecticut; Oct. 19 at Rhode Island; Oct. 26 at Boston University; Nov. 2 at Vermont; Nov. 9 at American International; and Nov. 16 at New Hampshire.

UM Matmen Face Worcester Poly.

by DICK McLAUGHLIN '64

Tomorrow night at Worcester Coach John Douglas sends his 1962-63 edition of the UMass wrestling team against the Worcester Polytechnic Institute charges of coach Ray Scott. It will be the first match for both of the teams.

WPI will send a veteran team onto the mat to oppose the new model from the University. In going over the probable lineups for the upcoming match Coach Douglas pointed out that the best chance for finding out what we would face was to go over the line up that WPI used last year. He said that in all probability it would be nearly unchanged.

UMass on the other hand has a few changes from the team that last year compiled a 1 and 8 record. It is expected that there will be considerable improvement on last year's record during the coming campaign.

In last year's match between the two teams WPI prevailed by taking the last four matches after losing the first four. The falls recorded by the Worcester wrestlers were the difference in an otherwise very even match.

The probable starting lineups for the match:

Worcester	Weight	UMass
Fee	123	Hodgdon
Clark	130	Chevone
Murphy	137	Rivers
Wilson	147	Best
Drean	157	DeWallace
Hazen	167	Winchester
Trask	177	Ellis
Semanski	Unlimited	Piercey

The coach and team of the University are confident that they can reverse the outcome of last year's match and begin a successful season on Thursday night.

Gymnasts Nipped By Southern Conn., 49-47

by JIM E. MULCAHY '64

Southern Connecticut State College displayed a strong Gymnastic Team here Saturday. They have been strengthened greatly over the team we beat two years ago. Their improvement showed in this, their first victory over any UMass team. This does not say that the UMass squad is weaker than usual. On the contrary, this squad is most likely the best balanced team in the short history of Redmen gymnastics.

Senior co-captain Dave Yates scored two firsts and a third for 15 points. Followers of the Redmen now expect a perfect performance from Yates every time he steps to the free exercise area, mounts the long horse or the high bar.

It should be noted here that gymnastics moves are separated into 3 grades of difficulty, the most difficult receiving the higher score. In order to receive the high score for a difficult move, it must be properly fitted into the routine as well as having the correct execution and form.

Consistency Rewarded

In the meet Saturday, the Redmen were more consistent than SCSC on less difficult moves. This fact was most apparent on the still rings. Dan Sternback from Southern Conn., the current New England AAU still ring champion, was beaten by Dave Williams '64 and Stanley Brallier '65. Williams completed a graceful, unfaltering routine and Brallier a shakier, yet unbroken series. Sternback began his routine with a most difficult "cross." The enthusiastic crowd at Curry-Hicks anticipated a stellar performance from Sternback and a third first place to enhance his side horse and parallel bar honors. But, as he left his cross, he began to swing. On the still rings, swinging is the major fault. The swinging Sternback, unable to control himself, could not complete his series in good form, dropping him to third place.

The Redmen high bar trio also had an "off-day". Yates, after completing a fine routine, fell off the bar. Under a new International rule, a gymnast may regrasp the bar after falling off, but must take a reduction in his score. Yates re-grasped the bar, but again could not execute his fly away. Our other co-captain,

Joe Rogers Sends Strong Swimmers Against Techmen

by DON GRANT

The much improved varsity swim team will meet powerful M.I.T. in the W.P.E. pool tonight at 8:30. The trial will be each team's initial this season and the Redmen have reason to hope for an upset.

Coach Joe Rogers and frosh coach "Chip" Hastings have given the men intensive conditioning for two months with fine results. In practice, Co-Capt. Bruce Morton at 2:22.0 for the 200 yard medley broke the record — with teammate Dan O'Mara close behind. Mike Bjornholm swam the 200 yard backstroke 4 seconds better than the record and Morton can place here also. John Grybko, 200 yard breastroke record holder even swifter this year, will be pushed by sophomore Charles Monnier.

Mike Rothschild will go the 200 yard freestyle and the newly instituted 500 yard distance swim (the old 440). Mike won these for us last season. Speedy Ron Chiras should place in the 50 and 100 yard sprints. John Francisco, freshman diving star, will compete for crucial points.

Both the medley and freestyle relay teams can set school marks. Mike Jamison, Edward Lobo, and versatile Jim O'Sullivan will figure in this tight contest. All the races should be exciting and merit fan support.

The freshmen meet starts at 7:00 p.m.

Redmen Pucksters Engage MIT In Season's Opener

by AL RICE '66

The University of Massachusetts opens its 54th hockey season tonight at the Amherst College rink when the MIT pucksters come to town.

Led by captain Gerry Clinton, coach Steve Kosakowski's Redmen will be out to break last year's team record of eight wins. Until the last few years UMass played an abbreviated schedule, but lately the Redmen have been increasing their hockey power to the point where they meet Army, Penn, Colgate, and Norwich in their 1962-63 slate.

Most of last year's team that produced an 8-10 mark will be back again, and there is only one senior on the squad, that being Clinton, one of the top defensemen in New England. Clinton has been a Redman starter in all four years that he has been in school. Also at defense are John Clayton of Gloucester and Dick Phillips of Framingham. Phillips also was the regular goalie on the soccer team that completed its season a few weeks ago.

Two-thirds of the first line are recruits from last year's undefeated freshmen squad. Joining Charlie Glew, a junior and second high scorer last season, will be John Lasher at left wing and Jerry Wolf at center. The second line is an all sophomore affair with Richard Callahan and Jim Mahoney flanking center Dave Higgins. Both wings come from Milton.

A pair of key men in the lineup are juniors Bob Chisholm and Bob Lee. Lee is a hustling center from Brookline and Chisholm is a top flight wing. He also is married and has two children, is a fine student, and runs the Grinder Wagon through he still finds time for the Redmen.

The key man on any hockey squad is the goalie, and Mass has one of the best in the East in Archer Bowen of Melrose. Backing him up is Steve Reimer. Also on the roster are Dave Kennedy, James MacLachlan, Allan Johnson, Clyde Long, Matt Herman, and Sean O'Leary.

Conditions haven't been too good for preparation for tonight's battle due to the fact that the UMass team has the Amherst ice only an hour a day, though last week Kosakowski was able to give his boys some extra work at Deerfield. The lack of practice may not show against MIT, although the rest of the schedule is tougher than any the Redmen have had to face before.

UMass will take part in the Christmas Tournament at Providence against Hamilton College, New Hampshire, and Bowdoin, and then take on Army and Colgate shortly afterwards. Also a strong team on the slate is Norwich University which dumped Mass 7-5 last year and has their entire squad returning.

Friday night's opponent, also here in Amherst, will be the University of Pennsylvania. UPenn has taken the Redmen in each of the last three years since they were put on the schedule.

The Redmen blew a 31-20 lead early in the second half and lost to the BU Terriers last night. Late in the half, with UMass ahead 40-37, the Terriers put in 14 straight points to put the game on ice. UMass couldn't hit from the foul line, hitting four of 17, one for 12 at one point.

Hypnotism Demonstration And Lecture Tomorrow

A scientific discussion and demonstration of hypnotism will be presented tomorrow night open to the UMass community.

Dr. William S. Taylor, Professor Emeritus from Smith College, who has devoted a good deal of his life to research into hypnotism, will deliver a lecture tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in Peters Auditorium.

The program will be sponsored by the University's newly formed Psychology Club as the Club's first major undertaking this year.

Mahlon W. Wagner of the Psychology Department is the Club's advisor. Officers are President Harvey L. Kanter, Vice President Ethan Pollack and Secretary-treasurer Nancy Mello.

Dr. Taylor is presently residing in Northampton. He is the author of several articles and papers.

The program will include a lecture to be followed by a demonstration of hypnotism on volunteer subjects chosen from the University campus.

Gymnastics . . .

Bruce McCracken, had even greater difficulty, breaking stride four times. He, like Sternback, had a fine move, full twisting back uprise. But, this was negated by the prolonged pauses.

Kjeldsen Pleased

Redmen coach Erick Kjeldsen is pleased with the performance of his gymnasts. He states emphatically, "We will get better."

Co-captains Yates and McCracken were bolstered by the support of sophomores and juniors. Williams, along with his first on the rings, scored a second on the side horse and a third on the parallel bars for a total of 13 points. Brallier's second to Williams on the rings and junior Thomas Astaldi's second on the long horse gave us an additional 8 points.

The final score of Southern Conn., 49 to UMass 47, shows how closely the teams were matched and how much depends on an individual gymnast.

Casting For Theroux Play To Be Held

Casting for the Campus Varieties production of The Kidney-Shaped Heart by Paul Theroux will be held on Dec. 5 and 6 from 7:30-10:30 p.m. in the following places. On Wednesday, Dec. 5, tryouts for speaking parts will be held in Machmer W11 and 13. Dancing and singing tryouts will be in Skinner Auditorium.

The parts to be filled consist of 12 speaking characters and a chorus of three boys and three girls who must be able to sing and dance.

Paul Theroux is well known among literary circles around campus. He has written extensively in various fields, but this is his first musical-comedy.

Linda Fisher and Bill Martin have composed some highly original and "catchy" songs.

Bobbi Hanna, prominent figure in the Modern Dance Club, is the choreographer.

Bev DeMarco, veteran of several campus productions, will direct the show.

The Kidney-Shaped Heart is a satire on campus life. It is centered somewhat around the IBM system but by no means exclusively. The author states, "The characters in this play are not representational of any people which the author knows. They are fabrications of his imagination. Any resemblance is accidental, unintentional, and a pity, really."

UM Opera Production

The UMass Opera Workshop has announced its second annual production of "Amahl and the Night Visitors," will be presented Saturday, December 15, at 7 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

This Christmas story, written by Gian-Carlo Menotti and first presented by the NBC Television Theatre on Christmas Eve, 1951, is under the direction of Mr. Doric Alviani. Of special interest is the chorus of "Amahl", which will consist of 30 students from the Wilbraham Regional High School.

Announces Of 'Amahl'

The story concerns a small, crippled shepherd, Amahl (Dulcey Alviani), and his mother (Jan Fortin), a poor widow. Since the father's death they have known only hunger and cold.

Three Wise Men (David Amsden, Ernest Bilodeau, David McQueston), on their way to Bethlehem, stop at the hut and request a night's lodging.

Amahl and his mother welcome them as best they can, greatly awed by the splendor of the Wise Men's robes and the wealth of the gifts they bear.

Realizing these gifts are for a newborn baby whom the three kings are searching for, Amahl's mother, bitter and envious, cannot understand why some of these gifts cannot be given to her own child, who is so poor.

According to cast members, the production is expected to be fully as entertaining as last year's show, which was enthusiastically received by the University audience.

Three Eminent Authors Analyze Universities

Ralph Ellison, William Manchester and Philip Roth at an informal meeting in the Colonial Lounge of the S.U. preceding their appearances Tuesday and Wednesday evenings in a special symposium in the S.U. Ballroom. The symposium on "The Novelist and the American University" was sponsored by the Alumni Memorial Lecture series.

Three eminent American authors of academic novels, William Manchester, Ralph Ellison and Philip Roth, spoke on the "Novelist and the American University" in two consecutive sessions of the symposium Tuesday and Wednesday evenings in the S.U. Ballroom. Ellison was unable to attend the second session of the program, sponsored by the UMass Alumni Memorial Lecture series.

Comparing the public and private college at Wednesday's meeting, Manchester, a UMass graduate, declared the prestige of the private school lies in its social, not educational, value.

The private college's greatest asset is its faculty, said Manchester. He attributed the faculties' quality to the fact that they exercise far more authority without regard to popular approval or disapproval.

Listing the disadvantages of the university, Manchester mentioned the need for better student-faculty relations, academic independence and sufficient funds.

"Is the university good for the writer and is the writer good for the university?" queried Roth, pointing out that today half of the serious novelists and almost all of the serious poets are teaching in universities.

Recognizing the fact that one job may obscure the other, he said that the most crucial danger is that residency in a university limits the writer's experience and thereby "threatens the very source of his work."

Commenting on the writer's role in the university, Roth cited the courses in creative writing which don't even pretend to teach creative writing, but rather to show the students what fiction is, and thereby give a deeper perception of a story's significance.

As Roth emphasized, "to know what a story means it is necessary to know what a story is."

Dime Saving Time Is Here At Long Last

University extension telephone lines have been set up or are in the process of being set up in the dormitories.

The new phone lines, as approved by the telephone company, are numbered as follows:

In use now:

Brett	200-201
Gorman	202-203
Plymouth	204-205
Hills North	206-207
Hills South	208-209
Arnold	300-301
Crabtree	302-303
Dwight	304-305
Hamlin	306-307
Johnson	308-309

To be in use by the end of the semester:

Brooks	410-411
Wheeler	412-413
Mills	414-415
Baker	416-417
Butterfield	418-419
Knowlton	510-511
Leach	512-513
Lewis	514-515
Mary Lyons	516-517
Thatcher	518-519
Chadbourne	640-641
Greenough	642-643
Van Meter	644-645

These phone lines will be available for use only during the evening, from 4 p.m. to 11 p.m. In the daytime, the numbers are extension phones to university faculty and administrative offices.

Dave Mainwaring, of WMUA, has asked that students be aware of the change in use of their line 514. Requests for Friday night's "Crazy Rhythms" show will be taken exclusively on the 425 line.

Abbey Girls Are Assigned Male Dormitory Residence

by CONNIE AVALLONE '64

The girls of Abbey will be housed next semester in Plymouth Dormitory, despite protest of the eviction by a majority of the male residents of Plymouth.

Administrative representatives at a meeting yesterday afternoon with Student Senate representatives bypassed the suggestion passed at Wednesday night's Senate meeting, that the Administration reconsider the proposed move.

No Solution Permanent

According to Dean of Students William Field, at the meeting yesterday in the Conference Room of Machmer, no solution can be considered permanent, but the proposed move is the most acceptable.

He said that, in all probability, the girls of Abbey would not be housed in Plymouth next year but would be placed in another dormitory.

Plymouth, with the two married dorms, Suffolk and Hampshire, and two men's dorms, Berkshire and Middlesex, is located west of the athletic field. It houses 140 male students at present.

Present at yesterday's meeting were Dean Field, Dean of Men Robert Hopkins, Dean of Women Helen Curtis, Head of Housing Frank Thomas, Abbey Senator Maida Hurwitz, Plymouth Senator Bill Nichols, Senate Vice President Betsy Robicheau, Secretary of Senate Women's Affairs Committee Ann Gillvan and Chairman of Senate Men's Affairs Steve Gray.

The motion, introduced by Senator Nichols, passed the Senate Wednesday by a 35-3 vote to "recommend to the Dean of Students that he reconsider his decision concerning the proposed transfer of Plymouth House from the male students to the former residents of Abigail Adams House".

Senate rules were suspended to allow Robert Caldwell, Class of '65 and a resident of Plymouth, to speak in behalf of the residents of his dorm.

Move Involves Smallest Number of Students

Caldwell pointed out that, without any prior notification, the men in Plymouth dorm were on December 4 notified by Dean Field that Plymouth Dormitory had been chosen after "a careful analysis of the needs of both men and women students for second semester housing", as the residence hall to be used to house the girls of Abigail Adams. "This change will involve the smallest number of students of any possible housing revision which could be made".

Caldwell listed several reasons why the men of Plymouth felt that such a transfer was undesirable and inconvenient for both the men and the women.

"Many of the men of Plymouth are veterans", Caldwell pointed out, and will not be able to afford the extra expense of living in another dorm. Room rent for one semester at Plymouth is $80 whereas another dorm would cost at least $100 and in some cases $150.

Senator Richard Boyden ('65 Commuters) stated that living in a room at Plymouth was like "living in a sardine can", and was backed by Senator Nichols who said though a male student could put up with the close quarters a woman would find it more difficult.

Senator Steve Hewey ('63 At-Large) said he thought the "girls should be allowed to experience the same living conditions as fellow students. The Abbey girls should be happy to

Famed Trio To Perform In Concert

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York, noted for its virtuosity throughout the U.S. and Western Europe, will give a concert Thursday, Dec. 13, in Bartlett Hall Auditorium.

The trio, comprising Menahem Pressler, Daniel Guilet and Bernard Greenhouse, will appear under auspices of the University Concert Association. The concert is scheduled for 8 p.m. and tickets may be purchased at the door. Students will be admitted by I.D.

Formed in 1955, the trio has been a popular and critical success since its inception.

Pressler, Guilet and Greenhouse began the current season with their eighth consecutive appearance at the annual Berkshire Music Festival in Tanglewood, an honor accorded to few groups.

After the trio's Tanglewood debut in 1955, Charles Munch wrote, "The marvelous musicality of these three artists has been unknown in trio playing for many years. They are worthy successors to the last great trio —Thibaud, Casals and Cortot."

Menahem Pressler, the trio's pianist, won international recognition at the age of seventeen, when he flew from Palestine to San Francisco and won the Debussy Prize.

In the years since, Pressler

But above and beyond a generous atmophere and an adequate comprehension of our time, ordinary human courage is needed. To criticize negativism openly requires a strong heart when negativism is ubiquitous; only a man of mettle will propose a novel interpretation of facts now arranged in entrenched categories. And no matter how eagerly the audience awaits or how well prepared the set, only courage can take the performer to the stage. There are many kinds of courage; needed here is the courage to risk being wrong, to risk doing unintentional harm and, above all, the courage to overcome one's own humility and sense of finite inadequacy. This is not merely diffuse "courage to be" without protest in a world of inherent uncertainty and anxiety, but the resolve to be for something despite the perishability and transience of all human endeavors.

Collegian Opinion Poll 3

The third Collegian opinion poll asked the question: "Are you in favor of the 'Graduating Average Bill'?" As the data indicates, the campus favored the bill by a 3 to 2 margin.

The class of 1965, which had the largest response of 118 votes, was the only class to give a negative response to the question; the classes of '63, '64 and '66 were all in favor of the bill. A group of 72 did not indicate their class or University affiliation, but this group was against the bill by a slight margin.

While the faculty and administration response is too small to give a true indication, the student body response seems to indicate that they are in favor of the "Graduating Average Bill." It must be noted, however, that the total response of 517 votes only represents between 5 and 10 percent of the entire University family.

ESSENTIALS OF AMITY

What are the essentials of amity among all the different nationalities that inhabit this world? From the content of the questions and the answers that were exchanged between the distinguished Ambassador of Nigeria and those students who attended the International Club's Coffee Hour this Wednesday, he seems to have found the right answers to this problem.

His opinion on this could be broken into three major essentials. First and foremost is the feeling of curiosity and the innate inquisitiveness that every student is expected to have. The desire to know and the determination to find out all one can is the first step.

The second is the realistic approach to all the problems. When asked how strong are the possibilities of achieving the ideal of Pan-Africanism, he distinguished very subtly between the emotional and the sentimental achievement of an ideal and its realization. To realize that any ideal has to go through many setbacks and has to face so many difficulties, would be the second step.

The third is, to our mind, the most important. It has to be understood that the barriers and difficulties in achieving understanding and amity have to be broken down. Here the role the Powers that be prefer to play, is important. The desire to know and the realistic approach to the problems do not thrive in an atmosphere of cold formality and officiousness. The Ambassador himself set a welcome precedent to this by waiving the Protocol requirements for the Exchange of opinions he had with the students.

When would these three essentials be a common factor in the inter-communal, interstate and international exchanges?

A DYING IDEAL

Christmas is approaching. Thanksgiving's over. It's the time of year when we in America can view ourselves and give thanks; a holiday season from which exudes the subtle force of humility. Has the meaning of Thanksgiving changed for us since its kindling beginning? Can we experience the humility which grew out of that small group of courageous people lost in a strange new world of wilderness, savages, and hunger, as they toiled against hopelessness? To finally have their hardship allayed, and to give thanks, and then to share of themselves with their potential foes?

Our day begins, our day ends. We go to class, scintillate at the libe, absorb the Hatch, warm our rooms, sift our books, rock at the hop and perhaps involve ourselves in a thought-producing movie. Where in this swiftness of living do we experience humility? As business men shuffle to work, rustle with peers, and tussle at home—where in their lives is humility spawn? Doctors, lawyers, bankers, oilers, all captivated by everyday living—where does humility find a place in their existence? Maybe among all the striving and competition of the business world, in the vying of special interests in our government, maybe in the passiveness and the appeasement of our political figures (which all help to form our American environment), the ability to give thanks, to share of ourselves, to know our capabilities and at the same time to be aware of our limitations has become non-existent. If it has, it doesn't have to be.

Humility has been a part of our western tradition. A humility which involves suffering—the suffering of Job in the Bible as he comes to grips with the inexplainable insensitivity of his God; or the ascetics down through history who in the throes of self-hate tried to incur humility in themselves. Socrates stands out, a man of great humility; so enriched with an awareness of his own power and yet his limitations that he was able to die for the seeking of the truth. Simply for the truth, not brazenly, just simply by quietly drinking hemlock. But humility isn't prevalent in our social structures, business world, and foreign policy! Is it present in our social groups on campus?

How could humility arise? Where is its source? Perhaps it rests with experience, when we have experiences in which we strive to overcome certain aspects of ourselves, or experiences in which we try to achieve a level we've never before attained. If we feel we do have the potential of achieving that level, and after striving with a little suffering, the level is attained; we become imbibed with a self confidence—a self confidence which doesn't force us to be egotistic. but which enables us to understand what we have experienced, a self confidence which brings forth a tranquility which enables us to share our feelings of achievement. Thus as we view others around us striving to achieve, we can understand the suffering that they are experiencing. Even if we didn't achieve it, if we realize that we have the potential for achievement, pride becomes a secondary matter. Pride stems from the realization that we really don't believe we could have achieved this level; or that having achieved, a lack of assurance still compels us to assume an attitude of arrogance.

There is a need for simplicity of feeling and an understanding of the goals of others, in our society. Among all the competition and arrogance in our lives, a need for humility cries out. —G.M.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Basketball or Zoo Parade

To the Editors:

What is basketball coming to at the University? Is it a menagerie or a circus? While listening to Tuesday's game I began to wonder. According to James Trelease the team is comprised of a "little rabbit" (the "little general"), a "good burglar", a "jolly Roger", an "Ack-Ack" (please excuse the spelling), a "big stallion" and a "little turkey."

Our announcer seems to visualize all of these fictitious characters bouncing a "big orange pumkin" up and down the court. Why doesn't Mr. Trelease broadcast the necessary and correct information, rather than try to enlighten us with fantasies from George Orwell's famous novel "Animal Farm."

"SANTA CLAUS"

To the Editor:

Re: The "Clowns" who termed themselves "Santa Claus":

In view of the scintillating event which occurred last Saturday evening, may I remind those of you involved that stealing is a criminal offense, even though it may only involve a dozen or more Christmas spray arrangements made by the members of the Forestry Club. Our loss will only be a minor one, but the lack of character and principle on your part will ultimately lead to a somewhat greater loss for you.

Since a large proportion of the Christmas sprays have been recovered, very few hard feelings will be held; however, I would not recommend publicizing your participation in such an occurrence, as it may have adverse effects.

ABBY AND PLYMOUTH

To the Editor:

This letter is in regard to the recent Student Senate resolution asking the Dean of Students to reconsider his decision concerning the placement of the former "Abby" residents into Plymouth House. I think that the Senate showed little thought and consideration on this matter.

As a new member of the Senate I was surprised and greatly pleased to see the vast amount of initiative, thoroughness, and leadership displayed by the Student Senate and exemplified by Senators Hewey, Brauer, Fife and Cournoyer, in particular. However, I feel that last Wednesday's action on the aforementioned subject was not the right way to approach the matter.

My complaint is not that the Senate had no right to do what was done. However, to ask the Dean to reconsider a decision while the Senators themselves did not know the extent to which the Administration went to secure an equitable solution, seems to me an uncalled-for oversight. It seems to me, in effect, to say to the Dean, "You must reconsider (implying change) your decision. You haven't taken all aspects of the problem into consideration."

To imply that the Administration's decision was haphazard and not thought out completely, appears to be an affront to the intelligence and ability of the Administration making the decision. Whether or not the decision is equitable and the best for all concerned is a moot point but not now under consideration. The very fact, however, that the decision took four weeks seems, to me at least, to infer careful planning. I agree that, without more information we cannot be sure that this is so. However, to quote part of the notice to the residents of Plymouth House from the Office of the Dean of Students:

> "As a result of the fire in Abigail Adams House it has been necessary to transfer a men's residence hall to women for the second semester. After careful analysis (emphasis mine) of the needs of both men and women students for second semester housing, Plymouth House has been chosen as the unit which must be transferred. I sincerely regret the inconvenience which this will cause to the men of Plymouth House. However, this change will involve the smallest number of students of any possible housing revision which could be made . . . Your cooperation in meeting this difficult situation will be deeply appreciated and will make possible the best solution to the housing problem which really has no completely satisfactory answer."

Now, this is my point. The Dean of Students has, in his statement made, along with many others, a "careful analysis" of the housing needs and finds this solution to be, to paraphrase the Dean, the best possible solution under the circumstances. But it was without complete knowledge of the facts that went into making this decision that the Senate asked for a reconsideration of the solution.

As Senator from Mills House, I know fairly well with what the residents of Plymouth House are confronted for we were in practically the same situation. Yet I was not asked by any member of my constituency to bring our plight before the Senate. Why? Because we knew that the Administration was doing its best to find the best solution and taking all aspects of the problem into consideration. If we had been the dormitory which had to move, assuredly we would have been far from delighted. But we knew that, as I stated above, all aspects of the problem would have been considered.

However, I have digressed. My previous remarks, I think, should suffice to point out my hope that if another problem of a similar nature does arise—and I sincerely hope it won't—that more thought be given to it, as is usually done to all problems to the benefit of all concerned.

New Courses Offered Area Students

The School of Business Administration and the School of Engineering at UMass will offer graduate courses to students in the Pittsfield-North Adams area this spring.

Courses planned in business administration include financial management, a seminar in business administration, and problems of advertising.

The electrical engineering department has scheduled a mathematics course on the Fourier series and orthogonal systems and also a course in modern physics. All classes will meet at Pittsfield High School.

Successfully-completed courses carry full credit toward the master of arts degree in business administration and master of science degree in electrical engineering.

Applications are now being accepted for entrance into the spring term of the Pittsfield program, slated to begin January 28.

Those interested in the business program should write to Dr. John T. Conlon, Chairman, Department of Management, UMass.

Engineers should contact either Dr. G. D. Scheckels or G. R. Higgins at the School of Engineering.

Newman Club Hears Lecture On Catholic Intellectualism

by IRIS LOFARO '66

"We live in an image oriented culture," began Rev. Thomas Phelan in his lecture on "Catholic Intellectualism" at the bimonthly meeting of the Newman Club in the Dining Commons Tuesday evening.

"The image of Catholic Intellectualism in America is poor primarily because Catholics were late arrivals in the U.S. and they came from poor immigrant stock."

In defining intellectualism, Rev. Phelan stated that it is "a doctrine of knowledge completely derived by human reason; for this man is born and beyond reason there is nothing. To be an intellectual one must strive toward scholarship in one's own field and be well versed in other fields. One must see one's body of knowledge in relation to all the other knowledge of the world. One must be able to measure things and keep them in their proper order. One must be active and uncompromising; one must know the truth and defend it against contradiction."

"Catholicism adds dimension to intellectualism," continued Rev. Phelan. "It offers opportunity of the greatest universality of human knowledge; it broadens and deepens the framework in which we receive God."

Predicted Rev. Phelan, "Newmanites are the Catholic intellectuals of tomorrow." He recommended that UMass students "be intensive in their pursuit of knowledge by fundamentally mastering one thing totally before pursuing other subjects. Remember that only in loving learning will we be saved."

Sold and enjoyed in all 50 states and in more than 100 countries around the world

In all 50 states, the big switch is to Marlboro

Remember 1955, when Marlboro came to town? Suddenly, the U.S. had a flavor cigarette with a filter on the end. Sales grew in every town, in every state. Today the whole place is Marlboro country—land of the filter cigarette with the unfiltered taste. Behind this popularity is the famous Richmond recipe of ripe tobaccos (the finest grown), and the pure white Selectrate Filter. Pack or box, you get a lot to like.

Quality is the key to success at Western Electric

Admittedly, our standards are high at Western Electric. But engineering graduates who can meet them, and who decide to join us, will begin their careers at one of the best times in the history of the company. For plentiful opportunities await them in both engineering and management.

As we enter a new era of communications, Western Electric engineers are carrying forward assignments that affect the whole art of telephony from electronic devices to high-speed sound transmission. And, in the management category alone, several thousand supervisory jobs will be available to W.E. people within the next 10 years. Many of these new managers will come from the class of '62.

Now's the time for you to start thinking seriously about the general work area that interests you at Western Electric, the manufacturing and supply unit of the Bell Telephone System. Then when our representative comes to your campus, you'll be prepared to discuss career directions that will help make the interview profitable.

After a man joins Western Electric, he will find many programs that will aid him in exploring the exciting course of his career — while advancing just as fast as his abilities allow. And he'll be secure in the knowledge that he is growing with a company dedicated to helping America set the pace in improving communications for a rapidly growing world.

Challenging opportunities exist now at Western Electric for electrical, mechanical, industrial, and chemical engineers, as well as physical science, liberal arts, and business majors. All qualified applicants will receive careful consideration for employment without regard to race, creed, color or national origin. For more information about Western Electric, write College Relations, Western Electric Company, Room 6106, 222 Broadway, New York 38, New York. And be sure to arrange for a Western Electric interview when our college representatives visit your campus.

Intra-American Exchange Program Plans Expansion

It is common knowledge that within the next decade college applications will double. Never before have so many had such opportunities in the field of higher education. There is little question but that our state universities must accept major responsibility for providing these opportunities. In building for the future many have employed outstanding engineers, architects, and educators to guarantee each student the best in the way of education.

The University of Massachusetts, not unlike other state universities, has embarked upon a record program of expansion. One of the most significant and perhaps promising projects underway is the "Intra-American Exchange Program" sponsored by the new School of Education. It is hoped that elementary teacher aspirants may learn of the unusual educational opportunities available through the program.

Three Universities Participate

For the moment let us examine briefly the exchange idea from the standpoint of its contributions as seen by the three participating state universities—Florida State University at Tallahassee, Florida; the University of New Mexico at Albuquerque, New Mexico; and the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, Massachusetts.

There is unanimous agreement that students attending our state universities are limited in their contacts with those from other parts of the nation. In other words there exists an air of "Campus Provincialism" which tends to limit rather than liberalize education. A recent survey showed, for example, that only five per cent of the students at UMass were from out-of-state. Predictions on future in-state enrollments at our state universities suggest that this picture is unlikely to change in the near future.

Secondly, the participating institutions are convinced that all undergraduates, especially education majors, would profit greatly from spending a semester in sections of the United States which differ widely from their own. Students have almost unlimited opportunity to experience contrasting points of view relating to cultural, social and educational problems.

Finally, the "Intra-American Exchange Program" enables sturents in our state supported institutions to enjoy these broadening experiences at little or no additional expense. This is of great significance since many simply do not have the financial means to participate in similar programs at home or abroad (i.e., the junior year abroad).

The following describes the program as it now exists:

Each of the three member universities has received permission from its Board of Trustees to grant in state tuition rates to exchange students. Inasmuch as room, board, and other fees are approximately the same at each school, the only additional expense to the student is transportation cost. Each school has selected one faculty member to "head up" the program and serve as advisor to incoming students.

Faculty Advisor Supervises Program

The faculty advisor supervises the exchangee's work throughout the semester, arranges for room accommodations, and helps, generally, with social and academic adjustments on campus. Students are encouraged to take a normal program of studies since adequate time should be available for activities and experiences of a less formal nature, such as visits to places of cultural and historical interest, campus social activities, or weekend visits to home of "host" students.

Although the program is only in its second year, twenty-five students from UMass have spent or are currently enjoying a semester's work at Florida State University or the University of New Mexico. We can safely conclude, that the project has succeeded beyond all expectations. For example, Joan Hussey, while attending the University of New Mexico, applied for and received a Carnegie fellowship to study Spanish in Mexico last summer.

Enlarged Future Program Planned

In closing perhaps we should touch on the future plans for the "Intra-American Exchange" idea. It is now apparent that the program will be enlarged to include the University of Nebraska at Lincoln, Nebraska; the College of William and Mary at Williamsburg, Virginia; and the new University of South Florida at Tampa. Each of these state universities will open the door for unique and rewarding experiences. Even more encouraging, thanks to President Lederle, is the fact that other departments throughout UMass are free to carry out similar programs, thus placing within the grasp of practically every student the opportunity to study at another state universiy.

The selection of girls to participate in the exchange for the fall semester of 1963 will begin next semester.

Art Museum Purchases Works Of Paul Serra

by MARCIA ELASOWICH '65

At the Eastern States Exposition Exhibition held at West Springfield in September, one water color and four oils were purchased and made part of the permanent collecetion of the Springfield Museum of Fine Arts.

The water color was painted by Paul Serra, a senior at UM, who is a serious art major. The painting is entitled "Hong Kong Street" and Serra describes it as a "vertical composition done in the abstract impressionistic style".

Serra said he is hopefully looking forward to furthering his art studies abroad next year. When asked about what particular media he prefers, he answered, "I am in love with water color."

At the New England Regional Colleges Ehibition in 1962, Serra showed his proficiency in his media by copping first prize for one of his water colors. He has a print exhibited in the Springfield Art League Annual Exhibition. This print, an example of one of Serra's current themes, is a horizontal landscape composition done in water colors and oils.

Serra especially admires Cezanne for his landscapes and his emphasis on structure in composition. As for other exhibits, Serra wryly described himself as "periodically sharing gallery privileges with William Shumway in Memorial Hall".

Aside from water colors, Serra is working on two self-portrait caste plaster sculptures. The trick to these, he said, is to make them undersized but yet avoid having them appear as grotesque shrunken heads.

Catalano Revitalizes University Theatre

by LAURA GOLDMAN '63

Cosmo Catalano, associate director of the University Theater has come to UMass this year with the purpose of revitalizing the University Theater.

"Theatrical productions on the university level should be a reflection of the University, rather than the commerical world," says Catalano. "This is the goal of the UMass University Theater program. It can only be fulfilled if the customary conception of theater work as a dramatic art is enriched by an emphasis on good dramatic literature."

Catalano, who is an assistant professor of speech at UMass, was drawn toward academically-oriented theater as a high school student working at the famous Municipal Summer Theater in Cleveland, Ohio with University-educated people.

As an undergraduate at Allegheny college in Penn. and later as a graduate student at Yale, he specialized in Dramatics.

Continuing his interest in academic theater rather than commercial theater, Catalano worked his way up through Summer Playhouses. In addition to having directed over 50 days, he has played many stage roles, most recently in a faculty presentation of "The Cocktail Party" at Ohio University, where he taught speech, directed plays, and designed settings during the past nine years.

As director of the forthcoming University Theater production of Moliere's Tartuffe, Catalano said he was not satisfied with the ordinary literary-historical approach which usually emphasizes the theme of hypocrisy. Mr. Catalano has developed an approach to the play which will speak to the contemporary audience through the image of man and of comedy that is beyond historical limitation.

Concerning Tartuffe, Catalano said "The emphasis on vitality through laughter in this University production is historically true not only to the Moliere comedy as it was viewed in the 17th cenutry, but it also has validity for the contemporary theatre-goer who may compare it to the 'Keystone Kops' cavorting in the carnival hall of mirrors. The play itself is built on deception, which is the idea behind the funhouse maze of mirrors where it is difficult to see the truth."

"I believe," said Catalano, "that it is the academic theatre, with the double goal of artistic expression as well as entertainment, rather than the commercial theatre with its ultimate goal of entertainment for financial profit, which is the true theatre."

UM Poetry On Display At Library

Poetry originating from UMass is the subject of the current exhibit in Goodell Library. Books displayed include A Curious Quire, a collection of poems by four members of the English department; Begging the Dialect and Third Day Lucky by Robin Skelton, poet in residence; and Poet's Choice, co-edited by Joseph Langland of the University English department. The original letters from any of the poets who contributed to this anthology are displayed. The exhibit will remain in the library for six weeks.

Mermen Lose To Tech; Take 7 Of 11 Firsts

by DON GRANT

A strong Redmen Swim Team lost to M.I.T. 51 to 44 Wednesday night in a meet many called the best seen here in years. The Redmen took 7 of 11 first places and set 4 new records on the way to defeat.

Junior Mike Rothschild established records in 2 distance events by swimming the 200 yard Free Style in 2:02.8 and the 500 yard Free Style in 5:45.5. Mike lapped the field in the 500 and coasted to a win in the 200, but he won his third first against fast men in the 100 yd. sprint in a good 54.0 seconds. In all, Mike set three new marks since he alone chalked 15 points for the maximum individual scoring record.

Bruce Morton established 2:22.0 as a school and pool mark in winning the 200 yard Individual Medley to the cheers of the gallery. Mike Bjornholm earned two victories by taking the 50 yard Free Style and the 200 yard Backstroke. Morton took a hard fought second in the Back.

The Diving was won by John Francisco with a high total of 144.4 points.

Both teams were tied at 35 pts. after the Backstroke, then the Redmen went up one point in the 500, with only the 200 yard Breaststroke and the Free Relay remaining. Here M.I.T.'s Einolf inched past Charles Monnier and John Grybko in the Breaststroke finish in the best contested race of the night. This race decided the meet.

As an added attracion Co-Capt. James Coffey swam the 200 yd. Free Style with a bandaged and broken wrist, nearly making a 3rd place point.

The freshmen lost 24 to 70. Ken Bates swam a fine 100 yd. Backstroke in 1:07.6. The fans for both meets filled ¾ of the stands—an excellent turnout.

Tonight the Redmen face Amherst College at the W.P.E. pool at 8:00 p.m.
